rain, clouds, the winds, and the various seasons of the year. In all these things we discover, first, the infinite power of God; and next, His wisdom, justice, and goodness: since God makes use of all these things, and of their different effects, as means to promote the good and happiness of mankind; and sometimes He makes them serve as instruments of correction. We are here therefore called upon to consider attentively the wonderful manner in which the world is governed: and to make use of the mercies which God vouchsafes us, and of His chastening dispensations, which are all designed to teach us to know and fear Him. Here ends the dispute between Job and his friends. Ostervald.

"Let men therefore fear Him who beholdeth all the wise in heart as nothing." This great instruction is the point of aim throughout Elihu's speech: this is the sublime moral of the whole poem. To establish this primary duty of all religion by His own authority, the Deity Himself at last appears; the design of whose speech to Job is to reduce him to this reverent submission, and by his example to enforce it upon all others. Scott.

Chap. XXXVIII.—XLII. Jehovah Himself is introduced with an answer to Job, which shall bring his mind to a better temper, and fit him for his restoration. The manner in which this latter part of the poem is conducted, has been well delineated by Scott.

"The design of this appearance of the Almighty is not to vindicate the injured character of Job. That is done by a second appearance, which was afterwards made to Eliphaz singly, chap. xlii. 7, 9; and which comes not within the limits of the poem.

"Neither is the design of this speech to decide the controversy in the dialogues about the ways of Providence: for the decision of that dispute was not intended by the poem, but was reserved for the subsequent history. The scope of the speech is to humble Job; and to teach others by his example to acquiesce implicitly in the disposals of God, from an unbounded confidence in His wisdom, equity, and goodness. This surely is an end worthy of the interposition of the Deity.

"The method taken in the speech to accomplish its design, is a series of questions and descriptions relative to natural things, admirably fitted to convince this complainant, and all others, of their incapacity to judge of God's moral administration, and of the danger of striving with their Maker." Bp. Stock.

The Almighty's speech, in this and the following chapters, is by much the finest part of the noblest and most ancient poem in the world. Bp. Patrick says, Its grandeur is as much above all other poetry, as thunder is louder than a whisper. Longinus has a chapter on interrogations, which shews that they contribute much to the sublime. This speech of the Almighty is made up of them. Interrogation seems indeed the proper style of Majesty incensed. It differs from other manner of reproof, as bidding a person execute himself does from a common execution: for he that asks the guilty a proper question, makes him in effect pass sentence on himself. Dr. Young.

Chap. XXXVIII. ver. 1. Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind,] No sooner had Elihu spoken the foregoing words, but there was a sensible token of the presence of that most dreadful majesty of God, chap. xxxvii. 22. For there arose an unusual cloud, and a voice came out of it as loud as a tempest, which addressed itself to Job. It is probable that God appeared and spoke to Job in this manner, partly because this was His usual method in those times, as we see, Exod. xix. 18. Numb. ix. 15, 16: see also 1 Kings xix. 11. Ezek. i. 4: and partly that Job and his friends might be more thoroughly humbled and abased within themselves, and prepared the better to receive, and longer to retain, the instructions which God was about to give them. Bp. Patrick, Poole.

2. — that darkeneth counsel &c.] Who by his vain and ignorant speeches throws a cloud, as far as he is able, over the minds of men, concerning the purposes of God in the administration of human affairs. Capellus.

3. Gird up now thy loins like a man; &c.] Prepare thyself for the combat with me, which thou hast often desired, like a valiant man who means to grapple with his adversary. Clark.

4. Where wast thou &c.] The sentiment conveyed in these striking interrogations is, that He alone, who made the world, is capable of judging how it ought to be governed. This and the three following verses speak of the creation of the earth; and in terms of architecture, which denote exact proportion, nice arrangement, and durable solidity. Scott.

7. — the morning stars] That is, the holy angels, glorious and shining like the morning star. Compare 1 Kings xxii. 19. Dan. xii. 3. 1 Cor. xv. 41. Luke xx. 36. Parkhurst.

8—11. Or who shut up the sea &c.] The waters were coeval with the earth, and covered it in the beginning. The gathering of them together into a proper receptacle was the great work of the third day of creation. They then took the denomination of "seas," or "the sea;" and likewise retained the name of "the deep." This operation of Almighty power, together with the measures taken to prevent the sea from overflowing the earth, is the subject of these four verses. Scott.

—— with doors,] See also ver. 10, "And set bars and doors." The shores, Prov. viii. 29. Jer. v. 22, promontories in particular, and high rocky coast, are a restraint upon the ocean, and a security to the earth. These are the "barred doors," which in part keep the waters of the sea within the bounds assigned to them. Scott.

—— when it brake forth, as if it had issued out of the womb?] Simply thus: "when it brake forth, issuing out of the womb." Dr. Durell. The subject here is the collection of part of the mass of waters into a channel, to form the sea and surround the earth. "The womb" therefore, out of which the waters of the sea issued, seems to have been the subterraneous abyss; the sea under ground, as the Arabs call it. Scott.

9. When I made — thick darkness a swaddling band for it,] Rather, "a swaddling cloth:" when I enveloped it in thick clouds for its immediate clothing, and surrounded it by extensive darkness as a wrapper, involving it wholly. It was a custom

Before CHRIST about 1520.

10 And ‖brake up for it my decreed place, and set bars and doors,

11 And said, Hitherto shalt thou come, but no further: and here shall † thy proud waves be stayed?

12 Hast thou commanded the morning since thy days; and caused the dayspring to know his place;

13 That it might take hold of the † ends of the earth, that the wicked might be shaken out of it?

14 It is turned as clay to the seal; and they stand as a garment.

15 And from the wicked their light is withholden, and the high arm shall be broken.

16 Hast thou entered into the springs of the sea? or hast thou walked in the search of the depth?

17 Have the gates of death been opened unto thee? or hast thou seen the doors of the shadow of death?

18 Hast thou perceived the breadth of the earth? declare if thou knowest it all.

19 Where is the way where light dwelleth? and as for darkness, where is the place thereof, among the ancients, when they had washed a new-born child, to wrap it in a cloth. Fragments to Calmet.

‖ Or, established my decree upon it.

† Heb. the pride of thy waves.

† Heb. wings.

The eruption of the sea from the great abyss, was compared, in the preceding verse, to the breaking forth of an infant out of the womb. This image is naturally followed by the "garment" and the "swaddlingband," to which are resembled those thick and dark clouds, that frequently arise over the sea, and encompass it. Scott.

10. And brake up for it my decreed place,] In the margin we read, "and established my decree upon it;" which is a much better sense. Dr. Durell. The phrase is of the same import as that in Prov. viii. 29. The decree, which God imposed on the mighty ocean, is that wonderful law of gravitation in fluids, by which, all the parts of them exerting an equal pressure upon one another, the equilibrium of the whole mass is maintained. Scott.

11. And said, Hitherto shalt thou come, &c.] There is a character of great magnificence in all that precedes; but this is signally sublime. We are struck with admiration to see the vast and ungovernable ocean receiving commands, and punctually obeying them: to find it, like a managed horse, raging, tossing, and foaming but by the rule and direction of its Master. Dr. Young.

12—15. Hast thou commanded the morning &c.] Raise up thy thoughts still higher, and tell Me, dost thou remember since the morning-light was made? Bp. Patrick.

—— since thy days;] These words imply, that this had taken place before the birth of Job, and that the settled course of nature had been ordained by God from the creation of the world. Rosenmüller.

—— and caused the dayspring to know his place;] "The morning" and "the dayspring" are but two different names for one and the same thing; break of day until sunrising. Its regular appearance in the East is here marked. In the first sentence of ver. 13, the diffusion of the morning light over the whole face of the earth is expressed by the beautiful figure of "taking hold of the ends of the earth." In the second sentence, the moral benefit of the morning to mankind is noticed: "that the wicked might be shaken out of it." In those times and countries the courts of justice sat in the morning, Judges vi. 31. Ps. ci. 8. Jer. xxi. 12. Scott. Or, as Dr. Hammond argues, the passage more probably refers to the dispersing of those, whom the darkness of the night encourages to wickedness; thieves, treacherous persons, and others, whom the light would discover. Chappelow.

14. It is turned as clay to the seal;] Or, "It," that is, the earth, "is changed as clay by the seal." During the darkness of the night, the earth is a perfect blank; in which state it resembles clay that has no impression. By the morning light falling upon the earth, innumerable objects make their appearance upon it: it is then changed, like clay which has received the stamp of the seal. Such appears to be the meaning of this elegant simile. Sealing upon clay is still practised in the East. When the corn-granary at Grand Cairo, belonging to the Sultan, is full, the inspectors, says Norden, having shut the door, put on their seal upon a handful of clay, which they make use of instead of wax. Scott.

—— and they stand as a garment.] All things upon the earth present themselves to our view, and are like a garment, with which the earth is, as it were, clad and adorned. Clark. Or, men, especially guilty malefactors, are shifted by the breaking forth of the light, like so many separate garments. Bp. Hall.

15. And from the wicked their light is withholden, &c.] By a bold figure the wicked are here said to be deprived of their light, when the morning has dispelled the darkness; for darkness is light to them, whose "high arm" is said to be "broken:" because in the morning they lose their boldness, and hide themselves through fear; but in the night they are daring and resolute. Rosenmüller.

16. Hast thou entered into the springs of the sea? &c.] We now descend into the lower parts of the earth. For it should seem that by "the sea," or "deep," we are to understand the sea below ground, the waters of the great abyss: and that by "the gates of death," and "the doors of the shadow of death," is meant the entrance into Sheol, the world of departed spirits, which these men supposed to be placed under the waters of the abyss. Scott.

God, by the display of His omnipotence, not only shews Job what large amends He could make good men for all their sufferings in the great day of the resurrection; but hints to him by the question, that He could as easily do it before, and admit them to what degree of happiness He pleased immediately on their dissolution. "Hast thou," says God, "looked into Sheol, the intermediate state, the region of departed spirits? Hast thou seen how the souls of men are disposed of after death, and how amply the afflictions of good men may be made up to them there? What room then for such complaints as thou hast now been uttering?" This seems to be the drift of the question. In short, the great lesson which we are to learn from this Divine speech, and the decision here put to the controversy, is, that our disputes about the providence of God proceed from ignorance and folly; that the first duty of a creature is to resign himself to the will of his Creator; to do His commands with pleasure; receive His dispensations with submission; be thankful to Him for the good, and patient under the evil, that He sends; to consider life with its appendages as the free gift of God, which therefore we should employ in His service, be ready to give up freely when He calls for it, and trust to Him for a future happy state. Peters.

18. Hast thou perceived the breadth of the earth? &c.] Nay, so far from having penetrated into all the dark caverns of the earth, dost thou so much as understand all that grows upon the surface of it? Bp. Patrick. We now ascend from below the centre of the earth to its surface; from the region of death to the world of life. Scott.

19. Where is the way where light dwelleth? &c.] This question differs from that in ver. 12—15. That related to the morning, and its benefit to mankind: this to settling the precise boundary of light and darkness, that is, day and night. One half of the earth is enlightened, the other half is in darkness, at the same instant. Job is now asked, whether he was witness to that operation of creation, by which the limits of light and darkness were fixed, and knew the extent both of one and the other. The question is put in figurative language: Light and Darkness are represented as persons; each has its separate dwellingplace and pe-

Before CHRIST about 1520.

20 That thou shouldest take it ‖ to the bound thereof, and that thou shouldest know the paths to the house thereof?

21 Knowest thou it, because thou wast then born? or because the number of thy days is great?

22 Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow? or hast thou seen the treasures of the hail,

23 Which I have reserved against the time of trouble, against the day of battle and war?

24 By what way is the light parted, which scattereth the east wind upon the earth?

25 Who hath divided a watercourse for the overflowing of waters, or a way for the lightning of thunder;

26 To cause it to rain on the earth, where no man is; on the wilderness, wherein there is no man;

27 To satisfy the desolate and waste ground; and to cause the bud of the tender herb to spring forth?

‖ Or, at.

28 Hath the rain a father? or who hath begotten the drops of dew?

Before CHRIST about 1520.

29 Out of whose womb came the ice? and the hoary frost of heaven, who hath gendered it?

30 The waters are hid as with a stone, and the face of the deep † is frozen.

† Heb. is taken.

31 Canst thou bind the sweet influences of ‖† Pleiades, or loose the bands of † Orion?

‖ Or, the seven stars. † Heb. Cimah.

32 Canst thou bring forth ‖ Mazzaroth in his season? or canst thou † guide Arcturus with his sons?

† Heb. Cesil.

33 Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven? canst thou set the dominion thereof in the earth?

‖ Or, the twelve signs. † Heb. guide them.

34 Canst thou lift up thy voice to the clouds, that abundance of waters may cover thee?

35 Canst thou send lightnings, that they may go, and say unto thee, † Here we are?

† Heb. Behold us

36 [c] Who hath put wisdom in the in-

[c] Chap. 32. 8. Eccles. 2. 26.

---

culiar jurisdiction; the bounds of one never encroach on those of the other. Scott.

20. That thou shouldest take it to the bound thereof,] Or, "Surely thou canst guide (take) us to its border; yea, certainly thou canst shew the roads which lead to its house. Thou must know, for thou wast born at that time; as to the number of thy years, they are many." This is lofty irony. Heath, Scott.

22—38. Hast thou entered &c.] This whole passage relates to those changes in the state of the atmosphere, which we call the weather. Scott.

Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow? &c.] Didst thou ever enter into my storehouse of meteors, which I have decreed to bring forth upon all occasions of my judgment upon men? Bp. Hall. The inspired poet still keeps in view the moral purposes, for which the Deity employs his natural works. "The time of trouble" may signify, not winter in general, but those severe winters, in which there falls such abundance of snow and hail, as does infinite damage to the fruits of the earth, to cattle, and to human kind. Scott.

24. By what way is the light parted,] The word should be rendered "lightning," as in chap. xxxvii. 3; on account of its accompaniments, wind, rain, and thunder. Bp. Stock.

Dost thou know how the lightning comes to break forth from the cloud; and how that vapour, there included, scatters with great violence a blustering wind upon the earth? Bp. Hall.

25. Who hath divided a watercourse &c.] Who hath caused the clouds to pour down stores of rain by drops on such and such places, as if it were guided by pipes or channels? Clark.

26. To cause it to rain — where no man is;] This circumstance, "where no man is," is dwelt upon, to shew the provision which the Creator makes for the sustenance of wild beasts. Compare Ps. civ. 10, 11. Joel ii. 22. This instance of the power and providence of God might also be intended to suggest, that He, who turns the barren wilderness into fruitful pasture, is equally able to change a miserable condition into a happy one. Such an instruction is a strong motive to confidence in God in the most desperate situation, as Job thought his own to be. Compare ch. v. 9—11; and see the note there. Scott.

28. Hath the rain a father?] Rather, "Who is the father of the rain?" and so it corresponds with the next sentence, "Or who hath begotten the drops of dew?" The first mechanical agents in the production of "rain" and "dew," are known only to Him, whose name is Wonderful. Scott.

30. The waters are hid as with a stone,] The waters, hardened into the substance of stone, and losing for a time their natural character, "hide themselves;" because no trace of water appears, while every thing is bound by frost. Rosenmüller.

The Son of Sirach has given a beautiful description of this wonderful operation and appearance of nature. Ecclus. xliii. 20. Scott.

—— the deep] This cannot here mean the sea. A frozen sea was never seen in Arabia, or its neighbourhood. Neither could such a phenomenon be so much as heard of in those days, when navigation had not reached to the high northern latitudes. The word signifies, in the Arabick language, any deep gathering together of water, whether fountain, river, or lake. A frozen lake might be known even in Arabia, or in some of the adjacent countries. See the remark on chap. xxxvii. 10. Scott.

31, 32. Canst thou bind &c.] See chap. ix. 9, and the note there. Canst thou alter the seasons of the year, or cause a restraint of the spring, summer, autumn, &c.? Canst thou bring forth those hidden stars of the south? or direct the northern constellations in their courses? Bp. Hall. He is now asked, whether he has power over the heavenly bodies, to direct their motions, control their action upon the earth, and prevent the seasons and weather which they are apt to produce. Scott.

—— the sweet influences &c.] "The sweet influences" are the pleasant season of spring: "the bands" are the rigours of winter, when the earth is bound with frost. The chief attention of the Arabs was, not so much to the planets, as to the fixed stars; their rising and setting, and their supposed influence in producing rain, wind, heat, cold, and all other changes of weather. Scott.

32. Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth &c.] St. Chrysostom explains Mazzaroth of the twelve signs of the zodiack. Our marginal version adopts that explanation. Scott.

33. Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven?] Knowest thou what laws God hath made for the motions and influences of the heavens; and what power He hath given to their operations on the earth? Bp. Hall.

35. — Here we are?] This surprising figure of speech, which gives intelligence and a voice to the lightnings, expresses with great sublimity the punctuality with which inanimate creatures observe the laws prescribed to them, and perform the service enjoined them by their Creator. The author of Baruch has imitated this wonderful prosopopœia, chap. iii. 34. Scott.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

ward parts? or who hath given understanding to the heart?

37 Who can number the clouds in wisdom? or † who can stay the bottles of heaven,

38 ‖ When the dust † groweth into hardness, and the clods cleave fast together?

39 [d] Wilt thou hunt the prey for the lion? or fill † the appetite of the young lions, 40 When they couch in their dens, and abide in the covert to lie in wait?

41 [e] Who provideth for the raven his food? when his young ones cry unto God, they wander for lack of meat.

† Heb. who can cause to lie down.
‖ Or, When the dust is turned into mire.
† Heb. is poured.
[d] Psal. 104. 21.
† Heb. the life.
[e] Ps. 147. 9. Matth. 6. 26.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

1 Of the wild goats and hinds. 5 Of the wild ass. 9 The unicorn. 13 The peacock, stork, and ostrich. 19 The horse. 26 The hawk. 27 The eagle.

KNOWEST thou the time when the wild goats of the rock bring forth? or canst thou mark when [a] the hinds do calve?

[a] Psal. 29. 9.

2 Canst thou number the months that they fulfil? or knowest thou the time when they bring forth?

3 They bow themselves, they bring forth their young ones, they cast out their sorrows.

4 Their young ones are in good liking,

---

37. Who can number the clouds in wisdom? &c.] With all the wisdom that thou hast, canst thou count the number of the clouds, whose showers thou art as unable to stop, as to make them run? Bp. Patrick.

—— who can stay the bottles of heaven, &c.] Canst thou "stay the bottles of heaven," when they have given as much rain as may fit the earth for bearing fruit, the light dust being now turned into lumps of earth? Caryl.

Or, as in the margin, "Who can cause the bottles of heaven to lie down?" The work of Providence described in these verses, is the collecting and arranging of the clouds in the most fitting season, and then disposing them in the most proper manner for emptying themselves in profitable showers on the arable lands. The clouds are compared to those earthern jars, in which the eastern people keep their water and their wine; "the bottles," or pitchers, "of heaven." See 1 Sam. x. 3. Isa. xxx. 14. Lam. iv. 2. The disposing of the clouds in a proper manner for emptying themselves is denoted by the position into which a pitcher or jar is put for pouring out its contents: who can "lay along" the pitchers of heaven? This image is similar to the inclined urn, which the heathen poets place in the hand of a river-god. The urn represents the fountain from which the river flows: and what fountains are to rivers, the clouds are to rain. Schultens, Scott.

38. When the dust groweth into hardness, &c.] These showers are sent to soften the glebe, and prepare it for plowing, when it has been baked and hardened by the long drought of summer. Compare Ps. lxv. 9—13. Scott.

39. Wilt thou hunt &c.] This verse should have begun a new chapter: for we here pass to quite a new topick, the brute animals which inhabit the air, the land, and the water. This subject is continued with a few short interruptions unto the end of the Almighty's speech. Those species of animals are selected, in which the wisdom, power, and providential care of the Creator are most eminently displayed. The tendency of the descriptions is, to raise in our minds such admiration of the Deity, as will effectually extinguish discontent, and silence murmurings against His dispensations. Scott.

—— for the lion?] The word signifies "a lioness," properly when giving suck. Parkhurst. The question turns upon making provision for the lioness, and her family of sucking whelps. The wonderful providence of God effects this, by the tender feelings of parental affection which He has infused into this savage animal, and by the peculiar fierceness and swiftness which He has given to it, to hunt the prey that she may have a supply of milk for her young. Scott.

—— or fill the appetite of the young lions,] This is a different question. It relates to qualifying the young weaned lions to provide for themselves. Scott.

41. Who provideth for the raven his food?] The providence of God, particularly in the supplies afforded to the ravens, is divers times taken notice of in the Scriptures. Thus our Saviour, Luke xii. 24, "Consider the ravens, &c." It is a manifest argument of the Divine care and providence, in supplying the world with food and necessaries, that the ravens, accounted as unclean, and little regarded by man, destitute of stores, and that live by accidents, by what falleth here and there; that such a bird, I say, should be provided with sufficient food: especially if that be true which Aristotle, Pliny, and Ælian report, of their want of affection and cruelty to their young; that they expel them their nests as soon as they can fly, and then drive them out of the country. Dr. Derham.

The reason given why the raven is particularly mentioned as an object of the care of Providence, is because, by her clamorous and importunate voice, she particularly seems to be always calling upon Him. Hence in Greek, a verb, derived from the word which signifies a raven, means to ask earnestly. Dr. Young.

Perhaps the raven is mentioned here, instead of being introduced among other birds in the next chapter, because he lives on carrion, and may be supposed to feed on carcasses which the lion leaves. The difficulty of meeting with such kind of food renders the Divine power more illustrious in preserving this species of creatures. Compare Ps. cxlvii. 9. Scott.

Chap. XXXIX. ver. 1. Knowest thou the time &c.] Canst thou understand or dispose of the conceptions and births of the wildest creatures? Bp. Hall. Not mere knowledge, but providential care and protection is intended here. "To know" is used in this sense Ps. xxxi. 7; "Canst thou mark," rather, "Canst thou watch over and preserve the calving of the hinds?" that is, the hinds when they calve. Scott.

—— the wild goats of the rock] This animal is called also ibex, and in French bouquetin, which name means "goat of the rock." It is a species of wild goat, so called from the wonderful manner in which they mount to the top of the highest rocks; to which quality the sacred writers allude in the other two passages, besides this, where the word occurs; 1 Sam. xxiv. 2. Ps. civ. 18: and to this natural historians bear abundant witness. Johnston, in his History of Quadrupeds, says, "It is certain there is no crag of the mountains so high, prominent, or steep, but this animal will mount it in a number of leaps, provided only it be rough, and have protuberances large enough to receive its hoofs in leaping." And Buffon, after observing that this animal and the chamois greatly resemble each other, adds, "but the rock-goat, as being more nimble and strong, mounts to the very top of the highest mountains, whereas the chamois inhabits only the second stage." Parkhurst.

2. Canst thou number the months that they fulfil? &c.] "Canst thou number" is here equivalent to "Canst thou appoint the number:" see xiv. 5. And "knowing" means operative providential care, as in ver. 1. Scott.

3. — their sorrows.] That is, their young ones, brought forth with severe throes. Caryl. It is observed by Bochart and others, that hinds bring forth their young with great difficulty. Dr. Durell.

4. Their young ones are in good liking, &c.] Their young ones are lusty and strong; they grow up in the open fields; they leave their mothers, and return to them no more. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

they grow up with corn; they go forth, and return not unto them.

5 Who hath sent out the wild ass free? or who hath loosed the bands of the wild ass?

6 Whose house I have made the wilderness, and the † barren land his dwellings.

† Heb. salt places.

7 He scorneth the multitude of the city, neither regardeth he the crying † of the driver.

† Heb. of the exactor.

8 The range of the mountains is his pasture, and he searcheth after every green thing.

9 Will the unicorn be willing to serve thee, or abide by thy crib?

10 Canst thou bind the unicorn with his band in the furrow? or will he harrow the valleys after thee?

Before CHRIST about 1520.

11 Wilt thou trust him, because his strength is great? or wilt thou leave thy labour to him?

12 Wilt thou believe him, that he will bring home thy seed, and gather it into thy barn?

13 Gavest thou the goodly wings unto the peacocks? or ‖ wings and feathers unto the ostrich?

‖ Or, the feathers of the stork and ostrich.

14 Which leaveth her eggs in the earth, and warmeth them in dust,

---

—— they grow up with corn;] The word rendered "corn" means the clear open field or country, as opposed to the dwellings and cultivation of men. The animals here mentioned do not thrive with corn, but with the few shrubs and hardy plants growing in the open country or desert: a circumstance which makes their preservation and "good liking" more wonderful. Parkhurst, Scott.

Perhaps "the hind" is associated in this passage with the "rock-goat," because the former inhabits the forest, and roams amid its wildnesses, as the rock-goat roams amid the fastnesses of the mountains. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

5. — the wild ass] This animal is found in considerable numbers in the deserts of Libya and Numidia; in the eastern and southern Tartary; in Persia, Syria, &c. "The wild asses," says Buffon, "differ from the tame ones, only by the effects of independence and liberty: they are more strong and nimble, more courageous and lively; but they are the same in the shape of their bodies." Parkhurst.

—— free?] This word does not here imply an antecedent state of bondage. It signifies freedom in opposition to slavery; an exemption from the servitude to which the domestick ass is made subject: which exemption is expressed in the next sentence by "loosing the bands of the wild ass." Scott.

6. Whose house I have made the wilderness,] See above, Parkhurst's note on ver. 5. The wild ass is a gregarious animal, for they go in herds to pasture and to watering; yet in Hos. viii. 9. he is said to be "solitary," because he frequents lonely places. Scott.

—— and the barren land] In the Hebrew, as the margin notices, the "salt places:" either salt marshes, or salt deserts. Professor Pallas, describing a female wild ass, brought to Petersburgh, says, "She preferred brackish water to fresh, and never drank of what was troubled. She loved bread sprinkled with salt, and sometimes would eat a handful of salt. I was told, that, when at Derbent, she always ran to drink of the Caspian sea, though fresh water was nearer to her. She also selected plants impregnated with saline particles, or those of bitter juices." This circumstance greatly adds to the expression and correctness of this passage. Animals, which inhabit the desert, must often be at a loss for water; and this animal, the Professor says, would often pass two whole days without drinking. Script. illust.

7. He scorneth the multitude of the city, &c.] The wild asses have their sight, hearing, and smelling, equally good; so that it is impossible to approach them in an open country. They are adapted to running, and of such swiftness that the best horses cannot equal them: all the ancient writers do justice to their fleetness, and their Hebrew name expresses this quality. Professor Pallas, Script. illust.

8. The range of the mountains is his pasture,] The Persians call this animal by a name signifying the mountain-ass; because he prefers the most arid deserts of the mountains. Professor Pallas.

9. — the unicorn] Most probably the rhinoceros; in the original, the reem. In Numb. xxiii. 22. (see the note there) the strength of Israel is compared to "the strength of the reem." Job makes frequent allusion to his great strength, and ferocity, and indocility. He asks, "Will the reem be willing to serve thee, or abide by thy crib?" that is, Will he willingly come into thy stable, and eat at thy manger? And again: "Canst thou bind the reem with a band in a furrow, and will he harrow the valleys after thee?" In other words, Canst thou make him to go in the plough or harrow? The rhinoceros does not eat hay or grass, but lives entirely upon trees. Bruce. He is also extremely ill-suited to domestick labours; since, when of full age, he is perhaps as untameable and untractable as any creature living. Buffon says, "In Bengal, Siam, and other southern parts of India, where the rhinoceros is perhaps still more common than in Ethiopia, and where the natives are accustomed to train elephants, he is regarded as an irreclaimable animal, of which no domestick use can be made." Fragments to Calmet, Script. illust.

13. Gavest thou the goodly wings unto the peacocks?] The original word is one of the Hebrew names of the ostrich. The peacock was probably not known in Syria, Palestine, or Arabia, before the reign of Solomon, who first imported it. It was originally from India. Besides, the ostrich, not the peacock, is allowed on all hands to be the subject of the following parts of the description. Scott.

—— Gavest thou the goodly wings &c.] The passage may be rendered thus from the original: "The wing of the ostrich is quivering or expanded: the very feathers and plumage of the stork." When the ostrich is full grown, the neck, particularly of the male, which before was almost naked, is now very beautifully covered with red feathers. The plumage likewise upon the shoulders, the back, and some parts of the wings, from being hitherto of a dark grayish colour, becomes now as black as jet; whilst the rest of the feathers retain an exquisite whiteness. They are "the very feathers and plumage of the stork:" that is, they consist of such black and white feathers as the stork is known to have. Dr. Shaw.

Or, "The wing of the ostriches is fluttered or quivered:" This camel-bird, as the Persians call it, cannot fly from the ground; but, assisted by the quivering motion of its wings, moves at an astonishing rate. But "is it like the wing of the stork and its plumage?" Is it, like that, employed in protecting and providing for the creature's offspring? No: "for she (the hen ostrich) depositeth her eggs in the earth, &c." Parkhurst.

14. Which leaveth her eggs in the earth, &c.] As for the stork, the lofty fir trees are her house; Ps. civ. 17: but the improvident ostrich depositeth her eggs in the earth. Scott. She deposits or trusts them there. Several natural historians have supposed the eggs of the ostrich to be hatched entirely by the sun; whereas the original word signifies actively, that "she heateth them," namely, by incubation. The ostrich lays from thirty to fifty eggs: the first egg is deposited in the centre; the rest are planted as conveniently as possible round about it. In this manner she is said to "lay," deposit, or trust, "her eggs in the earth, and to warm them in the sand; and forgetteth," as they are not placed, like those of some other birds, upon trees, or in the clefts of rocks, &c.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

15 And forgetteth that the foot may crush them, or that the wild beast may break them.

16 She is hardened against her young ones, as though they were not her's: her labour is in vain without fear;

17 Because God hath deprived her of wisdom, neither hath he imparted to her understanding.

18 What time she lifteth up herself on high, she scorneth the horse and his rider. Before CHRIST about 1520.

19 Hast thou given the horse strength? hast thou clothed his neck with thunder?

20 Canst thou make him afraid as a grashopper? the glory of his nostrils is † terrible. † Heb. terror.

"that the foot" of the traveller "may crush them, or that the wild beast may break them." Dr. Shaw.

16. She is hardened against her young ones, &c.] A very little share of that natural affection, which so strongly exerts itself in most other creatures, is observable in the ostrich: for upon the least distant noise or trivial occasion, she forsakes her eggs or her young ones, to which perhaps she never returns; or, if she does, it may be too late, either to restore life to the one, or preserve the lives of the others. The Arabs meet sometimes with whole nests of their eggs undisturbed; some of which are sweet and good, others are addle and corrupted: others again have their young ones of different growths, according to the time it may be presumed they have been forsaken by their dams. They oftener meet a few of the little ones, no bigger than well-grown pullets, half-starved, straggling and moaning about, like so many distressed orphans, for their mother. Thus the ostrich may be said to be "hardened against her young ones, as though they were not her's; her labour," in hatching and attending them thus far, "being in vain, without fear," or the least concern of what becomes of them afterwards. This want of affection is also recorded, Lam. iv. 3. Dr. Shaw.

17. Because God hath deprived her of wisdom,] The want of that natural instinct to provide for, and nurse up, her young, which most other creatures are endowed with, is here attributed to God: "Because God hath deprived her of wisdom, &c." And the singular care of the Creator in this case is very remarkable, in supplying some other way the want of the parent animal's care and affection; so that the young should notwithstanding be bred up in those large and barren deserts of Arabia and Africa, and such like places, where those birds dwell: the most unlikely and unfitting, in all human opinion, to afford sustenance to young helpless creatures; but the fittest, therefore, to give demonstrations of the wisdom, care, and especial providence of the infinite Creator and Conservator of the world. Dr. Derham.

Considering the great voracity of this camel-bird, and the extreme barrenness of those parts of the desert which they chiefly frequent, it is wonderful not only how the little ones should be brought up and nourished; but even how those of fuller growth, and much better qualified to look out for themselves, are able to subsist. Dr. Shaw.

18. What time she lifteth up herself on high, &c.] Or, as the words may be translated, "when she raiseth herself up to run away," namely, from her pursuers, "she scorneth," or laughs at "the horse and his rider." Dr. Shaw. The ostrich usually appears in a couchant posture, but rises suddenly to her full height, when alarmed and preparing to move forward. Bp. Stock. When these birds are surprised by persons coming suddenly upon them, whilst they are feeding in some valley, or behind some rocky or sandy eminence in the deserts, they will not stay to be curiously viewed and examined. Nor are the Arabs ever dexterous enough to overtake them, even when they are mounted on their most esteemed horses. "They, when they raise themselves up for flight, laugh at the horse and his rider." They afford him an opportunity only of admiring at a distance the extraordinary agility and the stateliness likewise of their motions, the richness of their plumage, and the great propriety of ascribing to them "an expanded quivering wing;" see ver. 13, and the note. Nothing certainly can be more beautiful and extraordinary than such a sight. The wings, by their repeated, though unwearied, vibrations, equally serving them for sails and oars; whilst their feet, no less assisting in conveying them out of sight, are no less insensible of fatigue. Dr. Shaw.

Adanson, in his voyage to Senegal, speaking of two ostriches taken in Africa, gives this account of their motion, which he had particularly observed. "To try their strength, I made a full grown negro mount the smallest, and two others the largest. This burden did not seem to me at all disproportioned to their strength. At first they went a pretty high trot: when they were heated a little, they expanded their wings, as if it were to catch the wind, and they moved with such fleetness as to seem to be off the ground. Every body must have seen a partridge run, and must know that there is no man whatever able to keep up with it: and it is easy to imagine, that, if this bird had a longer step, its speed would be considerably augmented. The ostrich moves like the partridge, with both these advantages: and I am satisfied that those I am speaking of would have distanced the fleetest race horses that ever were bred in England." Parkhurst.

19. Hast thou given the horse strength? &c.] It is very difficult to express violent motions, which are fleeting and transitory, either in colours or in words. In poetry it requires great spirit in thought, and energy in style, which we find more of in the eastern poetry, than in either the Greek or Roman. The great Creator, who accommodated Himself to those He vouchsafed to speak to, hath put into the mouths of His prophets such sublime sentiments and exalted language, as must abash the pride and wit of man. In the Book of Job, the most ancient poem in the world, we have such paintings and descriptions in great variety. The description of the horse in particular, under all the disadvantages of having been written in a language little understood; of being expressed in phrases peculiar to a part of the world, whose manner of thinking and speaking seems to us very uncouth; and, above all, of appearing in a prose translation; is nevertheless so transcendently above all heathen descriptions, notwithstanding there are two very fine ones by Homer and Virgil, that hereby we may perceive how faint and languid the images are, which are formed by mortal authors, when compared with that which is figured, as it were, just as it appears in the eye of the Creator. In this description are all the great and sprightly images that thought can form of this generous beast, expressed in such force and vigour of style, as would have given the great wits of antiquity new laws for the sublime, had they been acquainted with these writings. I cannot but particularly observe, that whereas the classical poets chiefly endeavour to paint the outward figure, lineaments, and motions; the sacred poet makes all the beauties to flow from an inward principle in the creature he describes, and thereby gives great spirit and vivacity to his description. Steele.

—— hast thou clothed his neck with thunder?] Homer and Virgil mention nothing about the neck of the horse, but his mane. The sacred author, by the bold figure of thunder, not only expresses the shaking of that remarkable beauty in the horse, and the flakes of hair, which naturally suggest the idea of lightning; but likewise the violent agitation and force of the neck, which in the oriental tongues had been flatly expressed by a metaphor less bold than this. Steele.

20. — the glory of his nostrils is terrible.] The disdainful snortings which he sends out of his nostrils in his pride and courage, are terrifying like thunder, ver. 19. Caryl. This is more strong and concise than that of Virgil, which yet is the noblest line that was ever written without inspiration; "And in his nostrils rolls collected fire." Steele.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

21 ‖ He paweth in the valley, and rejoiceth in his strength: he goeth on to meet † the armed men.

‖ Or, His feet dig.

22 He mocketh at fear, and is not affrighted; neither turneth he back from the sword.

† Heb. the armour.

23 The quiver rattleth against him, the glittering spear and the shield.

24 He swalloweth the ground with fierceness and rage: neither believeth he that it is the sound of the trumpet.

25 He saith among the trumpets, Ha, ha; and he smelleth the battle afar off, the thunder of the captains, and the shouting.

26 Doth the hawk fly by thy wisdom, and stretch her wings toward the south?

† Heb. by thy mouth.

27 Doth the eagle mount up † at thy command, and make her nest on high?

28 She dwelleth and abideth on the rock, upon the crag of the rock, and the strong place.

29 From thence she seeketh the prey, and her eyes behold afar off.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

30 Her young ones also suck up blood: and [b] where the slain are, there is she.

[b] Matth. 24. 28. Luke 17. 37.

CHAP. XL.

1 Job humbleth himself to God. 6 God stirreth him up to shew his righteousness, power, and wisdom. 15 Of the behemoth.

MOREOVER the LORD answered Job, and said,

2 Shall he that contendeth with the Almighty instruct him? he that reproveth God, let him answer it.

3 ¶ Then Job answered the LORD, and said,

4 Behold, I am vile; what shall I answer thee? I will lay mine hand upon my mouth.

5 Once have I spoken; but I will not answer: yea, twice; but I will proceed no further.

---

24. He swalloweth the ground &c.] This expression intimates the rapidity and eagerness of the horse. He is described as rushing forward to battle, and, as it were, devouring the intermediate space; that is, traversing it with such speed, as to appear to swallow it down with one effort. Rosenmüller.

"He swalloweth the ground" is an expression for prodigious swiftness in use among the Arabians, Job's countrymen, at this day. It is indeed the boldest and noblest of images for swiftness. Steele.

—— neither believeth he &c.] Neither doth he conceive any terrour at the signal for battle, but believeth it not for joy. Bps. Hall and Stock.

"He rejoiceth in his strength;" "he mocketh at fear;" "neither believeth he that it is the sound of the trumpet;" "He saith among the trumpets, Ha, ha;" are signs of courage, as was before said, flowing from an inward principle. There is a peculiar beauty in his "not believing it is the sound of the trumpet;" that is, he cannot believe it for joy; but when he is sure of it, and is "amongst the trumpets, he saith, Ha, ha;" he neighs, he rejoices. Steele.

It is natural, that when things come to pass which are most of all agreeable to our wishes, but beyond our hopes, we scarcely believe our senses that they have happened. Job, speaking of God, says, "If I had called and He had answered me, yet would I not believe that He had hearkened unto my voice," chap. ix. 16; whereby he at the same time intimates the Divine Majesty and awfulness, and his own humility and desperation. "If I laughed on them, they believed it not," says Job of his dependants, chap. xxix. 24: magnifying hereby his own extreme dignity and authority, blended with condescension; and their unmingled veneration towards him. By one and the same circumstance, applied to the war-horse, his ardour and eagerness and impatient thirst for the battle, are wonderfully depicted. "He swalloweth the ground with fierceness and rage; neither believeth he that it is the sound of the trumpet: he saith among the trumpets, Ha, ha; and he smelleth the battle afar off, the thunder of the captains, and the shouting." From which passage, most distinguished by universal admiration, it is abundantly manifest, how greatly this poem excels in description: at the same time we may conclude, that in other instances the correctness and beauty of its representations would not be less evident, if we were equally well acquainted with the animals themselves and their properties. Bp. Lowth.

26. Doth the hawk fly by thy wisdom,] Is it by thy appointment that the hawk stretches her wings, to fly into the warmer climates of the south? Bp. Hall.

Some of the genus of hawks are, as Bochart and others observe, birds of passage. The hawk therefore appears to be introduced here as a specimen of that astonishing instinct, which teaches birds of passage to know their times and seasons; when to migrate out of one country into another for the benefit of food, or a warmer climate, or both. The stork is of this kind, Jer. viii. 7. Scott, Parkhurst.

27. Doth the eagle mount up at thy command,] Fly directly upward, which no other bird is able to do? Clark. Buffon observes, that the eagle is of all birds that which mounts to the greatest height. Parkhurst.

28. She dwelleth and abideth on the rock,] To illustrate this passage, it may be remarked from Buffon, that the eagle usually constructs its aiery, which is flat, and more properly a flooring of sticks and twigs than a nest, between two rocks, in a dry and inaccessible place. Parkhurst.

29. From thence she seeketh the prey, &c.] The eagle is said to be of so acute a sight, that when she is so high in air that man cannot see her, she can discern the smallest fish under water. Dr. Young.

The eagle has an excellent sight, but little smell in comparison of the vulture: he therefore hunts only by view. Buffon.

30. Her young ones also suck up blood: &c.] The young eagle is wont (and who taught it him?) to suck in the blood of his prey; and where carcasses are, thither, by a strange sagacity of nature, he is drawn to resort. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XL. ver. 2. Shall he that contendeth with the Almighty instruct him?] Shall he that pleads against God's proceedings teach Him how to govern the world better? "he that reproveth God, let him answer it." Let him that censures God's actions answer what has been already advanced. Clark, Dr. Durell.

The design of this and of the other chapters is, to shew us how little we understand of the works of God; and that therefore it is the highest presumption to question the reasons and justice of His providence. Bp. Wilson.

5. Once have I spoken; &c.] I have spoken once and again foolishly, but I will not defend what I have unadvisedly said, nor proceed further in such presumptuous expressions and accusations of Thy providence. Clark.

The confession which Job makes of his own vileness and presumption, should teach us what effect ought to be produced in our minds by the wonderful works of creation; namely, that they ought to convince us of our own weakness and ignorance, and so humble us before God, that we may never think or say

Before CHRIST about 1520.

6 ¶ Then answered the LORD unto Job out of the whirlwind, and said,

[a] Chap. 38. 3.

7 [a] Gird up thy loins now like a man: I will demand of thee, and declare thou unto me.

[b] Ps. 50. 21. Rom. 3. 4.

8 [b] Wilt thou also disannul my judgment? wilt thou condemn me, that thou mayest be righteous?

9 Hast thou an arm like God? or canst thou thunder with a voice like him?

[c] Ps. 104. 1.

10 [c] Deck thyself now with majesty and excellency; and array thyself with glory and beauty.

11 Cast abroad the rage of thy wrath: and behold every one that is proud, and abase him.

12 Look on every one that is proud, and bring him low; and tread down the wicked in their place.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

13 Hide them in the dust together; and bind their faces in secret.

14 Then will I also confess unto thee that thine own right hand can save thee.

15 ¶ Behold now ‖ behemoth, which I have made with thee; he eateth grass as an ox.

‖ Or, the elephant, as some think.

16 Lo now, his strength is in his loins, and his force is in the navel of his belly.

17 ‖ He moveth his tail like a cedar: the sinews of his stones are wrapped together.

‖ Or, He setteth up.

18 His bones are as strong pieces of brass; his bones are like bars of iron.

---

any thing contrary to the profound submission which we owe Him. Ostervald.

6. Then answered the Lord &c.] Then, the more to humble and convince him, the Divine Majesty spake again after the same manner as before. Bp. Patrick.

7. Gird up thy loins &c.] See note on chap. xxxviii. 3.

8. Wilt thou also disannul my judgment? &c.] Is there any reason to suspect My care of mankind, who have shewn it so much about other creatures? Canst thou not defend thyself, but thou must also complain of Me? Must I be condemned that thou mayest be justified? Bp. Patrick. By "disannulling God's judgment" is meant "condemning God," as the latter sentence explains it. Job's complaints and manner of justifying himself amounted to charging God with injustice. Scott.

10. Deck thyself now with majesty &c.] The magnificent scenery in this and the four following verses presents to us the Almighty arrayed in the splendours of Divine majesty, exerting His supreme dominion, and manifesting His righteous vengeance by thundering and lightning on the heads of haughty tyrants, and hurling them down to the bottom of Hades. See Is. xxx. 30. Job is ironically required to invest himself with the attributes of Deity, and to assume the glorious ensigns of Divine majesty; that he may execute judgment on proud oppressors, and other profligate men, of whose impunity and prosperity he had so loudly complained. Scott.

—— array thyself with glory and beauty.] To understand those expressions in Scripture which speak of Jehovah being arrayed or clothed with majesty, strength, honour, or the like, we must recollect the glorious manner in which He vouchsafed to appear to His people in fire, light, and clouds. Parkhurst.

12. tread down the wicked in their place.] In the very place of their exaltation. Scott. Permit no one of an infamous character to continue easy and undisturbed: put a stop as soon as possible to their vicious example. Chappelow.

13. Hide them in the dust &c.] Cast them down from their splendid elevation into the obscure abodes of death, as condemned malefactors. "To bind the face" is a phrase for treating a person as a convict condemned to die. See the note on chap. ix. 24. "The dust" is the grave, chap. xvii. 16; and the "secret" place is another expression for the sepulchre; or else it means the secret abodes of Sheol, the receptacle of departed souls. Scott.

14. — that thine own right hand can save thee.] That thou art self-sufficient, the author and preserver of thy own happiness; therefore a god, and a match for Me. This humiliating sarcasm makes way for another mortification: for the Almighty next sends him to two of His creatures, behemoth and leviathan; and bids him prove his high courage in an open encounter with either of them. Scott.

15. Behold now behemoth,] The learned Bochart contends, that the behemoth is the hippopotamus; that is, the sea-horse, or, more properly speaking, the river-horse; which the ancient Greek writers, and the Prænestine pavement described in Shaw's Travels, represent as an amphibious quadruped found in the Nile, and which is still sometimes to be met with in Upper Egypt. And he has supported his opinion with so much learning and plausibility, that I believe it has been generally embraced and acquiesced in by the learned since his time. It must be confessed, however, that most of the characters given of the behemoth correspond also to the elephant. Parkhurst.

—— which I have made with thee;] Rather, "near thee;" that is, in thy neighbourhood. As if God had said, There is no need to seek for arguments of My power from a distance, since they lie close at hand. Among the beasts which I have made in the Nile, which borders on thy country Arabia, how wonderful is the river-horse! Bochart. Or, "whom I made thy fellow-creature." This is a humbling stroke. Scott.

—— he eateth grass as an ox.] That the river-horse, an aquatick animal, living for the most part at the bottom of the Nile, should eat grass as an ox, is a surprising and singular circumstance, and therefore not omitted by other authors. Bochart.

16. — his strength is in his loins, &c.] It is well known that the loins are the seat of strength: compare Nahum ii. 1. Ps. lxix. 24. As to the latter part of the verse, the river-horse is protected all over his body, no less in his navel and his belly, than in other parts, by a skin of impenetrable solidity and thickness. This is not the case with the elephant, whose softest and most vulnerable part is the belly. Bochart.

17. He moveth his tail like a cedar:] "He moveth his tail, which is as a cedar." The tail of the hippopotamus might be compared to a cedar, on account of its smoothness, roundness, thickness, and strength. Bochart. Buffon says, that "his tail is like a tortoise's, only incomparably thicker:" and Scheuchzer, that "though short, yet it is thick, and may be compared to the cedar, for its tapering, yea conical shape, its smoothness, thickness, strength, and rigidity. Parkhurst.

18. His bones &c.] "His (smaller) bones are compact bars of brass, his (larger, projecting) bones like a forged bar of iron." No doubt these words are intended to express the extraordinary hardness of the behemoth's bones; but it does not appear that the bones of the elephant are in this respect different from, or harder than, those of other animals: whereas, the bones of the hippopotamus are probably much harder than those of the elephant, if we may judge by the superiour hardness of his tusks: of which Buffon says, "they are very strong, and of a substance so hard as to strike fire with steel." Parkhurst.

The meaning is, that the bones of the river-horse are not, as in most fishes, mere cartilages, but like brass and iron, very hard, firm, and strong. They are, in fact, extremely strong: the tooth of this animal surpassing in hardness, and in the diffi-

Before CHRIST about 1520.

19 He is the chief of the ways of God: he that made him can make his sword to approach unto him.

20 Surely the mountains bring him forth food, where all the beasts of the field play.

21 He lieth under the shady trees, in the covert of the reed, and fens.

22 The shady trees cover him with their shadow; the willows of the brook compass him about.

† Heb. he oppresseth.

23 Behold, † he drinketh up a river, and hasteth not: he trusteth that he can draw up Jordan into his mouth.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

24 ‖ He taketh it with his eyes: his nose pierceth through snares.

‖ Or, Will any take him in his sight, or, bore his nose with a gin?

CHAP. XLI.

Of God's great power in the leviathan.

CANST thou draw out ‖ leviathan with an hook? or his tongue with a cord † which thou lettest down?

‖ That is, a whale, or, a whirlpool.

† Heb. which thou drownest.

---

culty with which it is carved, that of the elephant, whose tooth is as hard as any part about him. Bochart. No creature is known to have stronger limbs than the river-horse. Harmer.

19. He is the chief of the ways of God:] That is, one of the most remarkable quadrupeds He hath made. The word "way" denotes the manner of God's acting or proceeding; also, as in this place, His works or actions themselves. See Prov. viii. 22. "Jehovah possessed me in the beginning of His way;" that is, of His work of creation. Parkhurst.

—— he that made him can make his sword to approach unto him.] That is, can put forth His power and destroy him. Caryl. Rather, the words may be rendered, "He who made him has made fast his weapon;" (Parkhurst) alluding to the tusks of the hippopotamus, the fixed insertion of which is remarkable in this animal. Fragments to Calmet. The word, rendered "sword," properly means that sort of sword which the Greeks called harpè, and which was crooked or bent like a sickle. The river-horse is here said to be furnished with such a sword, because he has teeth standing out of his mouth, gently bent, sharp, and long, with which he cuts down and destroys the corn, &c. as with a harpè, or sword crooked like a sickle. The Greek poets and other writers speak of the teeth of the river-horse by this name; and describe his voracity in laying waste the fields. It is more agreeable to the general sense of the context to understand the words in this manner, than to suppose them to signify that God alone is able to destroy the animal by His power, as by a sword. Bochart.

20. Surely the mountains bring him forth food,] This is the true reason why the behemoth, though a water animal, is armed with such teeth as have been just noticed; namely, because he feeds, not so much in the water, as on land, where grass as well as corn is cut down with a sickle, or instrument of the like shape. By "the mountains" may be understood the hills and eminences bordering on the Nile. And they are the rather specified, by reason of the strangeness and wonderfulness of an aquatick animal feeding, not only on land, but in such a situation with other beasts and cattle. Bochart.

—— where all the beasts of the field play.] It appears to be the intention of this passage, to express the security of the inferiour creatures from injury by this inoffensive animal, which permits even their frolicks and sportiveness without interruption. Fragments to Calmet.

21. He lieth — in the covert of the reed, &c.] This is agreeable to the description which other writers give of the river-horse. Bochart. In the Prænestine pavement the river-horse is represented hiding and sheltering himself among the reeds of the Nile. He is properly an amphibious animal, living constantly in fens and rivers. Harmer.

23. — he drinketh up a river, and hasteth not:] That is, he drinks at his leisure, without fear. Caryl.

Rather, "Behold, the stream may press upon him, he will not be terrified; he will be secure, though Jordan rush against his mouth." So Bochart excellently renders this passage. Buffon, speaking of the hippopotamus, says, "He is pleased with being in the water, and stays there as willingly as upon the land. He remains a long time at the bottom of the water, and walks there as in the open air." To the same purpose Mr. Watson, in his Animal World Displayed, "The hippopotamus spends part of its life under water; it comes out of the water in an evening to sleep; and when it goes in again, it walks very deliberately in over head, and pursues its course along the bottom as easy and unconcerned as if it were in the open air. The rivers it frequents are very deep; and, when they are also clear, this affords a most astonishing sight." Other writers speak to the same effect. And, further to illustrate this passage, it may not be amiss to add from Maundrell's Travels, that, when he visited the river Jordan, March 30, "the water was very turbid, and too rapid to be swum against. For its breadth, it might be about twenty yards over: and in depth, it far exceeded his own height." Parkhurst.

24. He taketh it with his eyes: &c.] This verse may be thus rendered: "Though one seize him in a trap by the eyes or visage, yet his nose forces itself through the snares;" which agrees very well with what is said above of his vast force, and the impenetrability of his skin by iron. Dr. Durell.

Chap. XLI. The irony is continued. Job is now addressed as a man of prowess, sufficient to combat and subdue another creature, much more formidable than the behemoth, in regard of the armour with which it is furnished, both for defending itself and attacking its enemy. This creature is named Leviathan. The crocodile has found so powerful an advocate in Bochart, that all other claimants are put to silence. The characters in the description perfectly correspond to that animal, allowance being made for poetical ornaments and heightenings. The description is not intended merely for the purpose of embellishment. It has a nobler design. That design is clearly explained, ver. 10. "None is so fierce that dare stir him up: who then is able to stand before Me?" Hence Job is taught to tremble at his danger, in having provoked by his murmurs and litigation the displeasure of the Maker of this dreadful animal. His high spirit is now brought down, his conviction is completed, and his repentance and submission satisfy the Almighty. Scott.

Ver. 1. Canst thou draw out leviathan with an hook?] From this passage Hasselquist observes, that the leviathan "means a crocodile by that which happens daily, and without doubt happened in Job's time, in the river Nile; to wit, that this voracious animal, far from being drawn up by an hook, bites off and destroys all fishing tackle of this kind which is thrown out in the river. I found," adds he, "in one that I opened, two hooks which it had swallowed, one sticking in the stomach, and the other in a part of the thick membrane which covers the palate." Parkhurst.

The taking of the crocodile is most difficult. Diodorus says, they are not to be taken but by iron nets. When Augustus conquered Egypt he struck a medal, the impress of which was a crocodile chained to a palm-tree, with this inscription, "No one has bound me before." Dr. Young.

The crocodile is of too great weight and magnitude to be drawn out of the river, as fish usually are, with an hook. And from the scaly quality, Ezek. xxix. 4, and the hardness of his coat, or because "his scales stick (so thick) together that they cannot be sundered," (below, ver. 17.) there is therefore no danger of having "his skin filled with barbed irons, or his head with fish spears," ver. 7. From these apposite characteristicks the crocodile may be well taken for the leviathan, as described in this chapter of Job, and elsewhere alluded to in the Holy Scripture: where the leviathan is called "the piercing serpent," or "dra-

Before CHRIST about 1520.

2 Canst thou put an hook into his nose? or bore his jaw through with a thorn?

3 Will he make many supplications unto thee? will he speak soft words unto thee?

4 Will he make a covenant with thee? wilt thou take him for a servant for ever?

5 Wilt thou play with him as with a bird? or wilt thou bind him for thy maidens?

6 Shall thy companions make a banquet of him? shall they part him among the merchants?

7 Canst thou fill his skin with barbed irons? or his head with fish spears?

8 Lay thine hand upon him, remember the battle, do no more.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

9 Behold, the hope of him is in vain: shall not one be cast down even at the sight of him?

10 None is so fierce that dare stir him up: who then is able to stand before me?

11 Who hath prevented me, that I should repay him? [a] whatsoever is under the whole heaven is mine.

[a] Ps. 24. 1 & 50. 12. 1 Cor. 10. 26.

12 I will not conceal his parts, nor his power, nor his comely proportion.

13 Who can discover the face of his garment? or who can come to him ‖ with his double bridle?

‖ Or, within.

---

gon," Is. xxvii. 1; where Pharaoh is called "the great dragon," or leviathan, Ezek. xxix. 3; where "the heads also of the leviathan," that is, of Pharaoh or of Egypt, are said to be "broken in pieces," Ps. lxxiv. 14. otherwise expressed in the preceding verse, by "breaking the heads of the dragons in the waters," or in the Red sea. Harmer.

—— or his tongue with a cord which thou lettest down?] Rather, "or tie his tongue with a cord." Dr. Durell.

2. Canst thou put an hook into his nose? or bore his jaw through with a thorn?] Rather, "Canst thou put a rope about his nose, or bore his jaw through with a hook?" Dr. Durell. The former word in the original means a rope or muzzle, properly a rope made of bulrushes. The latter, which properly signifies a thorn, is also used for a hook, sharp like a thorn. Bochart. Or it signifies a clenched ring of iron, passed through the nose of a beast, in order the better to manage him by means of a rope fastened to it: as is still usual in the East with regard to camels and buffaloes. See 2 Kings xix. 28. Is. xxxvii. 29. The question then is, "Wilt or canst thou put a rope in his nose?" that is, in a hole bored through his nose; "or bore his cheek through with a ring?" Compare Ezek. xxix. 4. where Pharaoh king of Egypt is described under the similitude of this same dreadful animal. Parkhurst.

4. Will he make a covenant with thee? &c.] In the same manner as the conquered are wont to redeem their lives from their conquerors at the price of their liberty. "A servant for ever;" that is, for the whole of his life. Bochart.

5. — wilt thou bind him for thy maidens?] That they may play with him. The crocodile is particularly hostile to boys and girls, who sometimes, approaching the Nile too incautiously, have fallen a prey to him. Ælian mentions several instances of the crocodile devouring children: and Maximus Tyrius relates a story of an Egyptian woman, who had a son of the same age with a young crocodile. He says, the animal was gentle, as long as it continued weak; but when it increased in size, it discovered its natural disposition, and killed the child. Bochart. See the note on chap. iii. 8.

6. — among the merchants?] The word seems to denote the associated merchants, or merchants companions, who belonged to the same caravan. Parkhurst.

7. Canst thou fill his skin with barbed irons?] Canst thou pierce his skin with barbed hooks? Bp. Hall. This question is not applicable to the whale; but it is to the crocodile, whose skin is impenetrable to weapons. Bochart. See the note from Harmer on ver. 1.

—— fish spears?] Instruments, not very unlike the eastern ox-goads, (see the note on Judges iii. 31.) have been used for catching fish; and were meant by our translators, when they employed the term "fish spears" in this place: but then they must have been sharper than goads, in order to secure the fish. So Camden, in his account of our native island, tells us, that those who live by the sides of Solway Frith hunt salmons, whereof there is great plenty there, with spears, on horseback. Harmer.

The weapons mentioned in this verse are undoubtedly such as fishermen used for striking large fish at a distance. Scott.

8. Lay thine hand upon him, remember the battle, do no more.] The latter clause would be clearer if it were rendered, "but remember that thou wilt have no other conflict;" for this is doubtless the sense. The note in the old version is, "if thou once consider the danger, thou wilt not meddle with him." Dr. Durell. Such dread will come upon thee, that thou wilt think of flight, rather than of battle, when by the very touch thou shalt have discovered that his skin is capable of resisting every stroke. Bochart.

9. Behold, the hope of him is in vain:] The hope of making him a prey is vain. Grotius. Or, the hope of him who shall have laid hands on the crocodile. Bochart.

10. None is so fierce that dare stir him up:] What is said of the lion, Gen. xlix. 9. Numb. xxiv. 9. is here said of the crocodile: "None is so fierce or so bold as to stir him up," when, satiated with the fishes which he has devoured, he reposes asleep upon the shore. Pliny and others describe this as the custom of the crocodile. Bochart.

11. Who hath prevented me, that I should repay him?] Who hath done Me any favour in helping Me to make or govern the world, or in furthering My actions, that I may repay it unto him? Bp. Hall.

The sentiment in this verse demonstrates the folly and impiety of contending with God, as Job had done. He is all-sufficient and independent, and therefore cannot be indebted to any for their service. He is the Proprietor of all beings; He therefore cannot injure any one by taking away his possessions and enjoyments: for He takes only what He gave. Submissive resignation to His disposals therefore is the duty of every reasonable creature. Scott.

12. — his comely proportion.] The comeliness of his form; that is, for fighting or combat: the advantage of his structure, both for his own security, and for destroying and devouring, &c. Parkhurst.

13. Who can discover the face of his garment?] Rather, "who can uncover the face of his garment?" for "the face of his garment" would by a common hebraism signify the upper or external garment. Dr. Durell. Who is able to turn over that skin, with which he is covered as with a garment? Bp. Hall. The crocodile never casts his skin, as serpents do. Bochart.

This obscure sentence seems to describe that terrible helmet, which covers the head and face of the crocodile. The translation might be, "Who can uncover his mailed face?" If in Job's days they covered their war horses in complete armour, the question may refer to taking off the armour, and leviathan's skin be represented by such an image. Scott.

—— who can come to him with his double bridle?] "Who can come upon him with the doubling of his rein?" that is, with a bridle having two reins. Parkhurst. Rather, "Within his double bridle who will come?" The expression used here means the double fold of his jaws. Bp. Stock. In Greek, as in Hebrew,

Before CHRIST about 1520.

14 Who can open the doors of his face? his teeth are terrible round about.

† Heb. strong pieces of shields.

15 His † scales are his pride, shut up together as with a close seal.

16 One is so near to another, that no air can come between them.

17 They are joined one to another, they stick together, that they cannot be sundered.

18 By his neesings a light doth shine, and his eyes are like the eyelids of the morning.

19 Out of his mouth go burning lamps, and sparks of fire leap out.

20 Out of his nostrils goeth smoke, as out of a seething pot or caldron.

21 His breath kindleth coals, and a flame goeth out of his mouth.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

22 In his neck remaineth strength, and † sorrow is turned into joy before him.

† Heb. sorrow rejoiceth.

23 † The flakes of his flesh are joined together: they are firm in themselves; they cannot be moved.

† Heb. The fallings.

24 His heart is as firm as a stone; yea, as hard as a piece of the nether millstone.

25 When he raiseth up himself, the mighty are afraid: by reason of breakings they purify themselves.

26 The sword of him that layeth at him cannot hold: the spear, the dart, nor the ‖ habergeon.

‖ Or, breastplate.

27 He esteemeth iron as straw, and brass as rotten wood.

28 The arrow cannot make him flee: slingstones are turned with him into stubble.

---

those parts of the lips, which terminate on both sides at the jaw-bones, are called "bridles." Bochart. This interpretation of Bochart best agrees, not only with the structure of the preceding hemistich, but with the following verse. Parkhurst.

14. Who can open the doors of his face?] That is, his immense jaws, which he separates at pleasure with a vast and horrible opening, like folding doors. It has been said, that "when the crocodile begins to gape, in order to take in his prey, he becomes all mouth." Bochart.

—— his teeth are terrible round about.] Rather, perhaps, "the rows of his teeth are terrible." His mouth is said to be so large that he can take in a whole sheep: and he has thirty-six sharp pointed teeth in each jaw. Dr. Durell.

15. His scales are his pride, shut up together as with a close seal.] The latter clause should be rendered, "He is shut up close as with a seal." Dr. Durell. In this and the two following verses is described the compactness of the scales, by which the whole body of the animal is covered, as if by iron plates closely united together. This circumstance, which is notoriously true of the crocodile, cannot be applied to the whale, whose skin is smooth and free from scales. Bochart.

18. By his neesings a light doth shine, &c.] When he sneezeth, he maketh as it were a fire to break forth at his nostrils and eyes; and when thou beholdest his eyes, thou wouldest think that thou sawest the sun rising in the morning. Bp. Hall.

The former clause is nearer the literal truth than at first view may be imagined. The crocodile, say the naturalists, lying long under water, and being there forced to hold his breath, when he emerges, the breath long repressed is hot, and bursts out so violently that it resembles fire and smoke. The horse suppresses not his breath by any means so long, neither is he so fierce or animated: yet Virgil, the most correct of poets, ventures to use the same metaphor concerning him. This may afford a caution against a false opinion of the eastern boldness from passages ill understood. As to the latter clause, "his eyes are like the eyelids of the morning," I think this gives us as great an image of the thing it would express, as can enter the thought of man. It is not improbable that the Egyptians stole their hieroglyphick for the morning, which is the crocodile's eye, from this passage. Dr. Young.

The Egyptian painters of hieroglyphicks, for the purpose of representing the morning, paint the eyes of the crocodile; because, as that animal emerges from the water, his eyes appear before the rest of his body. Bochart.

19. Out of his mouth go burning lamps, &c.] Much the same things as are said in this and the two following verses concerning the crocodile have been said by other writers concerning the river-horse. In fact, there is a relation between these two animals, and they resemble each other particularly in their mode of breathing: for, having kept in their breath a long time whilst under the water, they breathe with so much the more earnestness when they begin to emerge. As torrents which have burst their barrier, the breath, having been long repressed, then becomes so hot, and breaks forth with such violence, that it seems to vomit out flames from the mouth and nostrils. Bochart.

22. —— sorrow is turned into joy before him.] Rather, "sorrow goeth before him;" that is, he causes sorrow wherever he goes. This animal, it is well known, occasions great ravages in a country. See ver. 25. Dr. Durell. The phrase is not unusual among the poets, who ascribe Anger, Rage, and Terror, to Mars, the god of war, as his companions and attendants, who accompany and go before him on his way. Bochart.

The word, rendered "sorrow," signifies fainting from terrour; and the whole verse may be thus translated: "Strength dwelleth on his neck, and fainting exulteth before him;" that is, as soon as men see him, they immediately faint. But both the image and the expression in Job are wonderfully sublime. Parkhurst.

23. The flakes of his flesh are joined together:] "The flakes;" that is, the more prominent parts of his flesh. Bochart. "The ribs (or bones) of his body cleave fast together." Dr. Durell.

25. When he raiseth up himself, &c.] When he begins to shew himself on the top of the waters, the fearless mariners and seamen tremble, by reason of the dashing of the waves one against another, caused by his violent motion, which threatens them with death; they betake themselves to their devotions, confess their sins, and beg pardon that they may be cleansed from them, and call upon God for mercy, Jonah i. 5. Clark.

Or, "On his rising up the valiant shrink; or the breakings (of whatever he is assaulted with, see the following verses) they are out of their wits." So the French translation; "and they know not where, or whereabouts they are, seeing how he breaks every thing." Parkhurst.

26. —— the habergeon.] The original word, which occurs only in this place, is supposed to mean a coat of mail; but this is evidently inconsistent with the context, which treats not of defensive, but of offensive armour. Bochart. It signifies a kind of strong javelin, spear, or halberd: and it seems to have been of a stronger make than either of the other weapons noticed in this verse, and therefore is mentioned after them. Parkhurst. It probably means a trident or fishing spear. Bruce.

28. —— slingstones are turned with him into stubble.] Or, "He throweth about slingstones as stubble," he dasheth them about with as much ease. An extraordinary instance of the force of a crocodile is related by Maillet: "I saw one last year twelve feet long, which had not eaten for five and thirty days, having had his mouth closed during the whole of that time. With one stroke of his tail, he upset five or six men and a bale of coffee, as easily as I

Before CHRIST about 1520.

29 Darts are counted as stubble: he laugheth at the shaking of a spear.

† Heb. Sharp pieces of the potsherd.

30 † Sharp stones are under him: he spreadeth sharp pointed things upon the mire.

31 He maketh the deep to boil like a pot: he maketh the sea like a pot of ointment.

32 He maketh a path to shine after him; one would think the deep to be hoary.

‖ Or, who behave themselves without fear.

33 Upon earth there is not his like, ‖ who is made without fear.

34 He beholdeth all high things: he is a king over all the children of pride.

CHAP. XLII.

1 Job submitteth himself unto God. 7 God, preferring Job's cause, maketh his friends submit themselves, and accepteth him. 10 He magnifieth and blesseth Job. 16 Job's age and death.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

THEN Job answered the LORD, and said,

2 I know that thou canst do every thing, and that ‖ no thought can be withholden from thee.

‖ Or, no thought of thine can be hindered.

3 [a] Who is he that hideth counsel without knowledge? therefore have I uttered that I understood not; things too wonderful for me, which I knew not.

[a] Ch. 38. 2.

4 Hear, I beseech thee, and I will speak: I will demand of thee, and declare thou unto me.

5 I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear: but now mine eye seeth thee.

---

could upset six chess-men." What strength then must one of twenty feet have, and in its full strength, not weakened by so long a fast! Heath.

30. Sharp stones are under him: &c.] The meaning of this may be, that, on account of the hardness of his skin, the crocodile can recline at ease on rocks, stones, and the sharpest things. Bochart. The belly of the crocodile is penetrable by a bullet, and perhaps also by a sword. Nevertheless it is hard enough to be insensible of pain, when he lieth on sharp stones and ragged rocks, which are in the bed of the Nile. In that part of the Nile, where the cataracts are, and which the crocodiles mostly frequent, its bed is of granite marble. Scott.

31. — he maketh the sea like a pot of ointment.] "The sea," that is, the Nile; as in Isai. xi. 15: the Nile is often so called by the Arabian writers, on account of the size of the river, and because at certain times it is spread over the whole of the Delta, like a sea. "Like a pot of ointment," by reason of the mud and slime which he stirs up, when he agitates the waters; probably also with a view to the sweet smell, which many writers have noticed as belonging to the crocodile. Bochart.

34. He beholdeth all high things: &c.] That is, he looks upon them with disdain; he despises them: see Cant. i. 6. Many stories are on record of crocodiles destroying and devouring other animals, greatly their superiours in height; men, oxen, buffaloes, boars, horses, camels, &c. Bochart.

—— the children of pride.] Literally, "the sons of elation or height." The phrase plainly means, as Bochart observes, the larger and stronger kinds of animals or wild beasts. Parkhurst.

There is in this speech a most happy gradation. After a magnificent but just description of the terribleness of the river-horse, the Almighty is represented as going on with his expostulations, something after this manner. But dreadful as this animal is, barbed irons and spears have sometimes prevailed against him: but what wilt thou do with the crocodile? "Canst thou fill his skin with barbed irons, or his head with fish spears? The sword of him that layeth at him cannot hold, &c." See verses 7, 26—29. What wilt thou do with this creature, O Job? This is to finish the expostulation in the strongest and most majestick manner. Harmer.

The argument of Omnipotence, insisted on in these four chapters, when duly considered, as Peters justly remarks, includes in it a full, perfect, and sufficient vindication of the ways of God with man. For if "He can do all things," and "nothing is impossible with God," He can have no temptation to do wrong; for "God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth He any man," Jam. i. 13; though for wise and salutary purposes, for correction, for discipline, for purification of heart and life, and preparation for a better world, He tries the best men, like Job, and proves them in the furnace of affliction, that "they may come forth like gold;" while, by His all-governing and all-controlling providence, He restrains the craft and subtilty of the devil or man, working against them, to shake their faith, and "sift them as wheat;" saying to the former, as to the ocean originally, "Hitherto shalt thou come, but no further; and here shall thy proud waves be stayed." At the same time, of His infinite mercy and goodness, He is not severe to mark what they have done amiss, upon their hearty repentance and true faith: for "He knoweth whereof they are made, He remembereth that they are but dust." Dr. Hales.

Chap. XLII. Jehovah, having confounded all the false reasonings of Job, and sufficiently humbled him, proceeds now to condemn the principle maintained by the three friends, which He affirms "not to be right." As an atonement therefore for their behaviour, He commands them to offer a sacrifice for themselves; and, as some compensation to Job, they have the mortifying penance enjoined them of begging his prayers in their behalf. He, whom they had represented as the vilest of men, was the only intercessor whom God would accept. Job is at length not only restored to his former prosperity; but, as a recompense for his past sufferings, blessings flow in upon him in a double tide, which he enjoys to a very old age, and leaves to a numerous posterity. Heath.

Ver. 2. I know that thou canst do every thing, &c.] This complete submission contains, 1st, A full acknowledgment of God's almighty power and supreme dominion, ver. 2; by thus glorifying the sovereign authority of God, Job tacitly condemns himself for not having meekly submitted to it: 2dly, A like acknowledgment of the unsearchable wisdom of Divine Providence, with an explicit condemnation of himself for his objections and murmurings against it, ver. 3: 3dly, He humbly begs of God to vouchsafe a gracious audience to his petition, and to instruct him farther in his duty, ver. 4: 4thly, He declares that this visible manifestation of the Almighty to him had impressed him with a deeper and more reverent sense of the Divine perfection and majesty, than he had before conceived by means of instruction only, ver. 5: Lastly, he expresses his repentance in the strongest terms of self-condemnation and humble sorrow, ver. 6. This complete submission may not improperly be called the catastrophe of the poem: it is not indeed a change of Job's outward condition: it is an alteration infinitely more important and beneficial; an alteration in the temper and state of his mind. He is brought back to his duty, and his soul returns to its rest. The restoration of his health and prosperity quickly followed, and is the subject of the ensuing narrative, where the style changes to historical prose. Scott.

3. Who is he that hideth &c.] I am sensible of the justice of Thy reproof, (see chap. xxxviii. 2.) and confess my presumption in speaking of things above my reach, which I ought humbly to admire, not arrogantly censure. Bp. Patrick. Our own humiliation begins at the exaltation of God. Caryl.

Before CHRIST about 1520.

6 Wherefore I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes.

7 ¶ And it was so, that after the LORD had spoken these words unto Job, the LORD said to Eliphaz the Temanite, My wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two friends: for ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right, as my servant Job hath.

8 Therefore take unto you now seven bullocks and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer up for yourselves a burnt offering; and my servant Job shall pray for you: for † him will I accept: lest I deal with you after your folly, in that ye have not spoken of me the thing which is right, like my servant Job.

† Heb. his face, or, person.

9 So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went, and did according as the LORD commanded them: the LORD also accepted † Job.

† Heb. the face of Job.

10 And the LORD turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends: also the LORD † gave Job twice as much as he had before.

† Heb. added all that had been to Job unto the double.

11 Then came there unto him all his brethren, and all his sisters, and all they that had been of his acquaintance before, and did eat bread with him in his house: and they bemoaned him, and comforted him over all the evil that the LORD had brought upon him: every man also gave him a piece of money, and every one an earring of gold.

Before CHRIST about 1520

12 So the LORD blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning: for he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she asses.

13 He had also seven sons and three daughters.

14 And he called the name of the first, Jemima; and the name of the second, Kezia; and the name of the third, Keren-happuch.

15 And in all the land were no women found so fair as the daughters of Job: and their father gave them inheritance among their brethren.

16 After this lived Job an hundred and

---

6. Wherefore I abhor myself, &c.] This humble confession and self-abasement of Job was graciously accepted: it covered all his imperfections; his passionate complaints wrung from him by the extremity of sufferings, corporeal and mental; his despair and weariness of life; his frequent wishes for death; his eagerness to enter upon his trial; his earnest request, and even expostulations with his Judge, to bring him to it, or at least to acquaint him with the reasons of such severe afflictions. Such shades and blemishes in the character of this illustrious Patriarch argue somewhat of impatience in this heroick pattern of patience. But God is ever ready to pass over the frailties and infirmities of human nature, where there is a tried and resolute integrity, determined to adhere to God in all trials and temptations, whatever may be the result. Dr. Hales.

7, 8. — the Lord said to Eliphaz &c.] Here is a repetition of the same declaration, in express terms, by God Himself, that Eliphaz and his companions "had not spoken of Him the thing that was right," and that Job had. Now it is impossible to find any thing in their speeches, which should make the difference here supposed, if we set aside the doctrine of a future state. For in this view the others would really speak more worthily of God than Job, by endeavouring to vindicate His providence in the exact distribution of good and evil in this life: whereas Job's assertion, chap. ix. 22, that "this is one thing, therefore I said it, He destroyeth the perfect and the wicked," which is the argument that he insists upon throughout, would, upon this supposition, be directly to charge God with making no distinction between the good and bad; which in a ruler is an errour, that reflects both on his wisdom and on his justice.

But now take the other life into the account, and the subject will appear in a contrary light; and we shall easily see the reason why God approves of the sentiments of Job, and condemns those of his friends. For let us suppose the friends of Job to argue, which seems to be the general tendency of their arguments, that the righteous are never afflicted without remedy here, and the wicked never prosperous upon the whole in this life, which is a wrong representation of God's providence; and Job to argue on the other hand, that the righteous are sometimes afflicted here, and that without remedy, but shall be rewarded in a life to come; and that the wicked prosper here, but shall be punished hereafter; which is the true representation of the Divine proceedings; and here is a very apparent difference in the drift of the one discourse and of the other: for Job in this view speaks worthily of God, the rest unworthily.

The best moral argument, which mankind ever had, to believe a life to come, is this, on which Job insists: that good and evil are for the most part dealt out here promiscuously. On the contrary, the topick urged by his friends, and which they push much too far, that God rewards and punishes in this world, tends in its consequence, like that other opinion, which was held in aftertimes, that virtue is its own reward, to sap the very foundation of that proof, which we have from reason, of another life. It is no wonder therefore, that the sentiments of the one are approved, and those of the other condemned.

And, taking the matter in this light, we may be almost led to conclude, that as God bestowed upon Solomon all other temporal advantages in reward for his asking wisdom, so He restored Job to all his temporal prosperity and happiness, and gave him a long enjoyment and increase of it, as a recompense to him for having so well defended the doctrine of a future state. Peters.

9. — the Lord also accepted Job.] The Lord also heard the prayer that he made for his friends, and so accepted of his person and devotion, that He forgave their offence upon his intercession. Bp. Hall.

10. And the Lord turned the captivity of Job, &c.] And the Lord released that miserable affliction, under which Job had been held bound, when out of his meekness and charity he was content to pray for his persecuting friends. Bp. Hall.

To "turn the captivity," seems to have been a proverbial phrase for a happy reverse of condition. For certainly it here includes all that God did for this excellent man. Scott.

11. Then came there &c.] When Job had humbled himself, and God had accepted him, He quickly turned the hearts of his friends to regard him with kindness, Prov. xvi. 7. Clark.

—— every man also gave him a piece of money,] It was an ancient custom, which is still observed in the East, never to visit a person of distinction without paying him the compliment of a present. It is uncertain, whether one kind of present made to Job on this occasion, was a sheep, or a piece of money, that had the figure of a sheep stamped upon it. Scott. See the note on Gen. xxxiii. 19.

Before CHRIST about 1520. forty years, and saw his sons, and his sons' sons, even four generations.

17 So Job died, being old and full of days. Before CHRIST about 1520.

17. So Job died,] It has been urged as an objection against Job being the author of this book, that his death is mentioned at the conclusion of it. But this is easily accounted for, in the same way as the death of Moses recorded at the conclusion of the Book of Deuteronomy, which is generally believed to be an addition by some other hand. See the note there. The story, as told by Job himself, might probably conclude at the tenth, or be continued to the twelfth verse of this chapter. Peters.

The circumstance of the remote antiquity of this book, it being presumed to be prior to the Pentateuch, and therefore the oldest book in the world, stamps the highest value upon it, as a most faithful and authentick monument of the language, the learning, the manners, and the religion, of the earlier and purer patriarchal ages: it is a valuable voucher for all those historical facts and doctrines, which it notices jointly with the books of Moses, such as the creation of the world, the ministry of good angels, the agency of bad, the fall of Adam, the universal deluge, &c.: while the difference of the manner, and the new circumstances which it incidentally relates, not to be found in the Pentateuch, prove it to be also an independent voucher, which derived information from different sources or traditions, preserved in Aram's and Jocktan's families. Dr. Hales.

There is one thing to be observed on the conduct of Job's friends, and their rash unkind censures of him, which may help to set the poem in a proper light. Their harsh and unfounded reproofs were made admirably subservient to the great design of Providence with respect to Job, and the end proposed by the Divine wisdom to exhibit him as a pattern to all succeeding generations. For neither could his sufferings have been so complete, nor consequently his patience so exemplary, had not God permitted this, which may be almost called the severest trial of all, to befall him. There is scarcely any thing, which a man of a generous mind is so little able to bear, as ignominy and reproach; especially the reproaches of those, who have been his friends. This therefore is a very delicate circumstance, that could not be omitted, if the afflictions of this good man were intended to be shewn in their proper light, so as to make his virtue, and the reward of it, the more conspicuous. Peters.

The grand moral of the book is to shew,

1st, That God sometimes permits the best men to be afflicted by Satan, and that most grievously, in this life, to prove their faith, patience, humility, and resignation to His will:

2dly, That this world is not a perfect state of retribution for virtue and vice: but that

3dly, All the inequalities, which are to be found here, will be completely redressed in a future state, at the general judgment, in which the good will be finally rewarded, and the wicked punished.

Job indeed was one of the best men that ever lived; but he was not exempt from the frailties and infirmities of human nature: and he failed in some measure under his last and sorest trial. Still, with all his imperfections, he will shine forth to the end of time an admirable example and an heroick pattern of piety and patience; to be exceeded only by that inimitable Standard of perfection, who, in His state of humiliation, was "meek and lowly of heart;" who was "in all points tempted like as we are," and that "by the devil," but yet "did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth;" and who was "perfected by sufferings" in this life, that He might be transcendently "exalted at the right hand of God:" the blessed "Seed of the woman," THE MAN JESUS CHRIST. Dr. Hales.

The following are the Chapters from the Book of Job, appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. I. - - - - - -	St. Luke, - - - - - - -	Evening.
—— XXIV, XXV. - - -	St. Simon and St. Jude, - - -	Morning.
—— XLII. - - - -	Ditto. - - - - - - -	Evening.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Book of Psalms, that is, the Book of Hymns, or Praises of the Lord, contains the productions of different writers. These productions are called however the Psalms of David, because a great part of them were composed by him. Some of them were perhaps penned before, and some after, the time of David; but all of them by persons under the influence of the Holy Ghost, since all were judged worthy to be inserted into the canon of Sacred Writ. Ezra probably collected them into one book, and placed them in the order which they now preserve. It appears that the 150 Psalms therein contained were selected from a much greater number, which, it may be presumed, were not suggested by the Holy Spirit. The authority of those, which we now possess, is established, not only by their rank among the sacred writings, and by the unvaried testimony of every age, but likewise by many intrinsick proofs of inspiration. Not only do they breathe through every part a Divine spirit of eloquence, but they contain numberless illustrious prophecies that were remarkably accomplished, and that are frequently appealed to by the evangelical writers. The sacred character of the whole Book is established by the testimony of our Saviour and His Apostles; who in various parts of the New Testament apply the predictions of the Psalms as obviously apposite to the circumstances of their lives, and as expressly intended to describe them.

The Psalms are certainly not arranged with any regard to chronology. Nor are the titles prefixed to them always designed to point out the author, but often apply to the persons appointed to set them to musick. They likewise sometimes appear to be only names of instruments, or directions for the choice of tunes.

Moses may be considered as the first composer of sacred hymns; all nations seem afterwards to have adopted this mode of expressing their religious sentiments, and to have employed hymns in celebrating the praises of their respective objects of worship, on the idea, derived perhaps from revealed truth, that they were acceptable to the Divine nature. The composition of sacred hymns was carried to great excellence by succeeding prophets, but was improved to its highest perfection under David, who, if he did not introduce, certainly established the custom of singing them in the publick service, with alternate interchange of verse, as in our cathedral service. And the practice of Psalmody received the sanction of Christ and His Apostles, who themselves recommended the custom by their precept and example.

The version of the Psalms in our Bible, which was made by the Translators employed under King James the First, is posterior to that printed in our Prayer Books, which was executed in 1539. This last, as very excellent and familiarized by custom, was retained in the Liturgy, though, being translated chiefly from the Greek, with some variation in conformity to the Hebrew, it does not so exactly correspond with the original, as does that in our Bibles.

The interesting life of David, who was the principal composer of the Book of Psalms, is described with peculiar minuteness in the historical Books of Scripture; and many of his Psalms are so characteristick of the circumstances under which they were composed, that there cannot be a more engaging task, than that of tracing their connexion with the events of his history; of discovering the occasions on which they were severally produced, and of contemplating the feeling and descriptive sentiments which they contain. If in the successive scenes of his life we behold him active in the exercise of those virtues which his piety produced, we contemplate him in this Book of Psalms in a no less attractive point of view. We here find him a sincere servant of God, divested of all the pride of royalty; pouring out the emotions of his soul, and unfolding his pious sentiment in every vicissitude of condition. At one time we have the prayers of distress; at another, the praises and exultation of triumph. Hence are these Psalms admirably adapted to all the circumstances of life, and serve alike for the indulgence of joy, or the soothing of sorrow; they chase away despondence and affliction; and furnish gladness with the strains of holy and religious rapture. Dr. Gray.

Although David's main purpose in publishing these Divine hymns, setting them to suitable musick, and singing them in the publick worship of God, was to publish to the whole world his endless gratitude for the various and wonderful mercies of God bestowed upon him; yet had he a further, and, if possible, a nobler purpose, that of dispersing true religion throughout every part of his dominions; of inspiring the hearts of his people with a true and lively sense of gratitude to God, their Benefactor, Protector, and Saviour. David well knew, that true gratitude to God is the surest source of true religion, and of every duty enjoined by it: and that, when it is poured out for publick blessings, in which all partake, it naturally mixes with every social affection, and blends them, as it were, into its own being; and by these means becomes the very best bond of society. Therefore, by perpetually pouring out the praises of God in the most exalted and heavenly compositions, and taking all occasions to recount His endless mercies and deliverances wrought for His people from the beginning, he took the most effectual means to fill their hearts with gratitude to their great Benefactor; and, in consequence of that, to render them religiously observant of His laws; to make them humane, friendly, and affectionate to one another, and conscientiously faithful and dutiful to their sovereign. Dr. Delaney.

The Psalms are full of such exalted strains of piety and devotion, such beautiful and animated descriptions of the power, the wisdom, the mercy, the goodness of God, that it is impossible for any one to read them without feeling his heart inflamed with the most ardent affection towards the great Creator and Governour of the universe. Bp. Porteus.

The Psalms are an epitome of the Bible, adapted to the purposes of devotion. They treat occasionally of the creation and formation of the world; the dispensations of Providence, and the economy of grace; the transactions of the patriarchs, the exodus of the children of Israel; their journey through the wilderness, and their settlement in Canaan; their law, priesthood, and ritual; the exploits of their great men wrought through faith; their sins and captivities, their repentances and restorations; the sufferings and victories of David; the peaceful and happy reign of Solomon; the advent of the Messiah with its effects and consequences; His incarnation, birth, life, passion, death, resurrection, ascension, kingdom, and priesthood; the effusion of the Spirit, the conversion of the Gentiles, the rejection of the Jews; the establishment, increase, and perpetuity of the Christian church; the end of the world, the general judgment, the condemnation of the wicked, and the final triumph of the righteous with their Lord and King. These are the subjects by them presented to our imaginations. We are instructed how to conceive the subjects aright, and how to express the different affections, which, when conceived aright, they must excite in our minds. In the language of this Divine Book, the prayers of the Church have been offered up to the throne of grace from age to age. And it appears to have been the manual of the Son of God in the days of His flesh; who at the conclusion of His supper is generally supposed, and that upon good grounds, to have sung an hymn taken from it; who pronounced upon the cross the beginning of the twenty-second Psalm, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" and expired with a part of the thirty-first in His mouth, "Into Thy hands I commend My spirit." Thus He, who spake as never man spake, chose to conclude His life, to solace Himself in His greatest agony, and at last to breathe out His soul, in the Psalmist's form of words rather than His own. No tongue of man, or angel, as Dr. Hammond justly observes, can convey a higher idea of any Book, and of their felicity who use it right.

Let us stop for a moment to contemplate the true character of these sacred hymns. Greatness confers no exemption from the pains and sorrows of life. This the Israelitish monarch experienced. He sought in piety that peace which he could not find in empire, and alleviated the disquietudes of state with the exercises of devotion.

His invaluable Psalms convey those comforts to others which they afforded to himself. Composed upon particular occasions, yet designed for general use; delivered out as services for Israelites under the Law, yet no less adapted to the circumstances of Christians under the Gospel; they present religion to us in the most engaging dress; communicating truths which philosophy could never investigate, in a style which poetry can never equal. Calculated alike to profit and to please, they inform the understanding, elevate the affections, and entertain the imagination. Indited under the influence of Him, to whom all hearts are open, and all events foreknown, they suit mankind in all situations, grateful as the manna which descended from above, and conformed itself to every palate. The fairest productions of human wit, after a few perusals, like gathered flowers, wither in our hands, and lose their fragrancy; but these unfading plants of Paradise become, as we are more accustomed to them, still more and more beautiful; their bloom appears to be daily heightened, fresh odours are emitted, and new sweets are extracted from them. He who has once tasted their excellencies, will desire to taste them again; and he who tastes them oftenest, will relish them best. Bp. Horne.

The Jews, at some uncertain period, divided the Book of Psalms into five sections or books, probably in imitation of the division of the Pentateuch. These divisions end respectively with the 41st, the 72d, the 89th, the 106th, and the 150th. The four first books of this division terminate with the word Amen, and with a peculiar form of doxology, or praise to God, which was probably, in each instance, added by the collector of the Book of Psalms. Our present order of the Psalms is perhaps that, in which they were sung in the Temple; and this may account for the occasional repetitions. Dr. Gray, Travell.

PSALM I.

1 The happiness of the godly. 4 The unhappiness of the ungodly.

[a] Psov. 4. 14. ‖ Or, wicked.

BLESSED [a] is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ‖ ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

2 But his delight is in the law of the [b] Josh. 1. 8. Ps. 119. 1. LORD; [b] and in his law doth he meditate day and night.

[c] Jer. 17. 8. 3 And he shall be like a tree [c] planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not † wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. † Heb. fade.

[d] Ps. 35. 5. Isai. 17. 13. 4 The ungodly are not so: but are [d] like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

5 Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous.

6 For the LORD knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish.

PSALM II.

1 The kingdom of Christ. 10 Kings are exhorted to accept it.

Psalm I. This Psalm was placed first as a preface to all the rest, being a powerful persuasive to the diligent reading and serious study of the whole book, and of the rest of the Holy Scriptures, taken from that blessedness which attends upon this study and practice. Poole.

Ver. 1. Blessed is the man &c.] In other words, Great is the happiness of that man, who hath not trod in the steps of the ungodly, or, if he hath at any time been seduced by them, did not persist, like those hardened wretches, in evil courses; much less proceed so far in his impiety, as to be one of that company who deride and scoff at religion. Bp. Patrick.

4. — like the chaff &c.] The method of winnowing their corn anciently, and as it is now practised in the East, was by throwing it up against the wind with a shovel. Dr. Shaw.

5. — shall not stand in the judgment,] That is, shall not carry their cause, but in the issue of things shall come off defeated and condemned by God and the world. Mudge. Or, shall not be able to justify themselves, or endure the wrath of the Almighty at the last day. S. Clarke.

6. — knoweth the way] Meaning, approveth the way. Dimock.

This Psalm, like the sermon on the mount, opens with a "beatitude" for our comfort and encouragement, directing us immediately to that happiness, which all mankind in different ways are seeking after. He who hath once brought himself to "delight" in the Scriptures, will find no temptation to exchange that pleasure for any which the world or the flesh can offer him. Such an one will make the oracles of God his companions by day and by night. He will have recourse to them for direction, in the bright and cheerful hours of prosperity; to them he will apply for comfort, in the dark and dreary seasons of adversity. And, by continual meditation in the Sacred Writings, he will as naturally improve and advance in holiness, as a tree thrives and flourishes in a kindly and well-watered soil. Bp. Horne.

Psalm II. This Psalm may be supposed to relate, in the first place, to David, whom God established upon the throne of Israel, notwithstanding the opposition of his enemies. It contains also an illustrious prophecy of the kingdom of Jesus Christ, which, in spite of every attempt, both of Jews and Gentiles, God has wonderfully established, even to the uttermost parts of the earth. It is appointed to be read on Easter-day, when our Lord, by His resurrection, took possession of this glorious kingdom. Travell, Bp. Patrick. The sole application of the illustrious prophecy contained in this Psalm to the Messiah was the unquestionable doctrine of the primitive Jewish church. Dr. Hales.

1047.

WHY [a] do the heathen ‖ rage, and the people † imagine a vain thing?

2 The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD, and against his anointed, saying,

3 Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us.

4 [b] He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the LORD shall have them in derision.

5 Then shall he speak unto them in his wrath, and ‖ vex them in his sore displeasure.

6 Yet have I † set my king † upon my holy hill of Zion.

7 I will declare ‖ the decree: the LORD hath said unto me, [c] Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee.

8 [d] Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.

9 [e] Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

10 Be wise now therefore, O ye kings: be instructed, ye judges of the earth.

11 Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling.

12 Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little. [f] Blessed are all they that put their trust in him.

[a] Acts 4. 25.
‖ Or, tumultuously assemble.
† Heb. meditate.
[b] Prov. 1. 26.
‖ Or, trouble.
† Heb. anointed.
† Heb. upon Zion, the hill of my holiness.
‖ Or, for a decree.
[c] Acts 13. 33. Hebr. 1. 5.
[d] Ps. 72. 8.
[e] Rev. 2. 27. & 19. 15.
[f] Prov. 16. 20. Isai. 30. 18. Jer. 17. 7. Rom. 9. 33. & 10. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 6.

PSALM III.

The security of God's protection.

¶ A Psalm of David, [a] when he fled from Absalom his son.

LORD, how are they increased that trouble me? many are they that rise up against me. 1028.

2 Many there be which say of my soul, There is no help for him in God. Selah.

3 But thou, O LORD, art a shield ‖ for me; my glory, and the lifter up of mine head.

4 I cried unto the LORD with my voice, and he heard me out of his holy hill. Selah.

5 [b] I laid me down and slept; I awaked; for the LORD sustained me.

6 [c] I will not be afraid of ten thousands of people, that have set themselves against me round about.

7 Arise, O LORD; save me, O my God: for thou hast smitten all mine enemies upon the cheek bone; thou hast broken the teeth of the ungodly.

[a] 2 Sam. 15. 15.
‖ Or, about.
[b] Ps. 4. 8.
[c] Ps. 27. 3.

Ver. 1. Why do the heathen &c.] That is, Why do the Jews and Heathens combine together to attempt, what they will never be able to accomplish? Travell.

2. The kings of the earth &c.] The kings and governours of the surrounding nations conspire together to oppose the decrees of Providence, and to prevent David from sitting upon the throne of Israel; in the same manner as the rulers of the Jews will conspire against Jesus Christ, the anointed Saviour. Travell.

3. Let us &c.] Let us, say they, break asunder their fetters, and cast away from us their yoke. Dr. Kennicott.

5, 6. Then shall he speak &c.] Their impious opposition will raise His just indignation, as if He had actually spoken to them from heaven, and said, Notwithstanding all your vain attempts, I have anointed David to be king over My people Israel; as in future times I will anoint One of his posterity to sit at My right hand upon the throne of glory. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

7. — Thou art my Son; &c.] These words are eminently true of Jesus the Messiah in a prophetical sense, who was invested with the royal office, when He was raised from the dead, and exalted at God's right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, Rom. i. 3. Acts xiii. 33. Green.

12. Kiss the Son,] To "kiss" a person when appointed king, was among the eastern people an act of homage. Thus Samuel, when he had anointed Saul king, "kissed him," that is, acknowledged him for his sovereign, 1 Sam. x. 1. Green. See the note on Gen. xli. 40.

"Kiss the Son," that is, submit to Him, worship and love Him; "lest He be angry," lest He turn that grace and favour which He has offered you into heavy displeasure, "and ye perish in the way," ye be suddenly cut off in the midst of your counsels. S. Clarke.

The confidence which David manifests in this Psalm, shews, in general, that attempts against the designs of God are vain; and that nothing can hurt those whom He loves, and has promised to bless. But the application which the Apostles make to our Lord of these words, "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten Thee," engages us more especially to consider this Psalm as it relates to the kingdom of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, which has been established in the world, in spite of all opposition from kings and the great men of the earth, and will subsist for ever. And since this kingdom is established among us, and we have the happiness to be Christ's subjects, let us submit ourselves to this glorious King; let us serve Him with humility and joy, and place all our trust and confidence in His favour and protection. Osterwald.

Psalm III. The title of this Psalm explains the occasion of it; and it is impossible an hymn could be composed with greater propriety, or nobler sentiments of religion, at a time when David was given over by many as absolutely lost, and his enemies thought it was beyond the power of God to save him. Dr. Chandler.

Ver. 2. — Selah.] It cannot certainly be known what is meant by this word; the most probable opinion is, that it was a note in musick. Bp. Patrick.

This Hebrew word is found seventy times in the Psalms, and three times in Habakkuk. One conjecture is, that it means "the end" or "a pause," and that the ancient musicians put it occasionally in the margin of their psalters, to shew where a musical pause was to be made, and where the tune ended. Calmet.

3. — the lifter up of mine head.] David means by this expression, that God would remove his distresses, and make him triumph over all his enemies. Dr. Chandler.

4. — out of his holy hill.] That is, out of the tabernacle or place of His religious worship, which was on Sion, called on that account His holy hill. Dr. Wells.

7. — for thou hast smitten] The Hebrew properly means, "Thou art wont to smite," "Thou smitest continually."

— broken the teeth] As men of violence are frequently resem-

[d] Isai. 43. 11. Hos. 13. 4.

8 [d] Salvation belongeth unto the LORD: thy blessing is upon thy people. Selah.

PSALM IV.

1 David prayeth for audience. 2 He reproveth and exhorteth his enemies. 6 Man's happiness is in God's favour.

‖ Or, overseer.

¶ To the ‖ chief Musician on Neginoth, A Psalm of David.

HEAR me when I call, O God of my righteousness: thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress; ‖ have mercy upon me, and hear my prayer.

‖ Or, be gracious unto me.

2 O ye sons of men, how long will ye turn my glory into shame? how long will ye love vanity, and seek after leasing? Selah.

3 But know that the LORD hath set apart him that is godly for himself: the LORD will hear when I call unto him.

4 Stand in awe, and sin not: commune with your own heart upon your bed, and be still. Selah.

5 Offer [a] the sacrifices of righteousness, and put your trust in the LORD.

[a] Psal. 50. 14. & 51. 19.

6 There be many that say, Who will shew us any good? LORD, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us.

7 Thou hast put gladness in my heart, more than in the time that their corn and their wine increased.

8 [b] I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep: for thou, LORD, only makest me dwell in safety.

[b] Psal. 3. 5.

PSALM V.

1 David prayeth, and professeth his study in prayer. 4 God favoureth not the wicked. 7 David, professing his faith, prayeth unto God to guide him, 10 to destroy his enemies, 11 and to preserve the godly.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Nehiloth, A Psalm of David.

GIVE ear to my words, O LORD, consider my meditation.

2 Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: for unto thee will I pray.

---

bled to wild ravenous beasts, so the power or means made use of by such men to oppress others, are fitly denoted by the teeth, cheekbone, or jaws, &c.; these being the parts, whereby beasts of prey chiefly devour their prey. Hence, to break the teeth, cheekbone, &c. of an enemy, is frequently used in Scripture to denote the depriving an enemy of his power to hurt. Dr. Wells.

8. — thy blessing is upon thy people.] Rather, May Thy blessing be upon Thy people. Green.

The example of king David in this Psalm should teach us, that all our security depends upon God's protection, of which neither the power nor malice of our enemies can deprive us, if we repose our trust and confidence in Him. We should therefore pray to Him, that He would not suffer us to be misled by any worldly designs or stratagems, but that He would be our shield, our comforter, and supporter, and make the world see that salvation belongeth only to Him, and that His blessing is peculiar to His people. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm IV. When, or upon what occasion David penned this Psalm, is not certainly known, though the matter of it makes it probable, it was in the same (or the like) distress wherein he composed the foregoing. Bp. Patrick.

— chief Musician] That is, the master or director of the sacred musicians and musick of the temple: of whom see 1 Chron. vi. 31. and xv. 16. Poole.

— Neginoth,] Stringed instruments played on with a bow. Dr. Kennicott.

By these words, "To the chief Musician," &c. he seems to mean, I recommend this Psalm to the care and ordering of the master or director of the sacred musick in the temple, and him who plays most skilfully upon stringed instruments. S. Clarke.

Ver. 1. — O God of my righteousness:] O my righteous God. Bp. Hare, Edwards. Or the expression may mean, O God, who art to do me justice, to whom I apply for justice. Mudge, Merrick. O God, the witness and defender of my righteous cause. S. Clarke.

— enlarged me] Set me free from distress. Street.

2. O ye sons of men, &c.] O ye wicked men, how long will ye defame my government? how long will ye carry on your vain attempts, and go on in lying and spreading false calumnies against me? Dr. Wells. Otherwise, by "my glory" he may mean, "God who is my glory:" for so God is called, Psalm iii. 3. and cvi. 20. David was accustomed to glory, and with good reason, on account of his steadfast worship of the true God, and of His favour towards him. This zeal for God's service was made a subject of disgrace and ridicule by the wicked. Le Clerc.

4. Stand in awe, and sin not:] The rendering of the Greek is, "Be ye angry, and sin not;" that is, Though you be angry, take care you do not sin. So St. Paul (Ephes. iv. 26.) recites it. Dr. Wall.

5. Offer the sacrifices of righteousness,] That is, act righteously, which is the most acceptable sacrifice. Dr. Wells.

6. There be many &c.] This seems to relate to the righteous, who, in times of calamity and persecution, like the friends of distressed David, are tempted to despond, on seeing no end of their troubles. Bp. Horne.

—— lift thou up &c.] Manifest Thy love and favour to me and mine. S. Clarke.

7. Thou hast put &c.] Other men do not so much rejoice in their vintage and harvest, when it is most abundant, as I do in the assurance of Thy favour towards me. Bp. Hall.

We may learn from this Psalm, 1st, That however our enemies seek to oppress us, yet God, whose power no man can resist, hath chosen to Himself, and will take to His love, those who are godly, and that when they cry unto Him, He will hear them. 2dly, That we ought to "commune with our own hearts," which, in the language of Scripture, is to retreat from the world, and give ourselves up to private meditation and reflexion. And the design of this self-communion is, to restrain us from vice; to cherish and improve the seeds of virtue; to give us leisure for examining into the state of our souls; to stamp upon our hearts a love for God, and a reverence for His laws; to make us, in short, "stand in awe and sin not." 3dly, That in God alone is rest, in Him security, in Him tranquillity. We ought therefore to pray to our heavenly Father, that, amidst all the storms and troubles of this life, we may lie down and sleep in peace, looking up to Him for safety, succour, and protection. Bp. Nicholson, Bp. Porteus.

Psalm V. David most probably composed this Psalm, when he was persecuted by Saul or Absalom, and their adherents. Edwards.

— Nehiloth,] That is, organs or other wind-instruments. Dr. Wells.

[a] Psal. 130. 6.

3 [a] My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O LORD; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up.

4 For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness: neither shall evil dwell with thee.

† Heb. before thine eyes.

5 The foolish shall not stand † in thy sight: thou hatest all workers of iniquity.

† Heb. the man of bloods and deceit.

6 Thou shalt destroy them that speak leasing: the LORD will abhor † the bloody and deceitful man.

† Heb. the temple of thy holiness.

7 But as for me, I will come into thy house in the multitude of thy mercy: and in thy fear will I worship toward † thy holy temple.

† Heb. those which observe me.

8 Lead me, O LORD, in thy righteousness because of † mine enemies; make thy way straight before my face.

‖ Or, stedfastness.

† Heb. in his mouth, that is, in the mouth of any of them.

9 For there is no ‖ faithfulness † in their mouth; their inward part is † very wickedness; [b] their throat is an open sepulchre; they flatter with their tongue.

† Heb. wickednesses.

[b] Rom. 3. 13.

‖ Or, Make them guilty.

10 ‖ Destroy thou them, O God; let them fall ‖ by their own counsels; cast them out in the multitude of their transgressions; for they have rebelled against thee.

‖ Or, from their counsels.

11 But let all those that put their trust in thee rejoice: let them ever shout for joy, because † thou defendest them: let them also that love thy name be joyful in thee.

† Heb. thou coverest over, or, protectest them.

12 For thou, LORD, wilt bless the righteous; with favour wilt thou † compass him as with a shield.

† Heb. crown him.

PSALM VI.

1 David's complaint in his sickness. 8 By faith he triumpheth over his enemies.

¶ To the chief Musician on Neginoth ‖ upon Sheminith, A Psalm of David.

‖ Or, upon the eighth.

O [a] LORD, rebuke me not in thine anger, neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure.

[a] Ps. 38. 1.

2 Have mercy upon me, O LORD; for I am weak: O LORD, heal me; for my bones are vexed.

3 My soul is also sore vexed: but thou, O LORD, how long?

4 Return, O LORD, deliver my soul: oh save me for thy mercies' sake.

5 [b] For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks?

[b] Ps. 30. 9. & 88. 11. & 115. 17. & 118. 17. Isai. 38. 18.

6 I am weary with my groaning; ‖ all the night make I my bed to swim; I water my couch with my tears.

‖ Or, every night.

7 Mine eye is consumed because of grief; it waxeth old because of all mine enemies.

8 [c] Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity; for the LORD hath heard the voice of my weeping.

[c] Matth. 7. 23. & 25. 41. Luke 13. 27.

9 The LORD hath heard my supplication; the LORD will receive my prayer.

Ver. 3. — and will look up.] Toward heaven, the throne of Thy glory, from whence I hope for help. Bp. Wilson.

5. The foolish] The wicked. S. Clarke.

6. — that speak leasing:] That make it their business to raise and disperse false and scandalous reports of me. S. Clarke.

8. Lead me, &c.] Guide me, O Lord, in the plain path of truth and righteousness, lest, if I err from it, my enemies rejoice and triumph. Travell.

9. — their throat is an open sepulchre;] They utter mischief with open mouths, gaping, like noisome tombs, to swallow up the innocent. Travell.

10. Destroy thou them,] Concerning passages of this imprecatory kind in the book of Psalms, it is to be observed, that they are not spoken of private and personal enemies, but of the opposers of God and His anointed; nor of any among these, but the irreclaimable and finally impenitent; and this by way of prediction rather than imprecation; which would appear, if the original verbs were translated, as they should be, in the future tense. The verse before us would then run thus: "Thou wilt destroy them, O God; they shall perish by their own counsels: Thou wilt cast them out in the multitude of their trangressions, for they have rebelled against Thee." Bp. Horne.

These four things are remarkable in this Psalm: 1st, The fervency and confidence with which good men call upon the Lord in their necessities. 2d, Their zeal for His service, and the joy and reverence with which they adore Him, in places set apart for publick worship. 3d, God's abhorrence and detestation of sin, and especially of pride and deceit; and the punishment reserved for the proud and unjust. And lastly, His favourable protection of all those that fear Him, and trust in Him. Ostervald.

Psalm VI. In this Psalm are described two conditions of the writer: in the first, he complains of some grievous disorder, heightened by the malicious joy of his enemies, from which he prays to be relieved; in the second, his prayer is answered, and he triumphs in the disappointment of his enemies. Mudge. This being one of the penitential Psalms, is appointed to be used on Ash-wednesday, and is suitable to the condition of those, who are any ways afflicted or distressed, in mind, body, or estate. Travell.

— Neginoth upon Sheminith,] The harp of eight strings. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 2. — my bones are vexed.] That is, shaken, or made to tremble. Bp. Horne. My pain reaches to my bones and inward parts. S. Clarke.

3. — but thou, O Lord, how long?] But Thou, O Lord, how long wilt Thou thus afflict me? Dr. Wells.

5. For in death there is no remembrance of thee:] For the dead are utterly unable to commemorate Thy wonderful works, and propagate the memory of them to posterity. Bp. Patrick.

7. — it waxeth old] That is, dim, or is grown stiff with weeping. Bp. Wilson, Green.

8. Depart from me, &c.] Away with your idolatrous insinuations, as if the God of Israel could not deliver His servant: He hath heard his prayer, and will deliver him from death, and from your expectation of triumphing in his fall. Green.

—— ye workers of iniquity;] Ye that put your trust in idols. Bp. Wilson.

We are all God's children, and reproof and correction is as due to children from their parents, as nourishment; they cannot prosper without it: crosses and afflictions are God's chastisements, without which we cannot be, if we are His children. Therefore the pious and godly man does not, must not pray, that all things may succeed according to his own wish, and that he may know

10 Let all mine enemies be ashamed and sore vexed: let them return and be ashamed suddenly.

PSALM VII.

1 David prayeth against the malice of his enemies, professing his innocency. 10 By faith he seeth his defence, and the destruction of his enemies.

¶ Shiggaion of David, which he sang unto the LORD, concerning the ‖ words of Cush the Benjamite.

‖ Or, business.

about 1062. O LORD my God, in thee do I put my trust: save me from all them that persecute me, and deliver me:

2 Lest he tear my soul like a lion, rending it in pieces, while there is † none to deliver.

† Heb. not a deliverer.

3 O LORD my God, if I have done this; if there be iniquity in my hands;

4 If I have rewarded evil unto him that was at peace with me; (yea, I have delivered him that without cause is mine enemy:)

5 Let the enemy persecute my soul, and take it; yea, let him tread down my life upon the earth, and lay mine honour in the dust. Selah.

6 Arise, O LORD, in thine anger, lift up thyself because of the rage of mine enemies: and awake for me to the judgment that thou hast commanded.

7 So shall the congregation of the people compass thee about: for their sakes therefore return thou on high.

8 The LORD shall judge the people: judge me, O LORD, [a] according to my righteousness, and according to mine integrity that is in me. [a] Psal. 18. 20.

9 Oh let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end; but establish the just: [b] for the righteous God trieth the hearts and reins. [b] 1 Sam. 16. 7. 1 Chron. 28. 9. Ps. 139. 1. Jer. 11. 20. & 17. 10. & 20. 12.

10 † My defence is of God, which saveth the upright in heart.

† Heb. My buckler is upon God.

11 ‖ God judgeth the righteous, and God is angry with the wicked every day.

‖ Or, God is a righteous judge.

12 If he turn not, he will whet his sword; he hath bent his bow, and made it ready.

13 He hath also prepared for him the instruments of death; he ordaineth his arrows against the persecutors.

14 [c] Behold, he travaileth with iniquity, and hath conceived mischief, and brought forth falsehood. [c] Job 15. 35. Isai. 59. 4. James 1. 15.

15 † He made a pit, and digged it, [d] and is fallen into the ditch which he made.

† Heb. He hath digged a pit. [d] Ps. 9. 15. & 10. 2.

16 His mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violent dealing shall come down upon his own pate. Prov. 5. 22.

17 I will praise the LORD according to his righteousness: and will sing praise to the name of the LORD most high.

---

nothing but prosperity in this world: all that he prays is, that those afflictions, which he must pass through, may not fall upon him out of God's anger, and that His displeasure may not pursue him beyond that adversity. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm VII. David is said to have composed this Psalm concerning the words, or the matter of Cush the Benjamite. Whether Saul, or Shimei, or any one else, be intended under this name, it is sufficiently clear, that David had been maliciously aspersed and calumniated by such a person; and that the Psalm was written to vindicate himself from the imputation, whatever was the nature of it. Bp. Horne.

Shiggaion] This word denotes a wandering song, or a Psalm ascribed to David, as composed by him in the time of his wanderings, when he was falsely accused by his enemies, and hunted by Saul, as a partridge on the mountains. Fenwick. Or it may mean a song expressing grief. Dr. Kennicott, Street.

Otherwise, it is thought to be the name of a certain kind of song, to the tune of which this Psalm was to be sung. S. Clarke.

Ver. 2. Lest he tear &c.] Lest mine enemy tear, &c. Green.

3. — done this;] With which I am falsely charged. Bp. Wilson.

4. If I have rewarded &c.] David probably alludes to the circumstance of Saul's life having been twice preserved by him, when he had been pressed by his attendants to embrace the opportunity of taking it away. See 1 Sam. xxiv. and xxvi. Bp. Horne.

6. — awake for me to the judgment &c.] Inflict that punishment upon mine enemies which Thou hast commanded should be inflicted upon malicious oppressors and persecutors. Dr. Clarke.

7. So shall the congregation — compass thee about:] So, by seeing justice done to me through Thy special Providence, shall the congregation of the people be induced to resort unto Thee to do them justice. Dr. Wells. "Compass Thee about" with praises for Thy goodness to me, and for the manifold blessings they shall enjoy under my government. S. Clarke.

—— return thou on high.] When God seems to take no notice of the transgressions of men, it is as if He descended from the place of His power, and from His judgment-seat; but when He visits and judges their iniquities, He seems to elevate Himself on high, or to return to His judgment-seat. Edwards.

9. — trieth the hearts and reins.] That is, knoweth intimately the very thoughts and desires of all men. Bp. Horne.

11. God judgeth the righteous,] The meaning is, God will maintain the cause of the righteous. Dr. Wells.

12. If he turn not, he will whet &c.] If the wicked will not repent, God will whet &c. Dr. Wells. "Whet his sword," prepare and speedily execute His judgments upon him. S. Clarke.

14. Behold, he travaileth &c.] See the folly of these wicked plots and contrivances against my life, which shall all miscarry, and deceive the expectation of this wicked slanderer. Travell.

15. He made a pit,] This alludes to the method of catching wild beasts in pits covered over slightly with reeds or small branches of trees. Dr. Shaw.

We learn from this Psalm, that the wickedness of the ungodly shall come to an end; that God lets them alone, and bears with them for a time; but if they persist in their wickedness, He prepares for them the punishments they deserve, and will make the evil which they design for others fall upon their own heads. These are powerful motives to induce us to adore the justice of God: to improve by His forbearance and longsuffering; and to avoid every thing that may expose us to His vengeance. Osterwald.

PSALM VIII.

God's glory is magnified by his works, and by his love to man.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Gittith, A Psalm of David.

O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth! who hast set thy glory above the heavens.

[a] Matt. 21. 16. † Heb. founded.

2 [a] Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou † ordained strength because of thine enemies, that thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger.

3 When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained;

[b] Job 7. 17. Ps. 144. 3. Hebr. 2. 6.

4 [b] What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?

5 For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour.

6 Thou madest him to have dominion

[c] 1 Cor. 15. 27.

over the works of thy hands; [c] thou hast put all things under his feet:

† Heb. Flocks and oxen all of them.

7 † All sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field;

8 The fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas.

9 O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!

PSALM IX.

1 David praiseth God for executing of judgment. 11 He inciteth others to praise him. 13 He prayeth that he may have cause to praise him.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Muth-labben, 1016. A Psalm of David.

I WILL praise thee, O LORD, with my whole heart; I will shew forth all thy marvellous works.

2 I will be glad and rejoice in thee: I will sing praise to thy name, O thou most High.

3 When mine enemies are turned back, they shall fall and perish at thy presence.

4 For † thou hast maintained my right and my cause; thou satest in the throne judging † right.

† Heb. thou hast made my judgment. † Heb. in righteousness.

5 Thou hast rebuked the heathen, thou hast destroyed the wicked, thou hast put out their name for ever and ever.

Psalm VIII. The scope and meaning of this Psalm seems plainly to be this: to display and celebrate the great love of God to man, not only in his creation, but especially in his redemption by Jesus Christ; whom, as He was man, He advanced to the honour and dominion here mentioned, that He might carry on that great and glorious work. Thus Christ is the principal subject of this Psalm, of whom it is interpreted, both by Christ Himself, Matth. xxi. 16, and by His holy Apostle, 1 Cor. xv. 27. Hebr. ii. 6, 7. Poole.

In a prophetical sense, it is understood of Christ's victory over Satan. Reeves.

This Psalm is suited to the service of the Ascension-day, when we commemorate so signal a proof of the Divine love, as the exaltation of our nature, in the second Adam, to the right hand of the Majesty on high. Travell.

— upon Gittith,] Some have supposed this expression to denote, that this Psalm was to be sung to a harp which David brought with him from Gath: others, to a musical instrument used at the time of the vintage. Both may be true: the instrument bearing this name might have been used by the people of Gath; and the Jews might have adopted it from them, and afterwards it might have become the favourite instrument amidst the festivity and dances of the vintage. Street.

Ver. 2. Out of the mouth &c.] Thou art pleased to make choice of the meanest and most humble persons, and even very children in age, to sing hosannas to the Son of David, Matt. xxi. 16. to acknowledge Thy power and majesty. And this Thou hast done, that they whose pride makes them resist and despise Thee, may be thus visibly punished; and the power of the devil destroyed. Dr. Hammond.

3—6. When I consider &c.] When, on the one hand, I survey the glorious bodies in the heavens, and compare them with man, I am induced to think degradingly of him, and to wonder why he should be the object of Thy care. When, on the other hand, I consider the rank of being in which Thou at first placedst man, making him but a little below the angels, I correct myself for having made too degrading a comparison of him, and adore Thee for Thy providential care of him at present, and for the dignity to which Thou didst advance him, when Thou madest him the head of the visible creation. Green.

4. — visitest him?] With Thy presence and protection. Bp. Wilson.

The following prayer is so well adapted to the sentiments contained in this Psalm, that it may be added in the place of practical reflexion. O our God, since Thou hast been so mindful of us, never suffer us to be unmindful of Thee: since Thou hast shewed Thy mercy in visiting and redeeming us, never let us shew ourselves unthankful for this Thy visitation and redemption. Suffer us not to abuse Thy creatures which Thou hast given us for food, nor Thy gifts bestowed for clothing, nor wantonly and cruelly to make use of our dominion. But give us grace so highly to esteem Thy rich mercies, and with such temperance and sobriety to use Thy creatures, that Thy name thereby may still be more magnified, Thy bounty exalted, Thy providence more declared, Thy honour enlarged, Thy person glorified, and our souls at last saved by the merits of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Bp. Nicholson.

Psalm IX. This Psalm consists of two parts; a thanksgiving, and a prayer. Upon what particular occasion it was composed, is not known; probably, to celebrate the victories gained by David over the neighbouring nations, after God had exalted him to be king in Sion. Bp. Horne.

This and the two following are the proper Psalms appointed for the fast service on the thirtieth of January.

— Muth-labben,] Some suppose Labben to be the name of a prince or chief in the enemy's army; and Muth-labben to mean "the death of Labben," in celebration of which this Psalm may have been composed. Dimock. Or it may be the title of a tune or instrument. S. Clarke.

Ver. 3. When mine enemies &c.] Rather, It was Thou who madest my enemies turn their backs, and through the dread of Thee they fell and were destroyed. Bp. Patrick.

‖ Or, The destructions of the enemy are come to a perpetual end: and their cities hast thou destroyed, &c.

6 O ‖ thou enemy, destructions are come to a perpetual end: and thou hast destroyed cities; their memorial is perished with them.

7 But the LORD shall endure for ever: he hath prepared his throne for judgment.

8 And [a] he shall judge the world in righteousness, he shall minister judgment to the people in uprightness.

[a] Ps. 96. 13. & 98. 9.

[b] Ps. 37. 39. & 46. 1. & 91. 2.

† Heb. an high place.

9 [b] The LORD also will be † a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in times of trouble.

10 And they that know thy name will put their trust in thee: for thou, LORD, hast not forsaken them that seek thee.

11 Sing praises to the LORD, which dwelleth in Zion: declare among the people his doings.

[c] Gen. 9. 5.

12 [c] When he maketh inquisition for blood, he remembereth them: he forgetteth not the cry of the ‖ humble.

‖ Or, afflicted.

13 Have mercy upon me, O LORD; consider my trouble which I suffer of them that hate me, thou that liftest me up from the gates of death:

14 That I may shew forth all thy praise in the gates of the daughter of Zion: I will rejoice in thy salvation.

[d] Ps. 7. 16.

15 [d] The heathen are sunk down in the pit that they made: in the net which they hid is their own foot taken.

16 The LORD is known by the judgment which he executeth: the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands. Higgaion. Selah.

17 The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God.

18 For the needy shall not alway be forgotten: the expectation of the poor shall not perish for ever.

19 Arise, O LORD; let not man prevail: let the heathen be judged in thy sight.

20 Put them in fear, O LORD: that the nations may know themselves to be but men. Selah.

PSALM X.

1 David complaineth to God of the outrage of the wicked. 12 He prayeth for remedy. 16 He professeth his confidence.

† Heb. In the pride of the wicked he doth persecute.

WHY standest thou afar off, O LORD? why hidest thou thyself in times of trouble?

[a] Ps. 7. 16. & 9. 16. Prov. 5. 22.

† Heb. soul's.

2 † The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor: [a] let them be taken in the devices that they have imagined.

‖ Or, the covetous blesseth himself, he abhorreth the LORD.

3 For the wicked boasteth of his † heart's desire, and ‖ blesseth the covetous, whom the LORD abhorreth.

‖ Or, all his thoughts are, There is no God.

[b] Ps. 14. 1. & 53. 1.

4 The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: ‖ God is not in all his [b] thoughts.

† Heb. unto generation and generation.

5 His ways are always grievous; thy judgments are far above out of his sight: as for all his enemies, he puffeth at them.

[c] Rom. 3. 14.

† Heb. deceits.

6 He hath said in his heart, I shall not be moved: for I shall † never be in adversity.

7 [c] His mouth is full of cursing and † de-

---

6. O thou enemy, &c.] As for the enemy, they are utterly destroyed; they are become everlasting desolations, for their cities Thou hast erased, the memory of them as well as themselves is perished. Edwards.

12. When he maketh inquisition for blood, he remembereth them:] When He calls His enemies to account for the blood of His people, which they unjustly shed or coveted. S. Clarke.

To "make inquisition for blood," is not to inquire after blood spilt, but to sit as inquisitor or judge on all capital crimes, where the blood of the offender is due to justice. "Them" refers to the "humble" or afflicted, at the end of the verse. Mudge.

14. — in the gates of the daughter of Zion:] That is, in the solemn assemblies of Thy people, the inhabitants of Zion. S. Clarke.

15. — in the pit] See the note on Psalm vii. 15.

16. — Higgaion.] A meditation, or a fit subject of meditation. Fenwick.

Or possibly the word here means an interlude of soft whispering notes, as Selah another of bolder and louder ones. Mudge, Dr. Kennicott.

17. — into hell,] By the word "hell" in this place is meant the region of the dead; and the psalmist seems to foretell that the wicked will descend to the grave by some great and signal overthrow. Mudge, Edwards.

The Psalmist here teaches us, that God will reign for ever, and will judge the world with righteousness; that He will render to the wicked according to their works; that all those who forget Him shall perish; that He will not suffer the wicked always to prevail; that He never forsakes those that seek Him; and that the expectation of the sorrowful shall not be in vain. These are feelings which we should always retain, which should fill us with trust in His name, and strongly engage us to fear Him. Ostervald.

Psalm X. Some have supposed this Psalm to have been occasioned by foreign enemies making inroads into the country; and others by domestick ones in the court of Saul. Mudge, Rosenmüller.

Ver. 2. — the poor:] This word here means, the humble, the afflicted, and helpless. Bp. Wilson.

3. For the wicked boasteth &c.] The first part of this verse points out that alarming symptom of a reprobate mind, a disposition to exult and glory in those lusts which are the shame and disgrace of human nature, whether the world or the flesh be their object. The latter clause is differently rendered, as implying either that "the wicked blesseth the covetous, whom God abhorreth," or that "the wicked, being covetous, or oppressive, blesseth himself, and abhorreth the Lord." Either way, an oppressing, griping, worldly spirit is characterized, with its direct opposition to the Spirit of God, which teaches that sin is to be confessed with shame and sorrow; that in God alone man is to make his boast; and that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Bp. Horne.

5. His ways are always grievous; &c.] That is, always troublesome and injurious to all about him. S. Clarke. As for God's laws and judgments, he never lays them to heart; and he despises and contemns all his opposers. Dr. Hammond.

ceit and fraud: under his tongue is mischief and ‖ vanity.

‖ Or, iniquity.

8 He sitteth in the lurking places of the villages: in the secret places doth he murder the innocent: his eyes † are privily set against the poor.

† Heb. hide themselves.

9 He lieth in wait † secretly as a lion in his den: he lieth in wait to catch the poor: he doth catch the poor, when he draweth him into his net.

† Heb. in the secret places.

10 † He croucheth, and humbleth himself, that the poor may fall ‖ by his strong ones.

† Heb. He breaketh himself.

‖ Or, into his strong parts.

11 He hath said in his heart, God hath forgotten: [d] he hideth his face; he will never see it.

[d] Ps. 94. 7.

12 Arise, O LORD; O God, lift up thine hand: forget not the ‖ humble.

‖ Or, afflicted.

13 Wherefore doth the wicked contemn God? he hath said in his heart, Thou wilt not require it.

14 Thou hast seen it; for thou beholdest mischief and spite, to requite it with thy hand: the poor † committeth himself unto thee; thou art the helper of the fatherless.

† Heb. cleaveth.

15 Break thou the arm of the wicked and the evil man: seek out his wickedness till thou find none.

[e] Ps. 29. 10. & 145. 13. & 146. 10. Jer. 10. 10. Lam. 5. 19.

16 [e] The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out of his land.

17 LORD, thou hast heard the desire of the humble: thou wilt ‖ prepare their heart, thou wilt cause thine ear to hear:

‖ Or, establish.

18 To judge the fatherless and the oppressed, that the man of the earth may no more ‖ oppress.

‖ Or, terrify.

PSALM XI.

1 David encourageth himself in God against his enemies.
4 The providence and justice of God.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David. about 1060.

IN the LORD put I my trust: how say ye to my soul, Flee as a bird to your mountain?

2 For, lo, the wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrow upon the string, that they may † privily shoot at the upright in heart.

† Heb. in darkness.

3 If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?

4 [a] The LORD is in his holy temple, the LORD's throne is in heaven: his eyes behold, his eyelids try, the children of men.

[a] Hab. 2. 20.

5 The LORD trieth the righteous: but the wicked and him that loveth violence his soul hateth.

6 Upon the wicked he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone, and ‖ an horrible tempest: this shall be the portion of their cup.

‖ Or, a burning tempest.

---

10. He croucheth, &c.] He will meanly crouch and counterfeit any thing that will serve his purpose; so that the helpless may fall into his power. Travell.

12. — the humble.] Or rather, the "afflicted," as in the margin. Street.

13. — Thou wilt not require it.] The wicked concludes from God's patience, that He will never punish him. Bp. Patrick.

15. Break thou &c.] This may be either a prayer, or a prediction, implying that the time will come, when the power of Jehovah will dash in pieces that of the enemy, by the demolition either of sin or the sinner, until wickedness be come utterly to an end, and righteousness be established for ever in the kingdom of the Messiah. Bp. Horne.

18. To judge the fatherless &c.] Thy gracious assistance shall assert the right of those who are helpless and oppressed; so that their insolent persecutors, whose sordid minds cling entirely to this world, may be prevented from doing them further mischief. Travell.

We may learn from this Psalm, 1st, That to behold the righteous cause oppressed, and good men seemingly deserted by Heaven, is apt to offend the weak, and oftentimes stagger those who are strong. 2dly, That prosperity begets presumption in the wicked; and he, who has been long accustomed to see his designs succeed, begins to think it impossible they should ever do otherwise. The longsuffering of God, instead of leading such an one to repentance, only hardens him in his iniquity. 3dly, That though "the wicked saith in his heart, Thou wilt not require it," the faithful know assuredly, that God beholds all that travail and vexation which some inflict, and others sustain, upon the earth; and that He will infallibly recompense to the former their deeds, to the latter their sufferings. Bp. Horne.

Psalm XI. This Psalm seems to have been composed by David, when, in order to avoid the evil designs of Saul, his friends advised him to flee to the mountainous parts of Judea. Edwards.

In the first verse David expostulates with his friends for advising him to fly to the mountainous parts of Judea, as the only safe retreat from Saul. In the second and third verses, he subjoins the reasons which his friends assigned for their advice. In the four last, he replies to the advice of his friends, telling them that the God of heaven, who searcheth the heart, would protect the innocent. Green.

Ver. 3. If the foundations be destroyed, &c.] When the fundamental laws of the land, such as stipulate protection to the subject, are subverted by the prince, who ought to be the guardian of them, what has the persecuted subject to trust to? or what can he do, but, as in a state of nature, fly to the fastnesses of the mountains for security? Green. Had David been guilty of any crime, he ought to have had a fair trial by the laws: but Saul tried to assassinate him, contrary to justice, and to the fundamental law of all nations. Dr. Kennicott.

4. The Lord is in his holy temple, &c.] The meaning is, that the Lord is the supreme and righteous Ruler of all affairs; that He knows the most secret designs of men, and can disappoint them. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

6. — snares,] Or, "burning coals." Bp. Horne. By this word, live coals, or simply the lightning, seems to be understood. Bp. Lowth.

—— fire and brimstone,] These terms are evidently borrowed from the history of Sodom and Gomorrah. St. John also, at the conclusion of his prophecy, Rev. xx. describing the destruction of the ungodly, refers to the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, which, as St. Jude informs us, "are set forth for an example," or figure, "suffering the vengeance of eternal fire," Jude ver. 7. Bp. Horne. They mean dreadful judgments in this world, and eternal vengeance in the world to come. S. Clarke.

—— the portion of their cup.] It being the custom, in old

7 For the righteous LORD loveth righteousness; his countenance doth behold the upright.

PSALM XII.

1 David, destitute of human comfort, craveth help of God. 3 He comforteth himself with God's judgments on the wicked, and confidence in God's tried promises.

¶ To the chief Musician ‖ upon Sheminith, A Psalm of David.

‖ Or, upon the eighth.

‖ HELP, LORD; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men.

‖ Or, Save.

2 They speak vanity every one with his neighbour: with flattering lips and with † a double heart do they speak.

† Heb. an heart and an heart.

3 The LORD shall cut off all flattering lips, and the tongue that speaketh † proud things:

† Heb. great things.

4 Who have said, With our tongue will we prevail; our lips † are our own: who is lord over us?

† Heb. are with us.

5 For the oppression of the poor, for the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the LORD; I will set him in safety from him that ‖ puffeth at him.

‖ Or, would ensnare him.

6 The words of the LORD are pure words: [a] as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times.

[a] 2 Sam. 22. 31. Ps. 18. 30. & 119. 140. Prov. 30. 5.

7 Thou shalt keep them, O LORD, thou shalt preserve † them from this generation for ever.

† Heb. him, that is, every one of them.

8 The wicked walk on every side, when † the vilest men are exalted.

† Heb. the vilest of the sons of men are exalted.

PSALM XIII.

1 David complaineth of delay in help. 3 He prayeth for preventing grace. 5 He boasteth of divine mercy.

¶ To the ‖ chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

‖ Or, overseer.

HOW long wilt thou forget me, O LORD? for ever? how long wilt thou hide thy face from me?

2 How long shall I take counsel in my soul, having sorrow in my heart daily? how long shall mine enemy be exalted over me?

3 Consider and hear me, O LORD my God: lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death;

4 Lest mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him; and those that trouble me rejoice when I am moved.

5 But I have trusted in thy mercy; my heart shall rejoice in thy salvation.

6 I will sing unto the LORD, because he hath dealt bountifully with me.

PSALM XIV.

1 David describeth the corruption of a natural man. 4 He convinceth the wicked by the light of their conscience. 7 He glorieth in the salvation of God.

---

times, to set before each guest a certain portion of liquor for his share; it is very common in Scripture to describe the different allotments, which the providence of God dispenses to good and bad men, by the image of a cup. Travell.

This Psalm furnishes us with an example of the confidence which the righteous have in the Lord their God, who is their sure refuge, even when they are in the most deplorable condition, and know not what will become of them. It also teaches us, that God has His throne in the heavens; that He sees and knows both the good and the wicked; that His soul hates those that love unrighteousness; that He will cause the fire of His vengeance to fall upon them; and, as He is perfectly just Himself, He loves justice above all things, and always favours the upright. Ostervald.

Psalm XII. This Psalm is a complaint of the corrupt manners of that age, especially, as is probable, of the court of Saul; so that it was hard to find an honest plaindealing man, in whom one might confide. Bp. Patrick.

It was probably written on the occasion of Saul's evil administration, and the persecution of David and other good men. S. Clarke.

— Sheminith,] See the note on the title to Psalm vi.

Ver. 2. They speak vanity] Or falsehood. Mudge.

4. Who have said, &c.] Who have said, We will prevail by false accusations, we are not afraid to speak or affirm what we please; for who can call us to account for what we say, however false it may be? Dr. Wells.

6. The words of the Lord are pure words:] The promises which God hath made to me and His people have no deceit in them, but shall certainly be fulfilled in their season. S. Clarke.

7. — from this generation] From this kind of scornful oppressors. S. Clarke.

8. The wicked walk &c.] It must needs be, that wicked men should abound every where, when the worst men are exalted and preferred to places of honour and command. Bp. Hall. The vile men, whom David here complains of as advanced to power, were probably his persecutors in the days of Saul, such as Doeg, Cush, &c. Green.

For the consolation of the afflicted and poor in spirit, God hath promised in this Psalm, to "arise, and set them in safety," or place them in a state of salvation. Such all along has been His promise to the Church, which, by looking back to the deliverances wrought of old for the servants of God, is now encouraged to look forward and expect her final redemption from the scorn and insolence of infidelity. Bp. Horne.

Psalm XIII. In this Psalm David, being in danger from his enemy, entreats the Lord to deliver him, and rejoices in hopes of His salvation. Green.

Ver. 2. — shall I take counsel in my soul,] That is, Shall I be perplexed in my soul, not knowing which way to turn? Bp. Horne.

3. — lighten mine eyes, &c.] Give me wisdom to find out proper measures for my safety, and cheer my spirits; lest I die with grief, or my enemy destroy me. Dr. Wells.

4. — when I am moved.] Or overcome by them. Dr. Wells.

It is observable, that this, and many other psalms with a mournful beginning, have a triumphant ending; to shew us the prevailing power of devotion, and to convince us that prayer brings with it the comforts of heaven, and revives our weary spirits, in the gloomy seasons of sorrow and temptation. Bp. Horne.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

[a] Ps. 10. 4. & 53. 1.

THE [a] fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good.

[b] Rom. 3. 10.

2 The LORD looked down from heaven upon the children of men, [b] to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God.

† Heb. stinking.

3 They are all gone aside, they are all together become † filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

4 Have all the workers of iniquity no knowledge? who eat up my people as they eat bread, and call not upon the LORD.

† Heb. they feared a fear.

5 There † were they in great fear: for God is in the generation of the righteous.

6 Ye have shamed the counsel of the poor, because the LORD is his refuge.

† Heb. Who will give, &c.

7 † Oh that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion! when the LORD bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

PSALM XV.

David describeth a citizen of Zion.

¶ A Psalm of David.

[a] Psal. 24. 3, &c. † Heb. sojourn.

LORD, [a] who shall † abide in thy tabernacle? who shall dwell in thy holy hill?

[b] Is. 33. 15.

2 [b] He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart.

‖ Or, receiveth, or, endureth.

3 He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor doeth evil to his neighbour, nor ‖ taketh up a reproach against his neighbour.

4 In whose eyes a vile person is contemned; but he honoureth them that fear the LORD. He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not.

[c] Exod. 22. 25. Lev. 25. 36. Deut. 23. 19. Ezek. 22. 12. & 18. 8.

5 [c] He that putteth not out his money to usury, nor taketh reward against the innocent. He that doeth these things shall never be moved.

PSALM XVI.

1 David, in distrust of merits, and hatred of idolatry, fleeth to God for preservation. 5 He sheweth the hope of his calling, of the resurrection, and life everlasting.

‖ Or, A golden psalm of David.

¶ ‖ Michtam of David.

Psalm XIV. David here complains of the impiety and general corruption of the people who had led the Israelites into captivity; describes their terrours; and begs of God to bring back His captive people to their own land. Green.

2. The Lord looked down &c.] Contrary to the opinion of the wicked, the Lord has all along "looked down from heaven upon the children of men." Dr. Wells.

4. — eat up my people as they eat bread,] That is, cruelly devour my people without fear or remorse. Bp. Hall.

5. There were they in great fear: &c.] In the parallel place, Ps. liii. 5, after the words, "There were they in great fear," are added these, "where no fear was;" which certainly connect better with what follows, "for God is in the generation of the righteous." David is supposed to be speaking primarily of Israel's defection from him to Absalom, and here to be assigning the motive of that defection in many, namely, fear of the rebels' growing power, and distrust of his ability to protect them; which fear, he observes, was groundless, because his cause was the cause of God, who would not fail to appear in its support and vindication. Bp. Horne.

6. Ye have shamed the counsel of the poor,] Laughed at his dependence upon God. Bp. Wilson.

7. Oh that the salvation &c.] This pious wish is uttered by David, that it would please God, who dwelleth in Zion "between the cherubims," Ps. lxxx. 1, to send from thence, as from His throne, deliverance to His people; redeeming them from the oppression and captivity under which they laboured. Fenton.

The works of God are so visible to all the world, and afford such manifest indications of the being and attributes of the infinite Creator, that they plainly argue the vileness and perverseness of the Atheist, and leave him inexcusable. For it is a sign a man is a wilful perverse Atheist, that will impute so glorious a work, as the creation is, to any thing, yea, a mere nothing, (as chance is,) rather than to God. It is a sign the man is wilfully blind, that he is under the power of the devil, under the government of prejudice, lust, and passion, not right reason, that will not discern what "every one can see, what every man may behold afar off," Job xxxvi. 25, even the existence and attributes of the Creator from His works. Dr. Derham.

Psalm XV. In this Psalm the author describes a citizen of Zion; or what is necessary and requisite in the conduct and behaviour of a member of the Jewish church. Edwards. This seems to be a contrast to the preceding Psalm: it is appointed to be used on the Ascension-day, as it contains the character of one, who should be qualified to ascend into the hill, and dwell in the presence of God, whither our Saviour Christ is gone before. Travell.

Ver. 1. Lord, who shall abide &c.] O Lord, who is the man that shall be admitted to the tabernacle on Thy holy mountain? or who shall have the privilege of worshipping therein? Travell. Who shall be accounted a true member of the kingdom of grace here, and of glory hereafter? S. Clarke.

4. — He that sweareth &c.] He that promises by an oath to do a thing, and does accordingly, though it be to his own hurt, and breaks not his oath. Dr. Wells.

5. He that putteth not out his money to usury,] That is, to any poor brother Israelite, God having forbidden usury in this case: (see Deut. xxiii. 19, 20.) Dr. Wells.

—— shall never be moved.] Shall never fail of God's favour. Dr. Wells.

The following prayer is a just improvement of the above Psalm:

Gracious God, who hast vouchsafed to let us know upon what conditions we may be received into Thy protection and eternal favour; give us grace to practise those virtues Thou hast enjoined us; make us to love justice in all our actions, and uprightness in all our words; make us as tender in the wrongs and injuries done to our neighbours, as if they were done to ourselves; infuse into our hearts an abomination of all vice, by how great persons soever countenanced; and a love and reverence for virtue, and of virtuous men, in how little esteem soever they are in this world: and let us do all this out of our true love of Thee, and of Thy Son Jesus Christ. Amen. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm XVI. In this Psalm David declares his full trust and confidence in God for protection and assistance; and renders Him thanks for his security in this life, and for the hopes of a happy immortality in the next. The latter part contains a clear prophecy of the resurrection of our Lord Christ, to which St. Peter and St. Paul directly apply it, Acts ii. 25. and xiii. 35. Travell.

Michtam] If one may guess from the signification of this word, joined to the Greek translation, it may be, A Psalm to be written PRESERVE me, O God: for in thee do I put my trust.

2 O my soul, thou hast said unto the
[a] Ps. 50. 9. Job 22. 2. & 35. 7. LORD, Thou art my Lord: [a] my goodness extendeth not to thee;

3 But to the saints that are in the earth, and to the excellent, in whom is all my delight.

4 Their sorrows shall be multiplied that
‖ Or, give gifts to another. ‖ hasten after another god: their drink offerings of blood will I not offer, nor take up their names into my lips.

[b] Lam. 3. 24. Deut. 32. 9. † Heb. of my part. 5 [b] The LORD is the portion † of mine inheritance and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot.

6 The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage.

7 I will bless the LORD, who hath given me counsel: my reins also instruct me in the night seasons.

[c] Acts 2. 25. 8 [c] I have set the LORD always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved.

9 Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall † rest in hope. † Heb. dwell confidently.

10 [d] For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. [d] Acts 2. 31. & 13. 35.

11 Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

PSALM XVII.

1 David, in confidence of his integrity, craveth defence of God against his enemies. 10 He sheweth their pride, craft, and eagerness. 13 He prayeth against them in confidence of his hope.

¶ A Prayer of David.

HEAR † the right, O LORD, attend unto my cry, give ear unto my prayer, that goeth † not out of feigned lips. † Heb. justice. † Heb. without lips of deceit.

2 Let my sentence come forth from thy presence; let thine eyes behold the things that are equal.

3 Thou hast proved mine heart; thou hast visited me in the night; thou hast tried me, and shalt find nothing; I am purposed that my mouth shall not transgress.

4 Concerning the works of men, by the

---

in golden letters, and set up, like our Commandments, in some publick place "to teach;" (for so it is expressed, Psalm lx:) that is, that the people might learn it, and be able to join. Mudge.

Ver. 2. — my goodness extendeth not to thee;] Or, my good things are not needful for Thee: they would be a sacrifice of no value; else I would give them Thee. The best sacrifice I can offer to Thee is beneficence to Thy saints and servants. Green.

4. — drink offerings of blood] This alludes to sacrifices in which the blood of men was offered. Bp. Patrick. A principal ceremony is here put for the whole of idolatry. Gerard.

—— nor take up their names into my lips.] David here declares that he will have no conversation with idolaters, nor swear by the name of their gods. Bp. Wilson.

6. The lines are fallen &c.] That is, my lot and portion, or kingdom, is appointed unto me in a pleasant country. Bp. Wilson, Dr. Wells. They used with cords to measure their grounds in surveys, Amos vii. 17: and hence, by a figure, a measuring cord comes frequently to signify any space or portion of land that belongs to a person. Dr. Hammond.

7. — my reins] That is, my inward thoughts and affections. S. Clarke.

8. I have set the Lord always before me:] As my God, and my support. Green.

9. — my glory] By this word he meant his tongue. The Psalmist, as applying his own tongue to the best purpose, the praise of God, had reason to call it his glory. Merrick.

—— my flesh also shall rest in hope.] David here declares that he would lay down his body in the grave, in a certain hope of his resurrection to immortality. Bp. Hall.

10. For thou wilt not leave &c.] I know, that Thou, O God, wilt not forsake me in distress; nor even when I die, wilt Thou suffer me to remain for ever in the grave.—So also, when that Holy Person, who shall hereafter submit to death for the sake of mankind, is laid in the grave, I am well assured Thou wilt raise Him from thence, before His body be in the least corrupted. Bp. Patrick, Travell. Thou wilt not abandon my life to the grave. This may signify either, Thou wilt not suffer the grave to exert its dominion over me too soon, that is, immaturely; or, to maintain it over me too long. In the former sense David seems to have meant it of himself: in the latter it is applicable to our Lord, whom God raised up the third day, having loosed the bonds of death, because it was not possible He should be holden of it. Green.

—— thine Holy One] Meaning David in the literal sense, and in the spiritual the Messiah, in whom the prophecy was fulfilled. See it applied to Him by St. Peter, Acts ii. 25, &c. Green.

We are here to observe the sentiments of the children of God, and their happiness. As to their sentiments, David teaches us, by his example, that they always trust in God; that they love and esteem the pious and virtuous above all; that they avoid the company and errours of the wicked, and adhere inviolably to the pure service of God. As to their happiness, this Psalm teaches us that it is very great; that God Himself is their portion and inheritance; that He is on their right hand that they may never be moved; that the sense of their happiness makes them rejoice and praise God continually; and that they are even convinced that God will not abandon them to the power of death. Lastly, this Psalm foretells that Christ should not see corruption, but be exalted to heaven, where He reigneth over all things, and has prepared for all true believers joys that never shall expire. Ostervald.

Psalm XVII. In this prayer David humbly represents to God his innocence in those things whereof he was accused, probably of seeking Saul's life and the kingdom; and therefore beseeches Him to grant him deliverance from his persecutors and calumniators. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 1. — out of feigned lips.] Deceitful dissembling lips. S. Clarke.

2. Let my sentence come forth from thy presence;] Let me be tried and judged by Thee, to whom I make my appeal from the unjust accusations of men. S. Clarke.

3. — in the night;] That is, when the heart is freest from disguise. Green.

—— shalt find nothing;] Canst find in me no wicked design. Such were the appeals of David to God, for his innocence under the persecution of Saul. And what stronger appeals can be made? Green. See the old translation.

4. Concerning the works of men, &c.] Though as to what others are wont to do in like circumstances, I know it is usual not to scruple at means for self-preservation; yet from the respect I have word of thy lips I have kept me from the paths of the destroyer.

5 Hold up my goings in thy paths, that my footsteps † slip not.

† Heb. be not moved.

6 I have called upon thee, for thou wilt hear me, O God: incline thine ear unto me, and hear my speech.

7 Shew thy marvellous lovingkindness, O thou ‖ that savest by thy right hand them which put their trust in thee from those that rise up against them.

‖ Or, that savest them which trust in thee from those that rise up against thy right hand.

8 Keep me as the apple of the eye, hide me under the shadow of thy wings,

9 From the wicked † that oppress me, from † my deadly enemies, who compass me about.

† Heb. that waste me.

† Heb my enemies against the soul.

10 They are inclosed in their own fat: with their mouth they speak proudly.

† Heb. The likeness of him (that is, of every one of them) is as a lion that desireth to ravin.

11 They have now compassed us in our steps: they have set their eyes bowing down to the earth;

† Heb. sitting.

12 † Like as a lion that is greedy of his prey, and as it were a young lion † lurking in secret places.

† Heb. prevent his face.

13 Arise, O LORD, † disappoint him, cast him down: deliver my soul from the wicked, ‖ which is thy sword:

‖ Or, by thy sword.

14 ‖ From men which are thy hand, O LORD, from men of the world, which have their portion in this life, and whose belly thou fillest with thy hid treasure: ‖ they are full of children, and leave the rest of their substance to their babes.

‖ Or, From men by thine hand.

‖ Or, their children are full.

15 As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness.

PSALM XVIII.

David praiseth God for his manifold and marvellous blessings.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David, the servant of the LORD, who spake unto the LORD the words of [a] this song in the day that the LORD delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul: And he said,

[a] 2 Sam. 22.

I Will love thee, O LORD, my strength.

2 The LORD is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, † my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower.

† Heb. my rock.

3 I will call upon the LORD, who is worthy to be praised: so shall I be saved from mine enemies.

4 [b] The sorrows of death compassed me, to Thy commands, I have kept me from following others in using violent and murderous practices for my safety. Dr. Wells.

[b] Ps. 116. 3.

---

8. — as the apple of the eye,] By the apple of an eye is meant its pupil. Dr. Wells. See note at Deut. xxxii. 10.

9. — who compass me about.] The allusion here is to huntsmen, who, spying game, go round to see how they may most advantageously pitch their nets to take it. Dr. Kennicott.

10. — inclosed in their own fat:] That is, bloated, and puffed up with pride. Bp. Wilson. The meaning is, that pride is the child of plenty, begotten by self-indulgence; which hardens the hearts of men against the fear of God, and love of their neighbours: rendering them insensible to the judgments of the former, and the miseries of the latter. Bp. Horne.

10, 11. They are inclosed &c.] By changing the situation of a single letter in the original, which has probably been misplaced by the copyists, these verses may be explained thus: "They draw close their cords; with their mouth they speak exultingly, We have succeeded now. They come about me, they set their eyes stooping down upon the earth." The image here is taken from hunters, and the circumstances follow very properly. They compassed him about; they inclosed him in their net; "we have succeeded at last," they said; they came round him; they stooped down and looked earnestly at him; their eyes fixed, like a lion that is just leaping at his prey. Mudge.

13. Arise, O Lord, disappoint him, &c.] The Psalmist, having characterized those who pursued after him to take away his life, now intreats God to "arise," or appear in his cause; to "disappoint," or "prevent" the enemy in his designs; and to "cast him down," to overthrow and subdue him. The next words may be thus rendered; "Deliver my soul from the wicked by Thy sword, from men by Thy hand, O Lord, from the men of the world:" the expressions, "sword, and hand of Jehovah," being frequently used to denote His power and vengeance. Bp. Horne.

—— which is thy sword:] Which is the instrument Thou employest for the execution of Thy judgments. S. Clarke.

14. — whose belly thou fillest &c.] Whose bellies Thou fillest with Thy stores, or abundance of temporal blessings; whose children are fed to the full, and who leave the rest of their substance to their little ones. Green, Bp. Horne.

15. As for me, I will behold &c.] He either prays that he may keep on, or is confident that he shall keep on, in a way of righteousness, and enjoy the presence of God, and be satisfied every morning with the image or idea of God. Mudge.

—— when I awake,] He appears to say this with reference to the resurrection of the just. Dr. Hammond.

The confidence with which David calls upon the Lord in this Psalm, and the hope he possessed that God would have regard to his innocence, shews the great happiness of the good; since they can in all conditions apply themselves to God with assurance, knowing that He will always be their protector. The last words of this Psalm should raise our thoughts to the desire and expectation of eternal life, which the righteous shall enjoy after the resurrection. Osterwald.

Psalm XVIII. The departure of the children of Israel from Egypt, the passage of the Red sea, and the appearance of God on mount Sinai, are subjects from which the Hebrew poets have taken the most sublime part of their imagery: and as these historical facts, and the images taken from them, have a certain connexion with each other, it often happens that more than one of them are made use of, and they are united and blended together in order to increase the dignity and grandeur of the subject; of which we have an example in this Psalm. Bp. Lowth, Street. The sublimity of the figures used in this Psalm, and the consent of ancient commentators, even Jewish as well as Christian, but above all the quotations made from it in the New Testament, prove that the kingdom of the Messiah is here pointed at, under that of David. Bp. Horne. There is no doubt that after David had first composed this Psalm, he reviewed it, and made some small alterations in it; which is the reason of the trifling differences between this Psalm as it stands here, and as it stands in 2 Sam. xxii. Dr. Wells.

Ver. 2. — horn of my salvation,] See note on 1 Sam. ii. 1.

and the floods of † ungodly men made me afraid.

† Heb. Belial.

5 The ‖ sorrows of hell compassed me about: the snares of death prevented me.

‖ Or, cords.

6 In my distress I called upon the LORD, and cried unto my God: he heard my voice out of his temple, and my cry came before him, even into his ears.

7 Then the earth shook and trembled; the foundations also of the hills moved and were shaken, because he was wroth.

8 There went up a smoke † out of his nostrils, and fire out of his mouth devoured: coals were kindled by it.

† Heb. by his.

9 He bowed the heavens also, and came down: and darkness was under his feet.

10 And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly: yea, he did fly upon the wings of the wind.

11 He made darkness his secret place; his pavilion round about him were dark waters and thick clouds of the skies.

12 At the brightness that was before him his thick clouds passed, hail stones and coals of fire.

13 The LORD also thundered in the heavens, and the Highest gave his voice; hail stones and coals of fire.

14 Yea, he sent out his arrows, and scattered them; and he shot out lightnings, and discomfited them.

15 Then the channels of waters were seen, and the foundations of the world were discovered at thy rebuke, O LORD, at the blast of the breath of thy nostrils.

16 He sent from above, he took me, he drew me out of ‖ many waters.

‖ Or, great waters.

17 He delivered me from my strong enemy, and from them which hated me: for they were too strong for me.

18 They prevented me in the day of my calamity: but the LORD was my stay.

19 He brought me forth also into a large place; he delivered me, because he delighted in me.

20 The LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness; according to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me.

21 For I have kept the ways of the LORD, and have not wickedly departed from my God.

22 For all his judgments were before me, and I did not put away his statutes from me.

23 I was also upright † before him, and I kept myself from mine iniquity.

† Heb. with.

24 Therefore hath the LORD recompensed me according to my righteousness, according to the cleanness of my hands † in his eyesight.

† Heb. before his eyes.

25 With the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful; with an upright man thou wilt shew thyself upright;

26 With the pure thou wilt shew thyself pure; and with the froward thou wilt ‖ shew thyself froward.

‖ Or, wrestle.

27 For thou wilt save the afflicted people; but wilt bring down high looks.

28 For thou wilt light my ‖ candle: the LORD my God will enlighten my darkness.

‖ Or, lamp.

29 For by thee I have ‖ run through a troop; and by my God have I leaped over a wall.

‖ Or, broken.

---

5. The sorrows of hell &c.] David here means, that such sorrows as had almost brought him to the grave, compassed him about: and his enemies came on so suddenly that he had not time to escape them by flight. Dr. Wells.

—— the snares of death] These "snares" or toils "of death," or the grave, allude to the ancient manner of hunting, which is still practised in some countries, and was performed by surrounding a considerable tract of ground by a circle of nets, (compare Ps. cxl. 5,) and afterwards contracting the circle by degrees, till they had forced all the beasts of that quarter together into a narrow compass; and then it was that the slaughter began. Parkhurst.

7. Then the earth &c.] The Psalmist seems here to allude to a dreadful tempest, which fell upon his enemies, and made the very earth tremble under them. Bp. Patrick. This and the following verses are highly poetical; and must be understood to signify, that the deliverance of David was the effect of the Divine power miraculously exerted. Travell.

8. There went up a smoke out of his nostrils,] The ancients placed the seat of anger in the nose, or nostrils, because when the passion grows warm or violent, it discovers itself by the heated vehement breath which proceeds from them. This description of a smoke arising into, and a fire breaking forth from, the nostrils of God, denotes, by a poetical figure, the greatness of His anger and indignation. Dr. Chandler.

10. — he rode upon a cherub, &c.] He was attended, and as it were, carried by angels as in a chariot, and did move very swiftly; yea He did move as swift as the wind, and a rapid wind did accompany His descent. Dr. Wells.

11. He made darkness &c.] The meaning is, that He and all His heavenly attendants were surrounded with thick dark clouds. Dr. Wells.

12. — coals of fire.] The word, rendered "coals of fire," signifies living, burning coals. Where the lightning fell, it devoured all before it, and turned whatever it touched into burning embers. Dr. Chandler.

15. Then the channels &c.] This alludes to the manner of God's destroying the Egyptians by drying up the channels of the sea, that deep on which the earth is said to be founded; and so engaging them to enter into it, and then bringing the waters upon them. This poetical description is preparatory to David's deliverances which follow. Fenton.

16. — many waters.] Sudden and great calamities are frequently expressed in Scripture under the figure of a deluge of waters. Bp. Lowth.

18. They prevented me] That is, came on me suddenly, unawares, when I was unprovided and helpless. Bp. Patrick.

19. — a large place;] Meaning a state of liberty. Bp. Patrick.

26. — with the froward &c.] That is, to the perverse Thou wilt shew Thyself an adversary. Green.

28. — light my candle:] Give me light and joy. Bp. Wilson.

29. For by thee &c.] Through Thee I break the troops of the enemy; through my God I leap over walls, that is, take the fenced cities of my enemies. Edwards, Bp. Wilson.

30 As for God, his way is perfect: [c] the word of the LORD is ‖ tried: he is a buckler to all those that trust in him.

31 [d] For who is God save the LORD? or who is a rock save our God?

32 It is God that girdeth me with strength, and maketh my way perfect.

33 He maketh my feet like hinds' feet, and setteth me upon my high places.

34 He teacheth my hands to war, so that a bow of steel is broken by mine arms.

35 Thou hast also given me the shield of thy salvation: and thy right hand hath holden me up, and ‖ thy gentleness hath made me great.

36 Thou hast enlarged my steps under me, that † my feet did not slip.

37 I have pursued mine enemies, and overtaken them: neither did I turn again till they were consumed.

38 I have wounded them that they were not able to rise: they are fallen under my feet.

39 For thou hast girded me with strength unto the battle: thou hast † subdued under me those that rose up against me.

40 Thou hast also given me the necks of mine enemies; that I might destroy them that hate me.

41 They cried, but there was none to save them: even unto the LORD, but he answered them not.

42 Then did I beat them small as the dust before the wind: I did cast them out as the dirt in the streets.

43 Thou hast delivered me from the strivings of the people; and thou hast made me the head of the heathen: a people whom I have not known shall serve me.

44 † As soon as they hear of me, they shall obey me: † the strangers shall ‖ † submit themselves unto me.

45 The strangers shall fade away, and be afraid out of their close places.

46 The LORD liveth; and blessed be my rock; and let the God of my salvation be exalted.

47 It is God that † avengeth me, and ‖ subdueth the people unto me.

48 He delivereth me from mine enemies: yea, thou liftest me up above those that rise up against me: thou hast delivered me from the † violent man.

49 [e] Therefore will I ‖ give thanks unto thee, O LORD, among the heathen, and sing praises unto thy name.

50 Great deliverance giveth he to his king; and sheweth mercy to his anointed, to David, and to his seed for evermore.

[c] Psal. 12. 6. & 119. 140. Prov. 30. 5.
‖ Or, refined.
[d] Deut. 32. 31, 39. 1 Sam. 2. 2. Psal. 86. 8. Isai. 45. 5.
‖ Or, with thy meekness thou hast multiplied me.
† Heb. mine ancles.
† Heb. caused to bow.
† Heb. At the hearing of the ear.
† Heb. the sons of the stranger.
‖ Or, yield feigned obedience.
† Heb. lie.
† Heb. giveth avengements for me.
‖ Or, destroyeth.
† Heb. man of violence.
[e] Rom. 15. 9.
‖ Or, confess.

PSALM XIX.

1 The creatures shew God's glory. 7 The word his grace. 12 David prayeth for grace.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

THE [a] heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork.

[a] Gen. 1. 6.

---

33. He maketh my feet &c.] He maketh me able to stand on the sides of mountains and rocks, (which were anciently used as fastnesses in time of war.) The feet of the sheep, the goat, and the hart, are particularly adapted to standing on such places. Street.

34. — so that a bow of steel &c.] Probably this sentence should be read, agreeably to some of the ancient versions, Thou makest my arms like a bow of brass. Edwards, Bp. Lowth.

The ancients had the art of giving a temper to brass which made it as hard and solid as steel; and made various kinds of weapons and armour of bronze. Calmet.

35. — thy gentleness &c.] That is, Thy kindness maketh me great. Street.

36. Thou hast enlarged &c.] David means, that God had opened a free course for him to victory and triumph, and had also endued him with strength to run that course. Bp. Horne.

40. — given me the necks of mine enemies;] The word, here translated "neck," is the back part of the neck; and therefore equivalent to back, as the Greek translates it. The passage may therefore be rendered, As for my enemies, Thou givest me their back; that is, puttest them to flight. Mudge, Bp. Lowth.

45. The strangers shall fade &c.] Foreign nations faint with fear and trembling in their strong holds. Edwards.

48. — from the violent man.] He certainly means from Saul. Dr. Kennicott.

50. — to his anointed,] To Christ the spiritual David, and to all true Christians, which are His seed. Bp. Wilson.

From the first words of this hymn we learn, that the Divine favours and deliverances should inspire us with the most tender and sincere affection, and lead us to praise God continually. David's account of the extreme dangers he had been exposed to, and the wonderful power of God displayed in his deliverance, shews, that into whatever extremities we fall, we should never despair of God's assistance, if we fear Him; that His power is greater than man's, and that He never wants means to deliver those who hope in Him. Lastly, David's zeal, expressed in the latter verses of this Psalm, proves that it is not sufficient to praise God in private for His mercies, but we ought to proclaim His praises and lovingkindness to the utmost of our power, that His holy name may be glorified by us, and by all men. Ostervald.

Psalm XIX. This Psalm descends gradually from an opening uncommonly splendid and sublime, to a gentler and more moderate strain, and the softest expressions of piety and devotion. The whole composition abounds with great variety of both sentiment and imagery. The glory of God is demonstrated in His works both of nature and providence. The piety of it is so natural, and yet so exalted; so easy to be understood, so adapted to move the affections, that it is hardly possible to read it with any attention, without feeling something of the same spirit by which it was composed. Bps. Lowth and Sherlock.

From a citation which St. Paul hath made of the fourth verse, it appears, that, in the exposition of this Psalm, we are to raise our thoughts from things natural to things spiritual; we are to contemplate the publication of the Gospel, the manifestation of the Light of life, the Sun of righteousness, and the efficacy of evangelical doctrine. In this view the ancients have considered the Psalm, and the Church hath therefore appointed it to be read on Christmas-day. Bp. Horne.

2 Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge.

3 There is no speech nor language, || † where their voice is not heard.

4 [b] || Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun,

5 Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race.

6 His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

7 The || law of the LORD is perfect, || converting the soul: the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple.

8 The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes.

9 The fear of the LORD is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the LORD are † true and righteous altogether.

10 More to be desired are they than gold, [c] yea, than much fine gold: [d] sweeter also than honey and † the honeycomb.

11 Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward.

12 Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults.

13 Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from || the great transgression.

14 Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O LORD, † my strength, and my redeemer.

Or, without these their voice is heard. † Heb. without their voice heard.

[b] Rom. 10. 18.

|| Or, Their rule, or, direction.

|| Or, doctrine.

|| Or, restoring.

† Heb. truth.

[c] Psal. 119. 72, 127.

[d] Psal. 119. 103. Prov. 8. 19.

† Heb. the dropping of honeycombs.

|| Or, much.

† Heb. my rock.

PSALM XX.

1 The church blesseth the king in his exploits. 7 Her confidence in God's succour.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

THE LORD hear thee in the day of trouble; the name of the God of Jacob † defend thee.

2 Send † thee help from the sanctuary, and † strengthen thee out of Zion.

† Heb. set thee on an high place. † Heb. thy help. † Heb. support thee.

Ver. 2. Day unto day uttereth speech,] The return of the sun from one day unto another day tells us that there is a God; and the like return of the moon or stars, or darkness from one night unto another night, teaches us the same. Dr. Wells.

3. There is no speech &c.] They are not endowed, like man, with the faculty of speech; but they address themselves to the mind of the intelligent beholder in another, and that, when understood, a no less forcible way; the way of picture, or representation. Bp. Horne.

4. Their line is gone out &c.] Rather, Their sound is gone out into all the earth, and their report, &c. Dr. Waterland and Old Translation. The meaning is, they proclaim the Divine glory in plain and intelligible characters, to the remotest parts of the earth; as the Gospel shall be proclaimed hereafter by the preaching of the Apostles. Rom. x. 18. Travell.

—— a tabernacle for the sun,] The nuptials of the Jews, and other eastern nations, were celebrated with great magnificence and splendour. They were held under a tent, or canopy, erected for that purpose, to which custom David here alludes; as he does in the next verse to the custom of the bridegroom's going out at midnight with lamps and torches. The passage will receive great light from our Saviour's parable of the wise and foolish virgins. Dodd.

8. — pure,] The original word should be translated as it is in the Greek, "clear" or "bright." Bp. Lowth, Dr. Kennicott.

9. — clean,] That is, pure, or free from all alloy of superstition. Green.

10. More to be desired &c.] The Divine law is far more precious than the richest treasures upon earth; and more delightful to him who practises it, than the most luxurious sensual pleasures. Travell.

—— and the honeycomb.] Or, as in the margin, the dropping of the honeycomb, which is the choicest part of the honey. Green.

Pliny says, "In all kinds of honey, that which flows of itself as wine and oil, and is called acœton, that is, without sediment, is most commended." And Homer mentions "honey spontaneously distilling," as peculiarly sweet. Parkhurst.

12. — his errors?] That is, sins of ignorance and infirmity; or, as it follows, those secret faults which escape our notice. Green.

13. — presumptuous sins;] Wilful and deliberate sins. Dr. Wells.

—— the great transgression.] The meaning of this expression may be, rebellion and final apostasy from God. Bp. Horne. Or, idolatry. Dr. Kennicott. Or it may be taken generally, any great transgression. Dr. Wells.

King David here mentions two principal means by which God has made Himself known to us; which are, the works of nature, and His word. Let us therefore make a good use of both these means; meditating upon the marvellous works of God, which afford us such proofs of His power and wisdom; but particularly let us apply ourselves to the reading and meditating on His word. David's high encomiums on God's word inform us, that it is a sure, evident, and unerring rule of faith and practice; that it is of infinitely more value than the most excellent things of this world; that it was given to enlighten and sanctify us, to rejoice and comfort the heart; that the fear of the Lord procures perfect happiness to those who are possessed with it, and that there is great reward in the keeping of His holy commandments. Osterwald.

Psalm XX. The first verses of this Psalm are spoken by the people, or rather the priests of the temple, upon the king's coming to offer sacrifice, before he set out upon some expedition: in the sixth, the high priest, upon seeing the sacrifice consumed to ashes, joined perhaps with the other usual signals of favour, breaks out in the expression, "Now I know," &c. The last again are spoken by the people or priests as a chorus. Mudge.

This and the following are two of the Psalms appointed to be used in our Inauguration service.

Ver. 2. Send thee help &c.] Send thee help from the holy heavens, and from His sanctuary, which is a type and figure thereof; and strengthen thee out of Sion, where He hath by His command appointed the holy ark of His covenant to be placed, and from whence He gives answers and directions to all thy actions. Bp. Hall. See note at Exod. xxvi. 33.

† Heb. turn to ashes: or, make fat.

3 Remember all thy offerings, and † accept thy burnt sacrifice. Selah.

4 Grant thee according to thine own heart, and fulfil all thy counsel.

5 We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners: the LORD fulfil all thy petitions.

† Heb. from the heaven of his holiness. † Heb. by the strength of the salvation of his right hand.

6 Now know I that the LORD saveth his anointed; he will hear him † from his holy heaven † with the saving strength of his right hand.

7 Some trust in chariots, and some in horses: but we will remember the name of the LORD our God.

8 They are brought down and fallen: but we are risen, and stand upright.

9 Save, LORD: let the king hear us when we call.

PSALM XXI.

1 A thanksgiving for victory. 7 Confidence of further success.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

THE king shall joy in thy strength, O LORD; and in thy salvation how greatly shall he rejoice!

2 Thou hast given him his heart's desire, and hast not withholden the request of his lips. Selah.

3 For thou preventest him with the blessings of goodness: thou settest a crown of pure gold on his head.

4 He asked life of thee, and thou gavest it him, even length of days for ever and ever.

5 His glory is great in thy salvation: honour and majesty hast thou laid upon him.

† Heb. set him to be blessings. † Heb. gladded him with joy.

6 For thou hast † made him most blessed for ever: thou hast † made him exceeding glad with thy countenance.

7 For the king trusteth in the LORD, and through the mercy of the most High he shall not be moved.

8 Thine hand shall find out all thine enemies: thy right hand shall find out those that hate thee.

9 Thou shalt make them as a fiery oven in the time of thine anger: the LORD shall swallow them up in his wrath, and the fire shall devour them.

10 Their fruit shalt thou destroy from the earth, and their seed from among the children of men.

11 For they intended evil against thee: they imagined a mischievous device, which they are not able to perform.

‖ Or, thou shalt set them as a butt. † Heb. shoulder.

12 Therefore ‖ shalt thou make them turn their † back, when thou shalt make ready thine arrows upon thy strings against the face of them.

13 Be thou exalted, LORD, in thine own strength: so will we sing and praise thy power.

PSALM XXII.

1 David complaineth in great discouragement. 9 He prayeth in great distress. 23 He praiseth God.

---

3. — accept] The Hebrew expression is, "turn to ashes," (see the margin;) and if we look to the period under the law, we shall find this the usual method of signifying the Divine acceptance of the sacrifice. Dr. Magee. See the note on Gen. iv. 4.

5. — in the name of our God] To the honour of God, as the conqueror.

—— we will set up our banners:] In token of triumph; which among other ways was celebrated by the setting up of banners or trophies. Poole.

9. Save, Lord: &c.] We ought to read this according to the Greek translation: O Lord, save the king; and hear us when we call. Mudge, Calmet.

It appears from this Psalm, that a nation should pray for the prince whom God hath set over them, and interest themselves in the advantages or deliverances which God grants to their governours: also that it is the favour and protection of God which makes the glory and safety of the people, and of kings; that it is to that favour, and not to their own strength and power, they are to attribute their good success; and therefore, that kings and their subjects should strive above all things to obtain the favour of God. Ostervald.

Psalm XXI. This is a Psalm of triumph and thanksgiving for victory. It is generally considered as describing, under the figure of David, the exaltation, glory, and majesty of Christ, who completely triumphed over death. The fourth, fifth, and sixth verses, are indeed particularly applicable to our blessed Redeemer. It is appointed by the Church to be used on the Ascension-day. Travell.

Ver. 3. For thou preventest him &c.] Didst crown him with manifold blessings both more and sooner than he either desired or expected. Poole.

4. He asked life of thee, &c.] David had in the days of Saul only asked for "life;" and God had given to him and his posterity, "length of days for ever and ever." Mudge.

9. Thou shalt make them &c.] The meaning is, they shall as certainly perish, as if they were cast into a fiery oven; the Lord, who is justly incensed against them, shall utterly consume them with a sharp and unavoidable destruction. Bp. Patrick.

10. Their fruit] That is, their offspring. Green.

12. — shalt thou make them turn their back,] Or, as in the margin, Thou shalt make them a mark to shoot at. Green.

—— thine arrows] The judgments of God are called His "arrows," being sharp, swift, sure, and deadly. Bp. Horne.

From this, as from the preceding Psalm, we learn that God defends just and pious kings who call upon Him and trust in Him; whereas He throws down and destroys unrighteous princes, and especially such as oppose the establishment of His kingdom, and the designs of His providence. Ostervald.

Psalm XXII. This Psalm contains a most full and clear prophecy of our blessed Saviour's passion, and the propagation of His Gospel. It is entitled a Psalm of David; and I doubt not but that the greatest part of it related primarily to David himself. It contains a most pathetick and poetical description of his own sufferings and calamities; but expressed in such figures as were most literally fulfilled in the sufferings of Christ. Archdeacon Randolph.

¶ To the chief Musician upon ‖ Aijeleth Shahar, A Psalm of David.

‖ Or, the hind of the morning.

MY [a] God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? why art thou so far † from helping me, and from the words of my roaring?

[a] Matth. 27. 46. Mark 15. 34.

† Heb. from my salvation.

2 O my God, I cry in the daytime, but thou hearest not; and in the night season, and † am not silent.

† Heb. there is no silence to me.

3 But thou art holy, O thou that inhabitest the praises of Israel.

4 Our fathers trusted in thee: they trusted, and thou didst deliver them.

5 They cried unto thee, and were delivered: they trusted in thee, and were not confounded.

6 But I am a worm, and no man; a reproach of men, and despised of the people.

[b] Matth. 27. 39.

7 [b] All they that see me laugh me to scorn: they † shoot out the lip, they shake the head, saying,

† Heb. open.

[c] Matth. 27. 43.

8 [c] † He trusted on the LORD that he would deliver him: let him deliver him, ‖ seeing he delighted in him.

† Heb. He rolled himself on the LORD.

‖ Or, if he delight in him.

9 But thou art he that took me out of the womb: thou ‖ didst make me hope when I was upon my mother's breasts.

‖ Or, keptest me in safety.

10 I was cast upon thee from the womb: thou art my God from my mother's belly.

11 Be not far from me; for trouble is near; for there is † none to help.

† Heb. not a helper.

12 Many bulls have compassed me: strong bulls of Bashan have beset me round.

13 They † gaped upon me with their mouths, as a ravening and a roaring lion.

† Heb. opened their mouths against me.

14 I am poured out like water, and all my bones are ‖ out of joint: my heart is like wax; it is melted in the midst of my bowels.

‖ Or, sundered.

15 My strength is dried up like a potsherd; and my tongue cleaveth to my jaws; and thou hast brought me into the dust of death.

16 For dogs have compassed me: the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me: [d] they pierced my hands and my feet.

[d] Matth. 27. 35. Mark 15. 24. Luke 23. 33. John 19. 23, 37.

17 I may tell all my bones: they look and stare upon me.

18 [e] They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture.

[e] Luke 23. 34. John 19. 23, 24.

19 But be not thou far from me, O LORD: O my strength, haste thee to help me.

20 Deliver my soul from the sword; † my darling † from the power of the dog.

† Heb. my only one.

21 Save me from the lion's mouth: for thou hast heard me from the horns of the unicorns.

† Heb. from the hand.

It is very properly appointed to be used on Good Friday, as it contains a wonderful prophecy of our Saviour's sufferings; and He Himself repeated the first verse of it while He was hanging on the cross. Travell.

— Aijeleth Shahar,] Or, hind of the morning. The morning-hind was probably a well-known song, which gave name to a particular tune, if not instrument; not unlikely of the melancholy kind, as possibly it might describe a poor hind pursued by hunters. Mudge.

Ver. 1. My God, my God, &c.] Christ, the beloved Son of the Father, when hanging on the cross, complained in these words, that He was deprived, for a time, of the Divine presence and comforting influence, while He suffered for our sins. If the Master thus underwent the trial of a spiritual desertion, why doth the disciple think it strange, unless the light of Heaven shine continually upon his tabernacle? Bp. Horne.

—— the words of my roaring?] He means the words of his complaint. Bp. Patrick.

3. — inhabitest the praises of Israel.] That is, dwellest in the tabernacle, where the praises and thanksgivings of Israel are offered to Thee for mercies granted them. Edwards, Bp. Horne.

7. All they &c.] From this verse to the twentieth, the words are prophetical of Christ, and literally fulfilled in Him. See Matth. xxvii. 39. Dimock.

12. Many bulls &c.] Mine enemies, who are as furious and formidable as the bulls fed in the rich pastures of Bashan, beset me on every side. Green. See note at Numb. xxxii. 1.

14. I am poured out like water,] He means that his flesh has no consistency, or is loose as water. Green.

15. My strength is dried up &c.] In other words, I am quite exhausted and dried up, like a piece of a broken pot: so extreme is my thirst, that I am scarce able to utter my complaints; but am just upon the point of expiring and returning to the dust of the earth. How exactly was this prophecy verified in the person of our blessed Lord, when He sweat as it were great drops of blood, and endured all the agonies of the cross! Travell.

—— my tongue cleaveth to my jaws;] Parching thirst, here expressed by the Psalmist, is one of the usual concomitants of extreme grief of mind, or torture of body. Dr. Hales.

16. For dogs have compassed me: &c.] A multitude of malicious people have beset me fiercely as dogs, and got me into their power in order to wound and destroy me. Dr. Hammond. Thus these words may be figuratively applied to David; but they were literally fulfilled in the Saviour of the world, whose feet and hands His enemies pierced through with nails on the cross. Green.

17. I may tell all my bones: &c.] The skin and flesh were distended by the posture of the body on the cross, that the bones, as through a thin veil, became visible, and might be counted; and the holy Jesus, forsaken and stript, naked and bleeding, was a spectacle to heaven and earth. Bp. Horne.

18. They part my garments &c.] This was so far true of David, that his enemies spoiled his goods, and rifled his substance. But it is particularly remarkable, that at our Saviour's crucifixion the soldiers divided His garments among them, and His coat being without seam, they would not rend it, but cast lots for it; and thus, as the Evangelists themselves tell us, this Scripture was fulfilled. Such exact agreement in these minute circumstances could not occur casually; and it carries with it a striking proof of the interposition of God, and a strong confirmation of the truth of the Gospel. Archdeacon Randolph.

21. Save me from the lion's mouth: &c.] The faith of David was as exemplary as his piety. God seems to have inspired him with a comfortable assurance that his prayers were heard. "For Thou hast heard me," says he, "from the horns of the unicorns." Archdeacon Randolph.

—— unicorns.] The animal here meant is probably the rhinoceros. It has one horn upon its nose, which is very strong, and [f] Hebr. 2. 12.

22 [f] I will declare thy name unto my brethren: in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee.

23 Ye that fear the LORD, praise him; all ye the seed of Jacob, glorify him; and fear him, all ye the seed of Israel.

24 For he hath not despised nor abhorred the affliction of the afflicted; neither hath he hid his face from him; but when he cried unto him, he heard.

25 My praise shall be of thee in the great congregation: I will pay my vows before them that fear him.

26 The meek shall eat and be satisfied: they shall praise the LORD that seek him: your heart shall live for ever.

[g] Psal. 2. 8. & 72. 11. & 86. 9.

27 [g] All the ends of the world shall remember and turn unto the LORD: and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee.

28 For the kingdom is the LORD's: and he is the governor among the nations.

29 All they that be fat upon earth shall eat and worship: all they that go down to the dust shall bow before him: and none can keep alive his own soul.

30 A seed shall serve him; it shall be accounted to the LORD for a generation.

31 They shall come, and shall declare his righteousness unto a people that shall be born, that he hath done this.

PSALM XXIII.

David's confidence in God's grace.

¶ A Psalm of David.

THE LORD is [a] my shepherd; I shall not want.

[a] Isai. 40. 11. Jer. 23. 4. Ezek. 34. 11, 12, 23. John 10. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 25.

2 He maketh me to lie down in † green pastures: he leadeth me beside the † still waters.

† Heb. pastures of tender grass.

3 He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

† Heb. waters of quietness.

4 Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, [b] I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

[b] Psal. 3. 6. & 118. 6.

5 Thou preparest a tabl before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou † anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

† Heb. makest fat.

6 Surely goodness and mercy shall folgrows to a considerable length. Green. See the note on Numb. xxiii. 22.

---

25. — I will pay my vows] That is, offer the sacrifice which I vowed. Mudge.

26. The meek shall eat &c.] Of this sacrifice the humble or afflicted, he says, should eat, and praise God for the mercy He had shewn to His servant. The latter part of the verse is addressed to them; "your heart shall live for ever:" take courage and fear not, God will never desert them that fear Him. Mudge.

29. All they that be fat &c.] It is here foretold that the "fat ones of the earth," the great, the opulent, the flourishing, the nobles and princes of the world, should be called in to partake of the feast, and join in the Christian worship and service. Rich, as well as poor, are invited; and the hour is coming when all the race of Adam, as many as sleep in the "dust" of the earth, unable to raise themselves from thence, quickened and called forth by the voice of the Son of Man, must bow the knee to the King Messiah. Bp. Horne, Archdeacon Randolph.

29—31. — and none can keep alive &c.] The Greek version and some other ancient versions probably give the true reading of these clauses: "My soul shall live, and my posterity shall serve God. My seed shall be reckoned to the Lord in the generation which shall come. And they shall declare His righteousness to a people which shall be born; for He, the Lord, hath done it." The words thus read and translated are a plain prophecy of the propagation of the Gospel, and calling of the Gentiles. Abp. Secker, Archdeacon Randolph.

31. — he hath done this.] That is, He hath fulfilled His promises and Divine predictions. Michaelis.

We are presented in this Psalm with a very plain prophetick description of our Lord's sufferings and profound humiliation. Here we read those very words which He uttered at His crucifixion, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" Here we see pourtrayed the insults offered to Him by the Jews while He hung upon the cross, His hands and His feet pierced, His garments divided by lot, and the principal circumstances described of His passion and death. God was pleased that all these things should be foretold by David, to the end that, when they came to pass, we might have the clearest proof of His being the true Messiah. The contemplation therefore of this Psalm ought on the one hand to strengthen our faith in Jesus the Saviour of the world; and on the other hand, to quicken our hopes in Him, while it sets before us the glory to which God has exalted Him after His sufferings, and which He now enjoys at the right hand of the Father. Osterwald.

Psalm XXIII. The sweetness of many of the Psalms in composition, sentiment, diction, and arrangement, has never been equalled by the finest productions of heathen poetry. And I must confess I never met with any image so truly pleasing and delightful, as the following description of the Deity in the character of a shepherd. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 3. He restoreth my soul:] When I am ready to faint, He refreshes me and brings me to life again. Mudge.

4. — the valley of the shadow of death,] A valley overspread with the horrours of darkness and of death. Green.

—— thy rod &c.] Thy protection will dispel all my fears. Green.

5. — thou anointest my head &c.] The overflowing of a cup, and the being anointed with sweetsmelling oils, are the usual emblems of a feast, and are made use of in Scripture as the images of plenty and prosperity. Travell.

The natural homage which such a creature as man bears to an infinitely wise and good God, is a firm reliance on Him for the blessings and conveniences of life, and an habitual trust in Him for deliverance out of all such dangers and difficulties as may befall us. The man who always lives in this disposition of mind, when he reflects upon his own weakness and imperfection, comforts himself with the contemplation of those Divine attributes which are employed for his safety and welfare. He finds his want of foresight made up by the omniscience of Him who is his support. He is not sensible of his own want of strength, when he knows that his Helper is almighty. In short, the person who has a firm trust on the Supreme Being, is powerful in His power, wise by His wisdom, happy by His happiness. He reaps the benefit of every Divine attribute, and loses his own insufficiency in the fulness of Infinite Perfection. Addison.

low me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the LORD † for ever.

† Heb. to length of days.

PSALM XXIV.

1 God's lordship in the world. 3 The citizens of his spiritual kingdom. 7 An exhortation to receive him.

1017. ¶ A Psalm of David.

[a] Deut. 10. 14. Job 41. 11. Psal. 50. 12. 1 Cor. 10. 26, 28.

THE [a] earth is the LORD's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

[b] Job 38. 6. Psal. 104. 5. & 136. 6.

2 [b] For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods.

[c] Psal. 15. 1. [d] Isai. 33. 15, 16.

3 [c] Who shall ascend into the hill of the LORD? or who shall stand in his holy place?

† Heb. The clean of hands.

4 [d] † He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully.

5 He shall receive the blessing from the LORD, and righteousness from the God of his salvation.

‖ Or, O God of Jacob.

6 This is the generation of them that seek him, that seek thy face, ‖ O Jacob. Selah.

7 Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

8 Who is this King of glory? The LORD strong and mighty, the LORD mighty in battle.

9 Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

10 Who is this King of glory? The LORD of hosts, he is the King of glory. Selah.

PSALM XXV.

1 David's confidence in prayer. 7 He prayeth for remission of sins, 16 and for help in affliction.

¶ A Psalm of David.

UNTO thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul.

[a] Psal. 22. 5. & 31. 1. & 34. 8. Isai. 28. 16. Rom. 10. 11.

2 O my God, I [a] trust in thee: let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me.

3 Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed which transgress without cause.

[b] Psal. 27. 11. & 86. 11. & 119.

4 [b] Shew me thy ways, O LORD; teach me thy paths.

5 Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day.

[c] Psal. 103. 17. & 106. 1. & 107. 1. Jer. 33. 11.

† Heb. thy bowels.

6 Remember, O LORD, [c] † thy tender mercies and thy lovingkindnesses; for they have been ever of old.

7 Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness' sake, O LORD.

8 Good and upright is the LORD: therefore will he teach sinners in the way.

9 The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way.

Psalm XXIV. The bringing of the ark of God to mount Sion by David, 1 Chron. xv. gave occasion to this Psalm. The removal of the ark was celebrated in a great assembly of the people, and with suitable splendour during every part of the ceremony. The Levites led the procession, accompanied by a great variety of vocal and instrumental musick; and this ode appears to have been sung to the people when they arrived at the summit of the mountain. The opening is expressive of the supreme and infinite dominion of God, arising from the right of creation. Bp. Lowth. The ascension of our Lord into heaven is represented by the carrying of the ark up to mount Sion; and the sublime description in the four last verses, of the entrance of the King of glory, is highly applicable to Him: it is therefore appointed to be read on the Ascension-day. Travell.

Ver. 2. — he hath founded it upon the seas, &c.] He hath settled it so firmly, and established it above the waters, that they cannot overwhelm it. Bp. Patrick.

3. — who shall stand in his holy place?] Who shall serve God acceptably in the place which He hath sanctified to His service. Poole.

4. — who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity,] That is, he who hath not put his trust in false gods. Bp. Lowth.

5. — righteousness] By this word here is meant a just recompense. Bp. Wilson.

6. — thy face, O Jacob.] Or rather, as in the margin, "thy face, O God of Jacob." Bp. Hare. See the note on Psalm xvii. 15. The Israelites were required to worship at the sanctuary of God three times a year. Bp. Lowth.

7. Lift up &c.] We may now conceive the procession to have arrived at the gates of the tabernacle. While the ark is brought in, the Levites, divided into two choirs, sing alternately the remainder of the Psalm. Indeed it is not impossible that this mode of singing was pursued through every part of the ode; but towards the conclusion the fact will not admit of a doubt. Bp. Lowth. The lifting up the head is an image adapted to a portcullis; the head of which, as it is lifted, rises up conspicuous above the gate. Mudge.

We learn from this Psalm, that God, who created the earth, is the supreme and almighty King thereof, and that His glory and power ought to be celebrated for ever; also, that those only will be admitted into the presence of the Lord who walk uprightly, who are sincere and faithful in all their behaviour, who avoid fraud and deceit, who call upon the Lord and seek His face. Ostervald.

Psalm XXV. David seems to have written this Psalm after the commission of some grievous sin, or in some great distress; which brought to mind all the offences of his youth, and made him earnestly beseech God to pardon them, and to deliver him from his enemies. Travell.

Ver. 3. — let them be ashamed &c.] Pour shame upon the face of those which rise up against me spitefully, without any just cause or provocation on my part. Bp. Hall.

8. — teach sinners in the way.] That is, penitent sinners. Dr. Wells.

9. The meek will he guide &c.] He will never fail to assist and direct in the ways of virtue, those who are truly humbled before Him for their sins. Dr. Hammond.

10 All the paths of the LORD are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies.

11 For thy name's sake, O LORD, pardon mine iniquity; for it is great.

12 What man is he that feareth the LORD? him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose.

† Heb. shall lodge in goodness.

13 His soul † shall dwell at ease; and his seed shall inherit the earth.

[d] Prov. 3. 32.

14 [d] The secret of the LORD is with them that fear him; ‖ and he will shew them his covenant.

‖ Or, and his covenant to make them know it.

15 Mine eyes are ever toward the LORD; for he shall † pluck my feet out of the net.

† Heb. bring forth.

16 Turn thee unto me, and have mercy upon me; for I am desolate and afflicted.

17 The troubles of my heart are enlarged: O bring thou me out of my distresses.

18 Look upon mine affliction and my pain; and forgive all my sins.

19 Consider mine enemies; for they are many; and they hate me with † cruel hatred.

† Heb. hatred of violence.

20 O keep my soul, and deliver me: let me not be ashamed; for I put my trust in thee.

21 Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee.

22 Redeem Israel, O God, out of all his troubles.

PSALM XXVI.

David resorteth unto God in confidence of his integrity.

¶ A Psalm of David.

JUDGE me, O LORD; for I have walked in mine integrity: I have trusted also in the LORD; therefore I shall not slide.

[a] Psal. 7. 9.

2 [a] Examine me, O LORD, and prove me; try my reins and my heart.

[b] Psal. 1. 1.

3 For thy lovingkindness is before mine eyes: and I have walked in thy truth.

4 [b] I have not sat with vain persons, neither will I go in with dissemblers.

5 I have hated the congregation of evil doers; and will not sit with the wicked.

6 I will wash mine hands in innocency: so will I compass thine altar, O LORD:

7 That I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving, and tell of all thy wondrous works.

8 LORD, I have loved the habitation of thy house, and the place † where thine honour dwelleth.

† Heb. of the tabernacle of thy honour.

9 ‖ Gather not my soul with sinners, nor my life with † bloody men:

‖ Or, Take not away.

† Heb. men of blood.

10 In whose hands is mischief, and their right hand is † full of bribes.

† Heb. filled with.

11 But as for me, I will walk in mine integrity: redeem me, and be merciful unto me.

12 My foot standeth in an even place: in the congregations will I bless the LORD.

---

10. All the paths &c.] They, who observe and keep His commandments, will find abundant goodness and faithfulness in the ways of the Lord, who will order all things for their good. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

12. — that he shall choose.] That he ought to choose. Dr. Kennicott.

14. The secret of the Lord &c.] The counsel and covenant of the Lord to them that fear Him, is to make known or reveal to them His will. Dr. Hammond. Or by the word "secret," may be meant, God's love and favour, which is called His "secret," Job xxix. 4. Prov. iii. 32; and that very fitly, because it is known to none but him that enjoys it. Poole.

17. The troubles of my heart are enlarged:] This should rather be translated, "Relieve the sorrows of my heart." Dr. Kennicott, Bp. Lowth.

20. — let me not be ashamed;] That is, disappointed. Bp. Wilson. Compare Job vi. 20.

21. — for I wait on thee.] For I trust in Thee. Mudge.

22. Redeem Israel, &c.] After imploring forgiveness of his sins, that the people might not be visited for his sake, and after expressing his personal penitence and sorrow, David concludes with a prayer for the deliverance of his country.

After the example of David, the pious and devout Christian, who really and in truth puts his entire confidence in God, is never weary or ashamed of that confidence. If he finds that his prayers are not so graciously heard, as that he receives all that he hath prayed for, he receives yet an unspeakable comfort by having done as he ought to do; and though he prospers not as he would wish, yet if he prays as he should, he hath made a good progress towards his own deliverance; and hath raised a good defence against any affliction that invades him: nor will he be frighted out of his innocence by the promises, or threats, or tyranny of his proud oppressors. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm XXVI. It is generally agreed, that this Psalm was composed on account of some injurious charge brought against David by some of Saul's courtiers. Dimock.

Ver. 1. Judge me,] Give sentence in my favour. Street.

2. Examine me, &c.] David here begs of God, who knew the secret thoughts of his mind, and the inclinations of his will, to search deeply into them, and prove his integrity. Bp. Patrick.

4. — vain persons,] False and treacherous persons. Bp. Patrick.

6. I will wash &c.] David means, that he would cleanse his heart and hands from all the impurity of his sins; and then that he would approach to God's altar, and offer his sacrifice. Bp. Hall.

—— wash mine hands] It was a custom among the Jews for those who brought sacrifices to be offered, to wash their hands before they laid them upon the heads of the victims. Lewis.

It was a common usage for the Jews always to wash before prayers; and the priests in particular were not to perform any office in the sanctuary, till they had poured water from the laver and washed in it. It is to this that David here alludes. Fenton.

—— compass thine altar,] Among other ceremonies connected with the feast of tabernacles, it was usual on the seventh day for the people to compass the altar seven times carrying branches in their hands, and singing hosannas. Lewis.

8. — the place where thine honour dwelleth.] That is, the tabernacle, where God had made His glory to dwell among them. Bp. Patrick.

12. My foot standeth in an even place:] That is, I stand in a sure place, so that I need not fear to fall. Bp. Wilson.

David's earnest desire to serve God in the tabernacle, should stir us up to discharge the duties of religion with the same fer-

PSALM XXVII.

1 David sustaineth his faith by the power of God, 4 by his love to the service of God, 9 by prayer.

¶ A Psalm of David.

THE LORD is [a] my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? [b] the LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?

2 When the wicked, even mine enemies and my foes, † came upon me to eat up my flesh, they stumbled and fell.

3 [c] Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear: though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident.

4 One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold ‖ the beauty of the LORD, and to enquire in his temple.

5 For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me upon a rock.

6 And now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me: therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices † of joy; I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the LORD.

7 Hear, O LORD, when I cry with my voice: have mercy also upon me, and answer me.

8 ‖ When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, LORD, will I seek.

9 Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger: thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation.

10 When my father and my mother forsake me, then the LORD † will take me up.

11 [d] Teach me thy way, O LORD, and lead me in † a plain path, because of † mine enemies.

12 Deliver me not over unto the will of mine enemies: for false witnesses are risen up against me, and such as breathe out cruelty.

13 I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the LORD in the land of the living.

14 [e] Wait on the LORD: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the LORD.

[a] Micah 7. 8.
[b] Ps. 118. 6.
† Heb. approached against me.
[c] Psal. 3. 6.
‖ Or, the delight.
† Heb. of shouting.
‖ Or, My heart said unto thee, Let my face seek thy face, &c.
† Heb. will gather me.
[d] Psal. 25. 4. & 86. 11. & 119.
† Heb. a way of plainness.
† Heb. those which observe me.
[e] Ps. 31. 24. Isai. 25. 9. Hab. 2. 3.

PSALM XXVIII.

1 David prayeth earnestly against his enemies. 6 He blesseth God. 9 He prayeth for the people.

¶ A Psalm of David.

---

veney. But the care this pious king took to purify himself before he went unto the altar of God, should convince us, that in order to appear in the presence of God, we should be pure, and lead a holy life. Lastly, we should join with David in the prayer which he offers up to God at the end of this Psalm, and beseech Him to preserve us from being like the wicked, lest we share with them in the punishments that are prepared for them. Ostervald.

Psalm XXVII. David, being persecuted by his enemies, and in danger of his life from false witnesses, testifieth in this Psalm his entire confidence in the protection of the Almighty; beseecheth Him to continue His favour; and is persuaded He will never forsake him. Green. He probably composed it upon the occasion of Saul's persecution of him. Rosenmüller.

Ver. 2. — to eat up my flesh,] This expresses the utmost malice of his enemies, assailing him with the fury of wild beasts.

3. — in this will I be confident.] I will still have confidence in God's assistance. Dr. Hammond.

4. — that I may dwell &c.] David's prayer was, that he might perpetually attend upon the service of God, and enjoy the sweet pleasure the Lord there imparts to His people, and receive His directions from the tabernacle. Bp. Patrick.

—— the beauty of the Lord,] By "the beauty of the Lord" he means the cheering countenance of God, whose presence was more conspicuously manifested in His temple. Edwards.

5. — pavilion:] The word, here translated "pavilion," signifies originally a shepherd's cot or shed, made of the boughs and branches of trees: and is applied to any habitation, provided it be private; as a lion's den, a king's palace; and also to the holy tabernacle, as it is in this place. When therefore David says, that God should "hide him in His pavilion," he means that God would keep him as safe, as any one should be, whom a king should receive into his tent, so that his enemies would not dare to hurt him. Rosenmüller.

—— in the secret of his tabernacle] That is, in as safe a place as the Holy of Holies, which is called God's secret, Ezek. vii. 22. Poole.

8. — Seek ye my face;] These are words which his heart dictated as from God. Mudge.

—— Thy face, Lord, will I seek.] I will apply to Thee by prayer. Bp. Wilson.

10. When my father and my mother &c.] Should all earthly dependences fail me, the Lord would take me under His care. Bps. Wilson and Patrick.

12. — false witnesses are risen up &c.] As this passage is strictly prophetical of the Messiah, much light is thrown on it from Mark xiv. 56. Dr. Kennicott.

13. — in the land of the living.] In this present life. Bp. Patrick.

14. Wait on the Lord:] Wait the Lord's time with patience. Bp. Wilson.

In this Psalm we are to remark, 1st, That those who fear God and trust in Him, are never afraid of men; but are calm and unshaken, even when reduced to the most deplorable condition. 2dly, That the most inestimable advantage, and the greatest consolation we can enjoy in this world, is, to meet often in the house of God, there to praise and adore Him, and to receive the testimonies of His favour. 3dly, That when God does incline our hearts to seek His face, we should improve the mercy, and not slight the gracious invitation. Ostervald.

Psalm XXVIII. In this Psalm David intreats God to defend him from the malice and artifice of his heathen enemies, and from the judgments that should fall upon them. He then praises God for the care He had taken of him, trusts in His assistance, and prays for the prosperity of the Israelites. Green.

UNTO thee will I cry, O LORD my rock; be not silent † to me: [a] lest, if thou be silent to me, I become like them that go down into the pit.

2 Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry unto thee, when I lift up my hands ‖ toward thy holy oracle.

3 Draw me not away with the wicked, and with the workers of iniquity, [b] which speak peace to their neighbours, but mischief is in their hearts.

4 Give them according to their deeds, and according to the wickedness of their endeavours: give them after the work of their hands; render to them their desert.

5 Because they regard not the works of the LORD, nor the operation of his hands, he shall destroy them, and not build them up.

6 Blessed be the LORD, because he hath heard the voice of my supplications.

7 The LORD is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped: therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him.

8 The LORD is ‖ their strength, and he is the † saving strength of his anointed.

9 Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance: ‖ feed them also, and lift them up for ever.

† Heb. from me.
[a] Ps. 143. 7.
‖ Or, towards the oracle of thy sanctuary.
[b] Ps. 12. 2. Jer. 9. 8.
‖ Or, * his strength. † Heb. strength of salvations.
‖ Or, rule.

PSALM XXIX.

1 David exhorteth princes to give glory to God, 3 by reason of his power, 11 and protection of his people.

¶ A Psalm of David.

GIVE unto the LORD, O † ye mighty, give unto the LORD glory and strength.

2 Give unto the LORD † the glory due unto his name; worship the LORD ‖ in the beauty of holiness.

3 The voice of the LORD is upon the waters: the God of glory thundereth: the LORD is upon ‖ many waters.

4 The voice of the LORD is † powerful; the voice of the LORD is † full of majesty.

5 The voice of the LORD breaketh the cedars; yea, the LORD breaketh the cedars of Lebanon.

6 He maketh them also to skip like a calf; Lebanon and [a] Sirion like a young unicorn.

7 The voice of the LORD † divideth the flames of fire.

8 The voice of the LORD shaketh the wilderness; the LORD shaketh the wilderness of Kadesh.

9 The voice of the LORD maketh the hinds ‖ to calve, and discovereth the forests: and in his temple ‖ doth every one speak of his glory.

† Heb. ye sons of the mighty.
† Heb. the honour of his name.
‖ Or, in his glorious sanctuary.
‖ Or, great waters.
† Heb. in power.
† Heb. in majesty.
[a] Deut. 3. 9.
† Heb. cutteth out.
‖ Or, to be in pain.
‖ Or, every whit of it uttereth, &c.

Ver. 1. — them that go down into the pit.] Those that are abandoned to destruction. Bp. Patrick.

3. Draw me not away with the wicked,] Cast me not off with them. Bp. Wilson.

4, 5. Give them according &c.] In these verses, as indeed in most of the imprecatory passages, the imperative and the future tenses are used promiscuously; "Give them — render them — He shall destroy them." If therefore the verbs in all such passages were uniformly rendered in the future, every objection against the scripture imprecations would vanish at once, and they would appear clearly to be what they are; namely, prophecies of the Divine judgments, which were afterwards to take place. Bp. Horne.

8. The Lord is their strength, &c.] It is the Lord who gives courage and strength to His servants, and protects him whom He hath appointed king over His people. Bp. Patrick.

A prayer collected out of the above Psalm: O heavenly Father, we humbly beseech Thy goodness, when we cry unto Thee, to hear our supplications; for if Thou turn away Thine ear, and neglect to give us audience in these our pressures and afflictions, the men of Thy hand will prevail against us, and bring down our life into the pit. We acknowledge before Thee that our ways have been perverse, our works wicked, and the imagination of our hearts only vain and evil continually: yet, O Lord, we desire to be holy; render therefore unto us, not according to our deserts, but according to Thy great mercies. Bp. Nicholson.

Psalm XXIX. In this Psalm the supreme dominion of God, and the awfulness of His power, are demonstrated from the tremendous noise, and the astonishing force of the thunder, which the Hebrews, by a bold but very apt figure, denominated "the voice of the Most High." It is enough to say of it, that the sublimity of the matter is perfectly equalled by the unaffected energy of the style. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 2. — worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.] In other words, Worship ye the Lord in that beautiful and glorious sanctuary, where He exhibits His presence to His people. Bp. Hall. See the margin.

3. The voice of the Lord is upon the waters:] That is, the thunder, called here the voice of the Lord, is upon the waters collected in the clouds. Green.

5. — the cedars of Lebanon.] See note at 1 Kings v. 6.

6. He maketh them also to skip &c.] This description is figurative and poetical. The figures are rather too strong for a modern language; but they are agreeable to that of the Hebrews, in which they have a singular beauty. Calmet.

7. — the flames of fire.] That is, the flashes of lightning. Mudge.

8. — the wilderness of Kadesh.] The wilderness of Kadesh was part of that wilderness through which the Israelites passed in their way to Canaan. See Numb. xiii. 26. Bp. Horne. It was the frontier of Idumea and Paran. Calmet.

9. The voice of the Lord maketh the hinds to calve,] The terrour of this voice causeth the hinds to cast their calves for fear. Bp. Hall.

— and discovereth the forests: and in his temple &c.] The storm strips the trees of their leaves, and opens the recesses of the forest. Travell.

While His temple remaineth unshaken by these tempestuous blasts, and all His pious worshippers there securely sing the praises of His glorious majesty and power. Bp. Patrick.

Other commentators explain this difficult verse differently: The voice of Jehovah maketh the oaks to tremble; and maketh bare the trees of the woods. Bp. Lowth, Abp. Secker.

And in His temple every thing proclaimeth His glory. By "His temple" may be meant the heavens. Bp. Hare.

The practice of the great duty of praising God for His works, and for His mercies, will preserve in our souls a constant and 10 The LORD sitteth upon the flood; yea, the LORD sitteth King for ever.

11 The LORD will give strength unto his people; the LORD will bless his people with peace.

PSALM XXX.

1 David praiseth God for his deliverance. 4 He exhorteth others to praise him by example of God's dealing with him.

1042. ¶ A Psalm and Song at the dedication of the house of David.

I WILL extol thee, O LORD; for thou hast lifted me up, and hast not made my foes to rejoice over me.

2 O LORD my God, I cried unto thee, and thou hast healed me.

3 O LORD, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave: thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit.

4 Sing unto the LORD, O ye saints of his, and give thanks ‖ at the remembrance of his holiness.

5 For †his anger endureth but a moment; in his favour is life: weeping may endure †for a night, but †joy cometh in the morning.

6 And in my prosperity I said, I shall never be moved.

7 LORD, by thy favour thou hast †made my mountain to stand strong: thou didst hide thy face, and I was troubled.

‖ Or, to the memorial.
† Heb. there is but a moment in his anger.
† Heb. in the evening.
† Heb. singing.
† Heb. settled strength for my mountain.

8 I cried to thee, O LORD; and unto the LORD I made supplication.

9 What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to the pit? [a] Shall the dust praise thee? shall it declare thy truth?

[a] Psal. 6. 5. & 88. 11. & 115. 17.

10 Hear, O LORD, and have mercy upon me: LORD, be thou my helper.

11 Thou hast turned for me my mourning into dancing: thou hast put off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness;

12 To the end that ‖ my glory may sing praise to thee, and not be silent. O LORD my God, I will give thanks unto thee for ever.

‖ That is, my tongue. or, my soul.

PSALM XXXI.

1 David shewing his confidence in God craveth his help. 7 He rejoiceth in his mercy. 9 He prayeth in his calamity. 19 He praiseth God for his goodness.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

IN [a] thee, O LORD, do I put my trust; let me never be ashamed: deliver me in thy righteousness.

[a] Ps. 22. 5. Isai. 49. 23.

2 Bow down thine ear to me; deliver me speedily: be thou † my strong rock, for an house of defence to save me.

† Heb. to me for a rock of strength.

3 For thou art my rock and my fortress; therefore for thy name's sake lead me, and guide me.

4 Pull me out of the net that they have laid privily for me: for thou art my strength.

---

lively sense of His glorious perfections; which will be a means of making us truly religious, and will make all other religious duties easy and pleasant to us. His almighty power will make us dread offending Him; the sense of our dependence upon Him, and His continual care over us, will incline us to love Him with all our heart and soul; and the grateful remembrance of His past mercies will make us put our whole trust in Him for the time to come. Bp. Wilson.

Psalm XXX. This Psalm of David is plainly expressive of his gratitude to God for delivering him from his foes, and rescuing him from his distresses. And as it appears, 2 Sam. v. 11. and 1 Chron. xiv. 1, that Hiram, king of Tyre, sent materials and workmen to build an house for David about the time when the Lord had confirmed him king over Israel, I apprehend that this hymn might have been composed on that occasion. Street.

A Psalm and Song at the dedication &c.] An ode on taking possession of the house built for David. Street.

Ver. 3. O Lord, thou hast brought &c.] When I was just at the point of death, Thou hast preserved me from the very brink of the grave. Travell.

4. — give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness.] The meaning is, Celebrate His holy name. Green.

5. — is life:] Life is often put for a long and happy time, as in Psal. xxxiv. 12; and for an eternal and immortal duration, 2 Tim. i. 10. Jam. i. 12. Poole.

6, 7. And in my prosperity &c.] There should not be a full stop at the end of the sixth verse; but after the words "stand strong" in the seventh. The word rendered "prosperity" denotes peace and tranquillity, arising from an affluent prosperous condition. When God had settled him quietly on the throne, he thought all his troubles were over, and that he should enjoy uninterrupted happiness; that God had "made his mountain so strong, that it should never be moved:" that is, had placed him secure from all danger. Dr. Chandler.

7. — thou didst hide &c.] He means, that when God withdrew His protection, displeased with his presumption, and the security he had fondly promised himself, he was immediately disturbed by fresh troubles, and his dream of uninterrupted tranquillity vanished. Dr. Chandler.

9. What profit is there &c.] What service, said I, can I do Thee, when I am dead? Shall my ashes be able to please Thee, or to declare the truth of Thy promises. Bp. Patrick.

This religious song of thanksgiving is particularly adapted to persons who have escaped great danger. Those whom God has thus delivered ought to celebrate His goodness, and invite all men to celebrate it with them. But above all, we ought to take notice of the instructions here given us concerning the usefulness of afflictions. Even the best of men sometimes forget themselves in prosperity: but God makes use of adversity to inspire them with a holy fear, to bring them to a sense of their duty, and to oblige them to have recourse to Him; and then He is reconciled and hears their cry, changing their sorrow into joy, and their complaints into songs of praise. Osterwald.

Psalm XXXI. David being pursued by his enemies, probably in his retreat from Keilah, 1 Sam. xxiii. intreats the Lord in this Psalm to deliver him. He then returns thanks that his prayers are heard. Green.

Ver. 3. —for thy name's sake lead me,] The Psalmist here beseeches God to glorify Himself, by guiding his steps so that he might escape the danger which threatened him. Bp. Patrick.

[b] Luke 23. 46.

5 [b] Into thine hand I commit my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O LORD God of truth.

6 I have hated them that regard lying vanities: but I trust in the LORD.

7 I will be glad and rejoice in thy mercy: for thou hast considered my trouble; thou hast known my soul in adversities;

8 And hast not shut me up into the hand of the enemy: thou hast set my foot in a large room.

9 Have mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am in trouble: mine eye is consumed with grief, yea, my soul and my belly.

10 For my life is spent with grief, and my years with sighing: my strength faileth because of mine iniquity, and my bones are consumed.

11 I was a reproach among all mine enemies, but especially among my neighbours, and a fear to mine acquaintance: they that did see me without fled from me.

12 I am forgotten as a dead man out of mind: I am like † a broken vessel.

† Heb. a vessel that perisheth.

13 For I have heard the slander of many: fear was on every side: while they took counsel together against me, they devised to take away my life.

14 But I trusted in thee, O LORD: I said, Thou art my God.

15 My times are in thy hand: deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, and from them that persecute me.

16 Make thy face to shine upon thy servant: save me for thy mercies' sake.

17 Let me not be ashamed, O LORD; for I have called upon thee: let the wicked be ashamed, and ‖ let them be silent in the grave.

‖ Or, let them be cut off for the grave.

18 Let the lying lips be put to silence; which speak † grievous things proudly and contemptuously against the righteous.

† Heb. a hard thing.

19 [c] Oh how great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee; which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee before the sons of men!

[c] Isai. 64. 4. 1 Cor. 2. 9.

20 Thou shalt hide them in the secret of thy presence from the pride of man: thou shalt keep them secretly in a pavilion from the strife of tongues.

21 Blessed be the LORD: for he hath shewed me his marvellous kindness in a ‖ strong city.

‖ Or, fenced city.

22 For I said in my haste, I am cut off from before thine eyes: nevertheless thou heardest the voice of my supplications when I cried unto thee.

23 O love the LORD, all ye his saints: for the LORD preserveth the faithful, and plentifully rewardeth the proud doer.

24 [d] Be of good courage, and he shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in the LORD.

[d] Ps. 27. 14.

PSALM XXXII.

1 Blessedness consisteth in remission of sins. 3 Confession of sins giveth ease to the conscience. 8 God's promises bring joy.

‖ Or, A Psalm of David giving instruction.

¶ ‖ A Psalm of David, Maschil.

---

5. Into thine hand I commit my spirit:] David, in his distresses, might by these words express his resignation of himself and his affairs into the hands of God: but it is certain, that Christ actually did expire upon the cross with the former part of this verse in His mouth, Luke xxiii. 46. Bp. Horne.

—— thou hast redeemed me,] David means, that it was God who had often rescued him out of his difficulties. Bp. Patrick.

6. — lying vanities:] That is, Gentile practices, of consulting auguries and divinations, which deceive their expectations. Dr. Hammond. Or by this expression may be meant, strange gods. Dr. Kennicott.

7. — thou hast known my soul in adversities;] Thou hast relieved me in the lowest condition. Dr. Hammond.

8. — in a large room.] In a place of liberty. Green.

9. — mine eye is consumed &c.] My eyes are wasted with weeping, and my whole frame is in a manner destroyed. Travell.

12. — I am like a broken vessel.] I am cast aside like a broken vessel, quite past all use and regard. Bp. Hall.

15. My times are in thy hand:] He declares his assurance that his life was not subject to the will of his enemies, but was at the disposal of God. Bp. Patrick.

19. — before the sons of men!] Publickly, and in the view of the world. Poole.

20. Thou shalt — secret of thy presence] As if they were in the "secret of God's tabernacle," as it is called, Psalm xxvii. 5. See the note there.

—— pavilion] See the note on Psalm xxvii. 5.

—— from the strife of tongues.] From the mischief of contentious and slanderous tongues. Poole.

21. Blessed be the Lord: &c.] When David consulted God, whether the inhabitants of Keilah would deliver him up, He shewed him distinguished kindness in revealing to him their intended treachery, 1 Sam. xxiii. 12. Green.

22. — nevertheless] Notwithstanding my fears and want of faith. Bp. Wilson.

23. — plentifully rewardeth the proud doer.] Will fully punish in due time the insolent oppressor. Dr. Wells, Bp. Wilson.

The considerations that make the soul cheerful in the hour of affliction, are, that God is merciful; that as He is not ignorant, so neither is He unmindful of our troubles: that He is a friend, who "knows" us in adversity, no less than in prosperity: that He hath not subjected us to the necessity of being overcome by our spiritual enemies; but hath, "with the temptation, made a way for us to escape." Bp. Horne.

Psalm XXXII. It is generally supposed that David wrote this Psalm after the pardon he obtained for his adultery with Bathsheba, and his murder of Uriah. Rosenmüller. This being a penitential Psalm, is appointed for Ash-Wednesday. Travell.

— Maschil.] This word seems to signify, as in the margin, a Psalm of instruction or recollection. The Psalms which have this title are generally of a moral nature, and are designed to convey some salutary advice, (as this, ver. 8.) and to dispose the mind to attention and reflexion. Mudge.

[a] Rom. 4. 7. BLESSED is he whose [a] transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.

2 Blessed is the man unto whom the LORD imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile.

3 When I kept silence, my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long.

4 For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me: my moisture is turned into the drought of summer. Selah.

5 I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and [b] Prov. 28. 13. Isai. 65. 24. 1 John 1. 9. mine iniquity have I not hid. [b] I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the LORD; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah.

† Heb. in a time of finding. 6 For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee † in a time when thou mayest be found: surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him.

[c] Psal. 9. 9. 7 [c] Thou art my hiding place; thou shalt preserve me from trouble; thou shalt compass me about with songs of deliverance. Selah.

† Heb. I will counsel thee, mine eye shall be upon thee. 8 I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: † I will guide thee with mine eye.

[d] Prov. 26. 3. 9 [d] Be ye not as the horse, or as the mule, which have no understanding: whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle, lest they come near unto thee.

10 Many sorrows shall be to the wicked: but he that trusteth in the LORD, mercy shall compass him about.

11 Be glad in the LORD, and rejoice, ye righteous: and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.

PSALM XXXIII.

1 God is to be praised for his goodness, 6 for his power, 12 and for his providence. 20 Confidence is to be placed in God.

REJOICE in the LORD, O ye righteous: for praise is comely for the upright.

2 Praise the LORD with harp: sing unto him with the psaltery and an instrument of ten strings.

3 Sing unto him a new song; play skilfully with a loud noise.

4 For the word of the LORD is right; and all his works are done in truth.

5 He loveth righteousness and judgment: [a] the earth is full of the ‖ goodness of the LORD. [a] Psal. 119. 64. ‖ Or, mercy.

6 [b] By the word of the LORD were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. [b] Gen. 1. 6, 7.

7 He gathereth the waters of the sea to-

Ver. 3. When I kept silence,] While I neglected to confess my sin I had no rest; my mind and conscience persecuted me day and night. Bp. Wilson.

4. — my moisture is turned &c.] The following description of a Syrian summer, by Dr. Russel, is the most beautiful comment that can be met with on this passage: "From the end of May (if not sooner) not so much as one refreshing shower falls, and scarce a friendly cloud appears to shelter from the excessive heat of the sun, till about the middle of September. The verdure of the spring fades before the middle of May; and before the end of that month the whole country puts on so parched and barren an aspect, that one would scarce think it capable of producing any thing, there being but very few plants which have vigour enough to resist the extreme heat. Harmer.

6. — in the floods &c.] That is, when calamities (which are here represented under the image of floods of water) are sent abroad into the world, they shall not come near the good man. Green.

7. — thou shalt compass me about &c.] Thou shalt give me occasion to sing unto Thee many songs of deliverance. Dr. Wells.

8. I will instruct thee &c.] Hearken then unto me, thou that art in search of godly wisdom: I will give thee counsel, and direct thee to the wisest and safest course of life; I will have thee continually under my care and inspection. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

9. — lest they come near unto thee.] The rendering should be, agreeably to some of the ancient versions, "else they will not come near thee." Dr. Hammond, Green.

11. Be glad in the Lord,] It seems probable that this verse ought to be the first of the following Psalm. Bps. Lowth and Hare, Dr. Kennicott.

Outward calamities, and inward pangs of conscience, are the strokes of God's hand, designed to humble the sinner, and lead him to confession; and in the infliction of these, such severity is sometimes necessary, that the patient is brought to death's door, before a turn can be given to the disease: but the pain of a blow upon an ulcerated part, however exquisite, is well compensated if, by promoting a discharge, it effect a cure. Encouraged, by the example and declaration of David, to hope for mercy on confession of sin, it is foretold in this Psalm, that humble penitents shall be led to make their prayer unto God in the acceptable time, and in the day of salvation, while He "may be found:" that so they may be forgiven, and preserved from great and overwhelming calamities; from the fears of death, and the terrours of judgment. Bp. Horne.

Psalm XXXIII. This Psalm is an acknowledgment of the great power, and wisdom, and goodness of God in His works of creation and providence; wherein all are obliged to sing praises to His name, and faithfully to serve and depend on Him. Dr. Hammond. It was probably composed on the occasion of some special benefit received from God. Reeves.

Ver. 2. — with harp: — with the psaltery] The harp among the Jews was played upon with a bow; the psaltery with the fingers. Rosenmüller. He mentions these instruments, because they were used in the publick worship and praises of God in the tabernacle. Poole.

—— with the psaltery and an instrument of ten strings.] This should be rendered as it is in the Greek, "on the ten-stringed lute." Green.

3. — a new song;] The "new song" shews the Psalm to be composed upon a new occasion. This appears likewise from the tenth verse, which speaks of some grand defeat given to the projects of the heathen. Mudge.

4. — all his works &c.] That is, all His works are done agreeably to His word or promises. Dr. Wells.

6. By the word of the Lord &c.] The meaning is, that the whole body of the heavens, and all that is in them, were created by His bare speaking of the word, commanding that they should have a being. Dr. Hammond.

7. He gathereth the waters &c.] The element of water, though gether as an heap: he layeth up the depth in storehouses.

8 Let all the earth fear the LORD: let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him.

9 For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast.

[c] Isai. 19. 3. † Heb. maketh frustrate.

10 [c] The LORD † bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect.

[d] Prov. 19. 21. Isai. 46. 10. † Heb. to generation and generation.

11 [d] The counsel of the LORD standeth for ever, the thoughts of his heart † to all generations.

[e] Psal. 65. 4. & 144. 15.

12 [e] Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD; and the people whom he hath chosen for his own inheritance.

13 The LORD looketh from heaven; he beholdeth all the sons of men.

14 From the place of his habitation he looketh upon all the inhabitants of the earth.

15 He fashioneth their hearts alike; he considereth all their works.

16 There is no king saved by the multitude of an host: a mighty man is not delivered by much strength.

17 An horse is a vain thing for safety: neither shall he deliver any by his great strength.

[f] Job 36. 7. Psal. 34. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 12.

18 [f] Behold, the eye of the LORD is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy;

19 To deliver their soul from death, and to keep them alive in famine.

20 Our soul waiteth for the LORD: he is our help and our shield.

21 For our heart shall rejoice in him, because we have trusted in his holy name.

22 Let thy mercy, O LORD, be upon us, according as we hope in thee.

PSALM XXXIV.

1 David praiseth God, and exhorteth others thereto by his experience. 8 They are blessed that trust in God. 11 He exhorteth to the fear of God. 15 The privileges of the righteous.

¶ A Psalm of David, when he changed his behaviour before ‖ Abimelech; who drove him away, and he departed.

‖ Or, Achish, 1 Sam. 21. 13.

I WILL bless the LORD at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth.

2 My soul shall make her boast in the LORD: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad.

3 O magnify the LORD with me, and let us exalt his name together.

4 I sought the LORD, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears.

‖ Or, They flowed unto him.

5 ‖ They looked unto him, and were lightened: and their faces were not ashamed.

6 This poor man cried, and the LORD heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles.

7 The angel of the LORD encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them.

---

it be naturally apt to spread itself, yet hath He, in His providence and power, gathered up as in one heap; and part thereof, instead of overflowing the face of the earth, He hath confined in the secret receptacles thereof. Bp. Hall.

15. He fashioneth their hearts &c.] He formed their hearts one and all, and consequently must know what are their thoughts and intentions. Mudge.

17. An horse is a vain thing &c.] If David was the author of this Psalm, these words may refer to his victory over the Syrians, 2 Sam. x. 18; where it is said he slew forty thousand horsemen. Dimock. See the note on 1 Kings x. 28.

22. —according as we hope in thee.] We desire Thy mercy on no other terms, and in no other degree, but in proportion to the sincerity of our trust. Dr. Kennicott.

This Psalm engages us to make these reflexions: 1. That it is a duty highly reasonable, as well as delightful, to praise God; but that none but upright men can discharge it in a becoming manner. 2. That we ought to praise God, because He has created the world by His almighty power, and because He governs it wisely and justly by His providence. 3. That if it was a great advantage to the Israelites to be the people whom God had chosen for His inheritance; the favour which God has vouchsafed us, in admitting us into His church, and entering into covenant with us, is a still more glorious privilege. 4. That God has a perfect knowledge of all that passes in the world, that He sees all the thoughts and actions of men; the recollection of which should engage us to walk before Him in holiness and righteousness. Lastly, we should observe that the true way to have God our friend, is to trust in Him, to fear Him, and without ceasing to apply to Him for mercy. Ostervald.

Psalm XXXIV. The title informs us, that this Psalm was composed by David when he was sent away from Abimelech on his feigning himself mad. See 1 Sam. xxi. 13. But the name there given to the king of Gath is Achish. Hence Dr. Kennicott conjectured, that Abimelech was the common title of the king of Gath, (as Pharaoh of Egypt,) and Achish his particular name. Street. This Psalm, which was perhaps composed for the use of those who resorted to David, contains the noblest encouragements to piety and virtue, from an assurance, that all such as are so devoted are the immediate care of almighty God; as all those of a contrary character are His abhorrence, and the sure marks of His vengeance. And surely this Psalm, considered in this light, is one of the noblest, the best-turned, and best-judged, and best-adapted compositions that ever were penned. Dr. Delaney. It should be remarked, that the twentieth and twenty-first verses are of particular importance, as containing the famous prophecy, that "not a bone of the Just One (Messiah) should be broken:" John xix. 36. Dr. Kennicott.

Ver. 5. They looked unto him, &c.] The Greek, and other ancient versions, render this verse, "Come unto Him, and be enlightened; and let not your faces be ashamed." Dr. Wall.

—— and were lightened: &c.] The meaning is, that the humble looked unto God for David's protection, and received that light, that is, that comfort and joy from Him upon his return in safety, which diffused itself throughout their whole hearts; so that "their faces were not ashamed," or, as the word signifies, "not put to the blush for shame," by being disappointed as to their hope on his account. Dr. Chandler.

6. This poor man] Meaning himself. Edwards.

7. The angel of the Lord &c.] The Divine protection and sal-

8 O taste and see that the LORD is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in him.

9 O fear the LORD, ye his saints: for there is no want to them that fear him.

10 The young lions do lack, and suffer hunger: but they that seek the LORD shall not want any good thing.

11 Come, ye children, hearken unto me: I will teach you the fear of the LORD.

[a] 1 Pet. 3. 10. 12 [a] What man is he that desireth life, and loveth many days, that he may see good?

13 Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile.

14 Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it.

[b] Job 36. 7. Psal. 33. 18. 1 Pet. 3. 12. 15 [b] The eyes of the LORD are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry.

16 The face of the LORD is against them that do evil, to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth.

17 The righteous cry, and the LORD heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles.

† Heb. to the broken of heart. † Heb. contrite of spirit. 18 The LORD is nigh † unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth † such as be of a contrite spirit.

19 Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but the LORD delivereth him out of them all.

20 He keepeth all his bones: not one of them is broken.

21 Evil shall slay the wicked: and they that hate the righteous ‖ shall be desolate.

‖ Or, shall be guilty.

22 The LORD redeemeth the soul of his servants: and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate.

PSALM XXXV.

1 David prayeth for his own safety, and his enemies' confusion. 11 He complaineth of their wrongful dealing. 22 Thereby he inciteth God against them.

¶ A Psalm of David.

PLEAD my cause, O LORD, with them that strive with me: fight against them that fight against me.

2 Take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help.

3 Draw out also the spear, and stop the way against them that persecute me: say unto my soul, I am thy salvation.

[a] Psal. 40. 14. & 70. 3. 4 [a] Let them be confounded and put to shame that seek after my soul: let them be turned back and brought to confusion that devise my hurt.

[b] Job 21. 18. Psal. 1. 4. Isai. 29. 5. Hos. 13. 3. † Heb. darkness and slipperiness. 5 [b] Let them be as chaff before the wind: and let the angel of the LORD chase them.

6 Let their way be † dark and slippery: and let the angel of the LORD persecute them.

7 For without cause have they hid for vation vouchsafed to the faithful, is here signified; whether we suppose that by "the angel of Jehovah," is meant the presence of Christ in the church militant; or the ministration of created spirits to the heirs of salvation, as in the case of Elisha, 2 Kings vi. 17. Bp. Horne.

---

8. O taste] Seriously consider and make trial, by a steadfast fidelity to God in all troubles. Dr. Wells.

9. — his saints:] His servants. Bp. Wilson.

11. — ye children,] Ye that are humbly disposed to be taught as children. Dr. Wells.

21. — shall be desolate.] This should be rendered with the Chaldee Paraphrase, "shall be condemned to die." Green, Rosenmüller.

This Psalm is among the noblest and most edifying: David here teaches us, both by his instructions and example, that when God grants us any favour, we should not only thank Him for it, but invite other men to praise Him with us; that the Lord never fails to hear and deliver those who call upon Him in their distress; that His eyes are always over the righteous, whom, if exposed to many misfortunes, He delivers at the last; whereas He sets His face against the wicked for their destruction. Ostervald.

He who seeketh the Lord shall find Him; and he who hath found Him, can want nothing. Faith, hope, charity, temperance, purity, patience, and contentment, are the true riches; and the lack of them the poverty most to be dreaded. Moreover, God is never wanting to provide for His servants, what He seeth needful and best in matters temporal. Bp. Horne.

Psalm XXXV. This Psalm, from the contents of it, seems to have been composed by David when he was persecuted by Saul, and falsely accused by Doeg, and others of his enemies; from whom he begs of God for deliverance. Edwards. This Psalm, though in some measure applicable to David, the author of it, is more strictly so to Jesus. See John xv. 25. Dimock.

Ver. 2. — shield and buckler,] The word, here rendered "shield," seems to denote the lesser kind of shield; and that translated "buckler," the great shield. Edwards.

4. Let them be confounded &c.] Concerning this and the like imprecations, which may seem strange and severe, it must be considered, 1. That they did not proceed from any passionate or revengeful spirit in David towards his enemies; from which how free he was, appears not only from his own words here, ver. 12, 13, 14, but from the whole course of his life, and the frequent instances mentioned in his history of his meek and merciful carriage to his enemies when they were in his power. These imprecations, therefore, proceeded from his zeal for God, and for piety and justice; to which they shewed themselves to be constant and implacable adversaries: and by the direction of the prophetical Spirit of God, wherewith he was endued; which Spirit did exactly know the condition of his enemies; and that those, against whom they were levelled, were hardened and incurable. 2. That they contain nothing but a prayer to God, that He would accomplish His own threatenings, and execute His own law of retaliation, of "eye for eye, and tooth for tooth;" and so bring upon them the evils which they designed against him. Which also was of great and good use, both to glorify God's justice, and to warn and reform other sinners by the terrour of their example. 3. That they may be taken only for predictions. Poole. See the note on Psalm v. 10.

6. Let their way be dark &c.] So that none of them may be able to escape on account of the darkness and slipperiness of their way: but that all of them may be easily overthrown by the pursuing angel. Rosenmüller.

me their net in a pit, which without cause they have digged for my soul.

† Heb. which he knoweth not of—

8 Let destruction come upon him † at unawares; and let his net that he hath hid catch himself: into that very destruction let him fall.

9 And my soul shall be joyful in the LORD: it shall rejoice in his salvation.

10 All my bones shall say, LORD, who is like unto thee, which deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him, yea, the poor and the needy from him that spoileth him?

† Heb. Witnesses of wrong.

11 † False witnesses did rise up; † they laid to my charge things that I knew not.

† Heb. they asked me.

12 They rewarded me evil for good to the † spoiling of my soul.

† Heb. depriving. ‖ Or, afflicted.

13 But as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth: I ‖ humbled my soul with fasting; and my prayer returned into mine own bosom.

† Heb. walked. † Heb. as a friend, as a brother to me.

14 I † behaved myself † as though he had been my friend or brother: I bowed down heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother.

† Heb. halting.

15 But in mine † adversity they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together: yea, the abjects gathered themselves together against me, and I knew it not; they did tear me, and ceased not:

16 With hypocritical mockers in feasts, they gnashed upon me with their teeth.

† Heb. my only one.

17 LORD, how long wilt thou look on? rescue my soul from their destructions, † my darling from the lions.

[c] Psal. 40. 9, 10. & 111. 1. † Heb. strong.

18 [c] I will give thee thanks in the great congregation: I will praise thee among † much people.

19 Let not them that are mine enemies † wrongfully rejoice over me: neither let them wink with the eye that hate me without a cause.

† Heb. falsely.

20 For they speak not peace: but they devise deceitful matters against them that are quiet in the land.

21 Yea, they opened their mouth wide against me, and said, Aha, aha, our eye hath seen it.

22 This thou hast seen, O LORD: keep not silence: O LORD, be not far from me.

23 Stir up thyself, and awake to my judgment, even unto my cause, my God and my Lord.

24 Judge me, O LORD my God, according to thy righteousness; and let them not rejoice over me.

25 Let them not say in their hearts, † Ah, so would we have it: let them not say, We have swallowed him up.

† Heb. Ah, ah, our soul.

26 Let them be ashamed and brought to confusion together that rejoice at mine hurt: let them be clothed with shame and dishonour that magnify themselves against me.

27 Let them shout for joy, and be glad, that favour † my righteous cause: yea, let them say continually, Let the LORD be magnified, which hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servant.

† Heb. my righteousness.

28 And my tongue shall speak of thy righteousness and of thy praise all the day long.

PSALM XXXVI.

1 The grievous estate of the wicked. 5 The excellency of God's mercy. 10 David prayeth for favour to God's children.

7. — in a pit,] See the note on Psalm vii. 15.

10. All my bones shall say,] By this figure David means to declare, that he would praise God with all the strength of his body, as well as power of his soul. Dr. Wells.

11, 12. False witnesses — spoiling of my soul.] This was never more literally true of David, than it was of the holy Jesus, when, standing before Pontius Pilate, He received no other return from the Jews for all the gracious words which He had spoken, and all the merciful works He had done among them, than that of being slandered and put to death. Bp. Horne.

12. — to the spoiling of my soul.] Attempting to rob me of my life. Green.

13. — my prayer returned &c.] The meaning seems to be, My prayer returned with blessings on my own head. Merrick. The sentence may perhaps be better explained thus, "My prayer rested or settled in my bosom;" that is, I was never without a prayer for them in my breast. Mudge, Dr. Kennicott. The Hebrews used various attitudes in prayer; the one here alluded to was that used in great grief, at which time they prayed with the head inclined on the bosom. Rosenmüller.

15. — and I knew it not;] This may mean, that the perfidy of his enemies was unknown to him; he suspected no such thing from them. Rosenmüller.

16. With hypocritical mockers &c.] Together with these were profane flatterers and buffoons; and their rage against me was as violent as if they could have devoured me. Bp. Patrick. Or the passage should perhaps rather be rendered, "They vilified me with profane scoffs and taunts; and ceased not to gnash upon me with their teeth." Edwards, Green.

17. — my darling from the lions.] Deliver my dear and precious life from these cruel and brutish enemies. Bp. Hall.

19. — that hate me without a cause.] This is applied to Christ by Himself, John xv. 25. Bp. Wilson.

21. — our eye hath seen it.] They openly avow that they themselves have been eyewitnesses of my treasonable practices. Dr. Wells. Or the meaning may be, We have seen what we wished, we have had our will. Green.

24. Judge me,] Vindicate me. Green.

What David in this Psalm says against his enemies, must not be misunderstood. Nor must we believe that we are allowed to wish evil to those who do evil to us, or to rejoice when that evil happens to them. We are to consider, that the enemies of David were enemies to God Himself; and that David, being a prophet, and having an express promise of the Divine assistance, might denounce destruction to them: but, in his heart, he did not wish it to befall them, and he was even afflicted at the evil which did befall them, as he himself testifies in this Psalm. Osterwald.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David the servant of the LORD.

THE transgression of the wicked saith within my heart, that there is no fear of God before his eyes.

2 For he flattereth himself in his own eyes, † until his iniquity be found to be hateful.

† Heb. to find his iniquity to hate.

3 The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit: he hath left off to be wise, and to do good.

4 He deviseth ‖ mischief upon his bed; he setteth himself in a way that is not good; he abhorreth not evil.

‖ Or, vanity.

[a] Ps. 57. 10. & 108. 4.

5 [a] Thy mercy, O LORD, is in the heavens; and thy faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds.

† Heb. the mountains of God.

6 Thy righteousness is like † the great mountains; thy judgments are a great deep: O LORD, thou preservest man and beast.

† Heb. precious.

7 How † excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings.

† Heb. watered.

8 They shall be † abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures.

9 For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light.

† Heb. draw out at length.

10 O † continue thy lovingkindness unto them that know thee; and thy righteousness to the upright in heart.

11 Let not the foot of pride come against me, and let not the hand of the wicked remove me.

12 There are the workers of iniquity fallen: they are cast down, and shall not be able to rise.

PSALM XXXVII.

David persuadeth to patience and confidence in God, by the different estate of the godly and the wicked.

¶ A Psalm of David.

FRET [a] not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity.

[a] Prov. 23. 17. & 24. 1.

2 For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb.

3 Trust in the LORD, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and † verily thou shalt be fed.

† Heb. in truth, or, stableness.

4 Delight thyself also in the LORD; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart.

† Heb. Roll thy way upon the LORD.

5 † [b] Commit thy way unto the LORD; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass.

[b] Prov. 16. 3. Matth. 6. 25. 1 Pet. 5. 7.

6 And he shall bring forth thy righteous-

Psalm XXXVI. There are three parts of this Psalm: the first, in which the author describes the treacherous and false contrivances of wicked men: the second is the address of the good man to God, in which he acknowledges all those attributes, which are the support of righteous men, to be infinite and boundless; and from thence his assurance of being supported: the last, as the consequence of this, represents the downfall of the wicked. Mudge.

Ver. 1. The transgression of the wicked &c.] The transgressions of a bad man shew plainly, in the apprehension of a good one, that the former is destitute of the true fear of God. Abp. Secker. Or differently, thus; "The wicked man, according to the wickedness of his heart, saith, There is no fear of God before mine eyes." Bp. Lowth.

Or this passage may be rendered, with some ancient versions; "The wicked man hath an oracle of rebellion in his heart." The wicked man hath no regard to the oracles of God; he hath one in his heart which dictates nothing but rebellion. Mudge, Green.

2. — he flattereth himself &c.] He sooths himself in his own conceit, and cunningly imagines that he shall not be discovered: yet at length shall his iniquity come to light, and make him hateful to all men. Bp. Patrick.

5, 6. Thy mercy, O Lord, &c.] This passage is truly sublime. Here the mind of the Psalmist seems to exert its utmost faculties in vain to describe the attributes of God, whose unparalleled magnitude mocks its feeble endeavours; and to this end it employs the grandest imagery that universal nature can suggest: and yet this imagery, however great, proves totally inadequate to the purpose. Bp. Lowth.

8. — the fatness of thy house;] By this expression is meant all God's blessings, both temporal and spiritual. Bp. Hall.

9. — in thy light shall we see light.] The images of light and darkness are commonly made use of in all languages to imply or denote prosperity and adversity, agreeably to the common sense and perception which all men have of the objects themselves. But the Hebrews employ those figures more frequently, and with less variation than other people. Bp. Lowth.

10. — thy righteousness] Rather, Thy beneficence or bounty. Street.

11. — remove me.] Or cause me to fall. Dr. Wells.

12. There are the workers &c.] The expression used in the original, represents strongly before the eyes the sudden downfall of the wicked. Upon the very spot where they practise their treachery, they receive their downfall. Mudge.

We have here represented to us the behaviour of wicked men, who fear not God, and sooth themselves in their sins, instead of hating them; and the very different conduct of the righteous, who adore the justice of God, and are grateful for His favours. The use we should make of this Psalm is, to avoid the sentiments of the wicked, and to cleave to God by a sincere love and holy fear; to the end that we may rejoice in Him with the righteous, and say with David, "O God, how excellent is Thy lovingkindness!" Ostervald.

Psalm XXXVII. In this Psalm David seems to intend to prevent the scandal or offence against religion, which might be taken from observing the wicked in prosperity, and the godly under affliction. Dr. Wells. He may be supposed speaking to himself, or exhorting others to trust in God from his own example. Dimock.

Ver. 1. Fret not thyself &c.] In other words, Be not vexed at the prosperity of the wicked, neither be provoked by it to accuse the providence of God, nor wish thyself in their situation. Bp. Patrick.

5. Commit thy way &c.] We are exhorted here to commend our honest designs to God, and to leave the event to Him, in full confidence that He will direct it for the best. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

ness as the light, and thy judgment as the noonday.

† Heb. Be silent to the LORD.

7 † Rest in the LORD, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass.

8 Cease from anger, and forsake wrath: fret not thyself in any wise to do evil.

9 For evildoers shall be cut off: but those that wait upon the LORD, they shall inherit the earth.

10 For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be.

[c] Mat. 5. 5.

11 [c] But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace.

‖ Or, practiseth.

12 The wicked ‖ plotteth against the just, and gnasheth upon him with his teeth.

[d] Ps. 2. 4.

13 [d] The LORD shall laugh at him: for he seeth that his day is coming.

14 The wicked have drawn out the sword, and have bent their bow, to cast down the poor and needy, and to slay † such as be of upright conversation.

† Heb. the upright of way.

15 Their sword shall enter into their own heart, and their bows shall be broken.

16 A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked.

17 For the arms of the wicked shall be broken: but the LORD upholdeth the righteous.

18 The LORD knoweth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall be for ever.

19 They shall not be ashamed in the evil time: and in the days of famine they shall be satisfied.

20 But the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the LORD shall be as † the fat of lambs: they shall consume; into smoke shall they consume away.

† Heb. the preciousness of lambs.

21 The wicked borroweth, and payeth not again: but the righteous sheweth mercy, and giveth.

22 For such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth; and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off.

‖ Or, established.

23 The steps of a good man are ‖ ordered by the LORD: and he delighteth in his way.

24 Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down: for the LORD upholdeth him with his hand.

25 I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread.

† Heb. all the day

26 He is † ever merciful, and lendeth; and his seed is blessed.

27 Depart from evil, and do good; and dwell for evermore.

28 For the LORD loveth judgment, and forsaketh not his saints; they are preserved for ever: but the seed of the wicked shall be cut off.

29 The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever.

30 The mouth of the righteous speaketh wisdom, and his tongue talketh of judgment.

‖ Or, goings.

31 The law of his God is in his heart; none of his ‖ steps shall slide.

32 The wicked watcheth the righteous, and seeketh to slay him.

33 The LORD will not leave him in his hand, nor condemn him when he is judged.

34 Wait on the LORD, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it.

‖ Or, a green tree that groweth in his own soil.

35 I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself like ‖ a green bay tree.

36 Yet he passed away, and, lo, he was not: yea, I sought him, but he could not be found.

---

10. — thou shalt diligently consider &c.] When thou seekest for his place, there shall not be found any footsteps of his prosperity. Dr. Wells.

12. — gnasheth upon him &c.] Could even tear him with his teeth. Bp. Wilson.

13. The Lord shall laugh &c.] The Lord, who takes notice of all his secret plots, shall laugh him to scorn; for, howsoever the foolish wicked man flatters himself in the conceit of his safety, yet the all-wise God sees that his destruction is at hand. Bp. Hall.

18. The Lord knoweth &c.] The actions of good men are seen, and will not fail of being rewarded by God; not only with the comforts of this life continued to them and their posterity, but with a never-failing possession in heaven. Dr. Hammond.

20. But the wicked shall perish, &c.] They shall vanish away into smoke; as the fat of lambs, which is laid upon the altar in sacrifice, so shall they be suddenly consumed. Bp. Hall.

27. — dwell for evermore.] "Dwell in the land for ever." That is, enjoy a long and prosperous life in the land, with great tranquillity and peace. Bps. Hare and Patrick. Thou shalt never be exiled from the land which God hath given thee. Rosenmüller.

33. The Lord will not leave &c.] God will find means to clear his innocence, though he be pronounced guilty by his enemies. Dr. Wells.

—— nor condemn him] Nor suffer him to be condemned. Edwards.

35. — like a green bay tree.] This should rather be rendered, as in the margin, "like a flourishing tree in its native soil." Green. The original simply signifies, "a native tree;" a tree growing in its native soil, not having suffered by transplantation: such a tree spreads itself luxuriantly. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

36. Yet he passed away, &c.] Yet, firm as he seemed to stand, he vanished on a sudden like a cloud: I looked about for him, to see whether he might not, like a tree, be transplanted to some other spot; but there was no such man to be seen. Bp. Patrick.

37 Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace.

38 But the transgressors shall be destroyed together: the end of the wicked shall be cut off.

39 But the salvation of the righteous is of the LORD: he is their strength in the time of trouble.

40 And the LORD shall help them, and deliver them: he shall deliver them from the wicked, and save them, because they trust in him.

PSALM XXXVIII.

David moveth God to take compassion of his pitiful case.

¶ A Psalm of David, to bring to remembrance.

O LORD, rebuke me not in thy wrath: neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure.

2 For thine arrows stick fast in me, and thy hand presseth me sore.

3 There is no soundness in my flesh because of thine anger; neither is there any † rest in my bones because of my sin.

† Heb. peace, or, health.

4 For mine iniquities are gone over mine head: as an heavy burden they are too heavy for me.

5 My wounds stink and are corrupt because of my foolishness.

6 I am ‖ troubled; I am bowed down greatly; I go mourning all the day long. † Heb. wried.

7 For my loins are filled with a loathsome disease: and there is no soundness in my flesh.

8 I am feeble and sore broken: I have roared by reason of the disquietness of my heart.

9 LORD, all my desire is before thee; and my groaning is not hid from thee.

10 My heart panteth, my strength faileth me: as for the light of mine eyes, it also † is gone from me. † Heb. is not with me.

11 My lovers and my friends stand aloof from my † sore; and ‖ my kinsmen stand afar off. † Heb. stroke. ‖ Or, my neighbours.

12 They also that seek after my life lay snares for me: and they that seek my hurt speak mischievous things, and imagine deceits all the day long.

13 But I, as a deaf man, heard not; and I was as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth.

---

38. — the end of the wicked shall be cut off.] They and their posterity shall be destroyed. Dr. Hammond.

The design of this whole Psalm is, to convince men of the justice of God's dealings with all His people; to persuade them not hastily to conclude or judge of the ways of Providence, but to wait to see the end; not to depend upon their own reason, but to apply to God for light and satisfaction; for human reason being too short to pass judgment upon the ways of an infinitely wise and just God, would only lead men into doubts and fears, and rash censures of His providence. Bp. Wilson.

The "meek," mentioned at ver. 11, are they, who bear their own adversities, and the prosperity of their enemies, without envy, anger, or complaint. For these there is a possession in the kingdom and city of the Prince of "peace," which "the Lord the righteous Judge shall give them at that day." "Blessed are the meek," saith that Lord and Judge Himself, "for they shall inherit the earth," Matth. v. 5. In the mean time, they, and they only, possess the present earth, as they go towards the kingdom of heaven, by being humble, and cheerful, and content with what their good God has allotted them. They have no turbulent, repining, vexatious thoughts that they deserve better; nor are vexed, when they see others possessed of more honour, or more riches, than their wise God has allotted for their share. But they possess what they have with a meek and contented quietness; such a quietness as makes their very thoughts pleasing, both to God and themselves. Bp. Horne.

Psalm XXXVIII. This is another of those Psalms, which are called penitential, and therefore applicable to Ash Wednesday: it was composed by David under some great affliction and anguish of mind. It is not certain whether he here describes the state of his mind under various images, chiefly borrowed from bodily diseases and pains; or whether he was actually afflicted with sickness: very probably he was suffering from both. His complaints strongly express the anguish he felt from the conviction of his sinfulness, the displeasure of God, the coldness of his friends, and the insults of his enemies. He humbly supplicates the pardon of God, confesses his guilt, and, with patience and resignation, declares his hope and confidence to be only in the Divine favour. Travell.

— to bring to remembrance.] That is, either that by this humble and mournful prayer he might prevail with God to remember and pity him; for now He seemed quite to have forgotten him: or that, by reviewing this Psalm afterwards, he might call to mind his former danger and misery, and God's wonderful mercy in delivering him from them; which all are too apt to forget. And that others also might remember and consider what God had done for him; first in chastening, and then in restoring him: and might make use of his example for their benefit. Poole.

Ver. 2. — thine arrows &c.] The arrows, and the hand of God, are His judgments on sin; those internal pangs which pierce the soul, and those external afflictions which weigh down the spirits. Bp. Horne.

4. For mine iniquities are gone over mine head:] That is, my sins have brought so many evils upon me, that they overwhelm me like a flood. Bp. Patrick.

5. — because of my foolishness.] Meaning, the affliction had been justly brought upon him by his sin foolishly committed. Bp. Hall.

9. — all my desire is before thee;] That is, Thou knowest all my wants. Dr. Wells.

11. My lovers and my friends &c.] This passage is very similar to the words of Job xix. 13, and following verses, in which he complains of being deserted by his friends and companions; many other parts of this Psalm are also like the words and circumstances of Job. Rosenmüller.

13. — heard not; &c.] The meaning is, that he took no notice of their designs; only in a patient and humble silence commended himself to the care of God. Bp. Hall.

This Psalm offers to our consideration these three things: 1. It represents to us the sentiments of a penitent sinner, humbled under the load of his sins, and a sense of the Divine displeasure: these sentiments are expressed in this prayer; "O Lord, rebuke me not in Thy wrath: neither chasten me in Thy hot displeasure."

14 Thus I was as a man that heareth not, and in whose mouth are no reproofs.

‖ Or, thee do I wait for. ‖ Or, answer.

15 For ‖ in thee, O LORD, do I hope: thou wilt ‖ hear, O LORD my God.

16 For I said, Hear me, lest otherwise they should rejoice over me: when my foot slippeth, they magnify themselves against me.

† Heb. for halting.

17 For I am ready † to halt, and my sorrow is continually before me.

18 For I will declare mine iniquity; I will be sorry for my sin.

† Heb. being living, are strong.

19 But mine enemies † are lively, and they are strong: and they that hate me wrongfully are multiplied.

20 They also that render evil for good are mine adversaries; because I follow the thing that good is.

21 Forsake me not, O LORD: O my God, be not far from me.

† Heb. for my help.

22 Make haste † to help me, O LORD my salvation.

PSALM XXXIX.

1 David's care of his thoughts. 4 The consideration of the brevity and vanity of life, 7 the reverence of God's judgments, 10 and prayer, are his bridles of impatiency.

[a] 1 Chron. 25. 1.

¶ To the chief Musician, even to [a] Jeduthun, A Psalm of David.

I SAID, I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue: I will keep † my mouth with a bridle, while the wicked is before me.

† Heb. a bridle, or, muzzle for my mouth.

2 I was dumb with silence, I held my peace, even from good; and my sorrow was † stirred.

† Heb. troubled.

3 My heart was hot within me, while I was musing the fire burned: then spake I with my tongue,

4 LORD, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know ‖ how frail I am.

‖ Or, what time I have here.

5 Behold, thou hast made my days as an handbreadth; and mine age is as nothing before thee: verily every man † at his best state is altogether [b] vanity. Selah.

† Heb. settled. [b] Ps. 62. 9 & 144. 4.

6 Surely every man walketh in † a vain shew: surely they are disquieted in vain: he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them.

† Heb. an image.

7 And now, LORD, what wait I for? my hope is in thee.

8 Deliver me from all my transgressions: make me not the reproach of the foolish.

9 I was dumb, I opened not my mouth; because thou didst it.

10 Remove thy stroke away from me: I am consumed by the † blow of thine hand.

† Heb. conflict.

11 When thou with rebukes dost correct man for iniquity, thou makest † his beauty to consume away like a moth: surely every man is vanity. Selah.

† Heb. that which is to be desired in him, to melt away.

12 Hear my prayer, O LORD, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at

---

2. What is said in this Psalm is very proper for the instruction and consolation of those who are afflicted with pains and diseases, or in any other manner: David teaches them by his own example to look upon the evils that befall them, how severe soever they be, as a just correction for their sins; and to ask God pardon for them. 3. If they suffer by the malice and injustice of men, they should imitate David in his humility, patience, and meekness; and wait with resignation till God, who never forsakes the innocent, is pleased to deliver them. Ostervald.

Psalm XXXIX. The foundation of this Psalm is much the same with the foregoing: the author laboured under some great illness; he knew it due to his sins; he was afraid therefore to speak in the presence of the wicked, lest he might say any thing of which they might take advantage: at last, however, he could hold no longer, but bursts forth into an acknowledgment of the weakness and vanity of man in the hands of God; confessing that, whatever he might think heretofore, he has now no longer any expectation but from God, whom therefore he supplicates for mercy. Mudge. This Psalm is with the utmost propriety appointed by our Church to be used at the burial of the dead, as a funeral is indeed the best comment upon it. Bp. Horne.

— Jeduthun,] Jeduthun is mentioned as a singer in 1 Chron. xxv. 3. This Psalm was perhaps composed by David to be sung by that Jeduthun. Street.

Ver. 2. I was dumb &c.] I refrained from speaking what was good; from giving God the glory with relation to my illness, by acknowledging His greatness and justice, and the nothingness and sinfulness of man.—This seems to shew that the reason why he would not speak at all before his enemies was, because he did not care to give them an occasion of triumph, as he must by acknowledging his own weakness and sin: but he could not bear this restraint; it grew worse and worse, and therefore he burst out, &c. Mudge. There is a time to keep silence, because there are men who will not hear; there are tempers savage and sensual as those of swine, before whom the treasures of heavenly wisdom are not to be cast. This consideration stirreth up fresh grief and trouble in a pious and charitable heart. Bp. Horne.

4. Lord, make me to know &c.] Teach me, O Lord, to consider my end, and what is the measure of my days, that I may be sensible how short my life is. Green.

5. — mine age is as nothing before thee:] That is, my age is as nothing in Thy sight; or, when compared with Thy duration. Green, Merrick.

6. — in vain:] In the pursuit of transitory things. Bp. Wilson.

7. — what wait I for?] What can I depend on for happiness? Bp. Wilson.

—— my hope is in thee.] I will not impatiently desire any thing in this world: but my hope is in Thee, as the only true and lasting good. Dr. Wells.

8. — the reproach of the foolish.] That is, a matter of scorn and insult to the sneerer and atheist, who is the fool described by the Psalmist; and who is indeed eminently so above all others. Mudge.

11. — thou makest his beauty to consume away &c.] See the note on Job iv. 19.

Such as have formed themselves to feel the impressions of resignation are in proportion superiour to all difficulties. Their spirits are calm; and, instead of plunging into deeper distresses and even my tears: [c] for I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner, as all my fathers were.

13 O spare me, that I may recover strength, before I go hence, and be no more.

[c] Lev. 25. 23. 1 Chron. 29. 15. Ps. 119. 19. Hebr. 11. 13. 1 Pet. 2. 11.

PSALM XL.

1 The benefit of confidence in God. 6 Obedience is the best sacrifice. 11 The sense of David's evils inflameth his prayer.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

I WAITED † patiently for the LORD; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry.

2 He brought me up also out of † an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings.

3 And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the LORD.

4 Blessed is that man that maketh the LORD his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies.

5 Many, O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: ‖ they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered.

† Heb. In waiting I waited.

† Heb. a pit of noise.

‖ Or, none can order them unto thee.

6 [a] Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou † opened: burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required.

7 Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me,

8 I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is † within my heart.

9 I have preached righteousness in the great congregation: lo, I have not refrained my lips, O LORD, thou knowest.

10 I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation: I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truth from the great congregation.

11 Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O LORD: let thy lovingkindness and thy truth continually preserve me.

12 For innumerable evils have compassed me about: mine iniquities have taken hold upon me, so that I am not able to look up; they are more than the hairs of mine head: therefore my heart † faileth me.

[a] Ps. 51. 16. Isai. 1. 11. & 66. 3. Hos. 6. 6. Hebr. 10. 5. Mat. 12. 7.

† Heb. digged.

† Heb. in the midst of my bowels.

† Heb. forsaketh.

---

guilt, as the impatient do, they find their way, if any one can be found, out of every perplexity. By excluding eager hopes and high desires of earthly good, this pious principle excludes also jealous envy, keen resentment, tormenting fears, bitter disappointments, and final dislike of every thing. He that gives himself up into the hands of God, with unfeigned approbation of the Divine conduct in whatever may befall him, will act as he ought on all emergencies, with uprightness and alacrity, with courage and honour; will suffer with a composed and even temper; will thus give testimony to the efficacy of religion, and vindicate the dispensations of Providence to mankind. Abp. Secker.

Psalm XL. In this Psalm David thankfully acknowledges God's goodness to him, in delivering him from some special and imminent danger. He then declares his resolution to serve God faithfully and cheerfully, by fulfilling His will to the utmost of his power, and by teaching it to others. He commends himself to God's merciful Providence, beseeching Him to finish what He had begun, by continuing to be his deliverer. The circumstance of three verses of this Psalm, being quoted in the tenth chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Hebrews, proves that they are a direct prophecy of Jesus Christ, who only could fulfil the will of God completely, and who came into the world for that very end; as well as to declare His righteousness to the great congregation of the whole world. This application of the Psalm makes it highly suitable to Good Friday. Travell.

Ver. 2. He brought me up &c.] David means, that God delivered him, when he was fallen into such deep distress, that he was quite unable to help himself. Bp. Patrick.

3. — shall see it,] Shall see this great deliverance. Dr. Wells.

4. — respecteth not the proud, &c.] The proud and those who incline to lies are, on one side, the haughty daring atheists, who laugh at all application to any power above; and on the other, those who put their confidence in idol superstitions, which are all lie and deceit. Mudge.

6. — mine ears hast thou opened:] This phrase seems to signify, the fitting and disposing the ear to hear God's will. It is remarkable, that the Greek version, as well as the quotation from it in Heb. x. 5, instead of the phrase, "Mine ears hast Thou opened," reads, "A body hast Thou prepared me;" intimating the great superiority of Christ's death to the sacrifices of the law. Travell, Edwards.

—— burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required.] That is, considered independent of that holiness of life, without which sacrifice never could have been acceptable to a holy and righteous God. Dr. Magee.

7. — Lo, I come: &c.] Lo, I come to make an offering of myself by a sincere obedience unto Thee; as Christ will also actually do, by offering up His body to be a sacrifice for the sins of the world: In the volume of the book of the law it is thus written, or required of all truly religious persons, particularly of kings, and so of me in both respects, to be careful to offer a due obedience to Thy will, as well as to legal sacrifices. Dr. Wells.

—— in the volume] Or "roll," of the book. See Jer. xxxvi. 2, &c. It is well known that the ancient Jewish books did not, like ours, consist of distinct leaves bound together; but were, as the copies of the Pentateuch used in the Jewish synagogues still are, long scrolls of parchment, rolled upon two sticks, with the writing distinguished into columns. Parkhurst.

9. I have preached &c.] I have proclaimed Thy mercy and goodness to me before Thy people, in their full assemblies. Bp. Patrick.

12. — mine iniquities] He means the evils which his iniquities had brought upon him. Bp. Hall. By this expression, as relating to Christ, is meant, the iniquities of mankind which He had taken upon Himself. Bp. Wilson.

The Church, like her Redeemer, is often poor and afflicted in this world, but Jehovah thinketh upon her, and is solicitous for her support; she is weak and defenceless, but Jehovah is her help and her deliverer. With such a Father, and such a Friend, poverty becometh rich, and weakness itself strong. In the mean time, let us remember, that He who once came in great humility, shall come again in glorious majesty. "Make no long tarrying, O our God." Bp. Horne.

13 Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me: O LORD, make haste to help me.

[b] Ps. 35. 4. & 70. 3.

14 [b] Let them be ashamed and confounded together that seek after my soul to destroy it; let them be driven backward and put to shame that wish me evil.

15 Let them be desolate for a reward of their shame that say unto me, Aha, aha.

16 Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: let such as love thy salvation say continually, The LORD be magnified.

17 But I am poor and needy; yet the LORD thinketh upon me: thou art my help and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my God.

PSALM XLI.

1 God's care of the poor. 4 David complaineth of his enemies' treachery. 10 He fleeth to God for succour.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

BLESSED is he that considereth ‖ the poor: the LORD will deliver him † in time of trouble.

‖ Or, the weak, or, sick.

† Heb. in the day of evil.

2 The LORD will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth: and ‖ thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies.

‖ Or, do not thou deliver.

3 The LORD will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing: thou wilt † make all his bed in his sickness.

† Heb. turn.

4 I said, LORD, be merciful unto me: heal my soul; for I have sinned against thee.

5 Mine enemies speak evil of me, When shall he die, and his name perish?

6 And if he come to see me, he speaketh vanity: his heart gathereth iniquity to itself; when he goeth abroad, he telleth it.

7 All that hate me whisper together against me: against me do they devise † my hurt.

† Heb. evil to me.

8 † An evil disease, say they, cleaveth fast unto him: and now that he lieth he shall rise up no more.

† Heb. A thing of Belial.

9 [a] Yea, † mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread, hath † lifted up his heel against me.

[a] John 13. 18.

† Heb. the man of my peace.

10 But thou, O LORD, be merciful unto me, and raise me up, that I may requite them.

† Heb. magnified.

11 By this I know that thou favourest me, because mine enemy doth not triumph over me.

12 And as for me, thou upholdest me in mine integrity, and settest me before thy face for ever.

13 Blessed be the LORD God of Israel from everlasting, and to everlasting. Amen, and Amen.

PSALM XLII.

1 David's zeal to serve God in the temple. 5 He encourageth his soul to trust in God.

1023.

¶ To the chief Musician, ‖ Maschil, for the sons of Korah.

‖ Or, A Psalm giving instruction of the sons, &c.

AS the hart † panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God.

† Heb. brayeth.

Psalm XLI. It is not improbable that this Psalm was written by David after his sickness, when Absalom conspired against him. Dr. Delaney. Our Saviour Himself has taught us to apply the ninth verse to the traitor Judas. See John xiii. 18. Travell.

Ver. 4. — heal my soul;] Forgive my sins, and restore me to health. Dr. Wells.

6. And if he come &c.] If one of them cometh to see me, he telleth lies; his heart gathereth up falsehood against me, and when he goeth forth he immediately spreadeth it. "He telleth lies," that is, his very compliments of condolence are falsehood and lies. Green.

8. An evil disease, &c.] That is, the punishment of some great crime hath so entirely seized upon him, that he shall not be able to escape from it. Rosenmüller.

9. Yea, mine own familiar friend, &c.] He means either Ahithophel, or some other perfidious counsellor or courtier, who was a type of Judas, as David was a type of Christ, in being thus betrayed. Poole.

—— hath lifted up his heel against me.] Has shewn great treachery towards me. Edwards. The figure is taken from wrestlers who endeavour to supplant each other with their feet. Rosenmüller.

12. — settest me before thy face] Raisest me up again to the enjoyment of Thy presence. Mudge.

13. Blessed be the Lord God &c.] These words seem to be added at the end of this book of Psalms by the collector of it. Green. See the Introduction.

We learn from the third verse of this Psalm, that though an exemption from sorrow and sickness is not promised to the children of God, yet strength and comfort are given unto them from above, to support and carry them through their trials; and they who, in the days of their health, have by their alms given rest to the bodies, or by their counsels restored peace to the consciences, of others, shall have the bed of pain made easy under them, by the hand of their heavenly Father. Bp. Horne. The end of the first Book of Psalms.

Psalm XLII. This Psalm was most probably composed by David, when he was driven by Absalom from Jerusalem. Dr. Wells. The author of this elegant complaint, exiled from the temple, and from the publick exercise of his religion, to the extreme parts of Judea, persecuted by his numerous enemies, and agitated by their reproaches, pours forth his soul to God in this tender and pathetick composition. The ardent feelings of a devout heart are admirably expressed, while the memory of former felicity seems to aggravate his present anguish. The extreme anxiety of a mind, depressed by the burden of sorrow, and yet at the same time impatient under it; overcome by an accumulation of evils, yet in some degree endeavouring to resist them, and admitting, through the dark cloud of affliction, a glimmering ray of hope and consolation, is finely depicted. Bp. Lowth.

— the sons of Korah.] These were probably an eminent order of singers in the house of God. See 1 Chron. ix. 19. and xxvi. 1. Poole.

2 My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God?

[a] Ps. 80. 5. 3 [a] My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?

4 When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me: for I had gone with the multitude, I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise, with a multitude that kept holyday.

† Heb. bowed down. 5 Why art thou † cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted in me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet ‖ praise him ‖ for the help of his countenance.

‖ Or, give thanks. ‖ Or, his presence is salvation.

6 O my God, my soul is cast down within me: therefore will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, and of the Hermonites, from ‖ the hill Mizar.

‖ Or, the little hill.

7 Deep calleth unto deep at the noise of thy waterspouts: all thy waves and thy billows are gone over me.

8 Yet the LORD will command his lovingkindness in the daytime, and in the night his song shall be with me, and my prayer unto the God of my life.

9 I will say unto God my rock, Why hast thou forgotten me? why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

‖ Or, killing. 10 As with a ‖ sword in my bones, mine enemies reproach me; while they say daily unto me, Where is thy God?

11 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM XLIII.

1 David, praying to be restored to the temple, promiseth to serve God joyfully. 5 He encourageth his soul to trust in God.

JUDGE me, O God, and plead my cause against an ‖ ungodly nation: O deliver me † from the deceitful and unjust man. 1023.

‖ Or, unmerciful. † Heb. from a man of deceit and iniquity.

2 For thou art the God of my strength: why dost thou cast me off? why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

3 O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles.

4 Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God † my exceeding joy: yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, O God my God.

† Heb. the gladness of my joy.

[a] Ps. 42. 5, 11. 5 [a] Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

Ver. 3. My tears have been my meat day and night,] He means that his grief at his forced absence from God's house was so great, that he was obliged to vent it by tears continually. Dr. Wells.

4. When I remember &c.] I pour out my soul within me while I call to mind these things; how I went to the tabernacle, walking in solemn pace to the house of God, amidst the multitude keeping holyday, with the voice of praise and thanksgiving. Green.

5. — for I shall yet praise him &c.] This passage should be read as it is in the last verse of this and of the next Psalm. Bps. Hare and Lowth.

6. — from the hill Mizar.] The word "Mizar" signifies little. It might be the name of some hill beyond Jordan, or possibly some little hill now in view. The general sense of the verse is, "I will remember Thee, whatever dangers surround me, and whithersoever I am driven." Archdeacon Randolph.

7. Deep calleth unto deep] That is, one calamity invites and brings on another. Rosenmüller.

There is no metaphor more frequent in the sacred poems, than that by which sudden and great calamities are expressed under the figure of a deluge of waters. This metaphor seems to have been remarkably familiar to the Hebrews, as if directly taken from the nature and state of their country, which was subject to sudden and heavy floods. Bp. Lowth.

10. As with a sword &c.] The reproaches of my enemies are as cutting as a sword. Bp. Patrick.

11. — the health of my countenance,] The Restorer of my drooping spirits. Bp. Wilson.

In the first verse of this Psalm, the thirst, which the "hart" experienceth, when chased in sultry weather over the dusty plains, is set before us as a representation of that ardent desire after the waters of eternal comfort, which the temptations, the cares, and the troubles of the world, produce in the believing soul. Bp. Horne.

By due reverence and affection to God's worship, and to His church, we bring ourselves by degrees to that true and entire love of God Himself, to which so many pretend, and so few attain; to that high value and estimation of Him and of His presence, that we really contemn and despise all the pleasure and profit of this world, and the world itself, for interposing and obstructing our immediate resort to His heavenly mansion. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm XLIII. This Psalm, in all probability, was composed by the same author as the former, and upon the same occasion. Bp. Patrick. Nothing can be imagined more natural to a man of David's character, and under the circumstances in which he was placed, than that solemn appeal to the Divine justice, against a vile son, and a wicked people, with which this Psalm begins; or the earnest supplication for relief and restoration which follows it; or that lively expression of hope, and confidence in the Divine protection, which concludes it. Dr. Delaney. More than thirty manuscripts confirm the opinion of Bp. Lowth, that this and the preceding are one Psalm. Street.

Ver. 3. O send out &c.] In other words, O let Thy gracious favour, and the truth of Thy promises, be my sure guide to conduct me to Thy holy mountain, where Thou hast fixed Thy dwellingplace. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

We learn from this Psalm, that if the prophet begged of God to deliver him from the malice of his enemies, it was chiefly with a view to return to the tabernacle, that he might praise God, and express his joy, love, and gratitude. And the complaints and sighs which he uttered, because he could not come into the house of God, should engage those who have the liberty to serve God in religious assemblies, gladly to improve so inestimable a blessing. Ostervald.

PSALM XLIV.

1 The church, in memory of former favours, 7 complaineth of their present evils. 17 Professing her integrity, 24 she fervently prayeth for succour.

¶ To the chief Musician for the sons of Korah, Maschil.

WE have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didst in their days, in the times of old.

2 How thou didst drive out the heathen with thy hand, and plantedst them; how thou didst afflict the people, and cast them out.

3 For they got not the land in possession by their own sword, neither did their own arm save them: but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance, because thou hadst a favour unto them.

4 Thou art my King, O God: command deliverances for Jacob.

5 Through thee will we push down our enemies: through thy name will we tread them under that rise up against us.

6 For I will not trust in my bow, neither shall my sword save me.

7 But thou hast saved us from our enemies, and hast put them to shame that hated us.

8 In God we boast all the day long, and praise thy name for ever. Selah.

9 But thou hast cast off, and put us to shame; and goest not forth with our armies.

10 Thou makest us to turn back from the enemy: and they which hate us spoil for themselves.

† Heb. as sheep of meat.

11 Thou hast given us † like sheep appointed for meat; and hast scattered us among the heathen.

12 Thou sellest thy people † for nought, and dost not increase thy wealth by their price.

† Heb. without riches.

13 [a] Thou makest us a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and a derision to them that are round about us.

[a] Ps. 79. 4

14 [b] Thou makest us a byword among the heathen, a shaking of the head among the people.

[b] Jer. 24. 9.

15 My confusion is continually before me, and the shame of my face hath covered me,

16 For the voice of him that reproacheth and blasphemeth; by reason of the enemy and avenger.

17 All this is come upon us; yet have we not forgotten thee, neither have we dealt falsely in thy covenant.

18 Our heart is not turned back, neither have our ‖ steps declined from thy way;

‖ Or, goings

19 Though thou hast sore broken us in the place of dragons, and covered us with the shadow of death.

20 If we have forgotten the name of our God, or stretched out our hands to a strange god;

21 Shall not God search this out? for he knoweth the secrets of the heart.

22 [c] Yea, for thy sake are we killed all the day long; we are counted as sheep for the slaughter.

[c] Rom. 8. 36.

23 Awake, why sleepest thou, O LORD? arise, cast us not off for ever.

24 Wherefore hidest thou thy face, and forgettest our affliction and our oppression?

25 For our soul is bowed down to the dust: our belly cleaveth unto the earth.

26 Arise † for our help, and redeem us for thy mercies' sake.

† Heb. a help for us.

Psalm XLIV. This Psalm appears to have been composed at a time when the Jewish state suffered grievously from their enemies, and many were carried into captivity; though the state itself still subsisted, and the publick worship of God was maintained. It is not unlikely that Hezekiah was the author of it; and that perhaps, soon after the blasphemous message of Rabshakeh, 2 Kings xviii. 13, &c. Mudge.

Ver. 2. — the heathen] That is, the Canaanites.

3. — the light of thy countenance,] That is, Thy gracious and glorious presence, which went along with them. Poole.

9. But thou hast cast off,] But yet at present Thou permittest us to be dealt with, as if Thou hadst cast us off. Dr. Wells. All that is contained from this verse to the fifteenth, was expressly foretold, Deut. xxviii. Bp. Wilson.

11. Thou hast given us &c.] Like sheep for the slaughter. Green.

12. Thou sellest thy people &c.] That is, Thou permittest them to be held cheap and vile, and to be sold into slavery by their enemies, for little or nothing; a situation far more to be dreaded than the sword of the executioner. Bp. Horne.

14. Thou makest us a byword &c.] A proverb of wretchedness among the heathen, who shook their heads at them in mere contempt and derision. Bp. Patrick.

15, 16. My confusion is &c.] I am confounded with the continual marks of our disgrace, and am so ashamed, that I am unwilling to shew my face: nor do I hear any thing but reproachful words against us, and blasphemy against Thee, O God; such is the insolence of the enemy, and so insatiable is his revenge. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

19. — in the place of dragons,] That is, in the wilderness; in a wild desolate place, where were serpents and other noxious animals. The inspired author seems here to refer to some former distress of the Jewish nation. Edwards.

—— covered us with the shadow of death.] That is, deprived us of all hope of escaping from our misery. Rosenmüller.

22. Yea, for thy sake &c.] But our sufferings for the truth testify our fidelity to Thee; for it is our perseverance in religion which daily exposes us to the horrours of death. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

25. — our soul is bowed down &c.] The weight of our misery is so great, that it hath sunk us into this dejected condition, so that we have no strength left to help ourselves. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

Like the Israelites of old, we should in our afflictions comfort ourselves with the consideration of the goodness of the Lord, and

PSALM XLV.

1 The majesty and grace of Christ's kingdom. 10 The duty of the church, and the benefits thereof.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Shoshannim, for the sons of Korah, ‖ Maschil, A Song of loves.

‖ Or, of instruction.

† Heb. boileth, or, bubbleth up.

MY heart † is inditing a good matter: I speak of the things which I have made touching the king: my tongue is the pen of a ready writer.

2 Thou art fairer than the children of men: grace is poured into thy lips: therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.

3 Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O most mighty, with thy glory and thy majesty.

† Heb. prosper thou, ride thou.

4 And in thy majesty † ride prosperously because of truth and meekness and righteousness; and thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things.

5 Thine arrows are sharp in the heart of the king's enemies; whereby the people fall under thee.

6 [a] Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre. [a] Hebr. 1. 8.

7 Thou lovest righteousness, and hatest wickedness: therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

8 All thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces, whereby they have made thee glad.

9 Kings' daughters were among thy honourable women: upon thy right hand did stand the queen in gold of Ophir.

10 Hearken, O daughter, and consider, and incline thine ear; forget also thine own people, and thy father's house;

11 So shall the king greatly desire thy beauty: for he is thy Lord; and worship thou him.

12 And the daughter of Tyre shall be the evident proofs He has in all ages given of His power and mercy. As they acknowledged that their fathers had become masters of the land of Canaan, not by their own strength, but by the power of God; we should likewise give God the glory of all the blessings we enjoy. Ostervald.

---

Psalm XLV. This is a very remarkable Psalm, supposed to have been originally written on occasion of Solomon's marriage with the daughter of Pharaoh king of Egypt. But indeed many of the expressions in it are of so exalted a nature, that they cannot with any propriety be applied to any one but our Saviour; so that it may well be said, as our Lord doth in another case, "Behold, a greater than Solomon is here!" Accordingly it has been generally understood to be a prophetical song, foretelling the marriage of Christ with His spouse the Church. St. Paul (Hebr. i.) expressly applies the sixth and seventh verses of this Psalm to our Saviour. It is very properly appointed to be used on Christmas-day, when we commemorate His actual coming into the world. Travell.

— Shoshannim,] By this term we may understand all those instruments which had six strings. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 1. My heart is inditing &c.] My heart is full and ready to overflow with an important and glorious subject, which I have meditated, and am ready to utter in honour of king Solomon; who is but a shadow of that great King whom we expect. Travell.

—— a ready writer.] That is, a well-instructed writer; a writer prepared and ready, by a perfect knowledge of the subject he undertakes to treat. Bp. Horsley.

2. Thou art fairer &c.] Thou, O king, art lovely above all other persons, thy speech is most acceptable and persuasive, because the Lord loves thee, and has poured His choicest blessings upon thee: yet do these but faintly represent the eternal blessings, which He will bestow on that great King, who shall be "in favour with God and man," and who shall make all men "wonder at the gracious words which proceed out of His mouth." Bp. Patrick.

3. Gird thy sword &c.] Put on thy royal ornaments, and the ensigns of thy power, that thou mayest appear with such splendour and majesty, as may serve for an emblem of that sovereign authority, in which the Lord of all the world shall hereafter appear among men. Bp. Patrick.

4. And in thy majesty &c.] May thy kingdom be every way so prosperous, by promoting all manner of virtue among thy subjects, and by terrifying thy enemies, that it may prove a lively emblem of the happy government of the Lord Christ: whose kingdom shall prevail over all, when He goes forth, like a great conqueror in His triumphal chariot, not to enslave men's persons, but to settle the true faith among them; to make them humble and meek, just and charitable: and for the accomplishing of this glorious work, Thy mighty power, O Lord, shall instruct Thee to perform miraculous and amazing things. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

5. Thine arrows are sharp &c.] Thy power shall be sufficient to subdue thy greatest enemies; so shall the grace of Christ be mightily successful in bringing the Gentile world into subjection to His kingdom. Dr. Hammond.

6. Thy throne, O God, &c.] The kingdom of the Messiah is never to have an end. And herein is Solomon a type of Him: the kingdom of Judah, now settled on him, shall endure till the time of the Messiah's coming, and entering on His immutable kingdom. Dr. Hammond.

7. Thou lovest righteousness, &c.] Thou, O Christ, lovest righteousness and hatest iniquity; therefore God the Father hath advanced Thee above all angels and men, and exalted Thee to reign for ever at His own right hand. And herein also was Solomon a type of the Messiah, whose preference of wisdom to wealth was highly rewarded by God, beyond all other men. Dr. Hammond.

8. All thy garments &c.] Thy wedding garments, worn by thee on this joyful occasion, scatter through the royal apartments, richly inlaid with ivory, a fragrance of the sweetest perfumes: in like manner shall the heavenly graces of Christ be diffused, as a sweet odour over His faithful servants. Travell.

—— myrrh, and aloes, and cassia,] Perhaps these were the drugs, with which the oil for the anointing the kings of Israel and Judah was prepared. Two of them, the myrrh and cassia, are the same with those from which the oil for the consecration of Aaron and his sons was commanded to be made. See Exod. xxx. 23, 24. Street.

9. Kings' daughters &c.] Thy court was attended by kings' daughters; and next to thyself was placed the royal bride, clad in garments embroidered with gold: an image of Christ's spouse, the Church, which shall hereafter "sit" with Him "in heavenly places," (Ephes. ii. 6.) arrayed in the garments of righteousness and salvation. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

10. Hearken, O daughter, &c.] Understand, and consider seriously, O royal bride, the happiness of being married to such a prince; and let not the thoughts of thy own country and family dwell too much upon thy mind: in like manner must the true Christian, when brought to Christ, renounce the world, and even his dearest connexions, for His sake. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

12. And the daughter of Tyre &c.] The people of the rich and there with a gift; even the rich among the people shall intreat † thy favour. † Heb. thy face.

13 The king's daughter is all glorious within: her clothing is of wrought gold.

14 She shall be brought unto the king in raiment of needlework: the virgins her companions that follow her shall be brought unto thee.

15 With gladness and rejoicing shall they be brought: they shall enter into the king's palace.

16 Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children, whom thou mayest make princes in all the earth.

17 I will make thy name to be remembered in all generations: therefore shall the people praise thee for ever and ever.

PSALM XLVI.

1 The confidence which the church hath in God. 8 An exhortation to behold it.

‖ Or, of. ¶ To the chief Musician ‖ for the sons of Korah, A Song upon Alamoth.

GOD is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.

2 Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into † the midst of the sea; † Heb. the heart of the seas.

3 Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.

4 There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most high.

5 God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, † and that right early. † Heb. when the morning appeareth.

6 The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved: he uttered his voice, the earth melted.

7 The LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is † our refuge. Selah. † Heb. an high place for us.

8 Come, behold the works of the LORD, what desolations he hath made in the earth.

9 He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire.

---

neighbouring city of Tyre shall come and bring presents; the most powerful among them shall solicit thy favour; as the kings of the earth shall hereafter bring their glory and honour into the church. Rev. xxi. 24. Bp. Patrick.

13. The king's daughter &c.] The bride of our prince is no less adorned with all excellent qualities of mind, than her body is with rich and splendid attire: so the ornaments of those that are born of God in the Christian church shall not be so much "that outward adorning of wearing of gold, as the hidden man of the heart, which is in the sight of God of great price;" 1 Pet. iii. 3, 4. Bp. Patrick.

14. She shall be brought &c.] She shall be brought home unto the king with magnificent pomp, in embroidered raiment; and the virgins, that attend upon her, shall accompany her: in like manner shall Christ receive His spouse the Church, adorned with a robe of righteousness; and all they, who in after-ages shall be acknowledged by Christ as His disciples, shall altogether form one glorious train of attendants. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

16. Instead of thy fathers &c.] And may this be the happy fruit of thy marriage, that, instead of thy royal ancestors in Egypt, thou mayest be the mother of children, who shall be rulers in all countries subject to king Solomon: so shall the Church continually bring forth children unto Christ, "whom He shall make kings and priests unto God; and they shall reign on the earth;" Rev. v. 10. Travell.

17. I will make thy name &c.] By this song I will make thy name to be mentioned with honour throughout all ages, which shall celebrate thy praise, as long as the world shall last: and much more shall the name of Christ, and His blessed union with His Church, be celebrated with perpetual praises. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

As we are not apt to consider Christ Himself aright, and thereby may probably fail in prescribing good rules to ourselves for the performance of our duty to Him, so we have as little regard what service we are to do, and what reverence we are to pay to that dear spouse of His, the Church: many too superstitiously contracting all their devotion to her ivory palaces, and to her raiment of needlework, to outward forms and ceremonies, and to the pomp of Divine worship, without much considering the inward operation and effect of religion; and others as licentiously and profanely, under pretence of being "all glorious within," contemn all outward preparation for, and ornament of, God's service; and because Christ's Church consists of the multitude of believers, and that He looks principally upon the heart as the seat of religion, they will allow Him no other temple to be served in, and believe both churches and priests of no use to the exercise of their devotion. Whereas, though the "king's daughter be all glorious within, her clothing is" likewise to be "of wrought gold;" inward sanctity appears the more beautiful, for the outward decency and lustre that attends it. And Christ Himself, though He expects and requires the duty of the heart, and to be served by all persons, and in all places, yet He reserves some offices in His service for a peculiar people, more particularly dedicated to it, and vouchsafes more especially to reside in those places which are more solemnly dedicated to, and consecrated for, His worship. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm XLVI. This appears to be a thanksgiving Psalm for some victory or deliverance. Street. Probably it may have been composed in the reign of Jehoshaphat. See 2 Chron xx. Rosenmüller.

— for the sons of Korah, A Song upon Alamoth.] The word Alamoth has by some been understood to specify the musical instrument, which was used to accompany the singing of the Psalm. But it also signifies virgins or maidens. The meaning of the title therefore may be, "An ode by the sons of Korah together with virgins." Street.

Ver. 3, 4. Though the waters &c.] The sense is, Though the numerous forces which are come up against Jerusalem should, like a tempestuous sea, roar and rage, and threaten her with utter destruction; yet the small forces that guard her, which for their stillness may be compared to the soft flowing stream of Siloah, shall by the help of her God protect her. Green.

6. The heathen raged, &c.] How concise and energetick are these expressions of the Divine power! Bp. Horne.

—— he uttered his voice,] Alluding to the demonstration of God's power visibly exerted in the cause of Israel—and the inhabitants of the earth melted, as it were, with fear. Rosenmüller.

9. — he burneth the chariot &c.] Alluding to the heathen custom of burning the arms of those they had conquered, in honour of their gods, and as a sign of peace. Bp. Lowth.

10 Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth.

11 The LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.

PSALM XLVII.

The nations are exhorted cheerfully to entertain the kingdom of Christ.

‖ Or, of. ¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm ‖ for the sons of Korah.

O CLAP your hands, all ye people; shout unto God with the voice of triumph.

2 For the LORD most high is terrible; he is a great King over all the earth.

3 He shall subdue the people under us, and the nations under our feet.

4 He shall choose our inheritance for us, the excellency of Jacob whom he loved. Selah.

5 God is gone up with a shout, the LORD with the sound of a trumpet.

6 Sing praises to God, sing praises: sing praises unto our King, sing praises.

7 For God is the King of all the earth: sing ye praises ‖ with understanding.

‖ Or, every one that hath understanding.

8 God reigneth over the heathen: God sitteth upon the throne of his holiness.

9 ‖ The princes of the people are gathered together, even the people of the God of Abraham: for the shields of the earth belong unto God: he is greatly exalted.

‖ Or, The voluntary of the people are gathered unto the people of the God of Abraham.

PSALM XLVIII.

The ornaments and privileges of the church.

¶ A Song and Psalm ‖ for the sons of Korah.

‖ Or, of.

GREAT is the LORD, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in the mountain of his holiness.

2 Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King.

3 God is known in her palaces for a refuge.

4 For, lo, the kings were assembled, they passed by together.

5 They saw it, and so they marvelled; they were troubled, and hasted away.

6 Fear took hold upon them there, and pain, as of a woman in travail.

7 Thou breakest the ships of Tarshish with an east wind.

8 As we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the LORD of hosts, in the city of our God: God will establish it for ever. Selah.

---

10. Be still, and know &c.] In this verse there is a change of person; and Jehovah Himself is introduced, as commanding the world to cease its opposition, to own His power, and to acknowledge His sovereignty over all the kingdoms of the nations. Bp. Horne.

As we are continually beset by troubles, either bodily or spiritual, so we continually stand in need of a city of refuge and strength, into which we may flee and be safe. Religion is that city, whose gates are always open to the afflicted soul. We profess to believe this: do we act agreeably to such profession? Bp. Horne.

Psalm XLVII. This Psalm was probably composed and sung on occasion of bringing the ark, either into the tabernacle on mount Zion by David, or thence into the temple by Solomon. And the ark being a type of Christ, as mount Zion was of heaven, the carrying of the ark up to that mount may be considered as a type of Christ's ascension into heaven: and accordingly this Psalm is appointed by the Church to be used on Ascension-day. Dr. Wells, Travell.

Ver. 4. He shall choose &c.] Or, He hath chosen the good land of Canaan to be our inheritance. Dr. Wells.

—— the excellency of Jacob] Meaning the land of Israel. Mudge.

5. God is gone up &c.] The ark, which is the emblem of the special presence of God, is gone up into the holy place on mount Zion with a shout of joy and praise. Dr. Wells. This carrying up of the ark mystically represents Christ's ascension into heaven, as may be gathered by comparing this with Eph. iv. 8, where the like words, uttered concerning the ark upon the same occasion, Psalm lxviii. 18, are directly applied to Christ's ascension. Poole.

9. The princes of the people &c.] This verse plainly describes the kings of the Gentiles as acceding to the Church, as becoming with their subjects, through faith, "the people of the God of Abraham," and a part of the sacred flock. Bp. Horne.

This Psalm should excite us to praise God, and to celebrate His glory with holy transports, as He is the King of the whole earth, and deserves the adoration of all men; but above all, because He has chosen us to be His people and His inheritance. But we should also apply this Psalm to the times of the Gospel, and especially to our Lord's ascension to the glory of His kingdom, and to the happiness which the several nations of the earth now enjoy in being accounted the people of God. Ostervald.

Psalm XLVIII. This Psalm is appointed by our Church to be used on Whit-Sunday, because, under images taken from the earthly city Jerusalem, are celebrated the glory, the beauty, and the strength of the Christian Church, that city and temple of Messiah. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 1. — the mountain of his holiness.] That is, mount Zion, the holy spot which He has set apart for the place of His worship. Dr. Wells, Travell.

2. — the joy of the whole earth,] The joy of all the land of Judah then, and afterwards of the whole earth: because the law was to come out of Zion. Bp. Nicholson.

—— on the sides of the north,] On the north side. Old Translation.

3. God is known &c.] God has made Himself known in her towers to be our defence. Edwards.

5. They saw it, &c.] The meaning is, that when the kings of neighbouring countries had united together and marched their forces against it, they were astonished at its strength and beauty; and, being seized with sudden amazement, they made haste to escape. Travell.

7. Thou breakest the ships &c.] The meaning evidently is, that as the east wind shatters in pieces the ships of Tarshish, so the Divine power struck the heathen kings with terrour and astonishment. Bp. Horne.

8. As we have heard, &c.] In other words, What we have

9 We have thought of thy lovingkindness, O God, in the midst of thy temple.

10 According to thy name, O God, so is thy praise unto the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of righteousness.

11 Let mount Zion rejoice, let the daughters of Judah be glad, because of thy judgments.

12 Walk about Zion, and go round about her: tell the towers thereof.

† Heb. Set your heart to her bulwarks. ‖ Or, raise up.

13 † Mark ye well her bulwarks, ‖ consider her palaces; that ye may tell it to the generation following.

14 For this God is our God for ever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death.

PSALM XLIX.

1 An earnest persuasion to build the faith of resurrection, not on worldly power, but on God. 16 Worldly prosperity is not to be admired.

‖ Or, of.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm ‖ for the sons of Korah.

HEAR this, all ye people; give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world:

2 Both low and high, rich and poor, together.

3 My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.

4 [a] I will incline mine ear to a parable: I will open my dark saying upon the harp. [a] Matth. 13. 35. Ps. 78. 2.

5 Wherefore should I fear in the days of evil, when the iniquity of my heels shall compass me about?

6 They that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches;

7 None of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him:

8 (For the redemption of their soul is precious, and it ceaseth for ever:)

9 That he should still live for ever, and not see corruption.

10 For he seeth that wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others.

11 Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever, and their dwellingplaces † to all generations; they call their lands after their own names. † Heb. to generation and generation.

12 Nevertheless man being in honour abideth not: he is like the beasts that perish.

13 This their way is their folly: yet their posterity † approve their sayings. Selah. † Heb. delight in their mouth.

14 Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the mornheard from them of old time, we have now seen verified with our own eyes, in the salvation of this holy city, which is the city of the God of the armies of heaven, and which we trust He will protect in future ages. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

---

10. According to thy name, &c.] Wherever Thy name is known and Thy works are declared, there, O Lord, shall Thy praises be extended over all the world; and the righteousness of Thy judgments shall be everywhere acknowledged. Travell.

11. — the daughters of Judah] All the lesser cities of Judea. Bp. Wilson.

13. Mark ye well her bulwarks, &c.] Observe the outworks, and consider all the stately buildings, and mark how entire they are, and unhurt by the enemies' attacks; that the memory of so great a blessing may be recorded to future generations. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

The reflexion we are to make upon this Psalm is, that the Church has often been attacked by the kings and nations of the world, who had conspired together to destroy it; but that God has always watched over it, and rendered the conspiracies of its enemies vain, and turned them to their own confusion. This Psalm assures us, that the Church is the dearest thing to God upon earth; that He dwells in the midst of it; that He encompasses it with His protection; and that He will always support it. These promises are still better suited to the Christian than to the Jewish Church, and ought to convince us of our happiness, in being members of Christ's Church, and to fill all sincere Christians with steadfast hope and confidence in God. Ostervald.

Psalm XLIX. The object of this very difficult Psalm seems to be, to expose the folly of those who place a confidence in their power and wealth, when, after all, neither of these can ransom their souls from death and their bodies from the tomb; while the author professes himself to believe, that God will redeem his soul from the power of the grave. Street.

Ver. 3. My mouth shall speak &c.] I am going to utter things of most important concern, even weighty matters, which my heart has deeply pondered. Travell.

I will speak such things as shall teach men to be truly wise, and to judge and determine prudently in all things. Rosenmüller.

4. I will incline mine ear &c.] I myself will diligently attend to the lesson I am going to unfold, and the important instruction shall be accompanied with the melody of musick. Travell.

5. Wherefore should I fear &c.] Why should I give way to fear and despondency in the time of calamity, when the wickedness of my wealthy and powerful adversaries compasses me about, to supplant and overthrow me? Bps. Horne and Lowth.

—— of my heels] Rather, "of my supplanters;" "of those who endeavour to supplant me." Parkhurst.

7. None of them &c.] None of them, with all his wealth and power, can save his dearest friend from the grave, or preserve him alive when God calls him. Bp. Patrick.

8. (For the redemption &c.] The redemption of a man's life is too difficult and precious a thing for a man to undertake; so that it must ever be a vain attempt. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

11. Their inward thought is, &c.] Nevertheless, worldly-minded men secretly please themselves with the hopes, that their habitations and estates shall continue in their family from age to age; they indulge themselves in the idea of an imaginary immortality, by giving their own names to their lands. Travell.

13. This their way is their folly:] The practice of labouring to acquire wealth and greatness, which be of no service after death, is doubtless a folly; but it is a folly, which, like many others, is at once blamed and imitated. Bp. Horne.

14. Like sheep &c.] They must, like sheep driven to the slaughter, become the prey of death, and go in crowds to the grave: and then the just, whom they insulted, shall triumph over them in that glorious dawn of the resurrection; their faded beauty shall moulder away in the silent habitation of the grave. Travell.

‖ Or, strength.
‖ Or, the grave being an habitation to every one of them.
† Heb. from the hand of the grave.
‖ Or, hell.
[b] Job 27. 19.

ing; and their ‖ beauty shall consume ‖ in the grave from their dwelling.

15 But God will redeem my soul † from the power of ‖ the grave: for he shall receive me. Selah.

16 Be not thou afraid when one is made rich, when the glory of his house is increased;

17 [b] For when he dieth he shall carry nothing away: his glory shall not descend after him.

† Heb. in his life.

18 Though † while he lived he blessed his soul: and men will praise thee, when thou doest well to thyself.

† Heb. The soul shall go.

19 † He shall go to the generation of his fathers; they shall never see light.

20 Man that is in honour, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish.

PSALM L.

1 The majesty of God in the church. 5 His order to gather saints. 7 The pleasure of God is not in ceremonies, 14 but in sincerity of obedience.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

¶ A Psalm ‖ of Asaph.

THE mighty God, even the LORD, hath spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof.

2 Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined.

3 Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence: a fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about him.

4 He shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, that he may judge his people.

5 Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice.

6 And the heavens shall declare his righteousness: for God is judge himself. Selah.

7 Hear, O my people, and I will speak; O Israel, and I will testify against thee: I am God, even thy God.

8 I will not reprove thee for thy sacrifices or thy burnt offerings, to have been continually before me.

9 I will take no bullock out of thy house, nor he goats out of thy folds.

10 For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills.

11 I know all the fowls of the moun-

---

18. Though while he lived &c.] While men enjoy all the pleasures which their riches afford them, they call themselves the only happy people: and whoever follows their steps will be sure to have the praise of wicked and foolish people. Bp. Wilson.

20. Man that is in honour, &c.] That man who lives in outward honour, and yet wants true wisdom and understanding to know God and himself, lives and dies like a beast. Bp. Hall.

Let us seriously lay to heart, that our time in this world is but a short eve to an everlasting holiday; and that the world itself is but a barren, steep, and stormy passage, to the most fertile and pleasant land that ever was inhabited; where, if we have behaved ourselves well in the way, more glorious mansions are prepared for us, than the greatest monarch of the earth was ever in possession of: let us in our daily morning prayers humbly and earnestly beseech God to root out of our hearts all those immoderate desires and inclinations towards the pomp and pleasures of this life, which intoxicate us, and we shall be ashamed all the day after to entertain any of those proud, and covetous, and ambitious thoughts, that are so contrary to our prayers; and so, by devoutly wishing to be what we ought to be, we shall grow fixed and steady, and superiour to those vain temptations. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm L. This Psalm sets forth, that the Divine favour is not to be conciliated by sacrifices, or by any of the external rites and services of religion, but rather by sincere piety, and by the devout effusions of a grateful heart: and yet, that even these will not be accepted without the strictest attention to justice, and every practical virtue. It consists therefore of two parts: in the first, the devout but ignorant and superstitious worshipper is reproved; and in the second, the hypocritical pretender to virtue and religion. Each part of the subject, if we regard the imagery and diction only, is treated rather with variety and elegance, than with sublimity; but if the general effect, if the plot and machinery of the whole be considered, scarcely any thing can appear more truly magnificent.

God is here introduced as entering upon a solemn and publick action or pleading before the whole world, against His disobedient people. He summons all mankind, from east to west, to be present to hear His appeal; and the solemnity is held on Zion, where He is attended by the same terrible pomp that accompanied Him on mount Sinai. Bp. Lowth.

— Asaph.] Whether this Asaph was the Levite who lived in the same age with David, or some other prophet in aftertimes, cannot be certainly determined. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 1. The mighty God, &c.] That is, The decree is gone out from God the Father, touching the calling of all nations by God the Son.

2. Out of Zion,] As God in a special manner was present here in His tabernacle, so shall the Son of God, in fulness of time, be visibly present in that place, and thence give His commission to reveal the Gospel to all nations. Fenton.

4. He shall call to the heavens &c.] The heavens and the earth are invoked as witnesses, which is a pompous form of expression common with the Hebrew writers: "He shall call the heavens from on high; and the earth to the judgment of His people." Bp. Lowth.

5. Gather my saints &c.] He shall say, Bring those men before Me, whom I have separated to Myself to be a holy nation, and who have made a solemn agreement with Me, confirmed by the blood of sacrifices. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

8. I will not reprove thee &c.] It is not for any defect in thy external and ceremonial service of sacrifices and other appointed offerings that I complain of thee: these have been performed with scrupulous exactness. Travell.

9—12. I will take no bullock] The Jewish folly of doating on the legal offerings, as things in themselves acceptable to God, and conferring justification on man, is reproved in these verses, from the consideration, that the various animals slain in sacrifice were long before, even from the creation of the world, the sole right and property of Jehovah; which, therefore, He needed not to have required at the hands of His people; nor would He have done so, but for some further end and intent signified and represented by such oblations. What that end and in-tains: and the wild beasts of the field are † mine. † Heb. with me.

12 If I were hungry, I would not tell thee: [a] for the world is mine, and the fulness thereof. [a] Exod. 19. 5. Deut. 10. 14. Psal. 24. 1. Job 41. 11. 1 Cor. 10. 26, 28.

13 Will I eat the flesh of bulls, or drink the blood of goats?

14 Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the most high:

15 And call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me.

16 But unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do to declare my statutes, or that thou shouldest take my covenant in thy mouth?

17 [b] Seeing thou hatest instruction, and castest my words behind thee. [b] Rom. 2. 21, 22.

18 When thou sawest a thief, then thou consentedst with him, and † hast been partaker with adulterers. † Heb. thy portion was with adulterers.

19 † Thou givest thy mouth to evil, and thy tongue frameth deceit. † Heb. Thou sendest.

20 Thou sittest and speakest against thy brother; thou slanderest thine own mother's son.

21 These things hast thou done, and I kept silence; thou thoughtest that I was altogether such an one as thyself: but I will reprove thee, and set them in order before thine eyes.

22 Now consider this, ye that forget God, lest I tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver.

23 Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me: and to him † that ordereth his conversation aright will I shew the salvation of God. † Heb. that disposeth his way.

PSALM LI.

1 David prayeth for remission of sins, whereof he maketh a deep confession. 6 He prayeth for sanctification. 16 God delighteth not in sacrifice, but in sincerity. 18 He prayeth for the church.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David, [a] when Nathan the prophet came unto him, after he had gone in to Bathsheba. about 1034. [a] 2 Sam. 12. 1. & 11. 2.

HAVE mercy upon me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions.

2 Wash me throughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.

3 For I acknowledge my transgressions: and my sin is ever before me.

4 Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight: [b] that thou mightest be justified when thou speakest, and be clear when thou judgest. [b] Rom. 3. 4.

5 Behold, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother † conceive me. † Heb. warm me.

6 Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts: and in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom.

---

tent was, Christians know; and Jews formerly did know. Learn we hence, not to dream of any merit in our works and services; since God has a double claim, founded on creation and redemption, to all we have, and all we are. Bp. Horne.

14. Offer unto God thanksgiving; &c.] God here declares, that the sacrifice which is truly acceptable to Him is a heart thankful for all the blessings He has bestowed; and the faithful performance of all the vows and promises which have been made to Him. Bp. Patrick.

21. These things hast thou done, &c.] All this wickedness hast thou committed, and I have forborne to punish thee; but My forbearance, instead of leading thee to amendment, has made thee consider Me, either as ignorant of thy wickedness, or inclined to evil like thyself: but I will now rebuke thee sharply for it, and set all thy evil deeds in order before thine eyes. Bp. Patrick.

23. Whoso offereth praise] This verse sums up the two principal points of charge. "I look upon him only as the man who truly honours Me, that offers before Me a grateful heart; and none but the man that sets himself to order his life aright shall ever find protection and blessing from God." Mudge.

The duty of praise is the end of our being, and the very rule and law of our nature. It is the most excellent part of our religious worship, enduring to eternity after the rest shall be done away. It recommends itself to us by several peculiar properties and advantages; as it carries more pleasure in it than all other kinds of devotion; as it enlarges and exalts the several powers of the mind; as it breeds in us an exquisite sense of God's honour, and a willingness to promote it in the world; as it teaches us to be humble and lowly ourselves, and yet preserves us from base and sordid flattery, from bestowing mean and undue praises upon others. Bp. Atterbury.

Psalm LI. No one can read this Psalm of David, but must see all the characters of true repentance in the person who wrote it, and the marks of the deepest sorrow and humiliation for the sins of which he had been guilty. How earnestly does he plead for mercy, and acknowledge his unworthiness! How ingenuous the confessions he makes of his offences! How heavy the load of guilt which oppressed him! The smart of it pierced through his very bones, and the torture he felt was as if they had been broken and crushed to pieces. Dr. Chandler. This Psalm is inserted in the Commination service, and so is used with the other penitential Psalms in the service on Ash Wednesday.

Ver. 2. Wash me throughly &c.] The soul, that is sensible of her pollution, fears she can never be sufficiently purified from it; and therefore prays yet again and again, continually, for more abundant grace, to make and to keep her holy. Bp. Horne.

4. Against thee, thee only, have I sinned,] For none else knew it, till Thou madest it known, 2 Sam. xii. 12. Bp. Wilson.

—— that thou mightest be justified &c.] Rather, So that Thou art righteous in Thy sentence, and just in Thy judgment. Edwards.

5. — I was shapen in iniquity; &c.] I derive from my parents an original corruption, and a natural proneness to evil. Travell. This corruption is here only alleged as the cause of transgressions, not as their excuse; seeing that, the greater our danger of falling, the greater should be our care to stand. Bp. Horne.

6. Behold, thou desirest truth &c.] The force of "behold" is, "It is too plain; I feel it but too sensibly; the punishment I suffer is evidence sufficient, that Thou art not contented with a superficial appearance of goodness: Thou lovest truth and sincerity in the bottom of the heart." God was now teaching him this, by the correction He made him suffer. The punishment in-

[c] Lev. 14. 6. Numb. 19. 18.

7 [c] Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

8 Make me to hear joy and gladness; that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice.

9 Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities.

10 Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew ‖ a right spirit within me.

‖ Or, a constant spirit.

11 Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy spirit from me.

12 Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit.

13 Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee.

† Heb. bloods.

14 Deliver me from † bloodguiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation: and my tongue shall sing aloud of thy righteousness.

15 O Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise.

‖ Or, that I should give it.

16 For thou desirest not sacrifice; ‖ else would I give it: thou delightest not in burnt offering.

[d] Isaiah 57. 15. & 66. 2.

17 [d] The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.

18 Do good in thy good pleasure unto Zion: build thou the walls of Jerusalem.

19 Then shalt thou be pleased with the sacrifices of righteousness, with burnt offering and whole burnt offering: then shall they offer bullocks upon thine altar.

PSALM LII.

1 David, condemning the spitefulness of Doeg, prophesieth his destruction. 6 The righteous shall rejoice at it. 8 David, upon his confidence in God's mercy, giveth thanks.

¶ To the chief Musician, Maschil, A Psalm of David, [a] when Doeg the Edomite came and told Saul, and said unto him, David is come to the house of Ahimelech.

[a] 1 Sam. 22. 9.

WHY boastest thou thyself in mischief, O mighty man? the goodness of God endureth continually.

2 Thy tongue deviseth mischiefs; like a sharp rasor, working deceitfully.

3 Thou lovest evil more than good; and lying rather than to speak righteousness. Selah.

4 Thou lovest all devouring words, ‖ O thou deceitful tongue.

‖ Or, and the deceitful tongue.

5 God shall likewise † destroy thee for ever, he shall take thee away, and pluck thee out of thy dwelling place, and root thee out of the land of the living. Selah.

† Heb. beat thee down.

6 The righteous also shall see, and fear, and shall laugh at him:

---

flicted tended to give him a right understanding of things, and to work it deep into him. Mudge.

7. Purge me with hyssop, &c.] As the priest is wont to denote unclean persons to be cleansed, by sprinkling them with water mixed with the ashes of an heifer, which sprinkling was performed with a bunch of hyssop; so be Thou pleased to absolve me from the guilt of the great sins I have been guilty of, and restore me to Thy former favour. Dr. Wells.

8. Make me to hear &c.] Renew the joy of my heart, in the comfortable assurance of Thy forgiveness; that so my soul, which is now dejected and justly grieved for my sin, may find cause of rejoicing in Thee. Bp. Hall.

11. Cast me not away &c.] The soul that is truly penitent dreads nothing but the thought of being rejected from the "presence," and deserted by the "Spirit" of God. This is the most deplorable effect of sin; but it is one that in general, perhaps, is the least considered and regarded of all others. Bp. Horne.

12. — and uphold me with thy free spirit.] He prays to be preserved and continued in a state of salvation by the Spirit of God, which might enable him to act as became a prophet and a king, free from base desires and enslaving lusts. Bp. Horne.

14 Deliver me from bloodguiltiness,] Deliver me from the punishment due to this crying sin, the murder of a trusty servant, and of several of my servants; 2 Sam. xi. 17. Bp. Patrick.

16. — thou desirest not sacrifice;] This is not to be understood absolutely and universally, as appears from ver. 19, but comparatively. See the note on Psalm xl. 6. Poole.

18. — build thou the walls of Jerusalem.] Be favourable to Jerusalem, and let its walls, which I have begun to build, 2 Sam. v. 9, be perfectly finished; 1 Kings iii. 1. Bp. Patrick.

19. — sacrifices of righteousness,] That is, such sacrifices as are offered with true piety of heart. Rosenmüller.

From the third verse of this Psalm, we should learn to correct a propensity in the human mind, which is very general and very natural, yet, at the same time, unfavourable in a high degree to the Christian character; namely, that when we look back upon our lives, our recollection dwells too much upon our virtues; our sins are not, as they ought to be, before us; we think too much of our good qualities, or good actions, too little of our crimes, our corruptions, our fallings off and declensions from God's laws, our defects and weaknesses. But this is not the true Christian disposition, and it is dangerous to our salvation. We ought rather to let our "sins be ever before us," our omissions, deficiencies, failures, our irregularities of heart and affection, our vices of temper and disposition. These are the things which should occupy our attention, this should be the bent and direction of our thoughts, for they are the thoughts which will bring us to God evangelically. Archdeacon Paley.

Psalm LII. The occasion of this Psalm is to be found in 1 Sam. xxii. where we read, that Doeg, in order to ingratiate himself with Saul, discovered to him those who were confederate with David, particularly Ahimelech: and afterwards, at the desire of Saul, murdered the priests of the Lord. Travell.

Ver. 1. Why boastest thou &c.] The Psalmist thought it strange that any man should value himself for being able to do mischief, when God esteemed it His glory to do good. In vain did Doeg the Edomite boast himself in the mischief he had done, by massacring the innocent priests and their families; since "the goodness of God," which is unchangeable, had decreed the preservation of David. Bp. Horne.

4. — devouring words,] That is, such as are mischievous, and by which the innocent may be destroyed. Rosenmüller.

6. The righteous also shall see, &c.] All good men shall re-

7 Lo, this is the man that made not God his strength; but trusted in the abundance of his riches, and strengthened himself in his ‖ wickedness.

‖ Or, substance.

8 But I am like a green olive tree in the house of God: I trust in the mercy of God for ever and ever.

9 I will praise thee for ever, because thou hast done it: and I will wait on thy name; for it is good before thy saints.

PSALM LIII.

1 David describeth the corruption of a natural man. 4 He convinceth the wicked by the light of their own conscience. 6 He glorieth in the salvation of God.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Mahalath, Maschil, A Psalm of David.

[a] Psal. 14. 1, &c. & 10. 4.

[b] Rom. 3. 10.

THE [a] fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. Corrupt are they, and have done abominable iniquity: [b] there is none that doeth good.

2 God looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, that did seek God.

3 Every one of them is gone back: they are altogether become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

4 Have the workers of iniquity no knowledge? who eat up my people as they eat bread: they have not called upon God.

5 There † were they in great fear, where no fear was: for God hath scattered the bones of him that encampeth against thee: thou hast put them to shame, because God hath despised them.

† Heb. they feared a fear.

6 † Oh that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion! When God bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

† Heb. Who will give salvations, &c.

PSALM LIV.

1 David, complaining of the Ziphims, prayeth for salvation. 4 Upon his confidence in God's help he promiseth sacrifice.

¶ To the chief Musician on Neginoth, Maschil, A Psalm of David, [a] when the Ziphims came and said to Saul, Doth not David hide himself with us?

[a] 1 Sam. 23. 19. & 26. 1.

SAVE me, O God, by thy name, and judge me by thy strength.

2 Hear my prayer, O God; give ear to the words of my mouth.

3 For strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul: they have not set God before them. Selah.

4 Behold, God is mine helper: the LORD is with them that uphold my soul.

5 He shall reward evil unto † mine enemies: cut them off in thy truth.

† Heb. those that observe me.

6 I will freely sacrifice unto thee: I will praise thy name, O LORD; for it is good.

---

mark the righteous judgment of God, and shall be confirmed in their fear of offending Him; they shall deride thy folly and disappointed ambition, and shall say; &c. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

8. But I am like &c.] As for me, notwithstanding his crafty designs against me, I am, in comparison of him, in a flourishing condition; my unchangeable trust in the goodness of God shall make me grow and increase, like a fruitful olive tree in the courts of God's house. Travell.

9. — for it is good before thy saints.] That is, it is a goodly thing, it carries a good appearance, it looks well before the friends of God, to see me praising Him, and putting my trust in Him. Mudge.

It very much concerns us to follow the wise man's counsel, and "to weigh our words in a balance, and make a door and bar for our mouth;" Ecclus. xxviii. 25. If licentious and unbridled thoughts will, in spite of all our watches and guard, steal into our hearts, let us be sure that no unruly words break out of our mouth; and if, in the variety of our language and expressions, some inconsiderate, rash, and imprudent words escape from us, at least let them not be malicious and detracting words, to wound the credit and good name of our neighbours: let us inform and instruct the weak without insolence, and reprove and advise the wilful without bitterness; let us do all good offices towards advancing the reputation of those who desire to advance God's glory and the publick peace, and all charitable offices towards those who are in misery and distress, by what means soever they fell into it; let us endeavour to strengthen all men with our mouth, and that our speech may drop upon them: and then God will bless and protect, and prosper us, against all the violence and all the calumnies which aim at our destruction. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LIII. This Psalm of David was composed by him at first, as it stands Psalm XIV. and on the rebellion of Absalom. But probably upon the new revolt made presently after the death of Absalom, by the Israelites that followed Sheba, David made two or three variations in Psalm XIV. and so used it upon this new occasion. Dr. Wells.

— Mahalath,] This word probably denotes some kind of musical instrument, but of what kind it is difficult now to determine. Rosenmüller, Edwards.

5. — for God hath scattered the bones] God hath destroyed him who thought to oppress thee, O my soul, and his bones lie scattered on the ground. See 2 Sam. xx. 6—22. Bp. Patrick.

Psalm LIV. This Psalm was composed by David at a time of his great distress, and seasonable deliverance afforded him by God, when, hiding himself in the wilderness of Ziph, the Ziphites made discovery to Saul, and he went with forces to seek him, but gave over the pursuit, by reason of the Philistines invading his land. See 1 Sam. xxiii. 14. to the end. Dr. Hammond. The application to Christ and to Christians is plain and easy; for which reason our Church hath appointed this Psalm to be read on Good Friday. Bp. Horne.

— Neginoth,] See the note upon the title to the fourth Psalm.

Ver. 1. — judge me] Do me justice. Green.

3. For strangers are risen up against me,] The Ziphites, though David's countrymen, acted the part of "strangers," or "aliens," in seeking to deliver him up to his unjust and cruel enemy. Bp. Horne.

—— they have not set God before them.] They have cast off all regard to His presence and authority, and all fear of His judgments. Poole.

6. I will freely sacrifice unto thee:] I will sacrifice to Thee a voluntary oblation. Dr. Hammond.

The prayers of great men in distress, and their thanksgivings

7 For he hath delivered me out of all trouble: and mine eye hath seen his desire upon mine enemies.

PSALM LV.

1 David in his prayer complaineth of his fearful case. 9 He prayeth against his enemies, of whose wickedness and treachery he complaineth. 16 He comforteth himself in God's preservation of him, and confusion of his enemies.

1023. ¶ To the chief Musician on Neginoth, Maschil, A Psalm of David.

GIVE ear to my prayer, O God; and hide not thyself from my supplication.

2 Attend unto me, and hear me: I mourn in my complaint, and make a noise;

3 Because of the voice of the enemy, because of the oppression of the wicked: for they cast iniquity upon me, and in wrath they hate me.

4 My heart is sore pained within me: and the terrors of death are fallen upon me.

5 Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me, and horror hath † overwhelmed me.

† Heb. covered me.

6 And I said, Oh that I had wings like a dove! for then would I fly away, and be at rest.

7 Lo, then would I wander far off, and remain in the wilderness. Selah.

8 I would hasten my escape from the windy storm and tempest.

9 Destroy, O LORD, and divide their tongues: for I have seen violence and strife in the city.

10 Day and night they go about it upon the walls thereof: mischief also and sorrow are in the midst of it.

11 Wickedness is in the midst thereof: deceit and guile depart not from her streets.

12 For it was not an enemy that reproached me; then I could have borne it: neither was it he that hated me that did magnify himself against me; then I would have hid myself from him:

13 But it was thou, † a man mine equal, my guide, and mine acquaintance.

† Heb. a man according to my rank.

14 † We took sweet counsel together, and walked unto the house of God in company.

† Heb. Who sweetened counsel.

15 Let death seize upon them, and let them go down quick into ‖ hell: for wickedness is in their dwellings, and among them.

‖ Or, the grave.

16 As for me, I will call upon God; and the LORD shall save me.

17 Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud: and he shall hear my voice.

18 He hath delivered my soul in peace from the battle that was against me: for there were many with me.

19 God shall hear, and afflict them, even he that abideth of old. Selah. ‖ Because they have no changes, therefore they fear not God.

‖ Or, with whom also there be no changes, yet they fear not God.

---

after great deliverances, have always been matter of uncommon delight to curiosity, and men of serious and religious spirits. Nor does the glory of any great man ever shine out to their eyes in half the lustre, as when they behold him upon his knees, lifting up his eyes, or stretching out his hands to heaven, or, what is yet greater, prostrating himself before it, in humiliation and acknowledgment. Then is the hero seen in all his dignity! Dr. Delaney. The royal Prophet here teaches us by his example that prayer should always be our refuge in time of danger; that, even when men have conspired our ruin, if we call upon God with a pure heart, He will protect us; and that, when He has granted our prayers, we ought to bless Him with all our soul. Ostervald.

Psalm LV. It is generally imagined that David composed this Psalm, when he was forced to flee suddenly from Jerusalem, on the breaking out of Absalom's rebellion, and the treachery of his principal counsellor Ahithophel, of whom he complains bitterly in the fourteenth verse. Travell.

Ver. 2, 3. Attend unto me, &c.] Attend unto me, and answer me, while in my complaint I weep and cry aloud, because of the insults of the enemy, and the oppression of the wicked: for they lay iniquity to my charge, and bear me a violent hatred. Green.

4. — the terrors of death are fallen upon me.] That is, I am brought to the very brink of destruction. Bp. Wilson.

8. I would hasten my escape &c.] I would hasten away to shelter myself from this fierce persecution, which like a sudden storm threatens utterly to destroy me. Bp. Patrick.

9. Destroy, O Lord, &c.] In these words, David beseeches God to divide, confound, and bring to nought, the counsels of an iniquitous faction; for so in the history we find him saying, "O Lord, I pray Thee, turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness;" 2 Sam. xv. 31. Bp. Horne.

10. Day and night they go &c.] The "violence and strife," mentioned at the conclusion of the preceding verse, are here described as going their rounds, like an armed watch upon the walls, to guard rebellion, which had taken up its residence in the heart of the city, from the attacks of loyalty, right, and justice, driven with the king beyond Jordan. Bp. Horne.

12—14. For it was not &c.] The many aggravating circumstances of Ahithophel's treason against David, and that of Judas against Christ, are here strongly marked. The treachery of pretended friends is generally to the Church, as it was to her Lord, the beginning of sorrows. Ingratitude, malice, and falsehood, are ingredients that must always meet in the composition of a traitor. Bp. Horne.

15. Let death seize &c.] Let a sudden and unexpected death overwhelm them. Rosenmüller. Or, this passage may be considered as a prediction (see the note on Psalm v. 10.) of the tragical fate of Ahithophel, and of those who followed Absalom. The sudden destruction of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, who, for stirring up a rebellion against Moses and Aaron, "went down alive into the pit," seems here alluded to. Bp. Horne.

18. — many with me.] Namely, God and His holy angels. Dr. Wells.

19. — Because they have no changes, &c.] They experience no change of fortune, and therefore will not fear God. Green. Or,

20 He hath put forth his hands against such as be at peace with him: † he hath broken his covenant.

† Heb. he hath profaned.

21 The words of his mouth were smoother than butter, but war was in his heart: his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords.

22 [a] Cast thy ‖ burden upon the LORD, and he shall sustain thee: he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.

[a] Psal. 37. 5. Mat. 6. 25. Luke 12. 22. 1 Pet. 5. 7.
‖ Or, gift.

23 But thou, O God, shalt bring them down into the pit of destruction: † bloody and deceitful men † shall not live out half their days; but I will trust in thee.

† Heb. men of bloods and deceit.
† Heb. shall not half their days.

PSALM LVI.

1 David, praying to God in confidence of his word, complaineth of his enemies. 9 He professeth his confidence in God's word, and promiseth to praise him.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Jonath-elem-rechokim, ‖ Michtam of David, when the [a] Philistines took him in Gath.

‖ Or, A golden Psalm of David.
[a] 1 Sam. 21. 11.

BE merciful unto me, O God: for man would swallow me up; he fighting daily oppresseth me.

2 † Mine enemies would daily swallow me up: for they be many that fight against me, O thou most high.

† Heb. Mine observers.

3 What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee.

4 In God I will praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me.

5 Every day they wrest my words: all their thoughts are against me for evil.

6 They gather themselves together, they hide themselves, they mark my steps, when they wait for my soul.

7 Shall they escape by iniquity? in thine anger cast down the people, O God.

8 Thou tellest my wanderings: put thou my tears into thy bottle: are they not in thy book?

9 When I cry unto thee, then shall mine enemies turn back: this I know; for God is for me.

10 In God will I praise his word: in the LORD will I praise his word.

11 In God have I put my trust: I will not be afraid what man can do unto me.

12 Thy vows are upon me, O God: I will render praises unto thee.

13 For thou hast delivered my soul from death: wilt not thou deliver my feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the light of the living?

PSALM LVII.

1 David in prayer fleeing unto God complaineth of his dangerous case. 7 He encourageth himself to praise God.

Because there is no reformation in them, neither do they fear God. Street, Archdeacon Randolph.

20. He hath put forth &c.] This perfidious traitor hath basely lifted up his hands to injure those who were at peace and friendship with him; he hath broken his promise and oath of fidelity. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

21. — drawn swords.] That is, pernicious in their design and consequences. Poole.

22. Cast thy burden &c.] The conclusion of the whole matter is, that amidst all dangers and adversities, whensoever they oppress us, we are to put our full trust and confidence only in His mercy, who delivered David, and the Son of David, out of all their troubles. Bp. Horne.

The distresses and dangers to which we are subject are hardly remediable, when they who by intimate conversation know our nature, and to whom we have communicated our purposes, counsels, and designs, prove treacherous and false to us, and concur with the envy and malice of our enemies; and as the danger is then almost inevitable, so the grief and agony that attends it is sharper and more troublesome than the danger; it bereaves us of that composure, and temper, and serenity of mind, which usually relieves us in all other accidents. But our comfort is, though we are least able to help ourselves in such exigencies, and against such distresses, we have an Helper, if we call faithfully upon Him, who sees the pangs we suffer, the agony and fear we endure, and hears the just voice of our lamentations. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LVI. — Jonath-elem-rechokim,] That is, the silent dove afar off. David thus styles himself on account of his being at that time in a far country. Dr. Wells. Or, these words may be the name of some well known song, to the musick of which this is directed to be sung. Mudge.

Ver. 1. — he fighting &c.] He is daily fighting against me, that he may crush me. Green.

4. In God I will praise his word,] By the assistance of God I shall be enabled to praise Him for the performance of His promises. Bp. Patrick.

8. Thou tellest my wanderings:] David's whole life, from his victory over Goliath till the death of Saul, was continually spent in wandering from place to place. Dr. Chandler.

—— put thou my tears into thy bottle:] This expression seems to intimate, that the custom of putting tears into the lacrymal urns, so well known among the Romans, was more anciently in use among the Hebrews. These urns were of different materials; some of glass, some of earth; they were also of various forms or shapes. They were placed on the sepulchres of the deceased, as a memorial of the distress and affection of their surviving relations and friends. The meaning therefore of the expression, "put Thou my tears into Thy bottle," will be, "let my distress, and the tears I have shed in consequence of it, be ever before Thee; excite Thy kind remembrance of me, and plead with Thee to grant me the relief I stand in need of." Dr. Chandler, Calmet.

12. Thy vows are upon me, O God:] That is, I am bound by vows to Thee.

13. — wilt not thou deliver my feet from falling,] This should be rendered as it is in the Liturgy, "and my feet from falling."

By the example of David we are here taught, that, to whatever extremity the children of God are brought, and when even force and artifice are employed against them, they are not moved; that, so firm is their trust in God, they do not fear what man can do unto them; and that even before their deliverance they rejoice in the Lord, and pay to Him their vows and thanksgivings. Ostervald.

Psalm LVII. The Church, by her appointment of this as one of the proper Psalms for Easter-day, hath instructed us to transfer the ideas to the resurrection of Christ from the grave. Bp. Horne.

‖ Or, Destroy not. [a] 1 Sam. 24. 1.

¶ To the chief Musician, ‖ Al-taschith, Michtam of David, [a] when he fled from Saul in the cave.

BE merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me: for my soul trusteth in thee: yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge, until these calamities be overpast.

2 I will cry unto God most high; unto God that performeth all things for me.

3 He shall send from heaven, and save me ‖ from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. Selah. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth.

‖ Or, he reproacheth him that would swallow me up.

4 My soul is among lions: and I lie even among them that are set on fire, even the sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword.

5 Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth.

[b] Psal. 7. 16. & 9. 15.

6 [b] They have prepared a net for my steps; my soul is bowed down: they have digged a pit before me, into the midst whereof they are fallen themselves. Selah.

[c] Psal. 108. 1, &c. ‖ Or, prepared.

7 [c] My heart is ‖ fixed, O God, my heart is fixed: I will sing and give praise.

8 Awake up, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp: I myself will awake early.

9 I will praise thee, O LORD, among the people: I will sing unto thee among the nations.

[d] Psal. 36. 5. & 108. 4.

10 [d] For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds.

11 Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: let thy glory be above all the earth.

PSALM LVIII.

1 David reproveth wicked judges, 3 describeth the nature of the wicked, 6 devoteth them to God's judgments, 10 whereat the righteous shall rejoice.

¶ To the chief Musician ‖ Al-taschith, Michtam of David.

‖ Or, Destroy not, A golden Psalm of David.

DO ye indeed speak righteousness, O congregation? do ye judge uprightly, O ye sons of men?

2 Yea, in heart ye work wickedness; ye weigh the violence of your hands in the earth.

3 The wicked are estranged from the womb: they go astray † as soon as they be born, speaking lies.

† Heb. from the belly.

4 Their poison is † like the poison of a serpent: they are like the deaf ‖ adder that stoppeth her ear;

† Heb. according to the likeness. ‖ Or, asp.

5 Which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, ‖ charming never so wisely.

‖ Or, be the charmer never so cunning.

6 Break their teeth, O God, in their mouth: break out the great teeth of the young lions, O LORD.

7 Let them melt away as waters which run continually: when he bendeth his bow to shoot his arrows, let them be as cut in pieces.

8 As a snail which melteth, let every one of them pass away: like the untimely birth of a woman, that they may not see the sun.

9 Before your pots can feel the thorns,

— Al-taschith,] "Destroy not," seems to be the beginning of a song, to the musick of which this Psalm is directed to be sung. Mudge.

Ver. 3. — God shall send forth &c.] God, by His deliverance of me, shall manifest His lovingkindness, and the truth of His promises. Travell.

4. My soul is among lions: &c.] I am beset by cruel and bloody enemies, whose hearts are inflamed with deadly malice against me; even men given over to wickedness, whose mouths are full of mischievous slanders and reproaches, wherewith they endeavour to wound me to the death. Bp. Hall.

8. Awake up, my glory; &c.] Awake, O my tongue, awake; I will also awake early the psaltery and harp. Green.

10. — thy mercy is great &c.] Thy mercy and truth extend over the whole universe. Travell.

Though we may not be exposed to dangers like those of David formerly, and therefore cannot apply to ourselves all we read in this Psalm, we may nevertheless from hence conclude, in general, that in our necessities we should draw nigh to God, being fully persuaded that He will not fail to send us help from heaven, and deliver us. Ostervald.

Psalm LVIII. A Psalm of David, wherein he reproves the judges, the princes of Saul's court, for passing an unrighteous sentence upon him, probably, as guilty of seeking Saul's life; and begs of God to defeat their unjust attempts to destroy him, and openly to shew Himself the Protector of the innocent. Green.

Ver. 1. Do ye indeed speak &c.] O ye assembly of princes and rulers, have you pronounced a righteous sentence against me, and judged me uprightly according to your consciences? Bp. Patrick, Travell.

3. The wicked are estranged &c.] Such is their wickedness, that they were depraved from the very womb; going astray as soon as they could go; and telling lies as soon as they could speak. Travell.

4, 5. — like the deaf adder &c.] Allusion is here made to that sort of serpents, which, according to some naturalists, were able to make themselves deaf, in order to resist the effect of charms employed for the purpose of lulling them asleep and taking them. The meaning is, these incorrigible persons resolve never to hearken to any thing which may induce them to quit their evil ways. Dr. Hammond. The notion of charming serpents with certain sounds, or by uttering particular words, was formerly extremely general, and still prevails over many parts of Barbary. Dr. Shaw.

7. Let them melt &c.] Let them fall away one from the other till they come to nothing, as waters, which not being contained within any vessel or bank, run continually, and spread themselves further and further, till they are all lost or sucked up into the earth. Dr. Wells.

8. As a snail which &c.] As a snail, which melts or spends itself the further it goes, so let every one of them that are my enemies pass away, or miscarry in their designs. Dr. Wells.

9. Before your pots &c.] Perhaps these words should rather be translated, "Before your pots can feel the thorns, the tempest he shall take them away as with a whirlwind, † both living, and in his wrath.

† Heb. as living, as wrath.

10 The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance: he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked.

11 So that a man shall say, Verily there † is a reward for the righteous: verily he is a God that judgeth in the earth.

† Heb. fruit of the, &c.

PSALM LIX.

1 David prayeth to be delivered from his enemies. 6 He complaineth of their cruelty. 8 He trusteth in God. 11 He prayeth against them. 16 He praiseth God.

¶ To the chief Musician, ‖ Al-taschith, Michtam of David; [a] when Saul sent, and they watched the house to kill him.

‖ Or, Destroy not, A golden Psalm of David.

[a] 1 Sam. 19. 11.

DELIVER me from mine enemies, O my God: † defend me from them that rise up against me.

† Heb. set me on high.

2 Deliver me from the workers of iniquity, and save me from bloody men.

3 For, lo, they lie in wait for my soul: the mighty are gathered against me; not for my transgression, nor for my sin, O LORD.

4 They run and prepare themselves without my fault: awake † to help me, and behold.

† Heb. to meet me.

5 Thou therefore, O LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel, awake to visit all the heathen: be not merciful to any wicked transgressors. Selah.

6 They return at evening: they make a noise like a dog, and go round about the city.

7 Behold, they belch out with their mouth: swords are in their lips: for [b] who, say they, doth hear?

[b] Psal. 10. 11. & 73. 11. & 94. 7.

8 But thou, O LORD, shalt laugh at them; thou shalt have all the heathen in derision.

9 Because of his strength will I wait upon thee: for God is † my defence.

† Heb. my high place.

10 The God of my mercy shall prevent me: God shall let me see my desire upon † mine enemies.

† Heb. mine observers.

11 Slay them not, lest my people forget: scatter them by thy power; and bring them down, O LORD our shield.

12 For the sin of their mouth and the words of their lips let them even be taken in their pride: and for cursing and lying which they speak.

13 Consume them in wrath, consume them, that they may not be: and let them know that God ruleth in Jacob unto the ends of the earth. Selah.

14 And at evening let them return; and let them make a noise like a dog, and go round about the city.

15 Let them wander up and down † for meat, ‖ and grudge if they be not satisfied.

† Heb. to eat.

‖ Or, if they be not satisfied, then they will stay all night.

16 But I will sing of thy power; yea, I will sing aloud of thy mercy in the morning: for thou hast been my defence and refuge in the day of my trouble.

17 Unto thee, O my strength, will I sing: for God is my defence, and the God of my mercy.

---

shall bear them away." Briars and thorns, when set on fire, are frequently applied in Scripture to represent the rage of the wicked; violent, yet impotent, and of no long continuance. They are applied also to the wicked themselves, as useless and unprofitable, proper objects of God's wrath, to be burned up or driven away by the wind. Both these ideas seem to be joined in the above verse. Bp. Lowth.

10. — the vengeance:] The just judgment of God upon wicked men. Bp. Wilson.

—— he shall wash &c.] This is an allusion to a great conquerour, who dips his feet in the blood of his enemies as he passes over their carcases. Bp. Patrick.

In general, we see here that all those who harden themselves in their evil ways, without hearkening to the voice of God, are threatened with His vengeance. We learn also from this Psalm, that though the wicked prosper, and good men are afflicted for a while, yet they will always have reason to acknowledge, "that there is a reward for the righteous, and that there is a God who judgeth the earth." Ostervald.

Psalm LIX. ver. 5. — awake to visit &c.] Awake to punish all those wretches, who, though they call themselves Thy people, yet are as wicked as even the heathen: be not merciful in sparing longer any such notoriously wicked transgressors. Dr. Wells.

6. They return at evening: &c.] The messengers of Saul, coming after David in the evening, besetting his house, and blocking up the approaches to it, are here compared to a set of hungry dogs in quest of their prey. Bp. Horne. See note on ver. 14.

7. Behold, they belch out &c.] Behold, their hearts are full of malice, which bursts out at their mouths in open threats to kill me; for, Who, say they, shall call us to account for it? Bp. Patrick.

9. Because of his strength &c.] It is probable that the beginning of this verse should be the same with that of verse 17. Bp. Lowth.

10. — shall prevent me:] That is, shall make way for my timely escape. Dr. Wells.

11. Slay them not, &c.] Do not utterly destroy them, lest my countrymen lose the remembrance of it: but let them remain a just monument of Thine anger. Travell.

14. — like a dog, &c.] Dogs are found in great numbers in the cities of the East, and crowd the streets. They do not appear to belong to any particular persons, as our dogs do, nor to be fed distinctly by such as might claim some interest in them, but get their food as they can. Harmer.

15. — and grudge if they be not satisfied.] And murmur because they are not satisfied. Dr. Chandler. See the margin.

Nothing gives us such support, and administers such confidence and courage to expect a deliverance from God Almighty out of any persecution or danger that invades us, as the consciousness of innocence. Not that we may conclude, that guiltless men cannot be oppressed, even to the loss of their lives, as well as their fortunes; or, that evil men cannot prevail against those

PSALM LX.

1 David, complaining to God of former judgment, 4 now, upon better hope, prayeth for deliverance. 6 Comforting himself in God's promises, he craveth that help whereon he trusteth.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Shushaneduth, ‖ Michtam of David, to teach; [a] when he strove with Aram-naharaim and with Aram-zobah, when Joab returned, and smote of Edom in the valley of salt twelve thousand.

‖ Or, A golden Psalm.
[a] 2 Sam. 8. 3, 13. 1 Chron. 18. 3. about 1040.

O GOD, [b] thou hast cast us off, thou hast † scattered us, thou hast been displeased; O turn thyself to us again.

[b] Ps. 44. 9.
† Heb. broken.

2 Thou hast made the earth to tremble; thou hast broken it: heal the breaches thereof; for it shaketh.

3 Thou hast shewed thy people hard things: thou hast made us to drink the wine of astonishment.

4 Thou hast given a banner to them that feared thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth. Selah.

5 [c] That thy beloved may be delivered; save with thy right hand, and hear me.

[c] Psal. 108. 6, &c.

6 God hath spoken in his holiness; I will rejoice, I will divide Shechem, and mete out the valley of Succoth.

7 Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine; Ephraim also is the strength of mine head; Judah is my lawgiver;

8 Moab is my washpot; over Edom will I cast out my shoe: Philistia, ‖ triumph thou because of me.

‖ Or, triumph thou over me. [by an irony.]

9 Who will bring me into the † strong city? who will lead me into Edom?

† Heb. city of strength.

10 Wilt not thou, O God, which [d] hadst cast us off? and thou, O God, which didst not go out with our armies?

[d] Psal. 44. 9. & 108. 11.

11 Give us help from trouble: for vain is the † help of man.

† Heb. salvation.

12 Through God we shall do valiantly: for he it is that shall tread down our enemies.

PSALM LXI.

1 David fleeth to God upon his former experience. 4 He voweth perpetual service unto him, because of his promises.

---

who are less evil than they: we may not only be very innocent in those particulars of which we are condemned and brought into misery, but therefore condemned, because we are known to be innocent; and yet we may be guilty enough in other particulars, to deserve a greater punishment and misery than we undergo: and since every sin is in opposition to God's will and directions, it is His usual method to punish sinners by others who are most opposite to the sins they practised. Our deliverance therefore may be for a time deferred, till the fire of adversity hath well purged the dross and corruption which our prosperity had contracted, and we shall then find, that our constancy and patience in suffering hath made God propitious to us, and provided a crown of glory for our reward. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LX. — Shushan-eduth,] The meaning of this word is quite uncertain.

— to teach;] Either, that David might teach posterity what things he had done; or, implying that this Psalm was given to the chief musician, that he might teach the inferiour ones. Rosenmüller.

— Aram] The Syrians; so called, because they were the descendants of Aram the son of Shem, Gen. x. 22. Poole.

— naharaim] Those Syrians that lived between the two rivers Tigris and Euphrates. Bp. Patrick.

— Aram-zobah,] Those Syrians that lived adjoining to the former, in that part of Syria called Zobah, 2 Sam. viii. 5. Bp. Patrick.

— when Joab returned, &c.] See 1 Kings xi. 15, 16.

Ver. 2. Thou hast made the earth to tremble; &c.] These expressions are figurative, and allude to the convulsions of the state, which had lately happened in the war between the house of Saul and David. Street.

3. Thou hast shewed &c.] Thou hast inflicted grievous punishments upon us. Bp. Patrick.

—— thou hast made us to drink &c.] Thou hast filled us with no less horrour and trembling, than men who are intoxicated with strong and stupifying drink. Poole.

4. Thou hast given a banner &c.] But now, Thou hast granted the desires of Thy faithful servants according to Thy promise; Thou hast united them under me their king, to whom they should all repair as soldiers do to their standard. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

6. — in his holiness;] In His sanctuary. Mudge.

—— I will divide Shechem, &c.] The valley of Succoth lay on the east side of Jordan in the tribe of Gad; and so probably did the Shechem here mentioned. At this time they both seem to have been in the hand of the enemy; and David declares here, that, as soon as he had taken them, he would divide them among his own people. Green.

7. Gilead is mine, &c.] Gilead is on my side, and Manasseh is on my side; Ephraim is the helmet of my head; Judah is my sceptre. In this verse the tribes are mentioned, which would accompany him in this expedition. Gilead, as it is here distinguished from Manasseh, must mean the tribe of Gad, which was a very warlike tribe. Ephraim seems to have been fixed upon for his helmet to protect his head, as being the most numerous and warlike tribe. Green.

—— lawgiver;] Or rather, sceptre; the word in the original signifies a ruler's staff, or some ensign of authority. Judah was another very warlike tribe. The patriarch Jacob conveys his prophecy of him under the image of a lion couching upon a sceptre, whom none dare rouse up, Gen. xlix. 9, 10. Here David speaks of this tribe as his sceptre, as the support of his crown and royal dignity. Green.

8. Moab is my washpot; &c.] Meaning, I will reduce these my enemies to the vilest servitude: I will treat Moab as my washpot; I will use the Edomites as slaves, holding forth my shoes that they may pluck them off. Bp. Patrick, Poole.

—— Philistia, triumph thou because of me.] That is, receive me as thy conquerour with demonstrations of joy.

9. Who will bring me &c.] Bozrah, the capital of Idumea, or Edom, was a fortified town, situated on a rock, deemed impregnable. See Obadiah ver. 3. Considering therefore the strength of the adversary, David, by this question, acknowledgeth his own impotency, and the need he had of superiour aid in order to achieve this important conquest. Bp. Horne.

As David in this Psalm celebrates the power and goodness of God, who had assisted His people, and given them the victory over their enemies; so should we learn, that the strength and assistance of man is under all circumstances but vanity, and that there is none but the Lord who can help and deliver us in our distress, and in whom we may safely and perfectly confide. Ostervald.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Neginah, A Psalm of David.

HEAR my cry, O God; attend unto my prayer.

2 From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed: lead me to the rock that is higher than I.

3 For thou hast been a shelter for me, and a strong tower from the enemy.

4 I will abide in thy tabernacle for ever: I will ‖ trust in the covert of thy wings. Selah.

‖ Or, make my refuge.

5 For thou, O God, hast heard my vows: thou hast given me the heritage of those that fear thy name.

6 † Thou wilt prolong the king's life: and his years † as many generations.

† Heb. Thou shalt add days to the days of the king. † Heb. as generation and generation.

7 He shall abide before God for ever: O prepare mercy and truth, which may preserve him.

8 So will I sing praise unto thy name for ever, that I may daily perform my vows.

PSALM LXII.

1 David professing his confidence in God discourageth his enemies. 5 In the same confidence he encourageth the godly. 9 No trust is to be put in worldly things. 11 Power and mercy belong to God.

¶ To the chief Musician, to Jeduthun, A Psalm of David.

1048.

‖ TRULY my soul † waiteth upon God: from him cometh my salvation.

‖ Or, Only. † Heb. is silent.

2 He only is my rock and my salvation; he is my † defence; I shall not be greatly moved.

† Heb. high place.

3 How long will ye imagine mischief against a man? ye shall be slain all of you: as a bowing wall shall ye be, and as a tottering fence.

4 They only consult to cast him down from his excellency: they delight in lies: they bless with their mouth, but they curse † inwardly. Selah.

† Heb. in their inward parts.

5 My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him.

6 He only is my rock and my salvation: he is my defence; I shall not be moved.

7 In God is my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God.

8 Trust in him at all times; ye people, pour out your heart before him: God is a refuge for us. Selah.

9 Surely men of low degree are vanity, and men of high degree are a lie: to be laid in the balance, they are ‖ altogether lighter than vanity.

‖ Or, alike.

10 Trust not in oppression, and become not vain in robbery: if riches increase, set not your heart upon them.

‖ Or, strength. [a] Job 34. 11. Prov. 24. 12. Jer. 32. 19. Ezek. 7. 27. Matt. 16. 27. Rom. 2. 6. 2 Cor. 5. 10. Eph. 6. 8. Col. 3. 25. 1 Pet. 1. 17. Rev. 22. 12.

11 God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that ‖ power belongeth unto God.

12 Also unto thee, O LORD, belongeth mercy: for [a] thou renderest to every man according to his work.

Psalm LXI. ver. 2. From the end of the earth] Meaning, probably, from the remotest part of Judea. Merrick.

—— the rock that is higher than I.] Or, the rock which is too high for me; that is, to a place of safety, which, as without Thee, I am not able to reach, so there my enemies may not be able to approach me. Edwards, Bp. Patrick.

4. — for ever:] As long as I live. Dr. Wells.

5. For thou, O God, &c.] The "vows" of David, made during his banishment, were heard, and he was restored to the possession of his kingdom, in that land which God had given to His people for an heritage. Bp. Horne.

6. — and his years as many generations.] He thus speaks, partly, because his kingdom was not like Saul's, a matter of one age, expiring with his life, but established to him and his descendants: and partly, because Christ, who was to spring from him, should actually in His own person possess the kingdom for ever. Poole.

7. — O prepare &c.] O let Thy goodness and faithfulness ever defend him. Bp. Patrick.

It is a great comfort in all our afflictions and calamities, that He, who is best able to succour and deliver us, is always within the reach of our cry; and though He sits above the cherubim, hears perfectly every groan and prayer we pour out to Him from the lowest dungeon of our prison. Let our enemies cast us as deep as they please into bondage, He will both see and hear us, if we pray to Him with that fervour and devotion with which we ought; and He will interpose some shelter and protection between us and the malice and power of our enemies, till He thinks fit to make our deliverance perfect and complete. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LXII. — Jeduthun,] See the note on the title of the thirty-ninth Psalm.

Ver. 3. How long will ye imagine &c.] The prophet expostulates in this verse with his enemies, for continually plotting against him, and foretels that their destruction will happen suddenly and irremediably, like the downfal of a wall that is in a tottering state, or a stone fence, the parts of which are not cemented together. Bp. Horne.

9. Surely men of low degree &c.] A reason is here assigned why we should at all times "trust in God;" namely, because there is nothing else in which we can trust, which will not in the end deceive us. Weighed in the "balance" of heaven, the power of man to save is less than nothing. Bp. Horne.

10—12. Trust not in oppression, &c.] These three verses are directed to oppressors, not to be too eager after ill-gotten power or riches, nor to place their trust in them, since there are two things confessedly against them, the power and the goodness of God; by which He will be able and willing to do justice to all mankind, to protect His friends, and defeat their enemies. Mudge.

The comforts which David had found, he exhorteth others to seek, in faith and prayer; in such a faith, as fixeth itself on God, when the whole world is against it; and such prayer, as poureth forth all the desires of the soul into the bosom of the Almighty. How often, in repeating the Psalms, do we declare, that "God is our refuge;" yet how very seldom do we recur to Him, as such, in the hour of temptation! Bp. Horne.

PSALM LXIII.

1 David's thirst for God. 4 His manner of blessing God. 9 His confidence of his enemies' destruction, and his own safety.

¶ A Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah.

O GOD, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and † thirsty land, † where no water is;

2 To see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary.

3 Because thy lovingkindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee.

4 Thus will I bless thee while I live: I will lift up my hands in thy name.

5 My soul shall be satisfied as with † marrow and fatness; and my mouth shall praise thee with joyful lips:

6 When I remember thee upon my bed, and meditate on thee in the night watches.

7 Because thou hast been my help, therefore in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice.

8 My soul followeth hard after thee: thy right hand upholdeth me.

9 But those that seek my soul, to destroy it, shall go into the lower parts of the earth.

10 † They shall fall by the sword: they shall be a portion for foxes.

11 But the king shall rejoice in God; every one that sweareth by him shall glory: but the mouth of them that speak lies shall be stopped.

† Heb. weary.
† Heb. without water.
† Heb. fatness.
† Heb. They shall make him run out like water by the hands of the sword.

PSALM LXIV.

1 David prayeth for deliverance, complaining of his enemies. 7 He promiseth himself to see such an evident destruction of his enemies, as the righteous shall rejoice at it.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

HEAR my voice, O God, in my prayer: preserve my life from fear of the enemy.

2 Hide me from the secret counsel of the wicked; from the insurrection of the workers of iniquity:

3 [a] Who whet their tongue like a sword, and bend their bows to shoot their arrows, even bitter words:

4 That they may shoot in secret at the perfect: suddenly do they shoot at him, and fear not.

5 They encourage themselves in an evil ‖ matter: they commune † of laying snares privily; they say, Who shall see them?

6 They search out iniquities; ‖ they accomplish † a diligent search: both the inward thought of every one of them, and the heart, is deep.

7 But God shall shoot at them with an arrow; suddenly † shall they be wounded.

8 So they shall make their own tongue to fall upon themselves: all that see them shall flee away.

9 And all men shall fear, and shall declare the work of God; for they shall wisely consider of his doing.

[a] Psal.11.2.

‖ Or, speech.
† Heb. to hide snares.
‖ Or, we are consumed by that which they have throughly searched.
† Heb. a search searched.
† Heb. their wound shall be.

Psalm LXIII. In this Psalm the royal prophet, an exile in the wilderness, expresses most elegantly the sentiments of tenderness and love. Bp. Lowth.

— when he was in the wilderness of Judah.] He went through that wilderness when he fled from Absalom. Dr. Wells.

Ver. 1. — in a dry and thirsty land,] Probably this should be rendered, as in the Syriack version, "as a dry and thirsty land." Abp. Secker, Bp. Hare.

2. To see thy power &c.] My chief desire is, that I may be restored again to worship Thee before the ark of Thy presence, where Thy glorious Majesty resides among us. Travell.

4. — I will lift up &c.] That is, in prayer and thanksgiving to Thy Divine Majesty. Dr. Wells.

5. My soul shall be satisfied &c.] The greatest dainties cannot give so much satisfaction to the hungry, as I shall enjoy from the employment of singing Thy praises. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

8. — followeth hard after thee:] Cleaveth unto Thee. Green.

9. — the lower parts of the earth.] That is, the grave. Bp. Hall.

10. — a portion for foxes.] See note at Judg. xv. 4.

11. — every one that sweareth by him] That is, every one who invokes His name, worships Him, and makes Him the object of religious reverence and fear; all which is implied in swearing, as an oath is an immediate appeal and solemn act of worship to God. Rosenmüller, Poole, Merrick.

So soon as religion gains that hold and that possession of the heart, which it must do to become the means of our salvation, it enters our thoughts very frequently. We "remember God upon our bed, and meditate on Him in the night watches." Would we therefore know whether we have made, or are making, any advances in Christianity or not? These are the marks which will tell us. Do we think more frequently about religion than we used to do? Do we cherish and entertain these thoughts for a longer continuance than we did? Do they interest us more than formerly? Do they sink deeper? If we perceive this, then, we perceive a change, upon which we may ground our hopes and expectations; if we perceive it not, we have cause for very afflicting apprehensions, that the power of religion hath not yet visited us; cause for deep and fervent intercession with God for the much wanted succour of His Holy Spirit. Archdeacon Paley.

Psalm LXIV. This Psalm was most probably composed by David when he was persecuted by Saul and his associates; from whom he begs of God to protect him; and afterwards foretels that a sudden destruction should sooner or later fall upon them. Edwards. This is one of the Psalms appointed for the service of thanksgiving on the fifth of November.

Ver. 4. — at the perfect:] David thus calls himself, because he was perfectly innocent of what they laid to his charge. Bp. Patrick.

—— suddenly] That is, when he is not aware. Green.

6. They search out &c.] They are ingenious in devising wickedness, and contriving means of executing their bad purposes.

8. So they shall make &c.] They shall cause the mischief of their tongues to fall upon themselves. Green.

9. — shall fear, and shall declare the work of God;] Shall dread the righteous judgments of God, acknowledging it to be His peculiar work of vengeance that befalls them. Dr. Hammond.

10 The righteous shall be glad in the LORD, and shall trust in him; and all the upright in heart shall glory.

PSALM LXV.

1 David praiseth God for his grace, 4 The blessedness of God's chosen by reason of benefits.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm and Song of David.

† Heb. is silent.

PRAISE † waiteth for thee, O God, in Sion: and unto thee shall the vow be performed.

2 O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come.

† Heb. Words, or, Matters of iniquities.

3 † Iniquities prevail against me: as for our transgressions, thou shalt purge them away.

4 Blessed is the man whom thou choosest, and causest to approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts: we shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple.

5 By terrible things in righteousness wilt thou answer us, O God of our salvation; who art the confidence of all the ends of the earth, and of them that are afar off upon the sea:

6 Which by his strength setteth fast the mountains; being girded with power:

7 Which stilleth the noise of the seas, the noise of their waves, and the tumult of the people.

8 They also that dwell in the uttermost parts are afraid at thy tokens: thou makest the outgoings of the morning and evening ‖ to rejoice.

‖ Or, to sing.

9 Thou visitest the earth, and ‖ waterest it: thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water: thou preparest them corn, when thou hast so provided for it.

‖ Or, after thou hadst made it to desire rain.

10 Thou waterest the ridges thereof abundantly: ‖ thou settlest the furrows thereof: † thou makest it soft with showers: thou blessest the springing thereof.

‖ Or, thou causest rain to descend into the furrows thereof.

11 Thou crownest † the year with thy goodness; and thy paths drop fatness.

† Heb. thou dissolvest it.

12 They drop upon the pastures of the wilderness: and the little hills † rejoice on every side.

† Heb. the year of thy goodness.

13 The pastures are clothed with flocks; the valleys also are covered over with corn; they shout for joy, they also sing.

† Heb. are girded with joy.

PSALM LXVI.

1 David exhorteth to praise God, 5 to observe his great works, 8 to bless him for his gracious benefits. 12 He voweth for himself religious service to God. 16 He declareth God's special goodness to himself.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Song or Psalm.

† Heb. all the earth.

MAKE a joyful noise unto God, † all ye lands:

2 Sing forth the honour of his name: make his praise glorious.

Diligently to mark, and carefully to treasure up in our minds the special providences of the Almighty, is the way to preserve and nourish our faith and hope in Him: it furnishes the grounds of our thankfulness and praise; it stirs up our finest feelings and very best affections towards Him, holy joy, humble reverence, and hearty love; it supports us under all our sufferings, and affords us comfort in all our sorrows. Bp. Horne.

Psalm LXV. This Psalm is a thankful commemoration of God's mercies and deliverances; written probably on the occasion of His restoring plenty, after the three years' famine, 2 Sam. xxi. Dr. Hammond. How graceful and animated is that rich and flourishing picture of nature which is exhibited in this Psalm: when the prophet, with a fertility of expression correspondent to the subject, praises the beneficence of the Deity in watering the earth and making it fruitful! Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 1. Praise waiteth &c.] It becomes us, O God, to praise Thee in Thy sanctuary, and to pay the vows which we made unto Thee in the time of our distress. Bp. Patrick.

4. Blessed is the man &c.] How happy is the man whom Thou hast chosen, and called to the privilege of being continually employed in Thy service! they, who enjoy this privilege, have abundant satisfaction in those blessings which are dispensed to them from Thy holy habitation. Travell.

5. By terrible things] "O God of our salvation, Thou in Thy righteousness answerest us by doing awful things: Thou art the confidence of the remotest parts of the earth and the sea." By "terrible" or "awful things" are meant the works of God's providence, mentioned in the following verses. Green.

8. They also that dwell] The meaning is, that the most distant and barbarous people behold the signs of God's power and goodness with wonder and amazement. Travell.

—— the outgoings &c.] The successive courses of the morning and evening; or of the sun and moon, which go forth at those times, thereby making the morning and evening; both of which are said to rejoice poetically, because they give men occasion of rejoicing. Poole.

9. — the river of God,] The clouds, those reservoirs of water which are opened and shut at God's pleasure, are here called "the river of God;" by showers from which He refresheth the earth. Green.

10. — thou settlest the furrows thereof:] See the margin.

11. — and thy paths] God is here represented as going the circuit of the heavens, as making the clouds His chariot. See Job xxii. 14. and Psalm civ. 3. Dr. Kennicott.

The happy effects of God's visiting the earth with rain, are vallies covered with corn, verdant meads, and thriving flocks. All these ideas, in the prophetical Scriptures, are frequently transferred to the times of refreshment and consolation, of peace and fruitfulness, in the church; which breaks forth into joy, in the one case, as the world is always ready to do in the other. Manifold and marvellous, O Lord, are Thy works, whether of nature, or of grace; surely in wisdom and lovingkindness hast Thou made them all; the earth, in every sense, is full of Thy riches! Bp. Horne.

Psalm LXVI. This Psalm is a solemn invocation to all the world to celebrate the wonderful works of God, as well in the general course of His providence, as for His miracles in favour of the Israelites. Travell. It is introduced in our Forms of Prayer to be used at Sea, as a thanksgiving after a storm.

Ver. 2. — make his praise glorious.] That is, shew forth His praise with due honour and glory. Bp. Hare.

3 Say unto God, How terrible art thou in thy works! through the greatness of thy ‖ Or, yield feigned obedience. power shall thine enemies ‖ † submit themselves unto thee.
† Heb. lie. 4 All the earth shall worship thee, and shall sing unto thee; they shall sing to thy name. Selah.

5 Come and see the works of God: he is terrible in his doing toward the children of men.

6 He turned the sea into dry land: they went through the flood on foot: there did we rejoice in him.

7 He ruleth by his power for ever; his eyes behold the nations: let not the rebellious exalt themselves. Selah.

8 O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard:

† Heb. putteth. 9 Which † holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved.

10 For thou, O God, hast proved us: thou hast tried us, as silver is tried.

11 Thou broughtest us into the net; thou laidst affliction upon our loins.

12 Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads; we went through fire and through water: but thou broughtest us † Heb. moist. out into a † wealthy place.

13 I will go into thy house with burnt offerings: I will pay thee my vows, † Heb. opened. 14 Which my lips have † uttered, and my mouth hath spoken, when I was in trouble.

15 I will offer unto thee burnt sacrifices
† Heb. marrow. of † fatlings, with the incense of rams; I will offer bullocks with goats. Selah.

16 Come and hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare what he hath done for my soul.

17 I cried unto him with my mouth, and he was extolled with my tongue.

18 If I regard iniquity in my heart, the LORD will not hear me:

19 But verily God hath heard me; he hath attended to the voice of my prayer.

20 Blessed be God, which hath not turned away my prayer, nor his mercy from me.

PSALM LXVII.

1 A prayer for the enlargement of God's kingdom, 3 to the joy of the people, 6 and the increase of God's blessings.

¶ To the chief Musician on Neginoth, A Psalm or Song.

GOD be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine † upon us. † Heb. with us.
Selah.

2 That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations.

3 Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee.

4 O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and † govern the nations upon † Heb. lead. earth. Selah.

5 Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee.

6 Then shall the earth yield her increase; and God, even our own God, shall bless us.

7 God shall bless us; and all the ends of the earth shall fear him.

---

5. — he is terrible &c.] Astonishing in the works and counsels of His providence. Bp. Patrick.

6. He turned the sea &c.] The prophet, after inviting men to contemplate "the works of God," sets before them for that purpose two great miracles wrought for Israel, namely, the division of the Red sea, and that of the river Jordan; by the former they escaped Egypt, by the latter they entered Canaan. Bp. Horne.

9. — suffereth not our feet to be moved.] Guards us from falling. Merrick.

11. — into the net;] That is, into the power of our enemies. Dr. Wells.

12. Thou hast caused &c.] Thou hast caused us to be miserably trampled upon by our scornful enemies; and hast put us to all manner of hard trials; but at last, Thou hast settled us in a quiet plenty. Bp. Hall.

15. — with the incense of rams;] With the smoke of the fat of rams.

18. If I regard iniquity &c.] Inwardly regard and cherish iniquity. Bp. Horne.

If a virtuous and pious life were to receive no reward and advantage in the next world, it were to be chosen for the very pleasure and comfort it administers to us in this: there being no delight equal to that which a man feels from doing well; and consequently no joy worthy to be named with that which possesses a man, when he is contemplating the greatness and glory of his Creator, and making due acknowledgments for the blessings and deliverances he hath received from His divine providence and mercy. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LXVII. This Psalm seems to allude to, or rather to foretel, the incarnation of Christ, and the calling of the Gentiles, when all the nations of the earth should partake of the heavenly blessing, and become the servants of the Lord. Travell. It forms a part of our Evening Service, to be read occasionally after the second lesson; and is also introduced into the Marriage Service.

Ver. 2. That thy way &c.] The sense of the verse is, Deal so graciously with Thy people Israel, that thereby the Gentiles may be allured to join themselves with them, and to embrace their religion. Bp. Patrick, Poole.

—— thy saving health] Thy salvation. Merrick.

4. O let the nations &c.] A very sufficient cause, surely, is here assigned why the "nations" should "be glad, and sing for joy," upon the erection of Messiah's kingdom in the midst of them; namely, because He would "judge the people righteously;" breaking the yoke of the oppressor, and the iron rod of the prince of this world; becoming Himself an advocate in the cause of His church; introducing her into the glorious liberty of the children of God, whose service is perfect freedom; and with a sceptre, around which justice and mercy are wreathed together, "governing the nations upon earth." Bp. Horne.

7. — all the ends] The remotest inhabitants. Bp. Wilson.

Let us with that affection and charity which becomes the ser-

PSALM LXVIII.

1 A prayer at the removing of the ark. 4 An exhortation to praise God for his mercies, 7 for his care of the church, 19 for his great works.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm or Song of David.

[a] Numb. 10. 35.

LET [a] God arise, let his enemies be scattered: let them also that hate him flee † before him.

† Heb. from his face.

2 As smoke is driven away, so drive them away: as wax melteth before the fire, so let the wicked perish in the presence of God.

3 But let the righteous be glad; let them rejoice before God: yea, let them † exceedingly rejoice.

† Heb. rejoice with gladness.

4 Sing unto God, sing praises to his name: extol him that rideth upon the heavens by his name JAH, and rejoice before him.

5 A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, is God in his holy habitation.

† Heb. in a house.

6 God setteth the solitary † in families: he bringeth out those which are bound with chains: but the rebellious dwell in a dry land.

7 O God, when thou wentest forth before thy people, when thou didst march through the wilderness; Selah:

8 The earth shook, the heavens also dropped at the presence of God: even Sinai itself was moved at the presence of God, the God of Israel.

9 Thou, O God, didst † send a plentiful rain, whereby thou didst † confirm thine inheritance, when it was weary.

† Heb. shake out.
† Heb. confirm it.

10 Thy congregation hath dwelt therein: thou, O God, hast prepared of thy goodness for the poor.

11 The LORD gave the word: great was the † company of those that published it.

† Heb. army.

12 Kings of armies † did flee apace: and she that tarried at home divided the spoil.

† Heb. did flee, did flee.

13 Though ye have lien among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her feathers with yellow gold.

14 When the Almighty scattered kings ‖ in it, it was white as snow in Salmon.

‖ Or, for her, she was.

15 The hill of God is as the hill of Bashan; an high hill as the hill of Bashan.

16 Why leap ye, ye high hills? this is the hill which God desireth to dwell in; yea, the LORD will dwell in it for ever.

17 The chariots of God are twenty thousand, ‖ even thousands of angels: the ‖ Or, even many thousands.

---

vants of one Master, and the children of one Father, be indulgent to one another's infirmities, and compassionate to one another's weaknesses. This is the way to make "the earth yield her increase," such an increase as God takes delight in, an increase of Christian conversation, of brotherly affection, of knowledge, of humility, of justice and of charity, and of all those graces which will prevail with Him to shower down all temporal blessings in this world, and to afford an assurance of eternal in the world that is to come. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LXVIII. The occasion of this Psalm was most probably the removing the ark to mount Zion by David; or rather it might be composed soon after that transaction, and with reference to it. In the mystical sense, (which is authorized by St. Paul, Eph. iv. 8.) it refers to the ascension of Christ into heaven, and His session at the right hand of the Father, with the consequent formation and preservation of His church, and the destruction both of His own enemies and those of the church. But almost every part of this noble poem is involved in an impenetrable darkness. It would otherwise have afforded a singular example of the true sublime; the scattered rays of which, breaking forth with difficulty through the thick clouds which surround it, we yet behold with a mixture of admiration and pleasure. Bp. Lowth. It is appointed to be used on Whit-Sunday.

Ver. 4. — JAH,] Or, Jehovah. Street. See the note on Exod. vi. 3.

6. God setteth the solitary &c.] God provides for those that are destitute, and settles them in comfortable habitations; He releases the miserable captives from slavery and oppression, but those who are obstinate and rebellious He punishes by want and scarcity. Bp. Patrick. Here is an allusion to the deliverance from the Egyptian bondage, and the destruction of the murmurers in the desert: which brings in with great ease the full subject of the exodus in the next verse. Bp. Lowth.

—— in a dry land.] In a barren wilderness. Merrick.

7. — when thou wentest forth before thy people,] In a pillar of a cloud by day, and of fire by night. Green.

8. — the heavens also dropped] The clouds dropped down water. Green.

9. Thou, O God, didst send &c.] Didst send plentiful showers to refresh Thy inheritance, that is, the promised land.

10. — hath dwelt therein:] In thy inheritance.

11. The Lord gave the word:] That is, the joyful news. Bp. Lowth.

—— great was the company of those that published] The word for "those that published" is feminine in the original; and points out the women who with musick, songs, and dancing, celebrated the victories of the Israelites over their enemies, according to the custom of those times. See ver. 25. Exod. xv. 20. 1 Sam. xviii. 6. Parkhurst.

12. — and she that tarried &c.] The spoil was so great, that the women, who staid at home, had their shares in the division of it. Bp. Hall.

13. Though ye have lien &c.] That is, Though you were formerly obscure and oppressed slaves, tied down to the drudgery of brickmaking and pottery in Egypt, you shall now be as glorious as you then were contemptible. Dr. Delaney.

14. When the Almighty &c.] When the all-powerful God dispersed the hostile kings on your account, ye became as splendid and conspicuous as the bright snow on the top of the lofty hill of Salmon. Travell, and Old Translation.

15. The hill of God &c.] The hill of Zion, where God has chosen to fix His sanctuary, though low and barren in comparison of the lofty hill of Bashan, is yet far superiour to it in real eminence and dignity. Travell.

16. Why leap ye, ye high hills?] Bashan, and the mountains about it, are poetically represented as leaping for joy at Jehovah's presence, and ambitious of His abode upon them; as if there was a rivalship among them which should be honoured with it. Green. Or rather, the rendering should be, Why look ye with envy on Zion? Bp. Horne.

—— this is the hill] Namely, Zion. Bp. Patrick.

17. The chariots of God &c.] Here is declared the majesty and LORD is among them, as in Sinai, in the holy place.

[b] Ephes. 4. 8. 18 [b] Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive: thou hast received gifts † for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the LORD God might dwell among them.

† Heb. in the man.

19 Blessed be the LORD, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. Selah.

20 He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto GOD the Lord belong the issues from death.

21 But God shall wound the head of his enemies, and the hairy scalp of such an one as goeth on still in his trespasses.

22 The LORD said, I will bring again from Bashan, I will bring my people again from the depths of the sea:

‖ Or, red. 23 That thy foot may be ‖ dipped in the blood of thine enemies, and the tongue of thy dogs in the same.

24 They have seen thy goings, O God; even the goings of my God, my King, in the sanctuary.

25 The singers went before, the players on instruments followed after; among them were the damsels playing with timbrels.

26 Bless ye God in the congregations, even the LORD, ‖ from the fountain of Israel.

‖ Or, ye that are of the fountain of Israel.

27 There is little Benjamin with their ruler, the princes of Judah ‖ and their council, the princes of Zebulun, and the princes of Naphtali.

‖ Or, with their company.

28 Thy God hath commanded thy strength: strengthen, O God, that which thou hast wrought for us.

29 Because of thy temple at Jerusalem shall kings bring presents unto thee.

30 Rebuke ‖ the company of spearmen, the multitude of the bulls, with the calves of the people, till every one submit himself with pieces of silver: ‖ scatter thou the people that delight in war.

‖ Or, the beasts of the reeds.

‖ Or, he scatter-eth.

31 Princes shall come out of Egypt; Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God.

32 Sing unto God, ye kingdoms of the earth; O sing praises unto the LORD; Selah:

---

magnificence of Jehovah's appearance on mount Zion as a mighty Conqueror of the enemies of His people, riding upon the cherubim, as in a triumphal chariot, with all the hosts of heaven, as it were, in His retinue. Bp. Horne.

18. Thou hast ascended &c.] Thou, O God, hast now taken possession of Thy holy mountain, and hast given us the victory over our enemies, whom by Thy aid we have carried away captive in great numbers, and have distributed their spoils among the people, yea, even among those who have transgressed Thy laws; and Thou, O Lord, shalt now have a fixed habitation in this sacred place. So shall Christ hereafter ascend up to heaven, and take possession of His glorious kingdom, having led captive His conquered enemies, sin and death; and there He shall receive those precious gifts and graces of the Spirit, which He shall bestow upon His followers, even upon such as had before violated His laws, and rebelled against Him: thus shall the Lord God dwell in their hearts, and make His abode with them, Eph. iv. 8. Travell.

20. — the issues from death.] This should be translated, agreeably to the version of the Seventy, "the passages to death," the ways by which death goes out upon men to destroy them. Dr. Hammond, Bp. Lowth.

22. The Lord said, &c.] Jehovah had promised to repeat in Israel, by David, His glorious acts; to work as signal victories and deliverances for His people, as He had formerly done in the field of Bashan, and at the Red sea, when they saw their enemies dead at their feet. Bp. Horne.

24. They have seen thy goings,] Thy triumphal procession and solemn entry into the sanctuary. Abp. Secker, Green.

26. — even the Lord, &c.] The "fountain of Israel" is the same with the "stock, or family of Israel." See Isa. xlviii. 1. The sense of this clause therefore is, "Bless the Lord, ye who are sprung from the stock of Israel." Bp. Horne.

27. There is little Benjamin &c.] The literal rendering of this verse is, "There is little Benjamin their ruler, the princes of Judah their council, the princes of Zebulun, and the princes of Naphtali." In this enumeration of the tribes of Israel, that were present at the removal of the ark, four only are mentioned; Benjamin and Judah, who dwelt nearest to the city of David; Zebulun and Naphtali, who were farthest distant from it; to shew, as Dr. Chandler observes, the unanimity of the whole nation, and of all the tribes far and near, in attending this solemnity, to testify their willing acknowledgment of David for their king, and the city of David for their capital, and where all the great solemnities of religion should be performed, and their annual festivals continually celebrated. Benjamin, though the youngest tribe, is named first, and called the "ruler," because from that tribe sprang Saul, the first king of Israel. Upon David's accession to the crown, Judah became the royal tribe, and supported the throne by its counsels. Zebulun and Naphtali were tribes of eminent learning and knowledge. See Gen. xlix. 21. Judg. v. 14. Bp. Horne.

28. Thy God hath commanded thy strength:] This is an acknowledgment that all the power and strength of the kingdom of Israel was from God. Bp. Nicholson.

29. Because of thy temple &c.] David foretels, that on the establishment of the church and worship at Jerusalem, the kings of the Gentiles should come, and make their oblations at the temple of God; which happened in his days, and those of his son Solomon, as an earnest and figure of that plenary accession of the kings of the earth to the Church of Christ, which was to take place in the latter days, under the Gospel. See 2 Sam. viii. 9—11. 1 Kings v. 1. x. 1, 24. 2 Chron. ix. 23. Isa. lx. 3, 6. Matth. ii. 11. Rev. xxi. 24. Bp. Horne.

30. Rebuke the company of spearmen, &c.] This verse literally translated runs thus: "Rebuke the wild beast of the reeds, the congregation of the mighty among the calves of the nations, skipping, or exulting, with pieces of silver; scatter the people that delight in war." By the "wild beast of the reeds," is to be understood the Egyptian power, described by its emblem the crocodile, or river-horse, creatures living among the reeds of the Nile. The "calves of the nations" signify the objects of worship among the Egyptians, their Apis and Osiris, &c. around which the "congregation of the mighty" assembled. And by their skipping with or "exulting in pieces of silver," may either be meant their dancing at their idolatrous festivals, with the tinkling instruments, called "sistra," which might be made of silver; or else it may imply their "glorying in pieces of silver," or in their riches. The whole verse is a prayer of the prophet to this effect, that it would please God to bring down and overthrow the strength, the pride, and the idolatry of Egypt, that ancient adversary and oppressor of Israel. Bp. Horne.

31. — stretch out her hands unto God.] See the note on Psalm xliv. 20.

33 To him that rideth upon the heavens of heavens, which were of old; lo, he doth † send out his voice, and that a mighty voice.

† Heb. give.

34 Ascribe ye strength unto God: his excellency is over Israel, and his strength is in the ‖ clouds.

‖ Or, heavens.

35 O God, thou art terrible out of thy holy places: the God of Israel is he that giveth strength and power unto his people. Blessed be God.

PSALM LXIX.

1 David complaineth of his affliction. 13 He prayeth for deliverance. 22 He devoteth his enemies to destruction. 30 He praiseth God with thanksgiving.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Shoshannim, A Psalm of David.

SAVE me, O God; for the waters are come in unto my soul.

2 I sink in † deep mire, where there is no standing: I am come into † deep waters, where the floods overflow me.

† Heb. the mire of depth.

† Heb. depth of waters.

3 I am weary of my crying: my throat is dried: mine eyes fail while I wait for my God.

4 They that hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of mine head: they that would destroy me, being mine enemies wrongfully, are mighty: then I restored that which I took not away.

5 O God, thou knowest my foolishness; and my † sins are not hid from thee.

† Heb. guiltiness.

6 Let not them that wait on thee, O Lord GOD of hosts, be ashamed for my sake: let not those that seek thee be confounded for my sake, O God of Israel.

7 Because for thy sake I have borne reproach; shame hath covered my face.

8 I am become a stranger unto my brethren, and an alien unto my mother's children.

9 [a] For the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up; [b] and the reproaches of them that reproached thee are fallen upon me.

[a] John 2. 17. [b] Rom. 15. 3.

10 When I wept, and chastened my soul with fasting, that was to my reproach.

11 I made sackcloth also my garment; and I became a proverb to them.

12 They that sit in the gate speak against me; and I was the song of the † drunkards.

† Heb. drinkers of strong drink.

13 But as for me, my prayer is unto thee, O LORD, in an acceptable time: O God, in the multitude of thy mercy hear me, in the truth of thy salvation.

14 Deliver me out of the mire, and let me not sink: let me be delivered from them that hate me, and out of the deep waters.

15 Let not the waterflood overflow me, neither let the deep swallow me up, and let not the pit shut her mouth upon me.

16 Hear me, O LORD; for thy lovingkindness is good: turn unto me according to the multitude of thy tender mercies.

17 And hide not thy face from thy servant; for I am in trouble: † hear me speedily.

† Heb. make haste to hear me.

18 Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it: deliver me because of mine enemies.

19 Thou hast known my reproach, and my shame, and my dishonour: mine adversaries are all before thee.

20 Reproach hath broken my heart; and I am full of heaviness: and I looked for some † to take pity, but there was none; and for comforters, but I found none.

† Heb. to lament with me.

---

33. — send out his voice,] That is, in thunder. Green.

We learn in general from this Psalm, that God has at all times displayed His power in favour of His people, by protecting them against their enemies, and showering down His mercies upon them. This He has done for the Christian church, as well as for the children of Israel: and what is said in this Psalm of the protection God vouchsafed to Zion against the assaults of the neighbouring nations, should convince us that the church shall always subsist, in spite of all the attempts of the world and the devil. Ostervald.

Psalm LXIX. The application of many passages of this Psalm to our Lord, made by Himself and His apostles, as well as the appointment of the whole by the Church to be used on Good Friday, direct us to consider it as highly prophetical of our Saviour's sufferings; and indeed many of the expressions are such as were more literally fulfilled in Jesus Christ than in David; who, both in his sufferings and in his advancement after them to a kingdom, was an eminent type or pattern of our Saviour. Travell, Bp. Horne.

Ver. 1. — the waters are come &c.] That is, I am almost overwhelmed with calamities. Dr. Wells.

4. — restored that &c.] The meaning is, that he was contented rather to part with his own right than to quarrel with them. Bp. Patrick.

5. O God, thou &c.] Thou, O God, who art privy to my follies, and from whom none of my sins can be concealed, Thou knowest that I never did them any injury. Travell.

9. For the zeal &c.] My zeal for Thy honour and service is that which made my enemies endeavour to take away my life; and their blasphemies against Thee moved my indignation as much as if they had been against myself. So was the Lord Christ disowned by His brethren, His zeal for God's glory deeply affected Him, and the reproaches which were levelled against God He felt as if aimed at Himself. Dr. Wells, Travell.

12. They that sit in the gate] That is, vain and idle persons, that spent their time in the gates, in which there used to be a confluence of people. Rosenmüller.

13. — an acceptable time:] Meaning, a time which he hoped God would think the fittest to shew him favour. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

—— in the truth of thy salvation.] That is, according to the promises which Thou hast made of saving me. Dr. Wells.

19. — mine adversaries are all before thee.] That is, Thou knowest them thoroughly, and all their injurious and wicked devices. Poole.

21 They gave me also gall for my meat;
[c] Matth. 27. 34, 48. Mark 15. 23. John 19. 29. and in [c] my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink.

22 [d] Let their table become a snare before them: and that which should have been for their welfare, let it become a trap.

[d] Rom. 11. 9, 10.

23 Let their eyes be darkened, that they see not; and make their loins continually to shake.

24 Pour out thine indignation upon them, and let thy wrathful anger take hold of them.

† Heb. their palace. 25 Let † their habitation be desolate; and † let none dwell in their tents.

† Heb. let there not be a dweller. 26 For they persecute him whom thou hast smitten; and they talk to the grief of † Heb. thy wounded. † those whom thou hast wounded.

|| Or, punishment of iniquity. 27 Add || iniquity unto their iniquity: and let them not come into thy righteousness.

28 Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and not be written with the righteous.

29 But I am poor and sorrowful: let thy salvation, O God, set me up on high.

30 I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving.

31 This also shall please the LORD better than an ox or bullock that hath horns and hoofs.

|| Or, meek. 32 The || humble shall see this, and be glad: and your heart shall live that seek God.

33 For the LORD heareth the poor, and despiseth not his prisoners.

34 Let the heaven and earth praise him, the seas, and every thing that † moveth therein. † Heb. creepeth.

35 For God will save Zion, and will build the cities of Judah: that they may dwell there, and have it in possession.

36 The seed also of his servants shall inherit it: and they that love his name shall dwell therein.

PSALM LXX.

David soliciteth God to the speedy destruction of the wicked, and preservation of the godly.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David, to bring to remembrance.

[a] Psal. 40. 13, &c. † Heb. to my help. [b] Ps. 35. 4. & 71. 13.

MAKE haste, [a] O God, to deliver me; make haste † to help me, O LORD.

2 [b] Let them be ashamed and confounded that seek after my soul: let them be turned backward, and put to confusion, that desire my hurt.

3 Let them be turned back for a reward of their shame that say, Aha, aha.

4 Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: and let such as love thy salvation say continually, Let God be magnified.

5 But I am poor and needy: make haste unto me, O God: thou art my help and my deliverer; O LORD, make no tarrying.

PSALM LXXI.

1 David, in confidence of faith, and experience of God's favour, prayeth both for himself, and against the enemies of his soul. 14 He promiseth constancy. 17 He

---

21. They gave me &c.] These words, which David spake figuratively of himself, were literally fulfilled in the soldiers' treatment of our Lord while He hung upon the cross. Green.

—— gall] See the note on Deut. xxix. 18.

—— vinegar to drink.] Vinegar, in the East, was the ordinary refreshment of a slave, or of a wretched prisoner, rather than of a prince: and vinegar or sour wine, mixed with water, was the common drink of the Roman soldiers. Travell.

22, Let their table &c.] Their very feasts shall become a trap to them; they that eat at their table shall betray them, and their prosperity shall prove their ruin. Bp. Patrick. In addition to what has been said on the subject of imprecations, in the note upon Psalm v. 10, it may be remarked, that this and the following verses to the twenty-ninth inclusive, are strictly prophetical of the wretched condition of the Jews, after their rejection of the Messiah, and the destruction of their city and temple. See Rom. xi. 9, 10. Travell.

26. — they talk to the grief] Rather, agreeably to the version of the Seventy, "they add to the pain." Bp. Hare, Mudge.

27. Add iniquity &c.] Thou shalt punish their iniquities by suffering them to add sin to sin, and they shall obstinately refuse to partake of Thy proffered mercy. Travell, Bp. Horne.

29. — set me up on high.] Put me out of the reach of danger. Bp. Wilson.

32. The humble shall see this,] That is, the goodness of God towards me. Travell.

33. — his prisoners.] That is, such as are persecuted for His sake. Dr. Wells.

If we are persecuted without a cause by our enemies, and our persecution be the sharper, for our zeal and affection to God's service, and our constancy to our true religion, and made so much the more intolerable by the derision, and scorn, and reproaches, we see wickedly and profanely cast upon religion; and if all these calamities befall us for other men's sakes, so that we bear the punishment of their faults, and of offences which we have not committed; we come the nearer to the sufferings of our Saviour Himself, which is a great honour and glory to us; and if we do imitate His meekness, and humility, and patience, in the bearing of them, thus so far imitating Him as He hath put it into our power to do; we shall be sure of such a reward, it may be, reparation in this world, as shall be more than proportionable to the afflictions we have undergone. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LXX. The words of this Psalm occur, without any material variations, in Psalm xl. ver. 13. to the end. The reader is therefore referred thither for an explanation. It is thought to have been taken by David from the other Psalm, and a little altered, in order to be used by him constantly, during his distress by Absalom's rebellion. Dr. Wells.

— to bring to remembrance.] See the note on the title to Psalm xxxviii.

Psalm LXXI. This Psalm was probably composed by David, on occasion of Absalom's rebellion, which was a great affliction to him in his declining age. Travell. It is introduced into our service for the Visitation of the Sick, as the greatest part of it is prayeth for perseverance. 19 He praiseth God, and promiseth to do it cheerfully.

1023.
[a] Psal. 31. 1. IN [a] thee, O LORD, do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion.

2 Deliver me in thy righteousness, and cause me to escape: incline thine ear unto me, and save me.

† Heb. Be thou to me for a rock of habitation. 3 † Be thou my strong habitation, whereunto I may continually resort: thou hast given commandment to save me; for thou art my rock and my fortress.

4 Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked, out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man.

5 For thou art my hope, O Lord GOD: thou art my trust from my youth.

6 By thee have I been holden up from the womb: thou art he that took me out of my mother's bowels: my praise shall be continually of thee.

7 I am as a wonder unto many; but thou art my strong refuge.

8 Let my mouth be filled with thy praise and with thy honour all the day.

9 Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth.

† Heb. watch, or, observe. 10 For mine enemies speak against me; and they that † lay wait for my soul take counsel together,

11 Saying, God hath forsaken him: persecute and take him; for there is none to deliver him.

12 O God, be not far from me: O my God, make haste for my help.

13 Let them be confounded and consumed that are adversaries to my soul; let them be covered with reproach and dishonour that seek my hurt.

14 But I will hope continually, and will yet praise thee more and more.

15 My mouth shall shew forth thy righteousness and thy salvation all the day; for I know not the numbers thereof.

16 I will go in the strength of the Lord GOD: I will make mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only.

17 O God, thou hast taught me from my youth: and hitherto have I declared thy wondrous works.

† Heb. unto old age and grey hairs. † Heb. thine arm. 18 Now also † when I am old and grey-headed, O God, forsake me not; until I have shewed † thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to every one that is to come.

19 Thy righteousness also, O God, is very high, who hast done great things: O God, who is like unto thee!

20 Thou, which hast shewed me great and sore troubles, shalt quicken me again, and shalt bring me up again from the depths of the earth.

21 Thou shalt increase my greatness, and comfort me on every side.

† Heb. with the instrument of psaltery. 22 I will also praise thee † with the psaltery, even thy truth, O my God: unto thee will I sing with the harp, O thou Holy One of Israel.

23 My lips shall greatly rejoice when I sing unto thee; and my soul, which thou hast redeemed.

24 My tongue also shall talk of thy righteousness all the day long: for they are confounded, for they are brought unto shame, that seek my hurt.

PSALM LXXII.

1 David, praying for Solomon, sheweth the goodness and glory of his, in type, and in truth, of Christ's kingdom. 18 He blesseth God.

¶ A Psalm ‖ for Solomon. ‖ Or, of.

---

proper for a dying person, to express his trust in God, the want of His help, &c. Bp. Wilson.

Ver. 1. In thee, O Lord, &c.] The promises of salvation are made to those, who, renouncing all confidence in the world, "trust" in God alone for it. For this reason the Psalmist so often begins his prayer with a declaration of his faith, which is to the soul in affliction, what an anchor is to a ship in distress. Bp. Horne.

2. Deliver me in thy righteousness,] A second argument here used is the "righteousness" of God, who cannot but be faithful and just to His own gracious word. Bp. Horne.

7. I am as a wonder unto many;] That is, My deplorable miseries have made many consider me as a prodigy of wretchedness. Travell.

20. Thou, which hast shewed &c.] Great and numberless as my distresses have been, I have ever found relief from Thy goodness; and I doubt not that Thou wilt again draw me out of this extreme danger, which has brought me to the brink of the grave. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

We may learn from hence, 1st, That those who trust in God are never confounded; and that they may betake themselves to Him under all their wants, with a perfect assurance of His help; but that this confidence cannot be well grounded, unless they have the same pious sentiments that David discovers in this Psalm. 2dly, As this prince, for his comfort and encouragement to praise God, called to mind the favours he had received from Him in time past, so should we preserve the remembrance of the mercies God has vouchsafed us from our youth, and through the whole course of our lives. 3dly, It is the duty of those who have been exposed to great afflictions, and whom God has happily delivered, to join with this holy prophet in admiring and celebrating His great goodness towards them. Ostervald.

Psalm LXXII. David seems to have composed this Psalm on his having appointed Solomon to be his successor. Travell.

This Psalm decribes, in the most beautiful imagery, and most lively colours, the peaceful glories of the Messiah's future reign; His righteousness, or impartial administration of justice; the universal homage and worship to be paid to Him; the perpetuity of His dominion, "whose name shall endure for ever," "in whom mankind shall be blessed, and whom all nations shall call blessed."

1015. GIVE the king thy judgments, O God, and thy righteousness unto the king's son.

2 He shall judge thy people with righteousness, and thy poor with judgment.

3 The mountains shall bring peace to the people, and the little hills, by righteousness.

4 He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor.

5 They shall fear thee as long as the sun and moon endure, throughout all generations.

6 He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth.

7 In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace † so long as the moon endureth.

† Heb. till there be no moon.

8 He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth.

9 They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him; and his enemies shall lick the dust.

10 The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents: the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts.

11 Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him.

12 For he shall deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also, and him that hath no helper.

13 He shall spare the poor and needy, and shall save the souls of the needy.

14 He shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence: and precious shall their blood be in his sight.

15 And he shall live, and to him † shall be given of the gold of Sheba: prayer also shall be made for him continually; and daily shall he be praised.

† Heb. one shall give.

16 There shall be an handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon: and they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth.

17 His name † shall endure for ever: † his name shall be continued as long as the sun: and men shall be blessed in him: all nations shall call him blessed.

† Heb. shall be. † Heb. shall be as a son to continue his father's name for ever.

18 Blessed be the LORD God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things.

19 And blessed be his glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with his glory; Amen, and Amen.

20 The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended.

PSALM LXXIII.

1 The prophet, prevailing in a temptation, 2 sheweth the Magnificent predictions, utterly inapplicable to Solomon, but truly characteristick of Christ. Dr. Hales.

In this Psalm there is such a variety and beauty of imagery, such a splendour of diction, such elegance in the composition, that I believe it will be impossible in the whole compass of literature, sacred or profane, to find such an union of sublimity with sweetness and grace. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 1. Give the king thy judgments,] That is, cause him to govern the kingdom according to Thy precepts. Rosenmüller.

—— the king — the king's son.] The king and the king's son are the same person, a character that belongs to none before Solomon, who was the first prince in Israel that was at the same time king and son of a king. Mudge.

3. The mountains shall bring &c.] In other words, Peace, manifested by its consequence, plenteousness, shall be upon the mountains and little hills of Judea, by means of that righteous judgment, which Solomon will execute in the land. Bp. Horne.

5. They shall fear thee &c.] His righteous administration shall redound to his everlasting honour, and shall gain him the esteem and reverence of his people, through all generations: so that he shall be a lively emblem of the great King, Christ Jesus, whose dominion shall endure as long as the world remaineth. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

8. He shall have dominion &c.] "From sea to sea," that is, with reference to the Messiah, over all the earth.

9. They that dwell &c.] The most barbarous nations shall do him homage, and his enemies shall be constrained to prostrate themselves at his feet with the most abject submission. Travell.

10. — Tarshish] For Tarshish, see note at 1 Kings x. 22.

—— Sheba — Seba] For the former, see the note on 1 Kings x. 1; the latter was also probably in Arabia Felix. Consult the "map of the world" for their probable situations.

14. He shall redeem &c.] He shall preserve them from being ruined either by the deceitful wiles or violent attacks of their enemies; nor shall he, to gratify his own ambition, be prodigal of their precious lives. So shall the Saviour of the world redeem the souls of His people from their most cruel enemies, sin and death; and so valuable in His sight shall their blood be, that He shall shed His own for it! Bp. Patrick, Bp. Horne, Travell.

16. There shall be an handful &c.] The country shall be so fruitful in his days, that even a handful of corn, sown upon the lofty hills, shall produce a crop that shall shake with a loud noise, like the cedars upon mount Lebanon: and the people in the city shall be fruitful and populous, like the innumerable blades of grass in a field, which the Lord hath blessed. Such, under the reign of the Messiah, shall be the amazing increase of the word, when sown in hearts that before were barren; such the astonishing multiplication of citizens in the Christian church. Travell, Bp. Horne.

20. The prayers of David &c.] Meaning perhaps, that this is the end of the first collection of Psalms that was made, probably under Solomon, for the service of the temple. Michaelis.

As most of the things mentioned in this Psalm agree more perfectly to the kingdom of our Lord than to that of Solomon, since Jesus Christ was to be that glorious King, who was to bring the most distant people into subjection, whose kingdom was to last to the end of the world, and under whose government men were to enjoy complete happiness, and be filled with the choicest blessings of heaven; we have therefore here the description of our own happiness, which should put into our own mouths the praises with which David concludes this hymn, "Blessed be the Lord God," &c. Ostervald.

The end of the second Book of Psalms.

Psalm LXXIII. This Psalm, and several which follow, were composed by Asaph; they are chiefly filled with sad and melancholy complaints. Travell. Who this Asaph was is uncertain. Some have thought it was Asaph the singer, who was famous in occasion thereof, the prosperity of the wicked. 13 The wound given thereby, diffidence. 15 The victory over it, knowledge of God's purpose, in destroying of the wicked, and sustaining the righteous.

¶ ‖ A Psalm of Asaph.

‖ Or, A Psalm for Asaph.

‖ TRULY God is good to Israel, even to such as are † of a clean heart.

‖ Or, Yet.

† Heb. clean of heart.

2 But as for me, my feet were almost gone; my steps had well nigh slipped.

[a] Job 21. 7. Psal. 37. 1. Jer. 12. 1.

3 [a] For I was envious at the foolish, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.

4 For there are no bands in their death: but their strength is † firm.

† Heb. fat.

‡ Heb. in the trouble of other men.

5 They are not † in trouble as other men; neither are they plagued † like other men.

† Heb. with.

6 Therefore pride compasseth them about as a chain; violence covereth them as a garment.

7 Their eyes stand out with fatness: † they have more than heart could wish.

† Heb. they pass the thoughts of the heart.

8 They are corrupt, and speak wickedly concerning oppression: they speak loftily.

9 They set their mouth against the heavens, and their tongue walketh through the earth.

10 Therefore his people return hither: and waters of a full cup are wrung out to them.

11 And they say, How doth God know? and is there knowledge in the most high?

12 Behold, these are the ungodly, who prosper in the world; they increase in riches.

13 Verily I have cleansed my heart in vain, and washed my hands in innocency.

14 For all the day long have I been plagued, and † chastened every morning.

† Heb. my chastisement was.

15 If I say, I will speak thus; behold, I should offend against the generation of thy children.

16 When I thought to know this, † it was too painful for me;

† Heb. it was labour in mine eyes.

17 Until I went into the sanctuary of God; then understood I their end.

18 Surely thou didst set them in slippery places: thou castedst them down into destruction.

19 How are they brought into desolation, as in a moment! they are utterly consumed with terrors.

20 As a dream when one awaketh; so, O Lord, when thou awakest, thou shalt despise their image.

21 Thus my heart was grieved, and I was pricked in my reins.

22 So foolish was I, and † ignorant: I was as a beast † before thee.

† Heb. I knew not.

† Heb. with thee.

23 Nevertheless I am continually with thee: thou hast holden me by my right hand.

24 Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel, and afterward receive me to glory.

25 Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee.

26 My flesh and my heart faileth: but God is the † strength of my heart, and my portion for ever.

† Heb. rock.

David's days. But it seems more probable that it was Asaph the seer, who lived in the days of Hezekiah; 2 Chron. xxix. 30. Dr. Wells.

Ver. 2. But as for me, &c.] Yet, notwithstanding my conviction of this truth, my faith in the Divine goodness began to stagger, and I was in danger of falling into a state of distrust and infidelity. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

4. For there are no bands in their death:] They are in no peril of death. Old Translation.

6. Therefore pride &c.] Among men who have not the love of God in their hearts, or His fear before their eyes, pride and oppression are the offspring of worldly prosperity. Bp. Horne.

—— as a chain;] Alluding to the prevailing custom of wearing collars or chains on their necks. See Cant. iv. 9. Bp. Horne. See notes on Job xxix. 14.

7. Their eyes stand &c.] Their very countenance expresses the proud swelling of their hearts, which are puffed up by such a constant state of prosperity, even beyond their own sanguine expectations. Travell.

8. They are corrupt, &c.] They are so corrupt, that they mock at the rules of justice, and defy those who would oppose them; they haughtily claim to themselves an exemption from the laws of God and man. Travell.

9. They set &c.] They blaspheme the God of heaven, and calumniate His servants on earth. Green.

10. Therefore his people &c.] Therefore God's people falleth off to them, and from thence they reap no small advantage. Green. This passage is extremely difficult: according to our old translation, the sense of the ninth and tenth verses may possibly be, They presume to scan the mysterious ways of Heaven with as much clearness and precision as they affect to display in judging of human affairs. This raises their credit in the opinion of ignorant people, which they are sure to turn to their own advantage. Travell.

11—14. — How doth God &c.] The whole of this seems to be the reflexion of God's people on the apparent prosperity of the wicked, and the despairing inference they drew from it: it was so contrary to the usual face of things under the Mosaick dispensation, and to all they had been taught to expect, that it tempted them to doubt even the first principles of all religion. Dr. Kennicott.

15. If I say, &c.] But, if I persevere in such discourse, and speak like these men, I shall betray the cause of all those who are Thy true children, O God. Travell.

17. Until I went &c.] Until I applied to Thee by prayer and meditation on Thy word. See Ps. lxxvii. 13.

20. As a dream &c.] Their prosperity is but as a dream when one awaketh; so, O Lord, when Thou seest fit to punish them, Thou shalt cause all their glory and prosperity quickly to vanish. Dr. Wells.

21. — I was pricked in my reins.] I was deeply wounded with disquieting thoughts and tormenting passions, envy, sorrow, and anger. Poole.

23. Nevertheless I am continually with thee:] Notwithstanding these foolish thoughts, I am under the care of Thy good providence. Bp. Patrick.

27 For, lo, they that are far from thee shall perish: thou hast destroyed all them that go a whoring from thee.

28 But it is good for me to draw near to God: I have put my trust in the Lord GOD, that I may declare all thy works.

PSALM LXXIV.

1 The prophet complaineth of the desolation of the sanctuary. 10 He moveth God to help in consideration of his power, 18 of his reproachful enemies, of his children, and of his covenant.

‖ Or, A Psalm for Asaph to give instruction.

¶ ‖ Maschil of Asaph.

O GOD, why hast thou cast us off for ever? why doth thine anger smoke against the sheep of thy pasture?

2 Remember thy congregation, which thou hast purchased of old; the ‖ rod of thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed; this mount Zion, wherein thou hast dwelt.

‖ Or, tribe.

3 Lift up thy feet unto the perpetual desolations; even all that the enemy hath done wickedly in the sanctuary.

4 Thine enemies roar in the midst of thy congregations; they set up their ensigns for signs.

5 A man was famous according as he had lifted up axes upon the thick trees.

6 But now they break down the carved work thereof at once with axes and hammers.

† Heb. They have sent thy sanctuary into the fire.

7 † They have cast fire into thy sanctuary, they have defiled by casting down the dwelling place of thy name to the ground.

† Heb. break.

8 They said in their hearts, Let us † destroy them together: they have burned up all the synagogues of God in the land.

9 We see not our signs: there is no more any prophet: neither is there among us any that knoweth how long.

10 O God, how long shall the adversary reproach? shall the enemy blaspheme thy name for ever?

11 Why withdrawest thou thy hand, even thy right hand? pluck it out of thy bosom.

12 For God is my King of old, working salvation in the midst of the earth.

13 [a] Thou didst † divide the sea by thy strength: thou brakest the heads of the ‖ dragons in the waters.

[a] Exod. 14. 21.
† Heb. break.
‖ Or, whales.

14 Thou brakest the heads of leviathan in pieces, and gavest him to be meat to the people inhabiting the wilderness.

15 [b] Thou didst cleave the fountain and the flood: [c] thou driedst up † mighty rivers.

[b] Exod. 17. 5. Numb. 20. 11.
[c] Josh. 3. 13.
† Heb. rivers of strength.

16 The day is thine, the night also is thine: thou hast prepared the light and the sun.

17 Thou hast set all the borders of the earth: thou hast † made summer and winter.

† Heb. made them.

18 Remember this, that the enemy hath reproached, O LORD, and that the foolish people have blasphemed thy name.

19 O deliver not the soul of thy turtledove unto the multitude of the wicked: for-

---

27. — thou hast destroyed &c.] Thou hast destroyed those who, forsaking Thy service, have devoted themselves to the worship of other gods. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Exod. xxxiv. 16.

This Psalm teaches us how we ought to judge of the prosperity of the wicked and the afflictions of the righteous. We ought never to believe that wicked men, who live in mirth and plenty in this world, and who enjoy all their wishes, are truly happy, or that the righteous, because they are afflicted, serve God in vain. Asaph has taught us, that to resist this temptation we must meditate upon the word of God, and the ways of Providence: then we shall find that the felicity of worldly men is vain, and of short duration; and that they are set in slippery places, from whence they fall suddenly. Ostervald.

Psalm LXXIV. This Psalm was occasioned by the desolation of Jerusalem and the temple, and the rest of the country of Judea, made by Nebuchadnezzar, or the Babylonish forces. Dr. Wells.

Ver. 2. — the rod of thine inheritance,] The "tribe" or portion "of thine inheritance," as in the margin. Bp. Horne. See the note on Jer. x. 16.

3. Lift up thy feet &c.] God is represented as having withdrawn Himself, and departed afar off; He is therefore entreated to return without delay, to view the long lasting desolations of the once highly-favoured city, and the ravages made by enemies in the sanctuary. Bp. Horne.

4. Thine enemies roar &c.] That is, they send up shouts of triumph in those places where Thy people used to praise Thy name. Bp. Patrick.

—— they set up their ensigns for signs.] They erect their standards in token of victory. Bp. Patrick.

5, 6. A man was famous &c.] It was formerly thought an employment of much honour, to cut down and prepare trees for the building of Thy holy sanctuary. But now every man thinks himself most deserving, that can do the greatest havock in Thy temple. Bp. Hall.

9. We see not &c.] We see not any token of Thy divine presence with us, nor is there so much as a prophet to give us advice or comfort, or to tell us when these calamities will have an end. Travell.

11. — pluck it out of thy bosom.] That is, Exert Thy power again for the destruction of Thy enemies. Travell. The hand, when unemployed, was usually inserted in the folds of the garment on the bosom. See note at Ps. lxxix. 12.

13. — thou brakest &c.] Thou didst confound the great and mighty enemies of Israel, in the Red sea. Bp. Hall.

—— dragons] See the note on Psalm xliv. 19.

14. Thou brakest the heads &c.] "Leviathan" stands for Pharaoh, or the Egyptian power, represented by the Egyptian animal, the crocodile. The "heads" of leviathan are the princes of Egypt, the leaders of the Egyptian armies. And the "people inhabiting the wilderness," to whom they were given for a prey, are the wild beasts haunting the deserts. Bp. Horne.

17. — borders of the earth:] The boundaries of the earth, so that the sea cannot overwhelm them. See Jer. v. 22. Job xxxviii. 8, 11. Rosenmüller.

19. — thy turtledove] Thy church, which like a turtledove, simple, defenceless, solitary, meek, timid, and mournful, was in danger of being speedily devoured by her inveterate enemies. Bp. Horne.

get not the congregation of thy poor for ever.

20 Have respect unto the covenant: for the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty.

21 O let not the oppressed return ashamed: let the poor and needy praise thy name.

22 Arise, O God, plead thine own cause: remember how the foolish man reproacheth thee daily.

23 Forget not the voice of thine enemies: the tumult of those that rise up against thee † increaseth continually.

† Heb. ascendeth.

PSALM LXXV.

1 The prophet praiseth God. 2 He promiseth to judge uprightly. 4 He rebuketh the proud by consideration of God's providence. 9 He praiseth God, and promiseth to execute justice.

¶ To the chief Musician, ‖ Al-taschith, A Psalm or Song ‖ of Asaph.

‖ Or, Destroy not.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

UNTO thee, O God, do we give thanks, unto thee do we give thanks: for that thy name is near thy wondrous works declare.

2 ‖ When I shall receive the congregation I will judge uprightly.

‖ Or, When I shall take a set time.

3 The earth and all the inhabitants thereof are dissolved: I bear up the pillars of it. Selah.

4 I said unto the fools, Deal not foolishly: and to the wicked, Lift not up the horn:

5 Lift not up your horn on high: speak not with a stiff neck.

6 For promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the † south.

† Heb. desert.

7 But God is the judge: he putteth down one, and setteth up another.

8 For in the hand of the LORD there is a cup, and the wine is red; it is full of mixture; and he poureth out of the same: but the dregs thereof, all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them.

9 But I will declare for ever; I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.

10 All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off; but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

PSALM LXXVI.

1 A declaration of God's majesty in the church. 11 An exhortation to serve him reverently.

¶ To the chief Musician on Neginoth, A Psalm or Song ‖ of Asaph.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

IN Judah is God known: his name is great in Israel.

2 In Salem also is his tabernacle, and his dwelling place in Zion.

---

20. Have respect unto &c.] Have regard unto the promises into which Thou didst enter with Thy people: for now the land is full of rapine and cruelty, and every dark corner of it is a den of thieves and murderers. Bp. Patrick.

This Psalm engages us to make these four principal reflexions: 1. That the Church has been in all ages exposed to persecution; and therefore we ought not to wonder, if the Christian Church has been, and still is, sometimes persecuted. 2. That as God, to punish the Jews for their abuse of His service, suffered them to be led into captivity; for the same reasons He has often delivered His church into the hands of persecutors, with a design to try it, and to purify it. 3. When God appears the most provoked with His people, He does not quite forsake them, but always remembers His covenant, and delivers them at last. 4. As the prophet was grieved for the calamities of the Jews, and prayed for their restoration, so Christians ought to be sensibly affected with the misfortunes of the church, and to pray continually for its deliverance and prosperity. Ostervald.

Psalm LXXV. It is not improbable that this Psalm was composed by Asaph on the destruction of the Assyrian army under Sennacherib. Travell.

Ver. 2. When I shall receive &c.] The first verse is spoken by many persons; here the speaker is one, and that one is plainly a ruler, who promises that when he shall have "received the congregation," or, as some render it, "when he shall have gotten an appointed, or fit time, or season," that is, when he shall be established in power and authority, at a fit time and place, he will "judge uprightly, and introduce a thorough reformation into the kingdom." Bp. Horne.

3. The earth and all &c.] In this verse seem to be the words of God in answer, that "Now the time was come for Him to do justice, and therefore the earth melted before Him:" this it might well do, as "He had first set up the pillars of it:" it stood firm only by His order, and therefore must be dissolved when He pleased. Mudge, Dr. Kennicott.

4. — Lift not up the horn:] Behave not yourselves so insolently. Bp. Wilson.

5. Lift not up &c.] For illustrations of this expression, see the note at 1 Sam. ii. 1. To which may be added, with a view to the particular phrase here employed, that "the crooked manner in which the Abyssinians hold the neck, when this ornament is on their forehead, for fear it should fall forward, seems to agree with what the Psalmist calls 'speaking with a stiff neck,' for it perfectly shews the meaning of speaking with a stiff neck, when you hold the horn on high, or erect, like the horn of an unicorn." Bruce.

6. For promotion cometh neither &c.] That is, success and advancement come not from any earthly quarter, but from God.

8. For in the hand &c.] As the choicest of heavenly blessings are frequently in Scripture represented by the salutary effects of wine, so from the noxious and intoxicating qualities of that liquor, when drunk strong, and in too large a quantity, is borrowed a most tremendous image of the wrath and indignation of Almighty God. Bp. Horne.

—— it is full of mixture;] See the note from Bp. Lowth on Isa. i. 22.

This Psalm especially instructs us, that it is God who establishes and strengthens kings, and gives peace to their dominions; and that it is the duty of kings and princes, and in general of all magistrates, to exercise justice, to restrain the wicked and the proud, and to protect the innocent. Ostervald.

Psalm LXXVI. This is a song of triumph on God's deliverance of Jerusalem from a powerful army which threatened the destruction of it, probably the army of Sennacherib. Green.

3 There brake he the arrows of the bow, the shield, and the sword, and the battle. Selah.

4 Thou art more glorious and excellent than the mountains of prey.

5 The stouthearted are spoiled, they have slept their sleep: and none of the men of might have found their hands.

6 At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, both the chariot and horse are cast into a dead sleep.

7 Thou, even thou, art to be feared: and who may stand in thy sight when once thou art angry?

8 Thou didst cause judgment to be heard from heaven; the earth feared, and was still,

9 When God arose to judgment, to save all the meek of the earth. Selah.

10 Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee: the remainder of wrath shalt thou restrain.

11 Vow, and pay unto the LORD your God: let all that be round about him bring presents †unto him that ought to be feared.

† Heb. to fear.

12 He shall cut off the spirit of princes: he is terrible to the kings of the earth.

PSALM LXXVII.

1 The psalmist sheweth what fierce combat he had with diffidence. 10 The victory which he had by consideration of God's great and gracious works.

¶ To the chief Musician, to Jeduthun, A Psalm ‖ of Asaph.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

I CRIED unto God with my voice, even unto God with my voice; and he gave ear unto me.

2 In the day of my trouble I sought the LORD: † my sore ran in the night, and ceased not: my soul refused to be comforted.

† Heb. my hand.

3 I remembered God, and was troubled: I complained, and my spirit was overwhelmed. Selah.

4 Thou holdest mine eyes waking: I am so troubled that I cannot speak.

5 I have considered the days of old, the years of ancient times.

6 I call to remembrance my song in the night: I commune with mine own heart: and my spirit made diligent search.

7 Will the LORD cast off for ever? and will he be favourable no more?

8 Is his mercy clean gone for ever? doth his promise fail † for evermore?

† Heb. to generation and generation.

9 Hath God forgotten to be gracious? hath he in anger shut up his tender mercies? Selah.

10 And I said, This is my infirmity: but I will remember the years of the right hand of the most high.

11 I will remember the works of the LORD: surely I will remember thy wonders of old.

12 I will meditate also of all thy work, and talk of thy doings.

13 Thy way, O God, is in the sanctuary: who is so great a God as our God!

14 Thou art the God that doest wonders:

Ver. 4. — than the mountains of prey.] Mountains often stand for great princes; and this may be a figurative expression for mighty conquerours who ravage the earth.

5. The stouthearted &c.] The mighty warriors that came up against Jerusalem are spoiled, and have slept the sleep of death; neither were any of those great champions able to resist the destroying angel. Bp. Hall.

10. Surely the wrath &c.] From the spite and malice of Thine enemies, Thou shalt take occasion to win praise and glory to Thy name; and Thou wilt so restrain their power and tyranny, that they shall do no further injury to Thy people. Bp. Hall.

12. — the spirit] The pride. Merrick.

Why are the miraculous exertions of Omnipotence recorded in the Book of Life, but to suggest to us this reflexion, that God, and God only, is the proper object of our fear; since neither the wisdom of the wise, nor the power of the mighty, no, not the world itself, can stand a single moment before Him, "when once He is angry?" Yet we continue to dread any frowns but those of Heaven. Bp. Horne.

Psalm LXXVII. This Psalm is of that diversified and unequal kind which ascends from a cool and deliberate opening to a high degree of sublimity. The prophet, oppressed with a heavy weight of affliction, displays the extreme dejection and perturbation of his soul, and most elegantly and pathetically describes the conflicts and internal contests to which he is subjected, before he is enabled to rise from the depths of woe to any degree of hope or confidence. In the character of a suppliant he first pours forth his earnest prayers to the God of his hope. He next endeavours to mitigate his sorrows by the remembrance of former times; but this, on the contrary, only seems to aggravate his sufferings, by the comparison of his present adversity with his former happiness. Again, recollecting the different methods by which the Almighty seeks the salvation of His people, appearing frequently to frown upon those "in whom He delighteth:" reconsidering also the vast series of mercies which He had bestowed upon His chosen people; the miracles which He had wrought in their favour; in a word, the goodness, the holiness, the power of the great Ruler of the universe; with all the ardour of gratitude and affection he bursts forth into a strain of praise and exultation, ver. 13—19. In this passage we are at a loss which to admire most, the ease and grace with which the digression is made, the choice of the incidents, the magnificence of the imagery, or the force and elegance of the diction. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 2. — my sore ran &c.] This is rendered more literally by an ancient Greek version, "my hand was stretched out in the night without intermission." Bps. Horne and Lowth.

6. I call to remembrance &c.] I called to mind the songs I had composed, in memory of Thy signal mercies; I spent whole nights in silent meditation, and in revolving in my mind what could be the cause, that Thou shouldest forsake Thy people. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

10. — This is my infirmity: &c.] "My weakness of faith" to entertain such thoughts. Dr. Wells, Bp. Horne. But I will remember that the power of God endureth for ever.

13. Thy way, &c.] The meaning is, The methods of Thy providence are just and holy. Bp. Patrick, Old Translation.

thou hast declared thy strength among the people.

15 Thou hast with thine arm redeemed thy people, the sons of Jacob and Joseph. Selah.

16 The waters saw thee, O God, the waters saw thee; they were afraid: the depths also were troubled.

† Heb. The clouds were poured forth with water.

17 † The clouds poured out water: the skies sent out a sound: thine arrows also went abroad.

18 The voice of thy thunder was in the heaven: the lightnings lightened the world: the earth trembled and shook.

19 Thy way is in the sea, and thy path in the great waters, and thy footsteps are not known.

[a] Exod. 14. 19.

20 [a] Thou leddest thy people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM LXXVIII.

1 An exhortation both to learn and to preach the law of God. 9 The story of God's wrath against the incredulous and disobedient. 67 The Israelites being rejected, God chose Judah, Zion, and David.

¶ ‖ Maschil of Asaph.

‖ Or, A Psalm for Asaph to give instruction.

GIVE ear, O my people, to my law: incline your ears to the words of my mouth.

[a] Psal. 49. 4. Matth. 13. 35.

2 [a] I will open my mouth in a parable: I will utter dark sayings of old:

3 Which we have heard and known, and our fathers have told us.

4 We will not hide them from their children, shewing to the generation to come the praises of the LORD, and his strength, and his wonderful works that he hath done.

5 For he established a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers, [b] that they should make them known to their children:

[b] Deut. 4 9. & 6. 7

6 That the generation to come might know them, even the children which should be born; who should arise and declare them to their children:

7 That they might set their hope in God, and not forget the works of God, but keep his commandments:

8 And might not be as their fathers, a stubborn and rebellious generation; a generation † that set not their heart aright, and whose spirit was not stedfast with God.

† Heb. that prepared not their heart.

9 The children of Ephraim, being armed, and †carrying bows, turned back in the day of battle.

† Heb. throwing forth.

10 They kept not the covenant of God, and refused to walk in his law;

11 And forgat his works, and his wonders that he had shewed them.

12 Marvellous things did he in the sight of their fathers, in the land of Egypt, in the field of Zoan.

13 [c] He divided the sea, and caused them to pass through; and he made the waters to stand as an heap.

[c] Exod. 14. 21.

14 [d] In the daytime also he led them with a cloud, and all the night with a light of fire.

[d] Exod. 13. 21. & 14. 24.

---

16. The waters saw thee, &c.] The waters of the Red sea are here beautifully represented as endued with sensibility, as seeing, feeling, and being confounded, even to the lowest depths, at the presence and power of their great Creator, when He commanded them to open a way, and to form a wall on each side of it, until His people were passed over. Bp. Horne.

17. — thine arrows] That is, Thy lightnings, or thunderbolts. Poole.

19. Thy way is &c.] God walked before His people through the sea, though He left no footsteps of Himself behind Him. Mudge.

A weak man cannot rightly judge of the actions of a man wiser than himself, of whose views and designs he is not master: much less can man judge of the ways of God, to whose counsels he is not admitted, and to whose secrets he is a stranger. In complaining, the Psalmist followed the natural impressions of passion and impatience: in acknowledging the folly of his complaint, he spoke not only the language of grace, but of sense and reason. But this good man, being well grounded in religion, was able so far to get the better of his doubts and fears, as to pass a right judgment in his own case, and to call to his assistance the proper reflexions which the great works of Providence administered for the support and confirmation of his hope and confidence towards God. Here then was his comfort; here the cure of all his grief. Bp. Sherlock.

Psalm LXXVIII. This Psalm pursues the history of the Israelites from the time of their departure from Egypt to the reign of David, particularizing and illustrating all the leading events. The style is simple and uniform, but the structure is poetical, and the sentiments occasionally splendid. The historical, or rather chronological, order cannot be said to be exactly preserved throughout; for the minute detail of so protracted a series of events could scarcely fail to tire in a work of imagination. The Egyptian miracles are introduced in a very happy and elegant digression, and may be considered as forming a kind of episode. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 2. — parable:] See notes at Numb. xxiii. 7. Job xxvii. 1.

—— dark sayings] The original word means, a pointed or obscure saying; such as requires, either for the conception or understanding of it, considerable ingenuity. Bp. Lowth. But there is nothing obscure in this Psalm, which contains instructive historical truths. Therefore the expression should be rendered "pointed truths." Street.

5. — a testimony] Or solemn charge. Mudge.

9. The children of Ephraim, &c.] The history here referred to is that of the Israelites going up, contrary to God's command, to take possession of the land of Canaan, when they were smitten before their enemies. See Deut. i. 42. The Ephraimites are here specified, probably, as being the most warlike tribe, and as having led on, perhaps, the rest of the tribes to the battle. Green.

12. — in the field of Zoan.] In the territories that belong to Zoan, a chief city of Egypt, and the court of Pharaoh, where those miraculous works would be so much more noted. Bp. Hall.

[c] Exod. 17. 6. Numb. 20. 11. Psal. 105. 41. 1 Cor. 10. 4.

15 [c] He clave the rocks in the wilderness, and gave them drink as out of the great depths.

16 He brought streams also out of the rock, and caused waters to run down like rivers.

17 And they sinned yet more against him by provoking the most high in the wilderness.

18 And they tempted God in their heart by asking meat for their lust.

[f] Numb. 11. 4.

19 [f] Yea, they spake against God; they said, Can God † furnish a table in the wilderness?

† Heb. order.

[g] Exod. 17. 6. Numb. 20. 11.

20 [g] Behold, he smote the rock, that the waters gushed out, and the streams overflowed; can he give bread also? can he provide flesh for his people?

21 Therefore the LORD heard this, and was wroth: so a fire was kindled against Jacob, and anger also came up against Israel;

22 Because they believed not in God, and trusted not in his salvation:

23 Though he had commanded the clouds from above, and opened the doors of heaven,

[h] Exod. 16. 14. John 6. 31.

24 [h] And had rained down manna upon them to eat, and had given them of the corn of heaven.

‖ Or, Every one did eat the bread of the mighty.

25 ‖ Man did eat angels' food: he sent them meat to the full.

† Heb. to go.

26 He caused an east wind † to blow in the heaven: and by his power he brought in the south wind.

† Heb. fowl of wing.

27 He rained flesh also upon them as dust, and † feathered fowls like as the sand of the sea:

28 And he let it fall in the midst of their camp, round about their habitations.

29 So they did eat, and were well filled: for he gave them their own desire;

[i] Numb. 11. 33.

30 They were not estranged from their lust. But [i] while their meat was yet in their mouths, † Heb. made to bow.

31 The wrath of God came upon them, and slew the fattest of them, and † smote down the ‖ chosen men of Israel.

32 For all this they sinned still, and believed not for his wondrous works.

33 Therefore their days did he consume in vanity, and their years in trouble.

34 When he slew them, then they sought him: and they returned and enquired early after God.

35 And they remembered that God was their rock, and the high God their redeemer.

36 Nevertheless they did flatter him with their mouth, and they lied unto him with their tongues.

37 For their heart was not right with him, neither were they stedfast in his covenant.

38 But he, being full of compassion, forgave their iniquity, and destroyed them not: yea, many a time turned he his anger away, and did not stir up all his wrath.

39 For he remembered that they were but flesh; a wind that passeth away, and cometh not again.

‖ Or, rebel against him.

40 How oft did they ‖ provoke him in the wilderness, and grieve him in the desert!

41 Yea, they turned back and tempted God, and limited the Holy One of Israel.

‖ Or, from affliction.

42 They remembered not his hand, nor the day when he delivered ‖ them from the enemy.

† Heb. set.

43 How he had † wrought his signs in Egypt, and his wonders in the field of Zoan:

[k] Exod. 7. 20.

44 [k] And had turned their rivers into blood; and their floods, that they could not drink.

[l] Exod. 8. 24. & 8. 6.

45 [l] He sent divers sorts of flies among them, which devoured them; and frogs, which destroyed them.

[m] Exod. 10. 18.

46 [m] He gave also their increase unto the caterpiller, and their labour unto the locust.

[n] Exod. 9. 23. † Heb. killed.

47 [n] He † destroyed their vines with hail, and their sycamore trees with ‖ frost.

‖ Or, great hailstones.

48 † He gave up their cattle also to the hail, and their flocks to ‖ hot thunderbolts.

† Heb. He shut up.

49 He cast upon them the fierceness of ‖ Or, lightnings.

---

18. — they tempted God &c.] They were not content with the bountiful provision which God had made for them, but murmured against Him, and demanded meat to satisfy their craving appetite. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

21. — a fire was kindled against Jacob,] See note at Numb. xi. 1.

25. Man did eat angels' food:] That is, manna, which may be called angels' food, as coming from the clouds of heaven, the habitation of angels. Dr. Wells. Or rather, the rendering should be, as in the margin, "the bread of the mighty," or of great men; that is, the whole body of the people lived upon excellent food. Rosenmüller.

30. They were not estranged from their lust.] They obtained the object of their wishes.

33. Therefore their days &c.] Therefore He never suffered them to come into that land, but made them wander up and down in the wilderness to no purpose, and consumed them by various plagues. Travell.

41 — and limited the Holy One of Israel.] This should be rendered, according to several ancient versions, "and provoked the Holy One of Israel." Dimock.

49. He cast upon them &c.] Some of the Egyptian plagues having been specified in the foregoing verses, others of them are here thrown together, and the whole scene is affirmed to have his anger, wrath, and indignation, and trouble, by sending evil angels among them.

† Heb. He weighed a path. || Or, their beasts to the murrain, Exod. 9. 3. ° Exod. 12. 29. & 9. 3.

50 † He made a way to his anger; he spared not their soul from death, but gave || their life over to the pestilence;

51 ° And smote all the firstborn in Egypt; the chief of their strength in the tabernacles of Ham:

52 But made his own people to go forth like sheep, and guided them in the wilderness like a flock.

53 And he led them on safely, so that they feared not: but the sea [p] † overwhelmed their enemies.

[p] Exod. 14. 27. & 15. 10. † Heb. covered.

54 And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary, even to this mountain, which his right hand had purchased.

55 He cast out the heathen also before them, and [q] divided them an inheritance by line, and made the tribes of Israel to dwell in their tents.

[q] Josh. 13. 7.

56 Yet they tempted and provoked the most high God, and kept not his testimonies:

57 But turned back, and dealt unfaithfully like their fathers: they were turned aside like a deceitful bow.

58 [r] For they provoked him to anger with their high places, and moved him to jealousy with their graven images.

[r] Deut. 32. 21.

59 When God heard this, he was wroth, and greatly abhorred Israel:

60 [s] So that he forsook the tabernacle of Shiloh, the tent which he placed among men;

[s] 1 Sam. 4. 11.

61 And delivered his strength into captivity, and his glory into the enemy's hand.

62 He gave his people over also unto the sword; and was wroth with his inheritance.

63 The fire consumed their young men; and their maidens were not † given to marriage. † Heb. praised.

64 Their priests fell by the sword; and their widows made no lamentation.

65 Then the LORD awaked as one out of sleep, and like a mighty man that shouteth by reason of wine.

66 And he smote his enemies in the hinder part: he put them to a perpetual reproach.

67 Moreover he refused the tabernacle of Joseph, and chose not the tribe of Ephraim:

68 But chose the tribe of Judah, the mount Zion which he loved.

69 And he built his sanctuary like high palaces, like the earth which he hath † established for ever. † Heb. founded.

70 [t] He chose David also his servant, and took him from the sheepfolds: [t] 1 Sam. 16. 11. 2 Sam. 7. 8.

71 † [u] From following the ewes great with young he brought him to feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance. † Heb. From after. [u] 2 Sam. 5. 2. 1 Chron. 11. 2.

72 So he fed them according to the integrity of his heart; and guided them by the skilfulness of his hands.

PSALM LXXIX.

1 The psalmist complaineth of the desolation of Jerusalem. 8 He prayeth for deliverance, 13 and promiseth thankfulness.

¶ A Psalm || of Asaph. || Or, for Asaph.

---

been a full display of wrath and vengeance, executed upon the oppressors of the Church by "evil angels, agents, or messengers;" whether by this expression we understand the material instruments of Divine displeasure; or angels employed as ministers of vengeance; or the actual appearance and ministration of evil spirits, suffered to torment the wicked in this world, as they certainly will do in the next. Tradition seems to have favoured this last opinion, since the author of the Book of Wisdom describes the Egyptian darkness as a kind of temporary hell, Wisd. xvii. Bp. Horne.

51. — Ham:] The father of the Egyptians. Bp. Wilson.

54. — this mountain,] Zion, which He took from the Jebusites by the hand of David. Bp. Wilson.

56. Yet they tempted and provoked the most high God,] St. Paul says, with reference to the same transactions, "Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted," 1 Cor. x. 9. These texts do both relate to the same rebellious acts of the Israelites in the wilderness. In the former of them, the Person they tempted is called the Most High God; in the latter, He is called Christ: therefore Christ is the Most High God. Jones of Nayland.

61. — delivered his strength &c.] That is, the ark of the covenant, which was the token of God's power and glory, was delivered up to the Philistines, 1 Sam. iv. 11, 22. and v. 1. Green.

67. — he refused &c.] When the ark was brought back, God did not permit it to be placed again in Shiloh, which was in the tribe of Ephraim, the son of Joseph. Bp. Patrick.

69. And he built &c.] On this hill Solomon built Him a stately temple, which was not moveable, like His former habitation, but remained perpetually fixed, like the earth on which it stood. Travell.

We cannot exercise our devotions more usefully upon any part of the Old Testament, than upon the history of God's wonderful lovingkindness to, and miraculous deliverances of, His own chosen people, the Jews. There we find all the most heightened acts of power, all the transcendent kindness, and bounty, and affection, which the most exalted imagination of man can suppose possible to result from Divinity itself; and there we find the most inexpressible ingratitude and baseness of spirit, the foulest enormities and transgressions, and the most barefaced contempt of that Power which had preserved and protected them, which the malice of the devil himself can infuse into the heart of man. Again, we find, on the one hand, the patience and mercy of God contending to be too hard for that malice, checking and restraining this people from hurting themselves; or permitting them to hurt themselves, till they grew sensible of their wickedness; and then delivering them, because, and only because, they grew sensible: and on the other hand, a perverseness so strong, and an obstinacy so powerful, an incorrigibleness so proud, that it was too hard for that mercy, and drove it from them: and, in the last place, we find the indignation of God kindled, which could not be quenched without scattering this rebellious nation over the face of the whole earth. Lord Clarendon.

O GOD, the heathen are come into thine inheritance; thy holy temple have they defiled; they have laid Jerusalem on heaps.

2 The dead bodies of thy servants have they given to be meat unto the fowls of the heaven, the flesh of thy saints unto the beasts of the earth.

3 Their blood have they shed like water round about Jerusalem; and there was none to bury them.

[a] Psal. 44. 13. 4 [a] We are become a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and derision to them that are round about us.

[b] Psal. 89. 46. 5 [b] How long, LORD? wilt thou be angry for ever? shall thy jealousy burn like fire?

[c] Jer. 10. 25. 6 [c] Pour out thy wrath upon the heathen that have not known thee, and upon the kingdoms that have not called upon thy name.

7 For they have devoured Jacob, and laid waste his dwelling place.

[d] Isai. 64. 9. 8 [d] O remember not against us ‖ former iniquities: let thy tender mercies speedily prevent us: for we are brought very low.

‖ Or, the iniquities of them that were before us.

9 Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name: and deliver us, and purge away our sins, for thy name's sake.

10 Wherefore should the heathen say, Where is their God? let him be known among the heathen in our sight by the † revenging of the blood of thy servants which is shed.

† Heb. vengeance.

11 Let the sighing of the prisoner come before thee; according to the greatness of † thy power † preserve thou those that are appointed to die;

† Heb. thine arm. † Heb. reserve the children of death.

12 And render unto our neighbours sevenfold into their bosom their reproach, wherewith they have reproached thee, O LORD.

13 So we thy people and sheep of thy pasture will give thee thanks for ever: we will shew forth thy praise † to all generations.

† Heb. to generation and generation.

PSALM LXXX.

1 The psalmist in his prayer complaineth of the miseries of the church. 8 God's former favours are turned into judgments. 14 He prayeth for deliverance.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Shoshannim-Eduth, A Psalm ‖ of Asaph.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

GIVE ear, O Shepherd of Israel, thou that leadest Joseph like a flock; thou that dwellest between the cherubims, shine forth.

2 Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh stir up thy strength, and † come and save us.

† Heb. come for salvation to us.

3 Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

4 O LORD God of hosts, how long † wilt thou be angry against the prayer of thy people?

† Heb. wilt thou smoke?

5 Thou feedest them with the bread of tears; and givest them tears to drink in great measure.

6 Thou makest us a strife unto our neighbours: and our enemies laugh among themselves.

7 Turn us again, O God of hosts, and Psalm LXXIX. In this Psalm Asaph complains that the Babylonians had destroyed the city and temple of Jerusalem, and beseeches God to be reconciled to His people, and to punish the blasphemies and cruelties of their idolatrous enemies. Green. It is one of the Psalms appointed for the fast-service on the thirtieth of January.

Ver. 8. — let thy tender mercies &c.] Extend Thy compassion to us without delay. Travell.

10. — let him be known] Or, make Thyself known. Green.

11. — those that are appointed to die;] Those whom their enemies have condemned to death. Bp. Patrick.

12. — our neighbours] "Our neighbours" probably respects the Edomites chiefly. See Psalm cxxxvii. 7. Mudge.

—— into their bosom] The Arabs join together the two upper corners of their hyke, a garment like the plaid of the highlanders in Scotland, and after having placed them first over one of their shoulders, they then fold the rest of it about their bodies. The outer fold serves them frequently instead of an apron, wherein they carry herbs, loaves, corn, &c. There seem to be several allusions to this in Scripture; as "rendering sevenfold into their bosom," &c. Dr. Shaw.

Affliction hath then wrought its intended effect, when it hath convinced us of sin, and led us to repentance; when, brought back by it, like the returning prodigal, to the house and presence of our heavenly Father, we acknowledge our guilt as the cause of our misery, and entreat forgiveness of the one, in order to obtain a release from the other; not pleading our own merits, but the mercies of God our Saviour, and the glory of His name. Bp. Horne.

Psalm LXXX. The subject of this Psalm has some resemblance to the former: it contains an application to God for help under some grievous affliction; describes the former exaltation of God's people, and their present depression, under the beautiful figure of a vine; and concludes with earnest prayer to God for a continuance of His goodness. Travell.

Ver. 1. — thou that dwellest &c.] Thou that sittest enthroned above the ark of the covenant, shew us some illustrious token of Thy presence. Travell.

2. Before Ephraim &c.] God is entreated to go forth, in His strength and His salvation, before the tribes of Israel, as formerly in the wilderness. Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh are particularly mentioned, perhaps, because, according to the established order, those three tribes immediately followed the ark and cherubim, the symbols of the Divine presence. See Numb. ii. 18, 24. Bp. Horne.

3. Turn us again,] Restore us to our former happiness. Bp. Patrick.

5. Thou feedest &c.] That is, we are in continual sorrow and distress, and have no degree of comfort or refreshment but our lamentations. Dr. Hammond.

6. Thou makest us &c.] The meaning is, Our neighbours contend among themselves, who shall make the greatest prey of us, and we are become the scorn and derision of our enemies. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

8 Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt: thou hast cast out the heathen, and planted it.

9 Thou preparedst room before it, and didst cause it to take deep root, and it filled the land.

10 The hills were covered with the shadow of it, and the boughs thereof were like † the goodly cedars.

† Heb. the cedars of God.

11 She sent out her boughs unto the sea, and her branches unto the river.

12 Why hast thou then broken down her hedges, so that all they which pass by the way do pluck her?

13 The boar out of the wood doth waste it, and the wild beast of the field doth devour it.

14 Return, we beseech thee, O God of hosts: look down from heaven, and behold, and visit this vine;

15 And the vineyard which thy right hand hath planted, and the branch that thou madest strong for thyself.

16 It is burned with fire, it is cut down: they perish at the rebuke of thy countenance.

17 Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand, upon the son of man whom thou madest strong for thyself.

18 So will not we go back from thee: quicken us, and we will call upon thy name.

19 Turn us again, O LORD God of hosts, cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

PSALM LXXXI.

1 An exhortation to a solemn praising of God. 4 God challengeth that duty by reason of his benefits. 8 God, exhorting to obedience, complaineth of their disobedience, which proveth their own hurt.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Gittith, A Psalm ‖ of Asaph.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

SING aloud unto God our strength: make a joyful noise unto the God of Jacob.

2 Take a psalm, and bring hither the timbrel, the pleasant harp with the psaltery.

3 Blow up the trumpet in the new moon, in the time appointed, on our solemn feast day.

4 For this was a statute for Israel, and a law of the God of Jacob.

5 This he ordained in Joseph for a testimony, when he went out through ‖ the land of Egypt: where I heard a language that I understood not.

‖ Or, against

6 I removed his shoulder from the burden: his hands † were delivered from the pots.

† Heb. passed away.

7 Thou calledst in trouble, and I delivered thee; I answered thee in the secret place of thunder: I [a] proved thee at the waters of ‖ Meribah. Selah.

[a] Exod. 17. 6.

‖ Or, strife.

8 Hear, O my people, and I will testify unto thee: O Israel, if thou wilt hearken unto me;

9 There shall no strange god be in thee;

---

8. Thou hast brought a vine &c.] The Psalmist, describing the people of Israel as a vine, has continued the metaphor, and happily drawn it out through a variety of additional circumstances. Among the many beauties of this allegory, not the least graceful is that modesty, with which he enters upon and concludes his subject, making an easy and gradual transition from plain to figurative language, and no less delicately receding back to the plain and unornamented narrative. Bp. Lowth.

11. She sent out &c.] Signifying, that Israel extended its dominion from the Mediterranean sea to the river Euphrates. Dr. Wells.

13. The boar] By this figure, the Psalmist means to represent the fierce and unrelenting persecutor of the people of Israel. Bp. Horne.

15. And the vineyard] "Even the plant." Abp. Secker.

—— the branch] The family of David. Bp. Horne. The people of Israel. Rosenmüller.

17. — the man of thy right hand,] That is, the people of Israel. Rosenmüller. Our prince. Mudge. The Messiah. Bp. Horne.

Let not the Christian church imagine, that the sufferings complained of in this Psalm relate only to her elder sister. Greater mercies and more excellent gifts should excite in her greater thankfulness, and call forth more excellent virtues; otherwise they will serve only to enhance her account, and multiply her sorrows. If she sin, and fall after the same example of unbelief, she must not think to be distinguished in her punishment, unless by the severity of it. Bp. Horne.

Psalm LXXXI. Throughout this Psalm appears an exquisite union of sublimity and sweetness. It is an ode composed for the feast of trumpets, (Levit. xxiii. 24.) in the first new moon of the civil year. The object and end of this poem appears to be an exhortation to obedience from the consideration of the paternal love, the beneficence, and the promises of the Deity; and this is accomplished with wonderful art, elegance, variety, and ingenuity. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 2. — the timbrel,] See the note on Exod. xv. 20.

—— the psaltery.] See the note on Psalm xxxiii. 2.

3. Blow up the trumpet &c.] In the Jewish church, notice was given of feasts, jubilees, &c. by sound of trumpet. All the new moons, or the beginnings of months, were observed in this manner: (see Numb. x. 2.) but on the September new moon, or first day of the seventh month, of the ecclesiastical year, was kept the great festival, called "the feast of trumpets;" (Numb. xxix. 1.) which, probably, is here intended. Bp. Horne.

5. This he ordained &c.] This feast-day is a charge which He gave to Joseph, when he came out of the land of Egypt, where he heard a language which he understood not. Joseph is here used collectively for the sons of Joseph, or rather for the Israelites, to whom Joseph had been a father in the land of Egypt. Green.

6. I removed &c.] In this verse God reminds Israel of their redemption, by His mercy and power, from the burdens and drudgery imposed on them in Egypt. Bp. Horne.

7. Thou calledst &c.] That is, when the Egyptians followed after thee into the Red sea, in answer to thy prayers, I confounded them with thunder and lightning from the cloudy pillar. See Exod. xiv. 24, 25. Green.

neither shalt thou worship any strange god.

10 I am the LORD thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt: open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it.

11 But my people would not hearken to my voice; and Israel would none of me.

[b] Acts 14. 16.

12 [b] So I gave them up ‖ unto their own hearts' lust: and they walked in their own counsels.

‖ Or, to the hardness of their hearts, or, imaginations.

13 Oh that my people had hearkened unto me, and Israel had walked in my ways!

14 I should soon have subdued their enemies, and turned my hand against their adversaries.

15 The haters of the LORD should have ‖ † submitted themselves unto him: but their time should have endured for ever.

‖ Or, yielded feigned obedience. † Heb. lied.

16 He should have fed them also † with the finest of the wheat: and with honey out of the rock should I have satisfied thee.

† Heb. with the fat of wheat.

PSALM LXXXII.

1 The psalmist, having exhorted the judges, 5 and reproved their negligence, 8 prayeth God to judge.

¶ A Psalm ‖ of Asaph.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

GOD standeth in the congregation of the mighty; he judgeth among the gods.

2 How long will ye judge unjustly, and [a] accept the persons of the wicked? Selah.

[a] Deut. 1. 17.

3 † Defend the poor and fatherless: do justice to the afflicted and needy.

† Heb. Judge.

4 [b] Deliver the poor and needy: rid them out of the hand of the wicked.

[b] Prov. 24. 11.

5 They know not, neither will they understand; they walk on in darkness: all the foundations of the earth are † out of course.

† Heb. moved.

6 [c] I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most high.

[c] John 10. 34.

7 But ye shall die like men, and fall like one of the princes.

8 Arise, O God, judge the earth: for thou shalt inherit all nations.

PSALM LXXXIII.

1 A complaint to God of the enemies' conspiracies. 9 A prayer against them that oppress the church.

¶ A Song or Psalm ‖ of Asaph.

‖ Or, for Asaph.

KEEP not thou silence, O God: hold not thy peace, and be not still, O God.

2 For, lo, thine enemies make a tumult: and they that hate thee have lifted up the head.

3 They have taken crafty counsel against thy people, and consulted against thy hidden ones.

4 They have said, Come, and let us cut them off from being a nation; that the name of Israel may be no more in remembrance.

5 For they have consulted together with one † consent: they are confederate against thee:

† Heb. heart.

6 The tabernacles of Edom, and the Ishmaelites; of Moab, and the Hagarenes;

7 Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek; the Philistines with the inhabitants of Tyre;

---

10. — open thy mouth wide, &c.] That is, I will satisfy thy desires, be they ever so large. Mudge.

15. — their time &c.] That is, the Israelites should have enjoyed a substantial and durable happiness. Bp. Patrick.

16. — honey out of the rock] See the note on Deut. xxxii. 13.

This Psalm should incite us to pay our praises and our homage to God in a most zealous and solemn manner. A duty this, which concerns no less all Christians, than it did the Jews; for, if God bestowed very considerable favours on the Jews by bringing them out of Egypt, and giving them His law, He hath done incomparably greater things for us, in redeeming us by Jesus Christ His Son, and giving us the knowledge of His Gospel. Osterwald.

Psalm LXXXII. ver. 1. God standeth &c.] God is present in the judicial assemblies, which He has appointed; and He will call the most powerful magistrates to account. The Hebrew word for "gods" is often applied to princes and magistrates, as representing, in some degree, the power and majesty of God. Travell.

2. — accept the persons &c.] That is, overlook the merit of the cause, and give sentence according to your respect or affection to the person. Poole.

5. They know not, &c.] They will not study the laws of God, but are blinded by bribes; so that the very foundations of the kingdom, which are truth and justice, are utterly shaken and confounded. Bp. Patrick.

6. I have said, Ye are gods;] I have given you my authority, and even put my name upon you, John x. 34, 35. Bp. Wilson.

7. — and fall like &c.] And ye shall fall, O ye princes, like any other man. Gataker, Rosenmüller, Dimock.

8. — judge the earth: &c.] Vindicate mankind from these impious judges, for Thou hast the rightful dominion over all nations. Travell.

All magistrates should derive from this Psalm the instruction, that it is their duty to do right to all, without respect of persons, and especially to protect the weak and innocent when oppressed. To this end, they should remember that, although they are now placed above others, yet they must die one day like the rest of mankind, and must then appear before the one Supreme Judge, to give an account of all that they have done. Ostervald.

Psalm LXXXIII. Several of the neighbouring nations being gathered together to make war against the Israelites, the prophet entreats the Lord in this Psalm, to destroy those nations, as He had formerly destroyed the kings that assaulted their forefathers. Green.

Ver. 3. — against thy hidden ones.] Hebrew, "against Thy treasured ones," that is, against those whom Thou hidest in the secret place of Thy tabernacle; or, in more plain language, against those whom Thou protectest. Green.

6. The tabernacles &c.] The Edomites and Ishmaelites, who dwell in tents, are engaged in this enterprise, and so are the Moabites, and others descended from Hagar, the mother of Ishmael. Bp. Patrick.

7. Gebal,] Some place Gebal in Phenicia near Tyre; and others in the mountainous country beyond Jordan. Rosenmüller.

† Heb. they have been an arm to the children of Lot.

8 Assur also is joined with them: † they have holpen the children of Lot. Selah.

[a] Judges 7. 22.

9 Do unto them as unto the [a] Midianites; as to [b] Sisera, as to Jabin, at the brook of Kison:

[b] Judges 4. 15, 24.

10 Which perished at En-dor: they became as dung for the earth.

[c] Judges 7. 25. & 8. 21.

11 Make their nobles like [c] Oreb, and like Zeeb: yea, all their princes as Zebah, and as Zalmunna:

12 Who said, Let us take to ourselves the houses of God in possession.

13 O my God, make them like a wheel; as the stubble before the wind.

14 As the fire burneth the wood, and as the flame setteth the mountains on fire;

15 So persecute them with thy tempest, and make them afraid with thy storm.

16 Fill their faces with shame; that they may seek thy name, O LORD.

17 Let them be confounded and troubled for ever; yea, let them be put to shame, and perish:

18 That men may know that thou, whose name alone is JEHOVAH, art the most high over all the earth.

PSALM LXXXIV.

1 The prophet, longing for the communion of the sanctuary, 4 sheweth how blessed they are that dwell therein. 8 He prayeth to be restored unto it.

¶ To the chief Musician upon Gittith, A Psalm ‖ for the sons of Korah.

‖ Or, of.

HOW amiable are thy tabernacles, O LORD of hosts! 1023.

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

3 Yea, the sparrow hath found an house, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may lay her young, even thine altars, O LORD of hosts, my King, and my God.

4 Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will be still praising thee. Selah.

5 Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee; in whose heart are the ways of them.

‖ Or, of mulberry trees make him a well, &c.

6 Who passing through the valley ‖ of Baca make it a well; the rain also † filleth the pools.

† Heb. covereth.

7 They go ‖ from strength to strength, every one of them in Zion appeareth before God.

‖ Or, from company to company.

8 O LORD God of hosts, hear my prayer: give ear, O God of Jacob. Selah.

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

10 For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand. † I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.

† Heb. I would choose rather to sit at the threshold.

11 For the LORD God is a sun and shield:

---

8. Assur] The Assyrians. Dr. Wells.

This determines the date of this Psalm to the latter times of the Jewish kingdom; for the other nations here mentioned had molested them before; but the Assyrians not till towards the end. Dr. Wall.

12. — the houses of God] That land wherein God was pleased to dwell among the Israelites. Bp. Patrick.

13. — like a wheel;] Rather, like the chaff whirled about. See Isaiah xvii. 13. Bp. Lowth, Abp. Secker.

14, 15. As the fire &c.] Let their destruction be as sudden and violent, as the effect of lightning on the trees of the forest; or as the devouring flame on the parched grass that grows on the mountains. Travell.

The punishments inflicted by Heaven upon wicked men are primarily intended to humble and convert them. If they continue incorrigible under every dispensation of merciful severity, they are at last cut off, and finally destroyed; that others, admonished by their example, may repent, and return, and give glory to God. Salutary are the afflictions which bring men, and happy the men who are brought by them, to an acknowledgment of "Jehovah our righteousness," our exalted and glorified Redeemer, "the Most High over all the earth;" whom all must acknowledge, and before whom all must appear to be judged, in the great and terrible day. Bp. Horne.

Psalm LXXXIV. It is uncertain to what particular time this beautiful composition relates: the author of it, under the figure of an Israelite, deprived of all access to Jerusalem and the sanctuary, laments his banishment from the assemblies of the faithful, describes the happiness of those who are blessed with opportunities of frequenting God's house, and beseeches God to make him a partaker of that happiness. Travell.

Ver. 3. Yea, the sparrow &c.] The Psalmist is generally supposed in this verse to lament his unhappiness in being deprived of all access to the tabernacle or temple, a privilege enjoyed even by the birds, who were allowed to build their nests in the neighbourhood of the sanctuary. It is evidently the design of this passage to intimate to us, that in the house, and at the altar of God, a faithful soul findeth freedom from care and sorrow, quiet of mind, and gladness of spirit; like a bird that has secured a little mansion, for the reception and education of her young. And there is no heart, endued with sensibility, which does not bear its testimony to the exquisite beauty and propriety of this affecting image. Bp. Horne.

—— the swallow] Rather, the dove. Bp. Lowth, Merrick.

5. — in whose heart &c.] The meaning seems to be, "whose heart is bent on travelling the ways to Thy temple." Green, Merrick.

6, 7. Who passing &c.] After many uncertain conjectures offered by commentators upon the construction of these two verses, it seems impossible for us to attain to any other than a general idea of their true import; which is this, that the Israelites, or some of them, passed, in their way to Jerusalem, through a valley that had the name of "Baca," a noun derived from a verb, which signifies to "weep;" that in this valley they were refreshed by plenty of water; that with renewed vigour they proceeded from stage to stage, until they presented themselves before God in Zion. Bp. Horne.

9. — of thine anointed.] He prays for the king as the person in whom the prosperity of his country was enwrapped: he was the "shield" and protection of it under God. See Psalm lxxxix. 18. and xlvii. 9. Mudge.

11. — a sun and shield:] A light, a glory, and defence. Bp. Wilson.

[a] Psal. 34. 9, 10. the LORD will give grace and glory: [a] no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly.

[b] Ps. 2. 12. 12 O LORD of hosts, [b] blessed is the man that trusteth in thee.

PSALM LXXXV.

1 The psalmist, out of the experience of former mercies, prayeth for the continuance thereof. 8 He promiseth to wait thereon, out of confidence of God's goodness.

‖ Or, of. ¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm ‖ for the sons of Korah.

‖ Or, well pleased. LORD, thou hast been ‖ favourable unto thy land: thou hast brought back the captivity of Jacob.

[a] Ps. 32. 1. 2 [a] Thou hast forgiven the iniquity of thy people, thou hast covered all their sin. Selah.

3 Thou hast taken away all thy wrath: ‖ thou hast turned thyself from the fierceness of thine anger.

‖ Or, thou hast turned thine anger from waxing hot.

4 Turn us, O God of our salvation, and cause thine anger toward us to cease.

5 Wilt thou be angry with us for ever? wilt thou draw out thine anger to all generations?

6 Wilt thou not revive us again: that thy people may rejoice in thee?

7 Shew us thy mercy, O LORD, and grant us thy salvation.

8 I will hear what God the LORD will speak: for he will speak peace unto his people, and to his saints: but let them not turn again to folly.

9 Surely his salvation is nigh them that fear him; that glory may dwell in our land.

10 Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other.

11 Truth shall spring out of the earth; and righteousness shall look down from heaven.

12 Yea, the LORD shall give that which is good; and our land shall yield her increase.

13 Righteousness shall go before him; and shall set us in the way of his steps.

PSALM LXXXVI.

1 David strengtheneth his prayer by the conscience of his religion, 5 by the goodness and power of God. 11 He desireth the continuance of former grace. 14 Complaining of the proud he craveth some token of God's goodness.

¶ ‖ A Prayer of David.

‖ Or, A Prayer, being a Psalm of David.

BOW down thine ear, O LORD, hear me: for I am poor and needy.

2 Preserve my soul; for I am ‖ holy: O thou my God, save thy servant that trusteth in thee.

‖ Or, one whom thou favourest.

3 Be merciful unto me, O LORD: for I cry unto thee ‖ daily.

‖ Or, all the day.

4 Rejoice the soul of thy servant: for unto thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul.

[a] Joel 2. 13. 5 [a] For thou, LORD, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee.

6 Give ear, O LORD, unto my prayer; and attend to the voice of my supplications.

7 In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee: for thou wilt answer me.

8 Among the gods there is none like

There cannot be a greater resemblance to the joys of heaven in any pleasure or happiness that we can enjoy in this world, than in that tranquillity of mind and conscience which naturally attends and accompanies our fervent devotions to God Almighty; when we have deposited all our wishes with Him, and submitted and resigned all our desires to Him. Nor can there be a more lively representation upon earth, of the court and company of heaven, than in the assemblies and congregations of religious and pious men pouring out their prayers, and celebrating the praises of their Creator and Redeemer. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm LXXXV. In celebrating the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity, the Psalmist is carried by a prophetick impulse to foretel a much greater deliverance by the coming of Christ. Dimock. This Psalm is appointed by the Church to be used on Christmas-day, when we celebrate the deliverance of mankind from the captivity of sin, and the introduction into the world of mercy and truth, righteousness and peace. Travell. It is also appointed for the fast service on the thirtieth of January.

Ver. 4. Turn us, &c.] This word is frequently used in Scripture: the metaphor seems to be taken from a shepherd who drives back the wandering sheep; and it is applied both to relief from temporal affliction, and return to the paths of duty.

8. I will hear &c.] I will wait with patience for God's answer to my prayers. Bp. Wilson.

—— to folly.] To wickedness.

10. Mercy and truth &c.] How admirable is this celebrated personification of the Divine attributes! How just, elegant, and splendid does it appear, if applied only according to the literal sense, to the restoration of the Jewish nation from the Babylonish captivity! but if interpreted as relating to that more sacred mystical sense, which is not obscurely shadowed under the ostensible image, it is certainly uncommonly noble and elevated, mysterious and sublime. Bp. Lowth.

11. Truth shall spring &c.] See note from Bp. Lowth on Isa. xlv. 8.

13. Righteousness shall go &c.] That is, Reformation of morals shall precede the establishment of Christ's religion.

We learn in this Psalm, that, as God makes men, and sometimes His own people and Church, feel the effects of His wrath for the punishment of their sins; and that the end which He proposes by it is to recover them from their errours; so when He sees them humbled to becoming feelings of piety, He is ever ready to receive them again into His favour, and to bestow on them His choicest gifts, both temporal and spiritual. Osterwald.

Psalm LXXXVI. ver. 2. — holy:] The word here translated "holy," properly signifies, "good, merciful, pious, devoted to the service of God," &c. Bp. Horne.

8. Among the gods] That is, among those who are worshipped in the world as gods. Bp. Patrick.

Deut. 3. 24. unto thee, O LORD; [b] neither are there any works like unto thy works.

9 All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O LORD; and shall glorify thy name.

10 For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: [c] thou art God alone.

[c] Deut. 6. 4. & 32. 39. Isai. 37. 16. & 44. 6. Mark 12. 29. Ephes. 4. 6. 1 Cor. 8. 4.

11 [d] Teach me thy way, O LORD; I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name.

12 I will praise thee, O LORD my God, with all my heart: and I will glorify thy name for evermore.

[d] Psal. 25. 4. & 119. 33.

13 For great is thy mercy toward me: and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest ‖ hell.

‖ Or, grave.

14 O God, the proud are risen against me, and the assemblies of † violent men have sought after my soul; and have not set thee before them.

† Heb. terrible.

15 [e] But thou, O LORD, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, longsuffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.

[e] Exod. 34. 6. Numb. 14. 18. Psal. 103. 8. & 130. 4. & 145. 8.

16 O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me; give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thine handmaid.

17 Shew me a token for good; that they which hate me may see it, and be ashamed: because thou, LORD, hast holpen me, and comforted me.

PSALM LXXXVII.

1 The nature and glory of the church. 4 The increase, honour, and comfort of the members thereof.

¶ A Psalm or Song ‖ for the sons of Korah. ‖ Or, of HIS foundation is in the holy mountains.

2 The LORD loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob.

3 Glorious things are spoken of thee, O city of God. Selah.

4 I will make mention of Rahab and Babylon to them that know me: behold Philistia, and Tyre, with Ethiopia; this man was born there.

5 And of Zion it shall be said, This and that man was born in her: and the highest himself shall establish her.

6 The LORD shall count, when he writeth up the people, that this man was born there. Selah.

7 As well the singers as the players on instruments shall be there: all my springs are in thee.

PSALM LXXXVIII.

A prayer containing a grievous complaint.

---

13. — the lowest hell.] Extreme dangers; the grave. Dr. Wells, Green.

This prayer should excite those who are in affliction and distress to call upon God for help with profound humility, and firm confidence in His mercy and power; beseeching Him not only to deliver them from the evils which press sore upon them, but, above all, to give them grace to please and obey Him. We ought likewise in our troubles to meditate upon God's infinite goodness, and consider that "He is full of compassion, and gracious, longsuffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth." This will support us under all our trials, fill us with joy and consolation, and afford us, even in the midst of trouble, reason to praise and bless Him. Ostervald.

Psalm LXXXVII. This Psalm contains a brief comparison, first, between Zion, the place of God's worship, and all Judea besides; and then between it and all heathen countries. Dr. Hammond.

Ver. 1. His foundation &c.] That is, Zion is of God's founding. See Isa. xiv. 32. and Psalm cxxxii. 13. Dr. Chandler.

2. The Lord loveth &c.] The Lord takes more pleasure to dwell in His tabernacle, and His temple, on Zion, than in all the rest of the land of Judah or Israel. Bp. Hall.

4. I will make mention &c.] The accession of the nations to the church is generally supposed to be here predicted. God declares by His prophet, "I will make mention of," or cause to be remembered, "Egypt and Babylon," the old enemies of Israel, "to" or "among them that know Me," that is, in the number of My worshippers; "behold, also, Philistia and Tyre, with Arabia;" these are become Mine; "this," or each of these, "is born there," that is, in the city of God; they are become children of God, and citizens of Zion. Bp. Horne.

—— Rahab] Meaning Egypt. The Hebrew word signifies "proud," and the name is given to Egypt from the pride and insolence of its princes and inhabitants. Parkhurst.

—— Ethiopia;] Rather, Arabia. Dr. Wells. See note at Numb. xii. 1.

5. And of Zion &c.] "So that of Zion," or the Church, "it shall be said, This and that man," that is, great numbers of men in succession, "are born in her;" alluding to the number of converts under the Gospel, the sons of that Jerusalem, "which is the mother of us all." Bp. Horne.

6. The Lord shall count, &c.] In the Book of Life, that register of heaven, kept by God Himself, our names are entered, not as born of flesh and blood by the will of man, but as born of water and the Spirit by the will of God; of each person it is written, "that he was born there," in the church and city of God. Bp. Horne.

7. — all my springs &c.] And the burden of the song, thus joyfully sung in praise of Zion, was to be this; "All my springs," or fountains, "are in thee." In thee, O Zion, is the fountain of salvation, and from thee are derived all those springs of grace which flow by the Divine appointment, while the world lasts, for the purification and refreshment of mankind upon earth. Bp. Horne.

If "the Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob," so should we. For the prosperity, therefore, of the Church, we and all the world ought to pray. And while we pray for the Church with our lips, let it be our unfeigned endeavour to adorn her by our lives. So shall we make the proper return for the mercies we have received; so shall we draw down more and more of the Divine favour continually upon our king, our country, and ourselves; so shall we convince the world of this great and important truth, that the Christian is the loyal subject, and the Churchman the true patriot. Bp. Horne.

Psalm LXXXVIII. This Psalm is a continued detail of melancholy complaints, on account of some grievous sufferings, under which the Psalmist laboured. The extreme severity of those sufferings, and the strong expressions used in describing them, make the whole of it highly applicable to our blessed Lord: on this account it is appointed by the Church to be read on Good Friday, when we are directed to call to mind His unexampled sorrows both in body and soul, His desertion in the day of trouble, His bitter passion, and most painful death. Travell, Bp. Horne.

¶ A Song or Psalm ‖ for the sons of Korah, to the chief Musician upon Mahalath Leannoth, ‖ Maschil of Heman the Ezrahite.

‖ Or, of.

‖ Or, A Psalm of Heman the Ezrahite, giving instruction.

O LORD God of my salvation, I have cried day and night before thee:

2 Let my prayer come before thee: incline thine ear unto my cry;

3 For my soul is full of troubles; and my life draweth nigh unto the grave.

4 I am counted with them that go down into the pit: I am as a man that hath no strength:

5 Free among the dead, like the slain that lie in the grave, whom thou rememberest no more: and they are cut off ‖ from thy hand.

‖ Or, by thy hand.

6 Thou hast laid me in the lowest pit, in darkness, in the deeps.

7 Thy wrath lieth hard upon me, and thou hast afflicted me with all thy waves. Selah.

8 Thou hast put away mine acquaintance far from me; thou hast made me an abomination unto them: I am shut up, and I cannot come forth.

9 Mine eye mourneth by reason of affliction: LORD, I have called daily upon thee, I have stretched out my hands unto thee.

10 Wilt thou shew wonders to the dead? shall the dead arise and praise thee? Selah.

11 Shall thy lovingkindness be declared in the grave? or thy faithfulness in destruction?

12 Shall thy wonders be known in the dark? and thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

13 But unto thee have I cried, O LORD; and in the morning shall my prayer prevent thee.

14 LORD, why castest thou off my soul? why hidest thou thy face from me?

15 I am afflicted and ready to die from my youth up: while I suffer thy terrors I am distracted.

16 Thy fierce wrath goeth over me; thy terrors have cut me off.

17 They came round about me ‖ daily like water; they compassed me about together.

‖ Or, all the day.

18 Lover and friend hast thou put far from me, and mine acquaintance into darkness.

PSALM LXXXIX.

1 The psalmist praiseth God for his covenant, 5 for his wonderful power, 15 for the care of his church, 19 for his favour to the kingdom of David. 38 Then complaining of contrary events, 46 he expostulateth, prayeth, and blesseth God.

¶ ‖ Maschil of Ethan the Ezrahite.

‖ Or, A Psalm for Ethan the Ezrahite, to give instruction.

I WILL sing of the mercies of the LORD for ever: with my mouth will I make known thy faithfulness † to all generations.

† Heb. to generation and generation.

2 For I have said, Mercy shall be built up for ever: thy faithfulness shalt thou establish in the very heavens.

— Mahalath] See the note to the title of Psalm liii.

— Leannoth,] This word means "interchangeably." Dr. Wells. Or, according to others, "to create dejections," to raise a pensive gloom or melancholy in the mind. Mudge.

— the Ezrahite.] That is, a descendant of Zerah the son of Judah. Dr. Wells.

Ver. 5. Free among the dead,] That is, set at liberty, or dismissed from the world, and separated from all communication with its affairs, as dead bodies are. Bp. Horne.

This alludes to the separation of lepers, who were as much removed from all society as if they were really dead. Fenton.

— whom thou rememberest &c.] That is, "whom Thou rememberest no more as living objects of Providence upon earth;" in this sense, they are "cut off from God's hand," which held and supported them in life. Bp. Horne.

6. Thou hast laid me &c.] Thou hast thrust me down into a deep and dark dungeon, which I can compare to nothing but a grave. Bp. Patrick.

10. — shall the dead &c.] Shall the dead arise out of their graves, and live here among men and celebrate Thy praises? Bp. Hall.

12. — in the land of forgetfulness?] In the grave, where all things are forgotten? Bp. Wilson.

13. — prevent thee.] Come before Thee. Bp. Wilson, Old Translation.

16. — thy terrors have cut me off.] Have overwhelmed me. Bp. Patrick.

As the comforts which true religion affords are the only sure support against the evils and calamities of the world, to which every condition of life is more or less exposed; so the terrours of religion, being very grievous in themselves, exclusive of these comforts, add weight to all our miseries, and are a burden too heavy for a man to sustain. But surely there is something monstrous in such terrours! They come not from religion by natural birth: for it is much easier to believe that all we see is chance and fortune, and religion itself a vain thing, than to believe that an all-wise and all-powerful Being has formed us to be miserable. And yet, in fact, this is often the case; we see many rendered unhappy by such fears and jealousies: and of all the fears incident to man these are the most fearful, and give us the quickest sense of misery; they are what the Psalmist has here described them to be, "distraction." Bp. Sherlock.

Psalm LXXXIX. Ethan, speaking in the person of his prince, describes his reliance on the faithfulness of God to fulfil His covenant with David, and on the power of God to perform wonders for the deliverance of His people. He then represents, that, notwithstanding His covenant with David, and His power to deliver His people, the kingdom of Judah was at that time in great desolation, being despoiled of its glory, and delivered into the hands of the Babylonians; and implores the Lord to put an end to its captivity and calamities. Green.

The glorious things here spoken of David, and of his posterity, are prophetical of the Messiah; and can with strict propriety be applied only to Him: on this account the Church has appointed this Psalm to be used on Christmas-day. Travell.

Ver. 2. — Mercy shall be built up &c.] That is, God's mercy, and His regard to the truth of His promises, are as fixed and unchangeable as the very heavens themselves. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

3 I have made a covenant with my
[a] 2 Sam. 7. 11, &c. chosen, I have [a] sworn unto David my servant,

4 Thy seed will I establish for ever, and † Heb. to generation and generation. build up thy throne † to all generations. Selah.

5 And the heavens shall praise thy wonders, O LORD: thy faithfulness also in the congregation of the saints.

6 For who in the heaven can be compared unto the LORD? who among the sons of the mighty can be likened unto the LORD?

7 God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints, and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him.

8 O LORD God of hosts, who is a strong LORD like unto thee? or to thy faithfulness round about thee?

9 Thou rulest the raging of the sea: when the waves thereof arise, thou stillest them.

‖ Or, Egypt. 10 Thou hast broken ‖ Rahab in pieces,
† Heb. with the arm of thy strength. as one that is slain; thou hast scattered thine enemies † with thy strong arm.

11 [b] The heavens are thine, the earth also [b] Gen. 1. 1. Psal. 24. 1. & 50. 12. is thine: as for the world and the fulness thereof, thou hast founded them.

12 The north and the south thou hast created them: Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name.

† Heb. an arm with might. 13 Thou hast † a mighty arm: strong is ‖ Or, establishment. thy hand, and high is thy right hand.

14 Justice and judgment are the ‖ habitation of thy throne: mercy and truth shall go before thy face.

15 Blessed is the people that know the [c] Numb. 10. 6. [c] joyful sound: they shall walk, O LORD, in the light of thy countenance.

16 In thy name shall they rejoice all the day: and in thy righteousness shall they be exalted.

17 For thou art the glory of their strength: and in thy favour our horn shall be exalted.

18 For ‖ the LORD is our defence; and
‖ Or, our shield is of the LORD, and our king is of the Holy One of Israel. the Holy One of Israel is our king.

19 Then thou spakest in vision to thy holy one, and saidst, I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people.

20 [d] I have found David my servant;
[d] 1 Sam. 16. 12. with my holy oil have I anointed him:

21 With whom my hand shall be established: mine arm also shall strengthen him.

22 The enemy shall not exact upon him; nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

23 And I will beat down his foes before his face, and plague them that hate him.

24 But my faithfulness and my mercy shall be with him: and in my name shall his horn be exalted.

25 I will set his hand also in the sea, and his right hand in the rivers.

26 He shall cry unto me, Thou art my father, my God, and the rock of my salvation.

27 Also I will make him my firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth.

28 My mercy will I keep for him for evermore, and my covenant shall stand fast with him.

29 His seed also will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the days of heaven.

30 If his children forsake my law, and walk not in my judgments;

31 If they † break my statutes, and keep
† Heb. profane my statutes. not my commandments;

32 Then will I visit their transgression with the rod, and their iniquity with stripes.

33 Nevertheless my lovingkindness † will
† Heb. I will not make void from him. I not utterly take from him, nor suffer my faithfulness † to fail.

† Heb. to lie. 34 My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips.

† Heb. If I lie. 35 Once have I sworn by my holiness † that I will not lie unto David.

[e] 2 Sam. 7. 16. Luke 1. 33. John 12. 34. 36 [e] His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me.

---

3. I have made a covenant &c.] This covenant God made with David by the prophet Nathan, 2 Sam. vii. 12, &c. The covenant relates to David's "seed," and to the "establishment of his throne" in that seed; literally, in Solomon, for a time; spiritually, in Christ, for ever. Bp. Horne.

6. — the sons of the mighty] The mighty angels. Bp. Wilson.

8. — or to thy faithfulness &c.] Or whose faithfulness is equal to Thine? Green.

10. Thou hast broken Rahab in pieces,] Thou hast overthrown the proud Egyptian in the Red sea. Bp. Hall.

12. — Tabor and Hermon] These mountains, the first lying on the west, and the second on the east of Judea, are here put for the eastern and western parts of the world. Green.

15. Blessed is the people &c.] Blessed are the people, whose ears are inured to the cheerful sound of the sacred trumpets of God in their solemn feasts and sacrifices. Bp. Hall.

19. Then thou spakest &c.] Thou spakest by way of vision to Thy holy prophet Samuel, and saidst, I have ordained to give help and victory unto My people, by My strong and mighty champion, David. Bp. Hall.

22. — shall not exact upon him;] Shall not subdue him. Rosenmüller.

25. I will set his hand &c.] I will extend his conquests and dominion from the Mediterranean sea to the rivers Tigris and Euphrates. Dr. Wells.

27. Also I will make &c.] I will raise him to the highest dignity among those whom I shall call My sons; and I will exalt him above all other kings in the world, so that he may be a most eminent type of My Son Christ, the King of kings, and Lord of lords. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

36. His seed shall endure &c.] His family shall never be extinct, but shall hold the royal dignity as long as the sun shineth. Bp. Patrick.

37 It shall be established for ever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven. Selah.

38 But thou hast cast off and abhorred, thou hast been wroth with thine anointed.

39 Thou hast made void the covenant of thy servant: thou hast profaned his crown by casting it to the ground.

40 Thou hast broken down all his hedges; thou hast brought his strong holds to ruin.

41 All that pass by the way spoil him: he is a reproach to his neighbours.

42 Thou hast set up the right hand of his adversaries; thou hast made all his enemies to rejoice.

43 Thou hast also turned the edge of his sword, and hast not made him to stand in the battle.

† Heb. brightness.

44 Thou hast made his † glory to cease, and cast his throne down to the ground.

45 The days of his youth hast thou shortened: thou hast covered him with shame. Selah.

46 How long, LORD? wilt thou hide thyself for ever? shall thy wrath burn like fire?

47 Remember how short my time is: wherefore hast thou made all men in vain?

48 What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave? Selah.

49 LORD, where are thy former loving-

[f] 2 Sam. 7. 15. kindnesses, which thou [f] swarest unto David in thy truth?

50 Remember, LORD, the reproach of thy servants; how I do bear in my bosom the reproach of all the mighty people;

51 Wherewith thine enemies have reproached, O LORD; wherewith they have reproached the footsteps of thine anointed.

52 Blessed be the LORD for evermore. Amen, and Amen.

PSALM XC.

1 Moses, setting forth God's providence, 3 complaineth of human fragility, 7 divine chastisements, 10 and brevity of life. 12 He prayeth for the knowledge and sensible experience of God's good providence.

¶ ‖ A Prayer of Moses the man of God.

‖ Or, A Prayer, being a Psalm of Moses.

LORD, thou hast been our dwelling place † in all generations.

† Heb. in generation and generation.

2 Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God.

3 Thou turnest man to destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men.

4 [a] For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday ‖ when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

[a] 2 Pet. 3. 8.

‖ Or, when he hath passed them.

5 Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as a sleep: in the morning they are like grass which ‖ groweth up.

‖ Or, is changed.

6 In the morning it flourisheth, and groweth up; in the evening it is cut down, and withereth.

7 For we are consumed by thine anger, and by thy wrath are we troubled.

8 Thou hast set our iniquities before thee, our secret sins in the light of thy countenance.

† Heb. turned away.

9 For all our days are † passed away in thy wrath: we spend our years ‖ as a tale that is told.

‖ Or, as a meditation.

---

39. Thou hast made void &c.] Thou seemest not to regard the covenant made with Thy faithful servant David, but hast permitted the authority of his successor to be profaned, and his crown trodden under foot. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

47. Remember how short &c.] O let the natural shortness of my life plead with Thee for mercy, and do not let it appear as if Thou hadst made man only to be miserable and to die. Travell.

50. Remember, Lord, the reproach &c.] The Jews, when this Psalm was penned, were in a low estate: the very heathen reproached them for vainly expecting their mighty Deliverer, the Messiah, whom they said God had promised to David, and out of his loins. Bp. Wilson.

51. — reproached the footsteps &c.] That is, have pursued the steps of Thine anointed with revilings. Mudge, Merrick. Or, according to the Chaldee, Mocked at the tardy advent of Thy Messiah. Bp. Horne.

The posterity of David were to enjoy God's favour, or be deprived of it, as they proved obedient or disobedient to His law. When they became rebellious, idolatrous, and profligate, the rod was lifted up, and due chastisement inflicted, sometimes by the immediate hand of Heaven, sometimes by the instrumentality of their heathen adversaries; famine and pestilence, war and captivity, were at different times employed to reclaim backsliding Israel. But still the "covenant" of God in Christ stood sure; the Jewish nation was preserved, through all changes and revolutions, "till the Seed came to whom the promise was made;" nor was Jerusalem destroyed before the new and spiritual kingdom of Messiah was set up in the earth. Christian communities, and the individuals that compose them, are in like manner corrected and punished for their offences. "Nevertheless, God's lovingkindness will He not utterly take from us, nor suffer His faithfulness to fail." So, "I am with you alway," says the Redeemer, "even unto the end of the world, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against My Church," Matth. xxviii. 20. and xvi. 18. Nor shall the world be destroyed until Christ come again, and His glorious kingdom be ready to appear. Bp. Horne.

The end of the third Book of Psalms.

Psalm XC. It has been commonly imagined, that this Psalm was composed by Moses, when God shortened the days of the murmuring Israelites in the wilderness; see Numb. xiv. It chiefly refers to the mortal and transitory state of man on earth, and is therefore adopted by the Church in the Funeral Service. Travell.

Ver. 1. — our dwelling place] Our place of refuge. Mudge, Old Translation.

3, 4. — and sayest, Return, &c.] That is, Thou restorest men to life. "For a thousand years," &c. that is, though the time of their restoration is remote, it is equally certain; for a thousand years are to Thee as one day.

4. — a watch in the night.] See the note on Exod. xiv. 24.

9. For all our days &c.] For we constantly feel some effect or other of Thine anger, whereby our lives decline exceeding fast. Bp. Patrick.

10 † The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labour and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away.

† Heb. As for the days of our years, in them are seventy years.

11 Who knoweth the power of thine anger? even according to thy fear, so is thy wrath.

12 So teach us to number our days, that we may † apply our hearts unto wisdom.

† Heb. cause to come.

13 Return, O LORD, how long? and let it repent thee concerning thy servants.

14 O satisfy us early with thy mercy; that we may rejoice and be glad all our days.

15 Make us glad according to the days wherein thou hast afflicted us, and the years wherein we have seen evil.

16 Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children.

17 And let the beauty of the LORD our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it.

PSALM XCI.

1 The state of the godly. 3 Their safety. 9 Their habitation. 11 Their servants. 14 Their friend; with the effects of them all.

HE that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high shall † abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

† Heb. lodge.

2 I will say of the LORD, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust.

3 Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence.

4 He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

5 Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day;

6 Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday.

7 A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee.

8 Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked.

9 Because thou hast made the LORD which is my refuge, even the most high, thy habitation;

10 There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

11 * For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.

* Matthew 4. 6. Luke 4. 10.

12 They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone.

---

11. Who knoweth &c.] But who is there that duly lays to heart the effects of Thy anger, and considers that it is proportioned to our piety or disobedience? Travell. Moses here laments the insensibility of the Israelites under the judgments of God. They saw His wrath sweeping numbers away for their sins, and yet none studied to divert it, by fearing Him as they ought. Green.

13. Return, O Lord, &c.] Return, O Lord, at length, from Thy severity against us; and let Thy servants feel Thy gracious pardon. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

16. Let thy work &c.] He prays God to shew them and their posterity those glorious works which heretofore He had exerted in behalf of His people, and to shine upon and prosper what they were doing. Mudge.

17. And let the beauty &c.] Let the countenance of the Lord our God smile upon us; and prosper Thou the work of our hands. Green.

This Psalm is remarkable for affording us much useful instruction. In it we have the governour of a numerous people sequestering his mind from the management of publick affairs to private meditations; from beholding the present outward appearances, to considering the real nature and secret causes of things: in the midst of all the splendour and pomp, of all the stir and tumult about him, he observes the frailty of human condition, he discerns the providence of God justly ordering all; this he does not only in the way of wise consideration, but of serious devotion, moulding his observations into pious acknowledgments, and earnest prayers to God. Thus doth that great and good man teach us all, (more particularly men of high estate and much business,) to find opportunities of withdrawing their thoughts from those things which commonly amuse them, (the cares, the glories, the pleasures of this world,) and fixing them upon matters more improvable to devotion; the transitoriness of their condition, and their subjection to God's just providence; joining also to these meditations suitable acts of religion, due acknowledgments to God, and humble prayers. This was his practice among the greatest encumbrances that any man could have; and it should also be ours. Dr. Barrow.

Psalm XCI. The subject of this Psalm is the security, the success, and the reward of piety. If any reader will carefully weigh and consider the nature and dignity of the imagery contained in this Psalm, having due respect at the same time to the principles of the mystical allegory, I am persuaded he will agree with me, that something of a mystical design is concealed under the literal meaning of it. Without a question, the pious person, the king, or high priest perhaps, who in the literal sense is the principal character of the poem, is meant in reality to represent some greater and sublimer personage. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 1. He that dwelleth &c.] "To dwell in the secret place of the Most High," is a figurative expression, and signifies no more than to put ourselves under the Divine protection. Green.

3. Surely he shall deliver &c.] Leaving the former sentence unfinished, the Psalmist turns and addresses the same person whom he had been describing: "He indeed shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, from the destroying pestilence." Bp. Lowth.

4—7. He shall cover thee &c.] This imagery is beautiful and diversified, and at the same time uncommonly solemn and sublime. Bp. Lowth.

8. Only with thine eyes &c.] The meaning is, that the righteous person all along spoken of, himself secure from the judgments of God, should in safety behold the destruction wrought by them upon impenitent and incorrigible sinners. Bp. Horne.

12. — lest thou dash &c.] Lest any the slightest harm should befall thee. Bp. Patrick. See the quotation of these words at Matth. iv. 6.

13 Thou shalt tread upon the lion and
‖ Or, asp. ‖ adder: the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet.

14 Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore will I deliver him: I will set him on high, because he hath known my name.

15 He shall call upon me, and I will answer him: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him, and honour him.

† Heb. length of days. 16 With † long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation.

PSALM XCII.

1 The prophet exhorteth to praise God, 4 for his great works, 6 for his judgments on the wicked, 10 and for his goodness to the godly.

¶ A Psalm or Song for the sabbath day.

IT is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most high:

2 To shew forth thy lovingkindness in
† Heb. in the nights. the morning, and thy faithfulness † every night,

3 Upon an instrument of ten strings,
‖ Or, upon the solemn sound with the harp. † Heb. Higgaion. and upon the psaltery; ‖ upon the harp with † a solemn sound.

4 For thou, LORD, hast made me glad through thy work: I will triumph in the works of thy hands.

5 O LORD, how great are thy works! and thy thoughts are very deep.

6 A brutish man knoweth not; neither doth a fool understand this.

7 When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever:

8 ¶ But thou, LORD, art most high for evermore.

9 For, lo, thine enemies, O LORD, for, lo, thine enemies shall perish; all the workers of iniquity shall be scattered.

10 But my horn shalt thou exalt like the horn of an unicorn: I shall be anointed with fresh oil.

11 Mine eye also shall see my desire on mine enemies, and mine ears shall hear my desire of the wicked that rise up against me.

12 [a] The righteous shall flourish like the [a] Hos. 14. 5. palm tree: he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon.

13 Those that be planted in the house of the LORD shall flourish in the courts of our God.

14 They shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and † flourishing; † Heb. green.

15 To shew that the LORD is upright: he is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him.

PSALM XCIII.

The majesty, power, and holiness of Christ's kingdom.

---

13. Thou shalt tread &c.] The most noxious and venomous creatures shall have no power to hurt thee, but thou shalt subdue and trample them under foot. So shall Christ triumph over the "dragon, that old serpent," Rev. xx. 2, and He shall make His faithful servants victorious "over all the power of the enemy," Luke x. 19. Travell.

—— the dragon] See the notes on Deut. xxxii. 33. Psalm xliv. 19. and Lam. iv. 3.

14. Because he hath set &c.] In the former part of the Psalm the prophet spoke in his own person; here God Himself is plainly introduced as the speaker. Bp. Horne.

—— because he hath known my name.] Hath acknowledged My power, and relied on that alone for protection. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

How much man stands in need of the protection of Heaven, appears from a survey of the dangers to which he is continually exposed. Various are the terrours of the night, manifold the perils of the day; from diseases, whose infection makes its progress unobserved; from assaults, casualties, and accidents, which can neither be foreseen, nor guarded against. The soul has likewise her enemies ready to attack and surprise her at all hours. Avarice and ambition are abroad watching for her in the day; while concupiscence, like a pestilence, "walketh in darkness." In adversity she is disturbed by terrours; in prosperity still more endangered by pleasures. But Jesus Christ has overcome the world, to prevent us from being overcome by it. Bp. Horne.

Psalm XCII. This Psalm was appointed by the Jews to be used constantly on the sabbath day, as it was probably composed by David after God had given him rest from all his enemies. See 2 Sam. vii. 1. Fenton.

Ver. 4. — thy work:] The following part of the Psalm shews, that by "God's work" here, the Psalmist means, His providence in the government of human affairs. Rosenmüller.

6. A brutish man — a fool] He who is ignorant of the final issue of things, and attendeth not to his eternal interest, is in Scripture language the "brutish man," and the "fool," who knoweth not the works, neither understandeth the designs of Heaven. Bp. Horne.

8. — art most high] The expression is equivalent to God's sitting in heaven, and there overruling all the designs of men to His own glory, and the good of His servants. Mudge.

10. But my horn &c.] But, as the unicorn is superiour in power and strength to other creatures, so shall my authority be exalted above others; and I shall enjoy a continual course of happiness; like one who is newly anointed for the enjoyment of a feast. Travell.

—— unicorn:] See the note on Psalm xxii. 21.

13. Those that be planted &c.] Those who, like fruitful trees, are firmly rooted in their obedience to God's laws, shall be sheltered under His protection, and shall grow and increase in His service. Travell.

Thanksgiving is the duty, and ought to be the delight, of a Christian. It is his duty, as being the least return he can make to his great Benefactor: it ought to be his delight, for it is that of angels, and will be that of every grateful heart, whether in heaven or on earth. The "mercy" of God in promising salvation, and His "faithfulness" in accomplishing it, are inexhaustible subjects for morning and evening praises; every instrument should be strung, and every voice tuned to celebrate them, until day and night come to an end. But more especially should this be done on the sabbath day; which, when so employed, affords a lively resemblance of that eternal sabbath, to be hereafter kept by the redeemed in the kingdom of God. Bp. Horne.

THE LORD reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the LORD is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is stablished, that it cannot be moved.

† Heb. from then. 2 Thy throne is established † of old: thou art from everlasting.

3 The floods have lifted up, O LORD, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves.

4 The LORD on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

† Heb. to length of days. 5 Thy testimonies are very sure: holiness becometh thine house, O LORD, † for ever.

PSALM XCIV.

1 The prophet, calling for justice, complaineth of tyranny and impiety. 8 He teacheth God's providence. 12 He sheweth the blessedness of affliction. 16 God is the defender of the afflicted.

† Heb. God of revenges. † Heb. shine forth. O LORD † God, to whom vengeance belongeth; O God, to whom vengeance belongeth, † shew thyself.

2 Lift up thyself, thou judge of the earth: render a reward to the proud.

3 LORD, how long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph?

4 How long shall they utter and speak hard things? and all the workers of iniquity boast themselves?

5 They break in pieces thy people, O LORD, and afflict thine heritage.

6 They slay the widow and the stranger, and murder the fatherless.

[a] Ps. 10. 11, 13. 7 [a] Yet they say, The LORD shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob regard it.

8 Understand, ye brutish among the people: and ye fools, when will ye be wise?

[b] Exodus 4. 11. Prov. 20. 12. 9 [b] He that planted the ear, shall he not hear? he that formed the eye, shall he not see?

10 He that chastiseth the heathen, shall not he correct? he that teacheth man knowledge, shall not he know?

[c] 1 Cor. 3. 20. 11 [c] The LORD knoweth the thoughts of man, that they are vanity.

12 Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O LORD, and teachest him out of thy law;

13 That thou mayest give him rest from the days of adversity, until the pit be digged for the wicked.

14 For the LORD will not cast off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance.

15 But judgment shall return unto righteousness: and all the upright in heart shall † follow it.

† Heb. shall be after it.

16 Who will rise up for me against the evildoers? or who will stand up for me against the workers of iniquity?

‖ Or, quickly. 17 Unless the LORD had been my help, my soul had ‖ almost dwelt in silence.

18 When I said, My foot slippeth; thy mercy, O LORD, held me up.

19 In the multitude of my thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul.

20 Shall the throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which frameth mischief by a law?

21 They gather themselves together against the soul of the righteous, and condemn the innocent blood.

Psalm XCIII. ver. 1. — clothed with majesty;] See the second note from Bp. Sanderson on Job xxix. 14.

3. The floods have lifted up, &c.] The meaning is, Our numerous enemies are risen up against us, and threaten to overwhelm us, like a furious storm. Travell. The rage and clamour of the enemies of God's people is frequently represented by the raging and roaring of the sea. Green.

4. The Lord on high &c.] The King of heaven is stronger than all earthly potentates, and will subdue them under His feet. Poole.

This Psalm teaches us, that God rules with glory and magnificence over all the world; that His throne is established in righteousness; that His power infinitely exceeds that of all created beings: from whence we are to conclude, that He will reign for ever, for the good and advantage of His people, and of all those who serve Him and submit themselves to Him. Osterwald.

Psalm XCIV. In this prayer, the children of Israel represent to God the sad condition they were reduced to by the cruelty of their enemies, whose insolence, impiety, and blasphemies, they describe. The prophet nevertheless adores the wisdom and goodness of God, in the corrections wherewith He visits men; and foretels the deliverance of the righteous, and the destruction of the wicked. Osterwald. This is one of the Psalms appointed for the fast service on the thirtieth of January.

Ver. 1. — shew thyself.] Appear in the defence of Thy oppressed servants. Travell.

4. — hard things?] That is, insolent, malicious, contemptuous and threatening words. Poole.

12, 13. Blessed is the man &c.] Since, therefore, the schemes of the adversary are vain, and the counsel of Jehovah shall infallibly stand, happy is the man who, having learned from the Scriptures of truth the lessons of faith and patience, enjoys tranquillity of mind in time of trouble, while destruction is preparing for the impenitent. Bp. Horne.

15. But judgment shall return &c.] Although the justice of God may seem to be called in question, while the wicked flourish and the godly are afflicted; yet shall true righteousness and judgment return at the last, and all the upright shall follow God, and justify the ways of His providence. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

17. — my soul &c.] I had been laid in the grave among the silent dead. Bp. Nicholson.

20. Shall the throne &c.] Can it be possible, O Lord, that Thou shouldest take the part of oppression and injustice, and have any fellowship with those unrighteous judges, who oppress Thy servants under the pretence of law and justice? Bp. Patrick, Travell.

The man who enjoys the world under a sense of religion, and of the power and goodness of God, will so use the world as not to abuse it; will look upon the uncertainties of life with the uncon-

22 But the LORD is my defence; and my God is the rock of my refuge.

23 And he shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; yea, the LORD our God shall cut them off.

PSALM XCV.

1 An exhortation to praise God, 3 for his greatness, 6 and for his goodness, 8 and not to tempt him.

O COME, let us sing unto the LORD: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation.

2 Let us † come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms.

† Heb. prevent his face.

3 For the LORD is a great God, and a great King above all gods.

4 † In his hand are the deep places of the earth: ‖ the strength of the hills is his also.

† Heb. In whose. ‖ Or, the heights of the hills are his.

5 † The sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land.

† Heb. Whose the sea is.

6 O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the LORD our maker.

7 For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. [a] To day if ye will hear his voice,

[a] Hebr. 3. 7. & 4. 7.

8 Harden not your heart, [b] as in the † provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness:

[b] Exod. 17. 2, 7. Numb. 14. 22, &c.

† Heb. contention.

9 When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my work.

10 Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said, It is a people that do err in their heart, and they have not known my ways:

11 Unto whom I sware in my wrath † that they should not enter into my rest.

† Heb. if they enter into my rest.

PSALM XCVI.

1 An exhortation to praise God, 4 for his greatness, 8 for his kingdom, 11 for his general judgment.

O [a] SING unto the LORD a new song: sing unto the LORD, all the earth.

[a] 1 Chron. 16. 23.

2 Sing unto the LORD, bless his name; shew forth his salvation from day to day.

3 Declare his glory among the heathen, his wonders among all people.

4 For the LORD is great, and greatly to be praised: he is to be feared above all gods.

---

cernedness of one who knows he has a much nobler possession, of which no one can rob him: he will part with his riches without torment, he will keep them without anxiety, and use them so as to make them a blessing to himself and all around him. If the course of the world be disordered, and threaten the inhabitants thereof with calamity and distress, he will maintain his inward peace, knowing that "the Lord is King, be the earth never so unquiet." He will look with pleasure on all the scenes of futurity, being well assured that the world that now is, and the world that is to come, are in the hands of God. These are the comforts which, in the multitude of sorrows which surround us, will refresh the soul of a religious man; whilst they who forget God are spending a wretched life in lamenting over the misfortunes of this world, and are ending it to begin a more wretched life in the world that is to come. Bp. Sherlock.

Psalm XCV. The author of the Epistle to the Hebrews hath taught us to consider this Psalm as an address to believers under the Gospel; and he affirms it to be written by David, Heb. iv. 7. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 3. — above all gods.] Above all the powers of heaven and earth. Bp. Patrick.

4. — the strength of the hills] That is, the loftiest and largest hills. Dr. Hammond.

6. — let us kneel before the Lord] It is most becoming, on all occasions, to express religious feelings of the mind by suitable actions of the body; and, especially, to "kneel before the Lord our Maker" when we humbly pour forth to His sacred name the tribute of our prayers and adorations.

7. For he is our God; &c.] "For He is our God, we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand, if ye will hear His voice to-day;" that is, If ye will be His obedient people, He will continue to be your God. Or else, the word translated "if" may be rendered in the optative form; "O that you would hear His voice to-day," saying unto you, "Harden not, &c." However this be, what follows to the end of the Psalm is undoubtedly spoken in the person of God Himself. Bp. Horne.

8, 9. Harden not &c.] These verses allude to what passed at the place called Massah, and Meribah, from the people there striving with their God, notwithstanding all the mighty works which He had wrought for them before their eyes, Exod. xvii. 7. Bp. Horne.

9. When your fathers tempted me] See the notes on Numb. xiv. 22.

10. — they have not known my ways:] They have not acknowledged My power and presence among them. Bp. Wilson.

11. — into my rest.] That is, into the land of Canaan, which was a type of heaven. Dr. Wells.

The wisdom and piety of the Church hath appointed this Psalm to be used every day in the beginning of our publick morning devotions, that there may be an union of all in heart and voice in the acknowledgment of God's mercy. It is from not acknowledging at all, or not acknowledging together, the superiority of God over all the world, and His power and justice of disposing of all things in it, that we fail in our humility towards Him, and in the exercise of Christian duties towards all men; and it is from not enough remembering the ingratitude and rebellion of our forefathers, and the grievous punishments they underwent for the same, the forcing God to reverse His own purpose, and compelling Him not to let them see the blessing He intended to them, that we are still so much inclined to murmur at His providence, and undervalue His power. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm XCVI. We learn from 1 Chron. xvi. that, on the removal of the ark to the place prepared for it on mount Zion, David delivered this Psalm to be sung in commemoration of God's special presence among them. It is a solemn invocation to the people to give glory to God, to acknowledge and adore Him, both as the Creator of all things, and the supreme and righteous Judge of the world. By common consent of Jews as well as Christians, this Psalm is applied to the times of the Messiah. Bp. Horne, Travell.

According to the Greek version, this Psalm was used at the dedication of the second temple, after the return of the Babylonish captivity. And it was somewhat altered to accommodate it to that purpose. Rosenmüller.

Ver. 1. — a new song:] See note at Ps. xxxiii. 3.

5 For all the gods of the nations are idols: but the LORD made the heavens.

6 Honour and majesty are before him: strength and beauty are in his sanctuary.

7 Give unto the LORD, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the LORD glory and strength.

† Heb. of his name.

8 Give unto the LORD the glory † due unto his name: bring an offering, and come into his courts.

‖ Or, in the glorious sanctuary.

9 O worship the LORD ‖ in the beauty of holiness: fear before him, all the earth.

[b] Ps. 93. 1. & 97. 1.

10 Say among the heathen that [b] the LORD reigneth: the world also shall be established that it shall not be moved: he shall judge the people righteously.

11 Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof.

12 Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice

13 Before the LORD: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth.

PSALM XCVII.

1 The majesty of God's kingdom. 7 The church rejoiceth at God's judgments upon idolaters. 10 An exhortation to godliness and gladness.

† Heb. many, or, great isles.

THE LORD reigneth; let the earth rejoice; let the † multitude of isles be glad thereof.

2 Clouds and darkness are round about him: [a] righteousness and judgment are the ‖ habitation of his throne.

[a] Ps. 89. 14.

‖ Or, establishment.

3 A fire goeth before him, and burneth up his enemies round about.

4 His lightnings enlightened the world: the earth saw, and trembled.

5 The hills melted like wax at the presence of the LORD, at the presence of the LORD of the whole earth.

6 The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory.

7 [b] Confounded be all they that serve graven images, that boast themselves of idols: worship him, all ye gods.

[b] Exod. 20. 4. Lev. 26. 1. Deut. 5. 8. Hebr. 1. 6.

8 Zion heard, and was glad; and the daughters of Judah rejoiced because of thy judgments, O LORD.

9 For thou, LORD, art high above all the earth: thou art exalted far above all gods.

10 Ye that love the LORD, [c] hate evil: he preserveth the souls of his saints; he delivereth them out of the hand of the wicked.

[c] Ps. 34. 14. Amos 5. 15. Rom. 12. 9.

11 Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart.

12 Rejoice in the LORD, ye righteous; and give thanks ‖ at the remembrance of his holiness.

‖ Or, to the memorial.

PSALM XCVIII.

1 The psalmist exhorteth the Jews, 4 the Gentiles, 7 and all the creatures to praise God.

¶ A Psalm.

O SING unto the LORD a new song; for he hath done marvellous things: his

---

6. Honour and majesty are before him. &c.] This expresses, in poetical language, the general glory, majesty, and perfection of God.

9. — the beauty of holiness:] See the note on Psalm xxix. 2.

10—13. Say among the heathen &c.] Nothing can excel in sublimity the noble exultation of universal nature in these verses, where the whole animate and inanimate creation unite in the praises of their Maker. Poetry here seems to assume the highest tone of triumph and exultation, and to revel, if I may so express myself, in all the extravagance of joy. Bp. Lowth.

The exhortations in this Psalm are peculiarly applicable to the times of the Gospel, and describe the joy which good men should express, when they reflect that the several nations of the world are enlightened with the knowledge of the true God, and His Son Jesus Christ. These great privileges engage us to praise the Lord without ceasing; to worship Him with fear, humility, and joy; and to shew by our obedience, that the Lord does truly reign over us. Ostervald.

Psalm XCVII. In this Psalm the gracious assistance which God affords His servants, and the vengeance He takes upon the opposers of His laws, are strongly described under the images of fire and tempest. But the Psalm is chiefly applicable to the spiritual reign of Christ, who should overthrow the idolatry of the heathen world, subdue all His enemies, and make the spiritual "daughters of Judah be glad, because of His judgments." Travell. This and the three following Psalms bear the name of David in the Greek version, and it is highly probable that they all come from the same hand as the ninety-sixth. Green.

Ver. 2. Clouds and darkness &c.] His throne is surrounded by impenetrable obscurity, but every thing that issues from it is dictated by unerring truth and justice. Travell.

3—5. A fire goeth before him, &c.] The judgments of God, and their effects upon the world, are here set forth, under the usual similitude of lightning and fire from heaven, causing the earth to tremble, and mountains to melt and dissolve away. Bp. Horne.

7. — worship him, all ye gods.] Let all that are called gods, whether on earth or in heaven, acknowledge and adore His sovereign authority. Bp. Patrick.

8. — the daughters of Judah] See note at Ps. xlviii. 11.

11. Light] That is, life, salvation, immortality.

This Psalm is not so much a description of God's dominion over the Jews as a prophecy of the dominion of Jesus Christ over all nations. The Holy Spirit here describes the effects which the coming of that kingdom would produce, and the joy which the faithful would feel when it should be manifested; wherefore it principally concerns us to improve those affections of zeal and devotion which are manifest in this divine song. We here learn, that the best way of praising God, and the true character of His worshippers, is to love Him, to hate evil, and to rejoice in Him continually. Ostervald.

Psalm XCVIII. The prophet, transported by the Spirit into the times of the Messiah, speaks in this Psalm of the great deliverance, as already effected.

There is a great similarity between this Psalm and the ninety-sixth. It makes part of our Evening Service, to be read after the first lesson.

right hand, and his holy arm, hath gotten him the victory.

[a] Is. 52. 10. 2 [a] The LORD hath made known his salvation: his righteousness hath he ‖ openly shewed in the sight of the heathen.

‖ Or, revealed.

3 He hath remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel: all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.

4 Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, all the earth: make a loud noise, and rejoice, and sing praise.

5 Sing unto the LORD with the harp; with the harp, and the voice of a psalm.

6 With trumpets and sound of cornet make a joyful noise before the LORD, the King.

7 Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

8 Let the floods clap their hands: let the hills be joyful together

[b] Ps. 96. 13. 9 Before the LORD; [b] for he cometh to judge the earth: with righteousness shall he judge the world, and the people with equity.

PSALM XCIX.

1 The prophet, setting forth the kingdom of God in Zion, 5 exhorteth all, by the example of forefathers, to worship God at his holy hill.

THE LORD reigneth; let the people tremble: he sitteth between the cherubims; let the earth † be moved.

† Heb. stagger.

2 The LORD is great in Zion; and he is high above all the people.

3 Let them praise thy great and terrible name; for it is holy.

4 The king's strength also loveth judgment; thou dost establish equity, thou executest judgment and righteousness in Jacob.

5 Exalt ye the LORD our God, and worship at his footstool; for ‖ he is holy.

‖ Or, it is holy.

6 Moses and Aaron among his priests, and Samuel among them that call upon his name; they called upon the LORD, and he answered them.

7 He spake unto them in the cloudy pillar: they kept his testimonies, and the ordinance that he gave them.

8 Thou answeredst them, O LORD our God: thou wast a God that forgavest them, though thou tookest vengeance of their inventions.

9 Exalt the LORD our God, and worship at his holy hill; for the LORD our God is holy.

PSALM C.

1 An exhortation to praise God cheerfully, 3 for his greatness, 4 and for his power.

Ver. 2. — his righteousness &c.] Meaning God's faithfulness in accomplishing His great promise of sending the Messias. Poole.

3. — all the ends] All the countries. Bp. Wilson.

6. — cornet] Or trumpet, as the same word is translated at Exod. xix. 16. and other places. Parkhurst.

7. Let the sea roar, &c.] Call upon the whole creation, animate and inanimate, to join the universal chorus; the sea, and the land, and all the various inhabitants thereof. Bp. Horne, Travell.

There is nothing that God expects more from us, nor takes as a greater argument of our gratitude to Him, than our signal and cheerful joy upon receiving any great benefit from Him: nor is the joy of our heart enough, though He sees the full extent of it; but He will have such a manifestation of it, that the people may know it as well as He. They who would stifle all their joy within their own breasts, and look upon solemn and publick manifestations of it, as a mixture of too much vanity in the praising and magnifying God, do not conform themselves to David's precepts, or his example. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm XCIX. ver. 1. The Lord reigneth; &c.] Admiration, as it ever accompanies, so it is frequently the cause of sublimity. It produces great and magnificent conceptions and sentiments, and expresses them in language bold and elevated, in sentences concise, abrupt, and energetick. Of which this verse affords a striking instance. Bp. Lowth.

—— he sitteth between the cherubims;] He manifests His presence upon the mercy-seat between the cherubim. Bp. Hall.

—— let the earth be moved.] Let the earth bow down with fear. Travell.

4. The king's strength also loveth judgment; &c.] Although the "strength" of our King be infinite, yet it is never exerted, but in "righteousness" and just "judgment," which are His delight; they compose the firm basis of His throne, and direct His whole administration. Bp. Horne.

5. — worship at his footstool;] Worship before and towards His ark, which is His footstool. Dr. Wells.

6. Moses and Aaron &c.] In confirmation of what he had said, that God is holy, he mentions Moses, and Aaron, and Samuel, as three of the greatest eminence who were devoted to His service: to them He had shewn Himself to be God by very remarkable instances of favour, though at the same time He punished the infidelities of the people. Mudge.

8. Thou answeredst them, &c.] The construction of the verse seems to be this: "O Lord our God, Thou didst hear, or answer them;" that is, the aforementioned typical mediators, Moses, Aaron, and Samuel; "Thou becamest a forbearing God for them," or, at their intercession; and that, "even when punishing," or, when Thou hadst begun to punish, "the wicked deeds of them;" that is, not of Moses, Aaron, and Samuel, but of the people, who had transgressed, and for whom they interceded. This was the case when Moses interceded for the idolaters, Exod. xxxii. 32; Aaron for the schismaticks, Numb. xvi. 47; and Samuel for the whole nation, 1 Sam. vii. 9. Bp. Horne.

In this Psalm we learn, that it is the duty of those who have the happiness to know God, and to be the subjects of His kingdom, to fear Him, to reverence His Majesty, to worship Him with the profoundest humility, and without ceasing to celebrate His name, which is great, terrible, and holy. We also see in this Psalm, that God did formerly deliver the Israelites, when Moses, Aaron, and Samuel called upon Him; and that He also took vengeance on them for their sins, when they offended Him. This shews, that as God is always good, He is also just, and has sometimes made men feel the marks of His mercy, and sometimes of His wrath, to engage them to love and fear Him. Ostervald.

Psalm C. This is a solemn invitation to all the world to acknowledge, serve, and praise God, the Creator of all men, the guardian of His people, and the merciful performer of all His

¶ A Psalm of ‖ praise.

MAKE a joyful noise unto the LORD, † all ye lands.

‖ Or, thanksgiving.
† Heb. all the earth.

2 Serve the LORD with gladness: come before his presence with singing.

3 Know ye that the LORD he is God: it is he that hath made us, ‖ and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.

‖ Or, and his we are.

4 Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name.

5 For the LORD is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth † to all generations.

† Heb. to generation and generation.

PSALM CI.

David maketh a vow and profession of godliness.

¶ A Psalm of David.

I WILL sing of mercy and judgment: unto thee, O LORD, will I sing.

2 I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way. O when wilt thou come unto me? I will walk within my house with a perfect heart.

3 I will set no † wicked thing before mine eyes: I hate the work of them that turn aside; it shall not cleave to me.

† Heb. thing of Belial.

4 A froward heart shall depart from me: I will not know a wicked person.

5 Whoso privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I cut off: him that hath an high look and a proud heart will not I suffer.

6 Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with me: he that walketh ‖ in a perfect way, he shall serve me.

‖ Or, perfect in the way.

7 He that worketh deceit shall not dwell within my house: he that telleth lies † shall not tarry in my sight.

† Heb. shall not be established.

8 I will early destroy all the wicked of the land; that I may cut off all wicked doers from the city of the LORD.

PSALM CII.

1 The prophet in his prayer maketh a grievous complaint.
12 He taketh comfort in the eternity and mercy of God.
18 The mercies of God are to be recorded. 23 He sustaineth his weakness by the unchangeableness of God.

¶ A Prayer ‖ of the afflicted, when he is overwhelmed, and poureth out his complaint before the LORD.

‖ Or, for.

HEAR my prayer, O LORD, and let my cry come unto thee.

2 Hide not thy face from me in the day when I am in trouble; incline thine ear unto me: in the day when I call answer me speedily.

3 For my days are consumed ‖ like smoke, and my bones are burned as an hearth.

‖ Or, (as some read) into smoke.

4 My heart is smitten, and withered like grass; so that I forget to eat my bread.

---

promises, through all generations. It is used in the daily service of the Church, as a general acknowledgment of gratitude for the Divine blessings, and as an excitement to the congregation to join in the praise of God. Travell.

Ver. 4. — into his gates] That is, into the gates of His sanctuary. Bp. Patrick.

Instructed by this Psalm, we ought ever to pray that all nations of the world may worship the Lord, and glorify His name; and that to this end God would be pleased to make Himself known unto them, and give them the knowledge of His Son, Jesus Christ. And, in order to excite ourselves to the duty of praising Him, we should consider that He is our Creator, that "we are His people, and the sheep of His pasture;" that He has heaped abundant favours on us, not only of nature, but of grace, and given to His Church the clearest tokens of His goodness and mercy. Ostervald.

Psalm CI. David here appeals to God for his love of mercy, justice, and integrity; and publishes to the whole world his abhorrence of villainy, treachery, calumny, and pride; and then professes that he would, to the utmost of his power, discountenance and destroy all men of that character; as he would, on the contrary, favour and protect all those that were truly religious and faithful. Dr. Delaney. This is one of the Psalms appointed for the inauguration service of our kings.

Ver. 2. I will behave &c.] That is, wisdom shall guide my footsteps, and not suffer my feet to slide from Thy all-perfect way. Merrick.

—— O when wilt thou come unto me?] When wilt Thou come to protect and assist me? Rosenmüller.

3. — of them that turn aside;] Of them who in their counsels and their actions deviate from the Divine law, to serve their own interest. Bp. Horne.

—— it shall not cleave to me.] No such corrupt principle shall adhere to my soul, or find a place in my affections. Bp. Horne.

4. A froward heart] That is, a perverse and stubborn heart. Edwards.

—— I will not know] I will not favour. Dr. Wells.

8. I will early destroy &c.] The meaning may be, "Every morning I will be destroying," &c. The Hebrew courts of justice were held in the morning; see 2 Sam. xv. 2. Jer. xxi. 12. Green. Or, the word here rendered "early," may mean "soon." Merrick. Or, "assiduously." Rosenmüller.

How noble a declaration was this in a great king! and how worthy the imitation of all the princes of the earth! How noble a manner too was this of publishing declarations to the people, in solemn and sublime hymns to Almighty God; set to musick, and sung with joy and transport through the land; at once vindicating innocence, and propagating piety! Let this be numbered among the felicities peculiar to David. Dr. Delaney.

Psalm CII. This Psalm seems, by the thirteenth verse, to have been composed about the time that God had promised a restoration to His people from their captivity in Babylon; namely, after a term of seventy years: it strongly describes the miseries they suffered during their captivity, and begs God at length to take pity on Jerusalem, and restore it, with the temple, to its former glory; for this would be such an illustrious proof of His divinity, that it would draw all nations to do Him homage; and particularly His attention to this prayer of the poor prisoner should be recorded for His honour to future generations. Mudge. Penitential sorrow being a principal subject of this Psalm, it is suitable to the service of Ash Wednesday. Travell.

Ver. 3. — as an hearth.] Literally, as a firebrand. Dr. Wall, Old Translation.

5 By reason of the voice of my groaning my bones cleave to my ‖ skin.

‖ Or, flesh.

6 I am like a pelican of the wilderness: I am like an owl of the desert.

7 I watch, and am as a sparrow alone upon the house top.

8 Mine enemies reproach me all the day; and they that are mad against me are sworn against me.

9 For I have eaten ashes like bread, and mingled my drink with weeping,

10 Because of thine indignation and thy wrath: for thou hast lifted me up, and cast me down.

[a] Isaiah 40. 6. James 1. 10.

11 [a] My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass.

12 But thou, O LORD, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations.

13 Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Zion: for the time to favour her, yea, the set time, is come.

14 For thy servants take pleasure in her stones, and favour the dust thereof.

15 So the heathen shall fear the name of the LORD, and all the kings of the earth thy glory.

16 When the LORD shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory.

17 He will regard the prayer of the destitute, and not despise their prayer.

18 This shall be written for the generation to come: and the people which shall be created shall praise the LORD.

19 For he hath looked down from the height of his sanctuary; from heaven did the LORD behold the earth;

20 To hear the groaning of the prisoner; to loose † those that are appointed to death;

† Heb. the children of death.

21 To declare the name of the LORD in Zion, and his praise in Jerusalem;

22 When the people are gathered together, and the kingdoms, to serve the LORD.

23 He † weakened my strength in the way; he shortened my days.

† Heb. afflicted.

24 I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of my days: thy years are throughout all generations.

25 [b] Of old hast thou laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are the work of thy hands.

[b] Hebr. 1. 10.

26 They shall perish, but thou shalt † endure: yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed:

† Heb. stand.

27 But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end.

28 The children of thy servants shall continue, and their seed shall be established before thee.

PSALM CIII.

1 An exhortation to bless God for his mercy, 15 and for the constancy thereof.

¶ A Psalm of David.

BLESS the LORD, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name.

2 Bless the LORD, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits:

3 Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases;

4 Who redeemeth thy life from destruc-

---

5. By reason &c.] Extremity of sorrow causeth the flesh to waste, and the bones to press upon the skin, through which they are ready to force their way. Bp. Horne.

6. I am like &c.] The sorrowful man is naturally desirous of retiring from the world, to vent his complaints in solitude, and to pass the nights in watchfulness and prayer. Bp. Horne.

7. I watch,] That is, cares and sorrows so disturb me that I cannot sleep. Rosenmüller.

—— as a sparrow alone] The bird here mentioned seems to be the solitary sparrow, which is thus described in Brooke's Natural History: "It usually sits alone on the tops of old buildings, and roofs of churches, singing very sweetly, especially in the morning, and is an oriental bird." Parkhurst.

9. For I have eaten ashes &c.] I am so humbled by my affliction, that, like a mournful penitent, I lie down among the dust and ashes, which mingle themselves with my food, as tears do with my drink. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

13. — the set time, is come.] The time fixed for the continuance of the Babylonish captivity; which was seventy years, Jer. xxix. 10. Green.

14. — take pleasure in her stones,] That is, bear an affection to her ruins. Green.

—— and favour the dust thereof.] Rather, "and compassionate her dust."

16. When the Lord &c.] From ver. 16 to 22 inclusive, the Psalmist seems to speak prophetically of the Messiah.

25. Of old hast thou &c.] The application of this and the following verses to Jesus Christ, in the Epistle to the Hebrews, is at once a proof of His Divinity, and of the inspiration of the Psalms. See Heb. i. 10. Travell.

28. The children of thy servants &c.] Whatever may be the fate of the present generation, whether they may live to see the accomplishment of all that has been foretold, or not, yet the word of God standeth sure; there shall be always a Church, and an holy seed, to whom the promise shall be made good. Bp. Horne.

If we had a true devotion in our hearts to form and compound our prayers, and a fervent motion from our hearts to pour them out, we might reasonably as well as piously believe, that every prayer we so send up to heaven would prove effectual, and bring down that from thence to us, for which we pray. The Church hath provided an excellent form of devotion and prayer for all men to concur in at the publick service and worship of God: and whoever reads and considers that form, will find himself best prepared for his private devotions; and may very profitably transplant expressions from thence into his most private and occasional addresses to the Divine Providence. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm CIII. In this Psalm David blesses God for His goodness towards himself and the Israelites; celebrates His great mercy and tender compassion towards His people; and invites all creatures to join with him in praising the name of the Lord. Green. A peculiar strain of tenderness and beauty pervades this Psalm.

tion; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies;

5 Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.

6 The LORD executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed.

7 He made known his ways unto Moses, his acts unto the children of Israel.

[a] Exod. 34. 6, 7. Numb. 14. 18. Deut. 5. 10. Neh. 9. 17. Psal. 86. 15. Jer. 32. 18.

8 [a] The LORD is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and † plenteous in mercy.

9 He will not always chide: neither will he keep his anger for ever.

10 He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities.

† Heb. great of mercy.

† Heb. according to the height of the heaven.

11 For † as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him.

12 As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us.

13 Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear him.

14 For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust.

15 As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth.

† Heb. it is not.

16 For the wind passeth over it, and † it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more.

17 But the mercy of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children;

18 [b] To such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his commandments to do them. [b] Deut. 7. 9.

19 The LORD hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all.

† Heb. mighty in strength.

20 Bless the LORD, ye his angels, † that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word.

21 Bless ye the LORD, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure.

22 Bless the LORD, all his works in all places of his dominion: bless the LORD, O my soul.

PSALM CIV.

1 A meditation upon the mighty power, 7 and wonderful providence of God. 31 God's glory is eternal. 33 The prophet voweth perpetually to praise God.

BLESS the LORD, O my soul. O LORD my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty.

2 Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain:

3 Who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind:

4 [a] Who maketh his angels spirits; his ministers a flaming fire: [a] Hebr. 1. 7.

Ver. 5. — thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.] That is, as the eagle's vigour is wont to be, after it has renewed its feathers. Dr. Wells. The youth of an eagle is no otherwise renewed than by the succession of new feathers to old ones. In like manner the serpent was said by the Romans "to put off old age" when it cast its skin. Rosenmüller.

9, 10. He will not always chide: &c.] God's chastisements are some of the most eminent proofs of His mercy. They are sent to reclaim us from eternal punishment. They continue not always, but are removed when they have done their work; and while they last, are as nothing in comparison of those heavy stripes which our sins have deserved. Bp. Horne.

12. As far as the east &c.] That is, He hath entirely remitted the punishment due to our manifold offences. Bp. Patrick.

13. Like as a father &c.] See Isa. xlix. 15.

This is one of the most excellent songs of thanksgiving in the whole Book of Psalms. David here seems affected with the highest strains of devotion, and the most lively sense of gratitude. He here teaches us by his example to bless God, not only with our mouth, but with our whole heart, and with all the powers of our soul; to cherish the remembrance of all His mercies, and to take delight in rehearsing them, and praising Him continually. The prophet here celebrates particularly the infinite mercy of God, who, knowing that we are but dust, bears with us, and does not render to us what our sins deserve; and entertains the same compassion and kindness as a father does for his children. But he teaches us at the same time, that the Divine goodness is displayed only in behalf of those that fear Him and reverence Him; and that His mercy extends only to them that "keep His covenant, and remember His commandments to do them." Osterwald.

Psalm CIV. This Psalm demonstrates the glory of the infinite Creator, from the wisdom, beauty, and variety of His works. The poet adorns this noble subject with the clearest and most splendid colouring of language; and with imagery the most magnificent, lively, diversified, and pleasing; at the same time select, and happily adapted to the subject. There is nothing of the kind extant, indeed, nothing can be conceived more perfect than this hymn, whether it be considered with respect to its intrinsick beauties, or as a model of that species of composition. Miraculous exertions of the Divine power have something in them which at first strikes the inattentive mind with a strong sentiment of sublimity and awe: but the true subject of praise, the most worthy of God, and the best adapted to impress upon the heart of man a fervent and permanent sense of piety, is drawn from the contemplation of His power in the creation of this boundless universe, His wisdom in arranging and adorning it, His providence in sustaining it, and His mercy in the regulation of its minutest parts, and in ordering and directing the affairs of men. Bp. Lowth. The similitude between the natural and spiritual creation may, perhaps, point out the reason why the Church hath appointed this Psalm to be used on Whit Sunday. Bp. Horne. In most of the old versions this Psalm is attributed to David.

Ver. 2. — like a curtain:] Or, as a canopy. Mudge. As the curtain of a pavilion, or tent.

3. Who layeth &c.] That is, the clouds make the flooring of His heavens. Mudge.

— who maketh the clouds his chariot:] See the note on Deut. xxxiii. 26.

4. Who maketh his angels &c.] From the manner in which these words are introduced, and the place where they stand, one

5 † Who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever.

† Heb. He hath founded the earth upon her bases.

6 Thou coveredst it with the deep as with a garment: the waters stood above the mountains.

7 At thy rebuke they fled; at the voice of thy thunder they hasted away.

8 ‖ They go up by the mountains; they go down by the valleys unto the place which thou hast founded for them.

‖ Or, The mountains ascend, the valleys descend.

9 Thou hast set a bound that they may not pass over; that they turn not again to cover the earth.

10 † He sendeth the springs into the valleys, which † run among the hills.

† Heb. Who sendeth.

† Heb. walk.

11 They give drink to every beast of the field: the wild asses † quench their thirst.

† Heb. break.

12 By them shall the fowls of the heaven have their habitation, which † sing among the branches.

† Heb. give a voice.

13 He watereth the hills from his chambers: the earth is satisfied with the fruit of thy works.

14 He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of man: that he may bring forth food out of the earth;

15 And [b] wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and † oil to make his face to shine, and bread which strengtheneth man's heart.

[b] Judg. 9. 13.

† Heb. to make his face shine with oil, or, more than oil.

16 The trees of the LORD are full of sap; the cedars of Lebanon, which he hath planted;

17 Where the birds make their nests: as for the stork, the fir trees are her house.

18 The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats; and the rocks for the conies.

19 He appointed the moon for seasons: the sun knoweth his going down.

20 Thou makest darkness, and it is night: wherein † all the beasts of the forest do creep forth.

† Heb. all the beasts thereof do trample on the forest.

21 The young lions roar after their prey, and seek their meat from God.

22 The sun ariseth, they gather themselves together, and lay them down in their dens.

23 Man goeth forth unto his work and to his labour until the evening.

24 O LORD, how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches.

25 So is this great and wide sea, wherein are things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts.

26 There go the ships: there is that leviathan, whom thou hast † made to play therein.

† Heb. formed.

27 [c] These wait all upon thee; that thou mayest give them their meat in due season.

[c] Psal. 145. 15.

28 That thou givest them they gather: thou openest thine hand, they are filled with good.

29 Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust.

30 Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth.

31 The glory of the LORD † shall endure for ever: the LORD shall rejoice in his works.

† Heb shall be.

32 He looketh on the earth, and it trembleth: he toucheth the hills, and they smoke.

33 I will sing unto the LORD as long as should conceive the meaning of them to be, that God employs the elements of air and fire, the winds and the lightnings, as His messengers and ministers, to execute His commands upon the earth. But the Apostle, Heb. i. 7, informs us, that they have a further reference to immaterial angels; either because those angels often appeared in the likeness, or because they were endued with the properties, of wind and flame. Intellectual beings of the highest order in the realms above, are as ready to fulfil the word of Jehovah, as are the elements of this lower world. Bp. Horne.

---

5. — that it should not &c.] These words do by no means imply, that the earth is stationary, or that it is eternal; but only that it is so constructed as to answer the end, and to last the time for which it was created. Bp. Horne.

7. At thy rebuke] At Thy omnipotent word. Bp. Patrick.

8. They go up &c.] Rather, They go up mountains, they go down vallies, to the places Thou hast appointed for them. Edwards.

15. — and oil to make] See the note on Psalm xxiii. 5.

17. — as for the stork, &c.] The storks breed plentifully in Barbary every summer. They make their nests with dry twigs of trees, which they place upon the highest parts of old ruins or houses, in the canals of ancient aqueducts, and frequently (so familiar they are, by being never molested) upon the very tops of their mosques and dwelling-houses. The fir and other trees likewise (when these are wanting) "are a dwelling for the stork." Dr. Shaw.

18. The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats;] See the note on Job xxxix. 1.

—— for the conies.] See notes on Levit. xi. 5. Prov. xxx. 26.

19. He appointed the moon for seasons:] The greatest part of the Jewish feasts, as the new moon, the passover, the pentecost, &c. were governed by the moon. Dimock.

26. — leviathan,] This word, which in Job xli. signifies the crocodile, and in Psalm lxxiv. 14. is used allegorically for the Egyptians, and in Is. xxvii. 1. for other mighty oppressors of God's church, appears to be used in this place for a whale, or large fish of the cetaceous kind. Parkhurst.

30. Thou sendest forth thy spirit, &c.] That Spirit of Thine, which moved, at the first, upon the face of the waters, is still sent forth by Thee, for the renewing of those several creatures, whose daily mortality requires the supply of a continual succession and propagation. Bp. Hall.

32. He looketh on the earth, &c.] At His presence the very earth trembles, and the mountains, as our fathers saw at mount Sinai, are full of fire and smoke. Bp. Patrick.

Since the works of the creation are all of them so many de-

I live: I will sing praise to my God while I have my being.

34 My meditation of him shall be sweet: I will be glad in the LORD.

35 Let the sinners be consumed out of the earth, and let the wicked be no more. Bless thou the LORD, O my soul. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CV.

1 An exhortation to praise God, and to seek out his works. 7 The story of God's providence over Abraham, 16 over Joseph, 23 over Jacob in Egypt, 26 over Moses delivering the Israelites, 37 over the Israelites brought out of Egypt, fed in the wilderness, and planted in Canaan.

[a] 1 Chron. 16. 8. Isai. 12. 4.

O [a] GIVE thanks unto the LORD; call upon his name: make known his deeds among the people.

2 Sing unto him, sing psalms unto him: talk ye of all his wondrous works.

3 Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the LORD.

4 Seek the LORD, and his strength: seek his face evermore.

5 Remember his marvellous works that he hath done; his wonders, and the judgments of his mouth;

6 O ye seed of Abraham his servant, ye children of Jacob his chosen.

7 He is the LORD our God: his judgments are in all the earth.

8 He hath remembered his covenant for ever, the word which he commanded to a thousand generations.

[b] Gen. 17. 2. & 22. 16. & 26. 3. & 28. 13. & 35. 11. Luke 1. 73. Heb. 6. 17.

9 [b] Which covenant he made with Abraham, and his oath unto Isaac;

10 And confirmed the same unto Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant:

11 [c] Saying, Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, † the lot of your inheritance:

[c] Gen. 12. 15. & 15. 18. † Heb. the cord.

12 When there were but a few men in number; yea, very few, and strangers in it.

13 When they went from one nation to another, from one kingdom to another people;

14 He suffered no man to do them wrong: yea, he reproved kings for their sakes;

15 Saying, Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm.

16 Moreover he called for a famine upon the land: he brake the whole staff of bread.

17 He sent a man before them, [d] even Joseph, who was sold for a servant:

[d] Gen. 37. 28.

18 [e] Whose feet they hurt with fetters: † he was laid in iron:

[e] Gen. 39. 20. † Heb. his soul came into iron.

19 Until the time that his word came: the word of the LORD tried him.

20 [f] The king sent and loosed him; even the ruler of the people, and let him go free.

[f] Gen. 41. 14.

21 [g] He made him lord of his house, and ruler of all his † substance:

[g] Gen. 41. 40. † Heb. possession.

22 To bind his princes at his pleasure; and teach his senators wisdom.

23 [h] Israel also came into Egypt; and Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.

[h] Gen. 46. 6.

24 And he increased his people greatly; and made them stronger than their enemies.

25 [i] He turned their heart to hate his people, to deal subtilly with his servants.

[i] Exod. 1. 8.

---

monstrations of the infinite wisdom and power of God, they may serve to us as so many arguments exciting to the constant fear of God, and to a steady hearty obedience to all His laws. And thus we may make these works as serviceable to our spiritual interest, as they all are to our life and temporal interest. For if, whenever we see them, we would consider that these are the works of our Divine Lord and Master, to whom we are to be accountable for all our thoughts, words, and works, and that in these we may see His infinite power and wisdom; this would check us in sinning, and excite us to serve and please Him who is above all control, and who hath our life and whole happiness in His power. Dr. Dertham.

Psalm CV. The former part of this Psalm was composed by David, upon his having brought the ark to Zion, 1 Chron. xvi. And it is highly probable that he afterwards enlarged it, that it might be a more complete commemoration of all the mercies of God to the Jewish nation, from the days of Abraham to their taking possession of the land of Canaan. Edwards.

Ver. 4. — seek his face evermore.] Approach His presence evermore; that is, the ark of His presence. Green.

5. — the judgments of his mouth;] He means, the punishments on their enemies, which He, by the word of His mouth, by the exercise of His immediate power, had wrought. Dr. Hammond.

6. — ye children of Jacob his chosen.] Ye children of Jacob, whom He chose (rejecting Esau) to inherit the promised blessing; see Gen. xxv. 23. Bp. Patrick.

10. — everlasting covenant:] That is, a covenant never to be altered, if they steadily kept it. Bp. Patrick.

15. — Touch not mine anointed,] Do not dare to lay hands upon those whom I have peculiarly consecrated to Myself and My service. Bp. Hall. See the notes on Levit. ii. 1. and on Gen. xx. 18.

—— anointed, — prophets] The Patriarchs were considered as priests and prophets, by celebrating the name of Jehovah among the nations, and foretelling a Redeemer of Israel; see Gen. xx. 7. xxii. 8. xlix. 10. Dimock.

16. — the whole staff of bread.] All the support of life. Bp. Wilson.

19. That his word came:] That the word of the Lord came. See Gen. xli. 25.

22 To bind his princes at his pleasure;] That is, he intrusted him with absolute power, to command the rulers of his several provinces at his pleasure. Bp. Patrick.

23. — the land of Ham.] Egypt.

25. He turned their heart &c.] The kindness and love of God to His people "turned the hearts" of the Egyptians against them, and caused hatred to take the place of friendship. Bp. Horne.

[k] Exod. 3. 10.
26 [k] He sent Moses his servant; and Aaron whom he had chosen.

[l] Exod. 7. 9. † Heb. words of his signs.
27 [l] They shewed † his signs among them, and wonders in the land of Ham.

[m] Exod. 10. 22.
28 [m] He sent darkness, and made it dark; and they rebelled not against his word.

[n] Exod. 7. 20.
29 [n] He turned their waters into blood, and slew their fish.

[o] Exod. 8. 6.
30 [o] Their land brought forth frogs in abundance, in the chambers of their kings.

[p] Exod. 8. 17, 24.
31 [p] He spake, and there came divers sorts of flies, and lice in all their coasts.

[q] Exod. 9. 23. † Heb. He gave their rain hail.
32 [q] † He gave them hail for rain, and flaming fire in their land.

33 He smote their vines also and their fig trees; and brake the trees of their coasts.

[r] Exod. 10. 4.
34 [r] He spake, and the locusts came, and caterpillers, and that without number,

35 And did eat up all the herbs in their land, and devoured the fruit of their ground.

[s] Exod. 12. 29.
36 [s] He smote also all the firstborn in their land, the chief of all their strength.

[t] Exod. 12. 35.
37 [t] He brought them forth also with silver and gold: and there was not one feeble person among their tribes.

[u] Exod. 12. 33.
38 [u] Egypt was glad when they departed: for the fear of them fell upon them.

[x] Exod. 13. 21.
39 [x] He spread a cloud for a covering; and fire to give light in the night.

[y] Exod. 16. 12.
40 [y] The people asked, and he brought quails, and satisfied them with the bread of heaven.

[z] Exod. 17. 6. Numb. 20. 11. 1 Cor. 10. 4.
41 [z] He opened the rock, and the waters gushed out; they ran in the dry places like a river.

42 For he remembered his holy promise, and Abraham his servant.

43 And he brought forth his people with joy, and his chosen with † gladness:

† Heb. singing.

[a] Josh. 13. 7. Deut. 6. 10, 11.
44 [a] And gave them the lands of the heathen: and they inherited the labour of the people;

45 That they might observe his statutes, and keep his laws. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CVI.

1 The psalmist exhorteth to praise God. 4 He prayeth for pardon of sin, as God did with the fathers. 7 The story of the people's rebellion, and God's mercy. 47 He concludeth with prayer and praise.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. O [a] give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.

† Heb. Hallelujah.
[a] Psal. 107. 1. & 118. 1. & 136. 1.

2 Who can utter the mighty acts of the LORD? who can shew forth all his praise?

3 Blessed are they that keep judgment, and he that doeth righteousness at all times.

4 Remember me, O LORD, with the favour that thou bearest unto thy people: O visit me with thy salvation;

5 That I may see the good of thy chosen, that I may rejoice in the gladness of thy nation, that I may glory with thine inheritance.

6 We have sinned with our fathers, we have committed iniquity, we have done wickedly.

7 Our fathers understood not thy wonders in Egypt; they remembered not the multitude of thy mercies; [b] but provoked him at the sea, even at the Red sea.

[b] Exod. 14. 11, 12.

8 Nevertheless he saved them for his

---

28. — and they rebelled not &c.] Some interpreters suppose the word "they" refers to Moses and Aaron. Dimock, Rosenmiller.

44. — they inherited the labour of the people;] They took possession of the cities, towns, fields, and vineyards, which the labour of others (that is, the Canaanites) had built and planted. Bp. Patrick.

45. — Praise ye the Lord.] This is a literal translation from the Hebrew word Alleluia, or Hallelujah, (see the margin.) This word occurs at the beginning or at the end of many psalms. Alleluia was sung on solemn days of rejoicing: "and all her streets (that is, the streets of Jerusalem) shall say Alleluia," says Tobit, speaking of the rebuilding of Jerusalem, Tob. xiii. 18. St. John in the Revelation says, "I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God," ch. xix. 1: see also ver. 3, 4, 6. This expression of joy and praise was transferred at an early period from the synagogue to the church: and it is still occasionally used in devotional psalmody. Calmet.

Who can behold the army of Divine judgments set forth in dreadful array before him, (ver. 28—36.) without trembling very exceedingly at that Power which is able to send them, singly or in conjunction, upon a sinful land! Who can reflect upon their number and variety, without adoring that goodness, patience, and longsuffering, which tried so many different methods, and waited so long, to lead the offenders to repentance! Bp. Horne. This hymn was designed to perpetuate among the Israelites the remembrance of God's mercies, and to excite their gratitude. Though these events do not directly regard Christians, yet they ought to preserve the remembrance of them, as affording matter for the most edifying and instructive meditations. But it is our duty, above all, to take occasion, from what is contained in this Psalm, to raise our thoughts to the consideration of those signal mercies and spiritual blessings which God has communicated to us, by making with us a new covenant in Jesus Christ; by delivering us from the captivity of sin, of the devil, and of death, and by receiving us into His church. Ostervald.

Psalm CVI. This Psalm, written in captivity, may have been intended to confirm the faith of the young, and to encourage their hopes of restoration to their native land. It not only details the judgments inflicted on the disobedience of the Jewish people, but also the frequent instances of Divine mercy which uniformly followed their repentance.

Ver. 6. We have sinned with our fathers,] That is, after their example of unbelief and disobedience. Bp. Horne.

name's sake, that he might make his mighty power to be known.

9 He rebuked the Red sea also, and it was dried up: so he led them through the depths, as through the wilderness.

10 And he saved them from the hand of him that hated them, and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy.

[c] Exod. 14. 27. & 15. 5.

11 [c] And the waters covered their enemies: there was not one of them left.

[d] Exod. 14. 31. & 15. 1

12 [d] Then believed they his words; they sang his praise.

[e] Exod. 15. 24. & 16. 2. † Heb. They made haste, they forgat.

13 [e] † They soon forgat his works; they waited not for his counsel:

[f] Numb. 11. 4. 1 Cor. 10. 6. † Heb. lusted a lust.

14 [f] But † lusted exceedingly in the wilderness, and tempted God in the desert.

[g] Numb. 11. 31.

15 [g] And he gave them their request; but sent leanness into their soul.

[h] Numb. 16. 1, &c.

16 [h] They envied Moses also in the camp, and Aaron the saint of the LORD.

[i] Numb. 16. 31. Deut. 11. 6. [k] Numb. 16. 35, 46.

17 [i] The earth opened and swallowed up Dathan, and covered the company of Abiram.

18 [k] And a fire was kindled in their company; the flame burned up the wicked.

[l] Exod. 32. 4.

19 [l] They made a calf in Horeb, and worshipped the molten image.

20 Thus they changed their glory into the similitude of an ox that eateth grass.

21 They forgat God their saviour, which had done great things in Egypt;

22 Wondrous works in the land of Ham, and terrible things by the Red sea.

[m] Exod. 32. 10.

23 [m] Therefore he said that he would destroy them, had not Moses his chosen stood before him in the breach, to turn away his wrath, lest he should destroy them.

† Heb. a land of desire.

24 Yea, they despised † the pleasant land, they believed not his word:

[n] Numb. 14. 2.

25 [n] But murmured in their tents, and hearkened not unto the voice of the LORD.

26 Therefore he lifted up his hand against them, to overthrow them in the wilderness:

† Heb. to make them fall.

27 † To overthrow their seed also among the nations, and to scatter them in the lands.

[o] Numb. 25. 3.

28 [o] They joined themselves also unto Baal-peor, and ate the sacrifices of the dead.

29 Thus they provoked him to anger with their inventions: and the plague brake in upon them.

[p] Numb. 25. 7.

30 [p] Then stood up Phinehas, and executed judgment: and so the plague was stayed.

31 And that was counted unto him for righteousness unto all generations for evermore.

[q] Numb. 20. 13.

32 [q] They angered him also at the waters of strife, so that it went ill with Moses for their sakes:

33 Because they provoked his spirit, so that he spake unadvisedly with his lips.

[r] Deut. 7. 2.

34 They did not destroy the nations, [r] concerning whom the LORD commanded them:

[s] Judges 1. 21.

35 [s] But were mingled among the heathen, and learned their works.

36 And they served their idols: which were a snare unto them.

37 Yea, they sacrificed their sons and their daughters unto devils,

38 And shed innocent blood, even the blood of their sons and of their daughters, whom they sacrificed unto the idols of Canaan: and the land was polluted with blood.

39 Thus were they defiled with their own works, and went a whoring with their own inventions.

40 Therefore was the wrath of the LORD kindled against his people, insomuch that he abhorred his own inheritance.

41 And he gave them into the hand of the heathen; and they that hated them ruled over them.

42 Their enemies also oppressed them,

---

13. — they waited not for his counsel:] They were too impatient to wait for the full execution of His purposes towards them. Travell.

14. — and tempted God] To give them still further proofs of His power. Bp. Wilson.

15. — but sent leanness into their soul.] This expression refers generally to the diseases inflicted upon the Israelites by Heaven; see Numb. xi. 33. Rosenmüller.

17. The earth opened &c.] Perhaps Dathan and Abiram are mentioned only as being guilty of the greater crime in invading the priestly office, which belonged to the tribe of Levi. Dimock.

20. — they changed their glory] They forsook the true worship of God, who was their glory. Dr. Wells.

24. Yea, they despised the pleasant land,] They despised the land of Canaan, so that they would not enter therein and endeavour to take it, when God ordered them so to do; see Numb. xiii. xiv. Dr. Wells.

26. Therefore he lifted up &c.] That is, He swore unto them that He would make them fall in the wilderness. "Lifting the hand" was the usual form of swearing; see Gen. xiv. 22. Mudge. See the note on Deut. xxxii. 40.

28. They joined themselves &c.] See the note on Numb. xxv. 3.

—— the sacrifices of the dead.] Perhaps the meaning is, sacrifices which were offered to idols, which he calls "dead," in opposition to the true and living God, and by way of contempt, and to note the sottishness of idolaters, who worshipped lifeless things, as stocks and stones, or dead men. Poole, Rosenmüller.

30. Then stood up &c.] The notes upon many of the passages referred to in the margin will explain several of the following verses.

39. Thus were they defiled &c.] Idolatry, which is infidelity towards God, is often represented in Scripture as spiritual fornication or adultery. Travell. See notes at Exod. xxxii. 6. xxxiv. 16.

and they were brought into subjection under their hand.

[s] Judges 2. 16.

43 [s] Many times did he deliver them; but they provoked him with their counsel, and were ‖ brought low for their iniquity.

‖ Or, impoverished, or, weakened.

44 Nevertheless he regarded their affliction, when he heard their cry:

[u] Levit. 26. 41, 42.

45 [u] And he remembered for them his covenant, and repented according to the multitude of his mercies.

46 He made them also to be pitied of all those that carried them captives.

47 Save us, O LORD our God, and gather us from among the heathen, to give thanks unto thy holy name, and to triumph in thy praise.

48 Blessed be the LORD God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting: and let all the people say, Amen. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CVII.

1 The psalmist exhorteth the redeemed, in praising God, to observe his manifold providence, 4 over travellers, 10 over captives, 17 over sick men, 23 over seamen, 33 and in divers varieties of life.

[a] Psal. 106. 1. & 118. 1. & 136. 1.

O [a] GIVE thanks unto the LORD, for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.

2 Let the redeemed of the LORD say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy;

3 And gathered them out of the lands, from the east, and from the west, from the north, and † from the south.

† Heb. from the sea.

4 They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way; they found no city to dwell in.

5 Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them.

6 Then they cried unto the LORD in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses.

7 And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation.

8 Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

9 For he satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness.

10 Such as sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, being bound in affliction and iron;

11 Because they rebelled against the words of God, and contemned the counsel of the most high:

12 Therefore he brought down their heart with labour; they fell down, and there was none to help.

13 Then they cried unto the LORD in their trouble, and he saved them out of their distresses.

14 He brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death, and brake their bands in sunder.

15 Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

16 For he hath broken the gates of brass, and cut the gates of iron in sunder.

17 Fools because of their transgression, and because of their iniquities, are afflicted.

18 [b] Their soul abhorreth all manner of

[b] Job 33. 20.

---

47. — gather us from among the heathen,] Restore such of us as are dispersed in foreign lands unto our own country. Bp. Patrick.

If we accustomed ourselves to take a just survey of ourselves, of the frowardness and the pride of our natures, we should frequently think it fit and necessary to invert our prayers, to deprecate God's favours and mercies, and pray for His corrections and judgments, or rather we should look upon His judgments and mortifications as His greatest and most transcendent mercies. If men took that view of themselves, which others take of them in their highest prosperities, when God pours down His blessings upon them; observed the haughtiness of their looks, gait, and gestures, their proud behaviour towards all who have need of them, and their servile behaviour towards all of whom they stand in need, which every body else but themselves observes; and considered how very little they used to think of God in those seasons; and then, if they reflected upon their own modest behaviour upon some disappointment they had sustained, how often they used to pray to God in their anguish and affliction, and how fervent their devotions have then been, they would confess how much better men they are in the latter than in the former condition, and how much more gracious God hath been to them in the one than in the other visitation. Lord Clarendon.

The end of the fourth Book of Psalms.

Psalm CVII. This Psalm may undoubtedly be enumerated among the most elegant monuments of antiquity; and it is chiefly indebted for its elegance to the general plan and conduct of the poem. It celebrates the goodness and mercy of God towards mankind, as demonstrated in the immediate assistance and comfort He affords in the greatest calamities to those who devoutly implore His aid: in the first place, to those who wander in the desert, and who encounter the terrours of famine; next, to those who are in bondage; to those who are afflicted with disease; and finally, to those who are tossed about upon the ocean. The prolixity of the argument is occasionally relieved by narration; and examples are superadded of the Divine severity in punishing the wicked, as well as of His benignity to the devout and virtuous; and both the narrative and preceptive parts are recommended to the earnest contemplation of considerate minds. Bp. Lowth. This Psalm is introduced into our Forms of Prayer to be used at Sea, as a thanksgiving after a storm.

Ver. 7. — to a city of habitation.] That is, to a place inhabited, where they found relief for their necessities. Bp. Patrick.

10. — being bound in affliction and iron;] This passage may be rendered, Being bound in galling chains. Dimock, Rosenmüller.

16. For he hath broken &c.] That is, made way for men's escape, when their case was desperate, by removing the greatest obstacles. Dr. Wells.

meat; and they draw near unto the gates of death.

19 Then they cry unto the LORD in their trouble, and he saveth them out of their distresses.

20 He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions.

21 Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

22 And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with † rejoicing.

† Heb. singing.

23 They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters;

24 These see the works of the LORD, and his wonders in the deep.

† Heb. maketh to stand.

25 For he commandeth, and † raiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves thereof.

26 They mount up to the heaven, they go down again to the depths: their soul is melted because of trouble.

27 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and † are at their wit's end.

† Heb. all their wisdom is swallowed up.

28 Then they cry unto the LORD in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses.

29 He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still.

30 Then are they glad because they be quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven.

31 Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

32 Let them exalt him also in the congregation of the people, and praise him in the assembly of the elders.

33 He turneth rivers into a wilderness, and the watersprings into dry ground;

34 A fruitful land into † barrenness, for the wickedness of them that dwell therein.

† Heb. saltness.

35 [c] He turneth the wilderness into a standing water, and dry ground into watersprings.

[c] Isaiah 41. 18.

36 And there he maketh the hungry to dwell, that they may prepare a city for habitation;

37 And sow the fields, and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase.

38 He blesseth them also, so that they are multiplied greatly; and suffereth not their cattle to decrease.

39 Again, they are minished and brought low through oppression, affliction, and sorrow.

40 [d] He poureth contempt upon princes, and causeth them to wander in the ‖ wilderness, where there is no way.

[d] Job 12. 21.

‖ Or, void place.

41 [e] Yet setteth he the poor on high ‖ from affliction, and maketh him families like a flock.

[e] 1 Sam. 2. 8. Psal. 113. 7, 8.

‖ Or, after.

42 [f] The righteous shall see it, and rejoice: and all iniquity shall stop her mouth.

[f] Job 22. 19. & 5. 16.

43 Whoso is wise, and will observe these things, even they shall understand the lovingkindness of the LORD.

PSALM CVIII.

1 David encourageth himself to praise God. 5 He prayeth for God's assistance according to his promise. 11 His confidence in God's help.

¶ A Song or Psalm of David.

O GOD, my heart is fixed; I will sing and give praise, even with my glory.

2 Awake, psaltery and harp: I myself will awake early.

---

33. He turneth rivers &c.] He turneth a well-watered country into a wilderness, and a soil abounding with springs into dry ground. Green.

37. — yield fruits of increase.] The land of Canaan was fruitful beyond measure; see Deut. viii. 7, &c. Dimock.

39. Again, they are minished &c.] At another time, God sees fit to alter the course of His providence, to lessen their numbers, and to humble them by various afflictions and calamities, or by the hands of tyrannical oppressors. Travell, Bp. Patrick.

40. — causeth them to wander &c.] The meaning is either, He bringeth them into difficulties, so that they know not what course to take; or, He banisheth them from their courts and kingdoms, and forceth them to flee into desolate wildernesses. Poole.

42. The righteous shall see &c.] Two consequences will follow from this alternate display of the mercy and the judgment of God. The righteous, finding themselves still the object of the former, will have cause to rejoice and give thanks; and the wicked, when visited with the latter, will be forced by their silence at least to own that their punishment is just. Bp. Horne.

43. Whoso is wise, &c.] To take notice of the providences of God is the most effectual way to make men wise, as it is a proof of wisdom. Bp. Wilson.

This very instructive Psalm serves to teach us, that God does wisely dispense all that happens to men; and that when they are fugitives and captives, sick, and in danger of perishing, afflicted with famine, or any other distress, it is He that makes them pass through all those trials, that He may engage them to call upon Him, and have recourse to His power and goodness. It therefore shews us, that it is the duty of persons in affliction to apply themselves to God by humble and fervent prayer for deliverance out of all their misfortunes; that when men cry to God in their distress, and turn to Him, He takes pity on them, and delivers them from all their troubles; and that it is the duty of those who, by the help of God, have escaped any great sickness, danger of death, or other afflictions, to shew their gratitude to Him all their lives, and to celebrate His lovingkindness before all. Ostervald.

Psalm CVIII. This is a Psalm of thanksgiving, in which David praises God for His great goodness to him, in having made him king, and crowned him with victory; and beseeches Him to complete his conquests over the remainder of his enemies. The strain of gratitude and triumph which runs through it, makes it suitable to the service of the Church on the Ascension Day. The 3 I will praise thee, O LORD, among the people: and I will sing praises unto thee among the nations.

4 For thy mercy is great above the heavens: and thy truth reacheth unto the ‖ clouds.

‖ Or, skies.

5 Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: and thy glory above all the earth;

[a] Psal. 60. 5.

6 [a] That thy beloved may be delivered: save with thy right hand, and answer me.

7 God hath spoken in his holiness; I will rejoice, I will divide Shechem, and mete out the valley of Succoth.

8 Gilead is mine; Manasseh is mine; Ephraim also is the strength of mine head; Judah is my lawgiver;

9 Moab is my washpot; over Edom will I cast out my shoe; over Philistia will I triumph.

10 Who will bring me into the strong city? who will lead me into Edom?

11 Wilt not thou, O God, who hast cast us off? and wilt not thou, O God, go forth with our hosts?

12 Give us help from trouble: for vain is the help of man.

13 Through God we shall do valiantly: for he it is that shall tread down our enemies.

PSALM CIX.

1 David, complaining of his slanderous enemies, under the person of Judas devoteth them. 16 He sheweth their sin. 21 Complaining of his own misery, he prayeth for help. 29 He promiseth thankfulness.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

HOLD not thy peace, O God of my praise;

2 For the mouth of the wicked and the † mouth of the deceitful † are opened against me: they have spoken against me with a lying tongue.

† Heb. mouth of deceit. † Heb. have opened themselves.

3 They compassed me about also with words of hatred; and fought against me without a cause.

4 For my love they are my adversaries: but I give myself unto prayer.

5 And they have rewarded me evil for good, and hatred for my love.

6 Set thou a wicked man over him: and let ‖ Satan stand at his right hand.

‖ Or, an adversary.

7 When he shall be judged, let him † be condemned: and let his prayer become sin.

† Heb. go out guilty, or, wicked.

8 Let his days be few; and [a] let another take his ‖ office.

[a] Acts 1. 20. ‖ Or, charge.

9 Let his children be fatherless, and his wife a widow.

10 Let his children be continually vagabonds, and beg: let them seek their bread also out of their desolate places.

11 Let the extortioner catch all that he hath; and let the strangers spoil his labour.

12 Let there be none to extend mercy unto him: neither let there be any to favour his fatherless children.

13 Let his posterity be cut off; and in the generation following let their name be blotted out.

14 Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered with the LORD; and let not the sin of his mother be blotted out.

---

first five verses of this Psalm are the same, without any material difference, as the last five of the fifty-seventh Psalm: and the rest are the same as the last eight verses of the sixtieth Psalm. The reader is therefore referred to the explanation already given of those Psalms. Travell.

Psalm CIX. In this Psalm David, having been unjustly accused and violently persecuted by his enemies, foretels, with a prophetick spirit, the Divine vengeance upon them. St. Peter (Acts i. 20.) hath taught us to apply the eighth verse to the traitor Judas; and indeed the severity of the judgments, and the extent of the calamities here denounced, are suitable to the guilt and punishment of our Saviour's persecutors in general. With respect to the imprecations, see the note on Ps. v. 10. The twenty-eighth chapter of Deuteronomy may be considered as a kind of commentary on this Psalm. Travell. There are many passages in the Book of Psalms, especially a considerable part of the 109th, that have given offence to well-meaning persons, as savouring too much of private resentment, and inconsistent with that charity, which peculiarly marks the Christian dispensation. Many attempts have been made to remove this difficulty: but the most satisfactory method appears to be, to consider the verbs in the future tense, so that the passages may be looked upon as so many denunciations of the punishments, that God would inflict on the general or individual adversaries of His church and people. Thus at the seventh verse, "When he shall be judged, he shall go forth convicted, and his prayers shall be for sin," &c. Wintle.

The person particularly pointed at in this Psalm was probably Doeg the Edomite, who slew the Lord's priests, and endeavoured to destroy him whom God had anointed king over Israel, 1 Sam. xxii. Archdeacon Randolph.

Ver. 4. For my love &c.] While I pray for them, they in return for my love falsely accuse me. Green.

6. Set thou &c.] The true reading probably is, A wicked person shall be set over him, (that is, to judge him,) and an adversary shall stand at his right hand. Dimock.

—— over him:] That is, either over all mine enemies; for the singular number is sometimes used with a plural sense: or rather, over one particular enemy, who was worse than any of the rest, more implacable and inexcusable. Poole.

—— Satan] An adversary. See the margin.

—— stand at his right hand.] This is an allusion to the practice of the courts of justice among the Jews, where the accuser stood at the "right hand" of the accused. Rosenmüller.

7. — and let his prayer become sin.] His prayer would be abomination in the sight of the Lord, as being offered without true contrition and repentance, without faith, hope, or charity. Bp. Horne.

9, 10. Let his children &c.] Thus shall his wickedness entail misery upon his wretched widow and his orphan children: they shall lead a life of wandering from place to place, supporting themselves by begging alms, and seeking relief out of their miserable habitations. Travell.

15 Let them be before the LORD continually, that he may cut off the memory of them from the earth.

16 Because that he remembered not to shew mercy, but persecuted the poor and needy man, that he might even slay the broken in heart.

17 As he loved cursing, so let it come unto him: as he delighted not in blessing, so let it be far from him.

18 As he clothed himself with cursing like as with his garment, so let it come † into his bowels like water, and like oil into his bones.

† Heb. within him.

19 Let it be unto him as the garment which covereth him, and for a girdle wherewith he is girded continually.

20 Let this be the reward of mine adversaries from the LORD, and of them that speak evil against my soul.

21 But do thou for me, O GOD the Lord, for thy name's sake: because thy mercy is good, deliver thou me.

22 For I am poor and needy, and my heart is wounded within me.

23 I am gone like the shadow when it declineth: I am tossed up and down as the locust.

24 My knees are weak through fasting; and my flesh faileth of fatness.

25 I became also a reproach unto them: when they looked upon me they shaked their heads.

26 Help me, O LORD my God: O save me according to thy mercy:

27 That they may know that this is thy hand; that thou, LORD, hast done it.

28 Let them curse, but bless thou: when they arise, let them be ashamed; but let thy servant rejoice.

29 Let mine adversaries be clothed with shame, and let them cover themselves with their own confusion, as with a mantle.

30 I will greatly praise the LORD with my mouth; yea, I will praise him among the multitude.

31 For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him † from those that condemn his soul.

† Heb. from the judges of his soul.

PSALM CX.

1 The kingdom, 4 the priesthood, 5 the conquest, 7 and the passion of Christ.

¶ A Psalm of David.

THE [a] LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

[a] Matt. 22. 44. Mark 12. 36. Luke 20. 42. Acts 2. 34. 1 Cor. 15. 25. Hebr. 1. 13.

2 The LORD shall send the rod of thy strength out of Zion: rule thou in the midst of thine enemies.

3 Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power, in the beauties of holiness ‖ from the womb of the morning: thou hast the dew of thy youth.

‖ Or, more than the womb of the morning: thou shalt have, &c.

---

18. — like water, &c.] These expressions admirably mark out an adhering rooted curse, which penetrated the body, as the water which one drinks, and as the oil with which one is rubbed: they have swallowed cursing like water; see Job xv. 6. Prov. iv. 17. they are penetrated by it, as by the oil wherewith they have been anointed. Calmet.

19. — a girdle &c.] As the people of the East have ever been accustomed to wear long and loose garments, they are obliged to tuck them up, and fasten them by a girdle or sash, when they are travelling or at work. See 1 Kings xviii. 46. John xiii. 4. Travell.

21. — do thou for me,] Take my part. Bp. Patrick.

23. — tossed up and down as the locust.] The swarms of locusts are so large and numerous in Barbary, that they fly in the air like a succession of clouds. When the wind blows briskly, so that these swarms are crouded by others, or thrown one upon another, we have a lively idea of this comparison of the Psalmist, of being "tossed up and down as the locust." Dr. Shaw.

Especial care should be taken that we do not pervert this Psalm in a criminal and impious manner, by imagining we are at any time allowed to wish that the vengeance of God may fall on those who hate us and do us hurt. David here speaks in the quality of a king chosen by God, and of a prophet; he rather foretold than desired the destruction of his enemies: he even returned them good for evil, as he himself says, and love for hatred. But, above all, let us remember that a Christian should hate no man; that the character we bear, as disciples of Jesus Christ, obliges us to love all men, even our greatest enemies, to pray for them with all our heart, and to wish and do them all the good in our power. Ostervald.

Psalm CX. In this Psalm David prophesieth concerning the exaltation of Christ; the sceptre of His kingdom; the character of His subjects; His everlasting priesthood; His tremendous victories and judgments; and the means of His obtaining both kingdom and priesthood, by His sufferings and resurrection. Bp. Horne. This Psalm is with good reason appointed for the service of Christmas-day.

Ver. 1. The Lord said &c.] God the Father, in His eternal counsel, said unto His Son, Take Thou all power and authority, as the only Mediator and true King of Thy church, until I shall utterly have subdued all those that dare to rise up against Thee; then, do Thou deliver up this royal state and kingdom of Thy Mediatorship. Bp. Hall.

—— thy footstool.] This expression is borrowed from the eastern custom of conquerors putting their feet upon the necks of their enemies. See Josh. x. 24. The Divinity of our Saviour is clearly deducible from this verse. See Mark xii. 36, &c. Dimock.

2. — the rod of thy strength] The "rod," or sceptre, of Christ's "strength" is His word, accompanied by His Spirit. Bps. Horne and Nicholson.

—— out of Zion:] Christ's spiritual kingdom was to begin at Jerusalem. Edwards.

3. Thy people] They that are fit for Thy kingdom. Fenton.

—— the day of thy power, — holiness] "The day of His power" is the season of their conversion, when the corruptions of nature can no longer hold out against the prevailing influences of grace; and they make a free and voluntary offering of themselves to their Redeemer. Then it is that they appear "in the beauties of holiness," adorned with humility, faith, hope, love, and all the graces of the Spirit. Bp. Horne.

—— from the womb of the morning: &c.] The words should rather be translated, "more than the dew from the womb of the morn-

4 The LORD hath sworn, and will not repent, [b] Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek.

[b] Hebr. 5. 6. & 7. 17.

5 The LORD at thy right hand shall strike through kings in the day of his wrath.

6 He shall judge among the heathen, he shall fill the places with the dead bodies; he shall wound the heads over ‖ many countries.

‖ Or, great.

7 He shall drink of the brook in the way: therefore shall he lift up the head.

PSALM CXI.

1 The psalmist by his example inciteth others to praise God for his glorious, 5 and gracious works. 10 The fear of God breedeth true wisdom.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. I will praise the LORD with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation.

† Heb. Hallelujah.

2 The works of the LORD are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein.

3 His work is honourable and glorious: and his righteousness endureth for ever.

4 He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered: the LORD is gracious and full of compassion.

5 He hath given † meat unto them that fear him: he will ever be mindful of his covenant.

† Heb. prey.

6 He hath shewed his people the power of his works, that he may give them the heritage of the heathen.

7 The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure.

8 They † stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness.

† Heb. are stablished.

9 He sent redemption unto his people: he hath commanded his covenant for ever: holy and reverend is his name.

10 [a] The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom: ‖ a good understanding have all they † that do his commandments: his praise endureth for ever.

[a] Job 28. 28. Prov. 1. 7. & 9. 10. Eccl[us] 1. 16.

‖ Or, good success.

† Heb. that do them.

PSALM CXII.

1 Godliness hath the promises of this life, 4 and of the life to come. 10 The prosperity of the godly shall be an eyesore to the wicked.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. Blessed is the man that feareth the LORD, that delighteth greatly in his commandments.

† Heb. Hallelujah.

---

ing is the dew of Thy progeny;" that is, Thy children, begotten to Thee through the Gospel, shall exceed in number, as well as brightness and beauty, the spangles of early dew, which the morning discloseth to the eye of the delighted beholder. Bps. Lowth and Horne.

4. — Thou art a priest for ever &c.] Thy priesthood is everlasting: in Thy person and office is and shall be fulfilled that which was figured in the royal priesthood, person, and name of Melchizedek, king of Salem, the king of righteousness and peace. Bp. Hall. The Epistle to the Hebrews places the resemblance between Melchizedek and Jesus on the name and title of the former, on his having no father, or mother, or priestly descent, or birth, or death, or successor, mentioned; which so far agreed with the latter, as He had no human father, nor mother, in the ordinary way of generation; nor was of a sacerdotal family, nor began to exist at His birth, nor continued in a state of death, nor could have any successor in His office. Abp. Secker. See the note on Gen. xiv. 18.

5. — shall strike through &c.] Jesus destroyed both the Jewish and Roman persecutors, and will destroy all the enemies of His Church. Abp. Secker. See Ps. ii. 9. and xlv. 5. Rev. xix. 15.

6. He shall judge &c.] He shall convince the heathen world, that He is their Lawgiver and their Judge. He shall take severe vengeance on those who persecute His subjects, and shall crush the supreme power in various countries. Bp. Patrick.

7. He shall drink &c.] By "drinking of the brook by the way," allusion seems to be made to the support and refreshment which Christ experienced. The phrase relates, it is probable, to those consolations which He received at the beginning of His great conflict with the powers of darkness, particularly in His agony, when there appeared to Him an angel from heaven strengthening Him, Luke xxii. 43. Merrick, Bp. Lowth.

We should remember on reading this Psalm, that we have a Priest in heaven, who stands continually pleading the merits of His sacrifice once offered on the cross. Oblation, intercession, and benediction are the three great branches of the sacerdotal office, which our great High Priest now exercises for us, and in the exercise of which the Father has condescended in the most awful manner to promise, that He will hear Him, and accept Him in our behalf. His priesthood is not like that of Aaron, transient, figurative, and successive, but real and effective, fixed and incommunicable, eternal and unchangeable. He is "a Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek." Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXI. The author of this Psalm celebrates the majesty and goodness of God displayed in a very eminent manner in the wonderful things He had done for, and the signal blessings He had bestowed upon, the Jewish nation, of which this sacred hymn seems to have been designed as a short memorial. Edwards.

This is one of the proper Psalms appointed by the Church to be read on Easter-day.

Ver. 1. Praise ye the Lord.] These words are the title to the Psalm, and not part of the Psalm itself, as in the beginning of Ps. cxii. cxiii. Bps. Patrick and Lowth. See the note on Ps. cv. 45.

7. The works of his hands &c.] In all God's dispensations towards His faithful servants, and towards His impenitent adversaries, we admire and adore His "verity" in the performance of His promises to the former, and His "justice" in executing vengeance on the latter. Thus the time of fulfilling His promise to Abraham came not till the iniquity of the Amorites was full. Bp. Horne.

9. He sent redemption unto his people:] He means that great deliverance out of Egypt, which was a type and pledge of that greater and higher redemption by Christ. Poole.

We ought to join our praises to those which are offered to God in this hymn; we have even more reason than the faithful of old had to confess that the works of the Lord are great and wonderful; that He is merciful, righteous, and full of compassion; that He has remembered His covenant, and sent salvation and redemption to His people. These inestimable blessings should excite us to declare His goodness and marvellous works before men, and particularly in the assembly of the faithful. Osterwald.

Psalm CXII. This Psalm is a kind of commentary upon the last verse of the former Psalm, enumerating the various degrees of happiness which they enjoy, who fear God and keep His commandments; and concluding with a description of the envy and wretchedness of the ungodly. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

2 His seed shall be mighty upon earth: the generation of the upright shall be blessed.

3 Wealth and riches shall be in his house: and his righteousness endureth for ever.

4 Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness: he is gracious, and full of compassion, and righteous.

5 A good man sheweth favour, and lendeth: he will guide his affairs with † discretion.

† Heb. judgment.

6 Surely he shall not be moved for ever: the righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance.

7 He shall not be afraid of evil tidings: his heart is fixed, trusting in the LORD.

8 His heart is established, he shall not be afraid, until he see his desire upon his enemies.

9 [a] He hath dispersed, he hath given to the poor; his righteousness endureth for ever; his horn shall be exalted with honour.

[a] 2 Cor. 9. 9.

10 The wicked shall see it, and be grieved; he shall gnash with his teeth, and melt away: the desire of the wicked shall perish.

PSALM CXIII.

1 An exhortation to praise God for his excellency, 6 for his mercy.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise, O ye servants of the LORD, praise the name of the LORD.

† Heb. Hallelujah.

2 [a] Blessed be the name of the LORD from this time forth and for evermore.

[a] Dan. 2. 20.

3 [b] From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same the LORD's name is to be praised.

[b] Mal. 1. 11.

4 The LORD is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens.

5 Who is like unto the LORD our God, who † dwelleth on high,

† Heb. exalteth himself to dwell.

6 Who humbleth himself to behold the things that are in heaven, and in the earth!

7 [c] He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth the needy out of the dunghill;

[c] 1 Sam. 2. 8. Psal. 107. 41.

8 That he may set him with princes, even with the princes of his people.

9 He maketh the barren woman † to keep house, and to be a joyful mother of children. Praise ye the LORD.

† Heb. to dwell in an house.

PSALM CXIV.

An exhortation, by the example of the dumb creatures, to fear God in his church.

WHEN [a] Israel went out of Egypt, the house of Jacob from a people of strange language;

[a] Exodus 13. 3.

2 Judah was his sanctuary, and Israel his dominion.

3 [b] The sea saw it, and fled: [c] Jordan was driven back.

[b] Exodus 14. 21. [c] Josh. 3. 13.

4 The mountains skipped like rams, and the little hills like lambs.

---

4. — righteous.] "Righteous" here seems to include the idea of generosity and charity; a man generous upon principles of religion. Mudge.

6. — the righteous shall be &c.] That is, Eminently good men do commonly leave a good name behind them, and transmit a grateful memory of themselves to afterages. Abp. Tillotson.

9. — his horn &c.] God shall give him an increase of true honour, and abundantly reward his liberality. Bp. Hall. See note at 1 Sam. ii. 1.

The character which the Psalmist here gives of good men is, that they fear the Lord; that they take great delight in His commandments; that they are just and sincere; that they conduct all their affairs with uprightness; that they are kind and full of compassion, and love to give alms to the poor. He afterwards teaches us, that those who live thus are perfectly happy; that God blesses them in their persons, in their posterity, and in their possessions; that they enjoy peace of conscience; that they fear no evil, always trusting in the Lord; and that their righteousness and their memory shall remain for ever. These are very important instructions, which should powerfully encourage us to the study and practice of piety. Ostervald.

Psalm CXIII. The servants of God are here exhorted to praise Him at all times, and in all places, on account of His power and glory, His mercy in redeeming man, and making the Gentile Church to be a joyful mother of children. This Psalm is appointed to be used on Easter-day. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 3. From the rising &c.] Signifying, either from morning to evening, or from east to west. Merrick.

6. Who humbleth himself &c.] Highly as our Lord is exalted above this system, above this heaven and this earth of ours, yet He condescendeth to regard every thing that passes here, and to make us, the inhabitants of this lower world, and, for our sakes, all the other creatures in it, the objects of His peculiar care, and paternal love. Bp. Horne.

Such is God's mercy to the poor sons of Adam in their fallen state, that from the lowest and most abject condition, from the pollutions of sin, and from the dishonour of the grave, He raiseth them to righteousness and holiness, to glory and immortality; He setteth them on high, with the inhabitants of the heavenly Jerusalem, "with the princes of His people," the leaders of the armies above, with angels and archangels before His throne. What is the exaltation of the meanest beggar from a dunghil to an earthly diadem, when compared with that of human nature from the grave to the throne of God! Here is honour worthy our ambition; honour, after which all are alike invited to aspire: which all may obtain who strive worthily and lawfully; and of which, when once obtained, nothing can ever deprive the possessors. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXIV. This is another of the Psalms appointed by our Church to be read on Easter-day. It celebrates the deliverance of Israel from Egypt, and the miracles wrought for that people, prefiguring the redemption of our nature from sin and death, and the wonders of mercy and love wrought for us by Jesus Christ. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 1, 2. When Israel went &c.] When Jehovah delivered Israel from the bondage of Egypt, He chose them for His peculiar people: His presence resided in their camp, as in a "sanctuary," or temple; and He ruled them as an earthly king exerciseth sovereignty in his "dominions." Bp. Horne.

4. The mountains skipped &c.] The mountains of the wilderness shook and were moved sensibly at His terrible presence, when He delivered the law to His people, Exod. xix. 18. Bp. Hall.

5 What ailed thee, O thou sea, that thou fleddest? thou Jordan, that thou wast driven back?

6 Ye mountains, that ye skipped like rams; and ye little hills, like lambs?

7 Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the LORD, at the presence of the God of Jacob;

[d] Exodus 17. 6. Numb. 20. 11.

8 [d] Which turned the rock into a standing water, the flint into a fountain of waters.

PSALM CXV.

1 Because God is truly glorious, 4 and idols are vanity, 9 he exhorteth to confidence in God. 12 God is to be blessed for his blessings.

NOT unto us, O LORD, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy, and for thy truth's sake.

2 Wherefore should the heathen say, [a] Where is now their God?

[a] Ps. 42. 10. & 79. 10.

3 [b] But our God is in the heavens: he hath done whatsoever he hath pleased.

[b] Ps. 135. 6.

4 [c] Their idols are silver and gold, the work of men's hands.

[c] Ps. 135. 15.

5 They have mouths, but they speak not: eyes have they, but they see not:

6 They have ears, but they hear not: noses have they, but they smell not:

7 They have hands, but they handle not: feet have they, but they walk not: neither speak they through their throat.

8 They that make them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them.

9 O Israel, trust thou in the LORD: he is their help and their shield.

10 O house of Aaron, trust in the LORD: he is their help and their shield.

11 Ye that fear the LORD, trust in the LORD: he is their help and their shield.

12 The LORD hath been mindful of us: he will bless us; he will bless the house of Israel; he will bless the house of Aaron.

13 He will bless them that fear the LORD, both small † and great.

† Heb. with.

14 The LORD shall increase you more and more, you and your children.

15 Ye are blessed of the LORD which made heaven and earth.

16 The heaven, even the heavens, are the LORD'S: but the earth hath he given to the children of men.

17 The dead praise not the LORD, neither any that go down into silence.

18 [d] But we will bless the LORD from this time forth and for evermore. Praise the LORD.

[d] Dan. 2. 20.

PSALM CXVI.

1 The psalmist professeth his love and duty to God for his deliverance. 12 He studieth to be thankful.

I LOVE the LORD, because he hath heard my voice and my supplications.

2 Because he hath inclined his ear unto me, therefore will I call upon him † as long as I live.

† Heb. in my days.

3 [a] The sorrows of death compassed me, and the pains of hell † gat hold upon me: I found trouble and sorrow.

[a] Ps. 18. 5, 6.

† Heb. found me.

4 Then called I upon the name of the LORD; O LORD, I beseech thee, deliver my soul.

5 Gracious is the LORD, and righteous; yea, our God is merciful.

6 The LORD preserveth the simple: I was brought low, and he helped me.

If the Divine presence hath such an effect upon inanimate matter, how ought it to operate on rational and accountable beings! Let us be afraid with an holy fear at the presence of God, in the world by His providence, and by His Spirit in our consciences; that so we may have hope and courage in the day when He shall arise to shake terribly the earth; when "every island shall flee away, and the mountains shall be no more found," Rev. xvi. 20. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXV. This Psalm has always been used as an hymn of thanksgiving for victories, from the earliest Christian ages. Dr. Delaney. This and the three following Psalms were sung by the Jews, after eating the passover, and were called the great hallelujah. Bp. Wilson.

Ver. 3. — he hath done whatsoever he hath pleased.] He doeth whatsoever He pleaseth. Mudge, Street.

10. O house of Aaron,] This expression comprehends the priests and Levites. Travell.

11. Ye that fear the Lord,] This seems to comprehend those, all the world over, that worshipped the one supreme God. Mudge.

12 The Lord hath been mindful of us:] Rather, The Lord remembereth us. Mudge.

From the former part of this Psalm we learn, that God is induced to do good to men, not by any merit on their part, but by His own pure mercy, which ought therefore to be the foundation of our trust when we direct our prayer to Him. In the latter part we see how happy those are who worship God and fear Him; since the Psalmist assures us, that God is the help and buckler of all those that trust in Him, and that His favours are extended to them and their posterity. These glorious promises should prevail on us more effectually to fear God, and to expect all our happiness from His blessing alone. Ostervald.

Psalm CXVI. This is a Psalm of thanksgiving for some special deliverance from grievous calamity, wherein the Psalmist acknowledges his gratitude to the Divine mercy, describes his extreme distress and happy deliverance out of it, and determines from henceforth to serve and praise the Lord, from whom he had received such signal benefits. It is highly applicable to the case of those who have been blessed with deliverance from sickness and distress, and therefore the Church has appointed a considerable portion of it to be used in the solemn Thanksgiving of Women after Child-birth. Travell.

This Psalm has frequent and quick changes of scenes and persons. Mudge.

Ver. 3. — the pains of hell] That is, such pains as had almost brought me to the grave. Dr. Wells.

6. — the simple:] The "simple" are here opposed to the crafty, who use indirect means for their deliverance; whereas the simple

7 Return unto thy rest, O my soul; for the LORD hath dealt bountifully with thee.
8 For thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.
9 I will walk before the LORD in the land of the living.
[b] 2 Cor. 4. 13. 10 [b] I believed, therefore have I spoken: I was greatly afflicted:
[c] Rom. 3. 4. 11 I said in my haste, [c] All men are liars.
12 What shall I render unto the LORD for all his benefits toward me?
13 I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the LORD.
14 I will pay my vows unto the LORD now in the presence of all his people.
15 Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints.
16 O LORD, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid: thou hast loosed my bonds.
17 I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the LORD.
18 I will pay my vows unto the LORD now in the presence of all his people,
19 In the courts of the LORD's house, in the midst of thee, O Jerusalem. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXVII.

An exhortation to praise God for his mercy and truth.

O [a] PRAISE the LORD, all ye nations: praise him, all ye people. [a] Rom. 15. 11.
2 For his merciful kindness is great toward us: and the truth of the LORD endureth for ever. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXVIII.

1 An exhortation to praise God for his mercy. 5 The psalmist by his experience sheweth how good it is to trust in God. 19 Under the type of the psalmist the coming of Christ in his kingdom is expressed.

O [a] GIVE thanks unto the LORD; for he is good: because his mercy endureth for ever. [a] Psal. 106. 1. & 107. 1. & 136. 1. 1 Chron. 16. 8.
2 Let Israel now say, that his mercy endureth for ever.
3 Let the house of Aaron now say, that his mercy endureth for ever.
4 Let them now that fear the LORD say, that his mercy endureth for ever.
5 I called upon the LORD † in distress: the LORD answered me, and set me in a large place. † Heb. out of distress. [b] Hebr. 13. 6. Psal. 56. 4, 11.
6 [b] The LORD is † on my side; I will not fear: what can man do unto me? † Heb. for me.

---

use only such means as God approves, and rely upon Him for the success of them. Green.

10, 11. I believed, &c.] In afflictions and distresses, those of the spirit and conscience more especially, the soul is tempted to despond, and can only be supported by faith exerting itself in prayer: "I believed, and therefore have I spoken," or, therefore spake I; that is, as above, ver. 4. "I called upon the name of the Lord; O Lord, I beseech Thee, deliver my soul." And this I did, though so "greatly afflicted," that I had "said in my haste," in my hurry and trepidation, occasioned by fear and amazement, "all men are liars;" there is no credit to be given to their promises of deliverance, I am lost and undone for ever; yet my faith failed not entirely, and, lo, my prayer hath been heard, and answered. Bp. Horne.

13. — the cup of salvation,] This cup of salvation is the drink-offering annexed to and poured upon the sacrifice, at the time they used to call upon the name of the Lord. Jos. Mede. This phrase is taken from the common practice of the Jews in their thank-offerings, in which a feast was made of the remainders of the sacrifices, and the offerers, together with the priests, did eat and drink before the Lord; and, amongst other rites, the master of the feast took a cup of wine into his hand, and solemnly blessed God for it, and for the mercy which was then acknowledged, and then gave it to all the guests, who drank successively of it. See 1 Chron. xvi. 2, 3. To which custom it is supposed that our blessed Saviour alludes in the institution of the cup, which also is called "the cup of blessing," 1 Cor. x. 16. which is in effect the same with "the cup of salvation." Poole.

15. Precious in the sight &c.] That is, good men are so precious in God's esteem, that He will not prematurely deliver them up to the power of death. Dr. Wells.

16. — thou hast loosed my bonds.] Thou hast rescued me from the power of death. Bp. Patrick.

We should particularly here observe with what sentiments of joy and gratitude the Psalmist celebrates the wonderful deliverances which God had vouchsafed him in the great dangers he had been exposed to, with what zeal he praises Him, and vows to love and obey Him. From his example we learn, that when God has bestowed any particular favour on us, and especially when He has delivered us from any great danger, it is our duty to love Him, to bless His holy name, and praise Him in the presence of all His people; and above all, to walk before Him all the days of our life, and to testify our gratitude to Him, not only by our words, but by all our actions. Ostervald.

Psalm CXVII. This short Psalm seems altogether prophetical of the joy that all the world should conceive at the coming of the Messiah, to give salvation, first to the Jews, and then to all other nations. St. Paul applies part of it to this purpose, Rom. xv. 11. Bp. Patrick.

Psalm CXVIII. This is a Psalm of triumph: of which the four first verses are the preface; from thence to the 18th, an account of the victory, in which the author seems to have had a narrow escape from death: he attributes his deliverance and victory to the particular protection of the Almighty: after this is a kind of sacred dialogue: David, being come to the temple, speaks the 19th verse; they that open the gates, the 20th; he again, as he enters, the 21st; they with him seem to speak the four next verses, to the 25th; the priests of the temple, the 26th; the first part to the king, the other to the people; the people, the 27th; he, the 28th; the 29th is the chorus verse, concluding as it began. Mudge. The triumphant subject of this Psalm makes it applicable to the service of Easter-day, when we celebrate the glorious victory which our blessed Lord gained over sin and death. Travell. It is also one of the proper psalms in the thanksgiving on the twenty-ninth of May.

Ver. 5. — in a large place.] In a state of liberty and freedom from my enemies. Dr. Wells.

6, 7. The Lord is on my side; &c.] By frequent experience of the Divine power and mercy, from time to time exerted in behalf of Israel, that nation was instructed to trust in Jehovah; and, whenever they did so, success and victory never failed to attend their steps. Would not the case be the same with us in all our under-

7 The LORD taketh my part with them that help me: therefore shall I see my desire upon them that hate me.

8 It is better to trust in the LORD than to put confidence in man.

[a] Ps. 146. 3. 9 [c] It is better to trust in the LORD than to put confidence in princes.

10 All nations compassed me about: but in the name of the LORD will I † destroy them.

† Heb. cut them off.

11 They compassed me about; yea, they compassed me about: but in the name of the LORD I will destroy them.

12 They compassed me about like bees; they are quenched as the fire of thorns: for in the name of the LORD I will † destroy them.

† Heb. cut down.

13 Thou hast thrust sore at me that I might fall: but the LORD helped me.

[d] Exod. 15. 2. Isai. 12. 2. 14 [d] The LORD is my strength and song, and is become my salvation.

15 The voice of rejoicing and salvation is in the tabernacles of the righteous: the right hand of the LORD doeth valiantly.

16 The right hand of the LORD is exalted: the right hand of the LORD doeth valiantly.

17 I shall not die, but live, and declare the works of the LORD.

18 The LORD hath chastened me sore: but he hath not given me over unto death.

19 Open to me the gates of righteousness: I will go into them, and I will praise the LORD:

20 This gate of the LORD, into which the righteous shall enter.

21 I will praise thee: for thou hast heard me, and art become my salvation.

[e] Matth. 21. 42. Mark 12. 10. Luke 20. 17. Acts 4. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 4. 22 [e] The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner.

† Heb. This is from the LORD. 23 † This is the LORD's doing; it is marvellous in our eyes.

24 This is the day which the LORD hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it.

25 Save now, I beseech thee, O LORD: O LORD, I beseech thee, send now prosperity.

[f] Matth. 21. 9. 26 [f] Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the LORD: we have blessed you out of the house of the LORD.

27 God is the LORD, which hath shewed us light: bind the sacrifice with cords, even unto the horns of the altar.

28 Thou art my God, and I will praise thee: thou art my God, I will exalt thee.

29 O give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.

PSALM CXIX.

This psalm containeth sundry prayers, praises, and professions of obedience.

ALEPH.

|| Or, perfect, or, sincere. BLESSED are the || undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the LORD.

takings, if our faith was right and stedfast in God, who raised up Jesus from the dead, and who hath promised to make us "more than conquerors?" Bp. Horne.

10. All nations] That is, all the neighbouring nations. Bp. Patrick.

12. They compassed me about like bees; &c.] Their numbers and rage might be compared to a swarm of angry bees; but their fury was short-lived and died away, like a sudden blaze of thorns, which is quickly extinguished. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

13. Thou hast thrust sore at me] This seems spoken of his enemies generally. Rosenmüller.

15. The voice of rejoicing &c.] In the tabernacles, that is, the tents of the righteous, is the voice of shouting and triumph, proclaiming that the right hand of the Lord hath done mighty things. Green. The mention of tents shews that they celebrated their deliverance, not only publickly, but also privately, which was a sign of great and unfeigned joy. Rosenmüller.

19. — the gates of righteousness:] The gates of the sanctuary. Dr. Wells.

22. The stone &c.] No text of the Old Testament is quoted by the writers of the New so often as this, which we meet with in five different places; see the margin. The sum and substance of the New Testament applications and expositions is, that Jesus Christ is the stone here mentioned; that He was rejected and set at nought by the chief priests and Pharisees, the then builders of the Church; but that, being chosen of God, and precious to Him, this most valuable stone, thus despised and rejected of men, was at length exalted to be the chief corner stone in the building, and a centre of union for the Jew and Gentile, the two parts of which it consisted; that this was the work of God, and the admiration of man. Bp. Horne.

24. This is the day &c.] Of the day on which Christ rose from the dead, it may with more propriety than of any other day be affirmed, "This is the day which the Lord hath made." Then it was that the rejected stone became "the head of the corner:" a morning then dawned which is to be succeeded by no evening. Bp. Horne.

27. — bind the sacrifice &c.] Bind the sacrifice, or lamb, with cords; (which was done previous to slaying it;) offer it up at the horns of the altar. See Exod. xxx. 10. Dimock.

—— even unto the horns of the altar.] The meaning of this passage probably is, that the sacrifices offered would be so great that the accustomed place for the victims would not be large enough to hold them, but from their number they would press even to the very "horns of the altar."

This Psalm, which the Jews sang at their feasts, should be made use of by Christians in giving thanks to God, not only for the favours and deliverances, whether publick or private, which He grants them; but, above all, for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. The Spirit of God signifies in this Psalm, that the Messiah should be rejected by the chief of the Jews; and that, notwithstanding, He should become the King and Head of the Church; which was fulfilled when Jesus Christ was crucified, and when, after His resurrection, He ascended into heaven, and His Kingdom was established in the world. Ostervald.

Psalm CXIX. This Psalm consists of twenty-two staves of eight verses each, beginning with the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet, and ending with the last. All the verses of each single stave begin with the same letter, from which it is denominated, so that the first eight verses begin with Aleph, the next with Beth, and so on. Fenton. It was probably written for the 2 Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart.

3 They also do no iniquity: they walk in his ways.

4 Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently.

5 O that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes!

6 Then shall I not be ashamed, when I have respect unto all thy commandments.

7 I will praise thee with uprightness of heart, when I shall have learned † thy righteous judgments.

† Heb. judgments of thy righteousness.

8 I will keep thy statutes: O forsake me not utterly.

BETH.

9 Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to thy word.

10 With my whole heart have I sought thee: O let me not wander from thy commandments.

11 Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee.

12 Blessed art thou, O LORD: teach me thy statutes.

13 With my lips have I declared all the judgments of thy mouth.

14 I have rejoiced in the way of thy testimonies, as much as in all riches.

15 I will meditate in thy precepts, and have respect unto thy ways.

16 I will delight myself in thy statutes: I will not forget thy word.

GIMEL.

17 Deal bountifully with thy servant, that I may live, and keep thy word.

18 † Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.

† Heb. Reveal.

19 [a] I am a stranger in the earth: hide not thy commandments from me.

[a] Gen. 47. 9. 1 Chron. 29. 15. Psal. 39. 12. Hebr. 11. 13.

20 My soul breaketh for the longing that it hath unto thy judgments at all times.

21 Thou hast rebuked the proud that are cursed, which do err from thy commandments.

22 Remove from me reproach and contempt; for I have kept thy testimonies.

23 Princes also did sit and speak against me: but thy servant did meditate in thy statutes.

24 Thy testimonies also are my delight and † my counsellers.

† Heb. men of my counsel.

DALETH.

25 My soul cleaveth unto the dust: quicken thou me according to thy word.

26 I have declared my ways, and thou heardest me: [b] teach me thy statutes.

[b] Psal 25. 4. & 27. 11. & 86. 11.

27 Make me to understand the way of thy precepts: so shall I talk of thy wondrous works.

28 My soul † melteth for heaviness: strengthen thou me according unto thy word.

† Heb. droppeth.

29 Remove from me the way of lying: and grant me thy law graciously.

30 I have chosen the way of truth: thy judgments have I laid before me.

---

instruction of youth. Every division of it expresses the excellence of the law; a resolution to keep it, under all circumstances, particularly of distress, when his piety exposed him to danger of reproach; and a petition for grace. The words "laws," "statutes," "testimonies," "judgments," "precepts," &c. which occur so constantly, seem here to be used promiscuously. Bp. Patrick, Green.

Ver. 3. They also &c.] "For they commit no iniquity who walk in His ways." Green.

6. — when I have &c.] All the commandments have the same Author, and the same sanction. He who thinks to atone for the breach of one, by the observation of another; he who reserves to himself a licence of indulging any favourite darling lust, while in general he preserves the appearance of an exemplary conduct, is an hypocrite; and, unless he repent, will be brought to shame, if not before men here, yet before men and angels hereafter. Bp. Horne.

9. Wherewithal shall a young man &c.] Youth enters upon the journey of life headstrong and inexperienced, with a bias of original corruption, and all the passions awake. In such circumstances, how shall a young man direct his steps, so as to "escape the pollution that is in the world through lust?" He must for this purpose take with him the directions to be found in the Scriptures of truth. Bp. Horne.

11. — have I hid] Have I treasured up. Green.

12. Blessed art thou, &c.] The meaning seems to be this; Thou, O Jehovah, art blessed, that is, art the supreme God, to whom I acknowledge all blessing and adoration to be due; teach me therefore Thy statutes, as being the only laws to which we owe all obedience. Mudge.

14. I have rejoiced &c.] Truth and holiness afford to the sincere believer a pleasure more exquisite, as well as more solid and enduring, than that which a miser feels at the acquisition of his darling wealth. Let us no longer envy the joys of worldly men, no longer be chagrined at the prosperity of the wicked. The "true riches" we may always acquire; and, surely, as much as heaven is higher than the earth, so much are heavenly joys above earthly, in kind, degree, and duration. Bp. Horne.

18. — that I may behold &c.] That is, that I may be able to comprehend the Divine mysteries contained in Thy law. Dimock.

19. I am a stranger &c.] I am a stranger, unacquainted with the way; give me Thy commandments to guide me.

20. My soul breaketh &c.] That is, My soul is wasted with a continual longing after Thy judgments. Edwards.

21. Thou hast rebuked &c.] Thou rebukest the proud; cursed are they that stray from Thy commandments. "The proud" always mean, the contemptuous disregarders of God and His laws. Mudge.

25. My soul cleaveth &c.] I am brought exceeding low by Thy afflicting hand: oh, do Thou raise and comfort me, as Thou hast graciously promised. Bp. Hall.

29, 30. Remove from me &c.] It is plain that "the way of truth," in the latter of these two verses, is opposed to "the way of lying," or of falsehood, in the former. The one comprehends every thing in doctrine or in practice that is right, and therefore 31 I have stuck unto thy testimonies: O LORD, put me not to shame.

32 I will run the way of thy commandments, when thou shalt enlarge my heart.

HE.

33 Teach me, O LORD, the way of thy statutes; and I shall keep it unto the end.
34 Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law; yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart.
35 Make me to go in the path of thy commandments; for therein do I delight.
36 Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to covetousness.
† Heb. Make to pass. 37 † Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity; and quicken thou me in thy way.
38 Stablish thy word unto thy servant, who is devoted to thy fear.
39 Turn away my reproach which I fear: for thy judgments are good.
40 Behold, I have longed after thy precepts: quicken me in thy righteousness.

VAU.

41 Let thy mercies come also unto me, O LORD, even thy salvation, according to thy word.
‖ Or, So shall I answer him that reproacheth me in a thing. 42 ‖ So shall I have wherewith to answer him that reproacheth me: for I trust in thy word.
43 And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth; for I have hoped in thy judgments.
44 So shall I keep thy law continually for ever and ever.
† Heb. at large. 45 And I will walk † at liberty: for I seek thy precepts.
46 I will speak of thy testimonies also before kings, and will not be ashamed.
47 And I will delight myself in thy commandments, which I have loved.
48 My hands also will I lift up unto thy commandments, which I have loved; and I will meditate in thy statutes.

ZAIN.

49 Remember the word unto thy servant, upon which thou hast caused me to hope.
50 This is my comfort in my affliction: for thy word hath quickened me.
51 The proud have had me greatly in derision: yet have I not declined from thy law.
52 I remembered thy judgments of old, O LORD; and have comforted myself.
53 Horror hath taken hold upon me because of the wicked that forsake thy law.
54 Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage.
55 I have remembered thy name, O LORD, in the night, and have kept thy law.
56 This I had, because I kept thy precepts.

CHETH.

57 Thou art my portion, O LORD: I have said that I would keep thy words.
58 I intreated thy † favour with my whole heart: be merciful unto me according to thy word. † Heb. face.
59 I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto thy testimonies.
60 I made haste, and delayed not to keep thy commandments.
61 The ‖ bands of the wicked have robbed me: but I have not forgotten thy law. ‖ Or, companies.
62 At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee because of thy righteous judgments.
63 I am a companion of all them that fear thee, and of them that keep thy precepts.
64 The earth, O LORD, is full of thy mercy: teach me thy statutes.

"true;" the other denotes every thing that is wrong, and therefore "false." Bp. Horne.

32. — when thou shalt enlarge my heart.] When Thou shalt enlighten my understanding by Thy Spirit. God gave to Solomon "largeness of heart," 1 Kings iv. 29.

36. Incline my heart &c.] By the words "incline not my heart to covetousness," is meant, "suffer not my heart to be inclined," or, "give it not over to covetousness." Bp. Horne.

37. Turn away mine eyes &c.] Oh, let not mine eye betray my heart unto vanity; let me not be so transported with any earthly objects, as to depart from my perfect love of Thee, and desire of heavenly things. Bp. Hall.

—— quicken thou &c.] Give me grace to go on with more and more vigour in Thy way. Dr. Wells.

45. — I will walk at liberty:] The liberty of the sons of God; freed from the fetters of sin.

48. My hands also will I lift &c.] I will earnestly employ myself, and all my actions, to the performance of what Thou commandest me. Bp. Hall.

49. Remember the word &c.] The Psalmist here instructs us to prefer our petition upon these grounds; first, that God cannot prove false to His word; "Remember the word unto Thy servant;" secondly, that He will never disappoint an expectation which Himself hath raised; "upon which Thou hast caused me to hope." Bp. Horne.

50. — quickened me.] Revived me in my sorrows. Dr. Wells.

54. — in the house of my pilgrimage.] In all my wanderings up and down. 1 Sam. xxii. 1, 2, 5. and xxiii. 13. Bp. Patrick.

56. This I had,] That is, this composure of mind and cheerfulness of spirit. Bp. Patrick.

60. I made haste, &c.] No future time that we can fix upon will be more convenient than the present is for our reformation. On the contrary, the more we defer, the more difficult and painful our work must needs prove; every day will both enlarge our task, and diminish our ability to perform it. We should consider that we are mortal and frail, and therefore any designs of future reformation may be cut off by death; which is always creeping towards us, and may, for all we can tell, be very near at hand. Dr. Barrow.

TETH.

65 Thou hast dealt well with thy servant, O LORD, according unto thy word.

66 Teach me good judgment and knowledge: for I have believed thy commandments.

67 Before I was afflicted I went astray: but now have I kept thy word.

68 Thou art good, and doest good; teach me thy statutes.

69 The proud have forged a lie against me: but I will keep thy precepts with my whole heart.

70 Their heart is as fat as grease; but I delight in thy law.

71 It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes.

[c] Psal. 19. 10. Prov. 8. 11.

72 [c] The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver.

JOD.

73 Thy hands have made me and fashioned me: give me understanding, that I may learn thy commandments.

74 They that fear thee will be glad when they see me; because I have hoped in thy word.

75 I know, O LORD, that thy judgments are † right, and that thou in faithfulness hast afflicted me.

† Heb. righteousness.

76 Let, I pray thee, thy merciful kindness be † for my comfort, according to thy word unto thy servant.

† Heb. to comfort me.

77 Let thy tender mercies come unto me, that I may live: for thy law is my delight.

78 Let the proud be ashamed; for they dealt perversely with me without a cause: but I will meditate in thy precepts.

79 Let those that fear thee turn unto me, and those that have known thy testimonies.

80 Let my heart be sound in thy statutes; that I be not ashamed.

CAPH.

81 My soul fainteth for thy salvation: but I hope in thy word.

82 Mine eyes fail for thy word, saying, When wilt thou comfort me?

83 For I am become like a bottle in the smoke; yet do I not forget thy statutes.

84 How many are the days of thy servant? when wilt thou execute judgment on them that persecute me?

85 The proud have digged pits for me, which are not after thy law.

86 All thy commandments are † faithful: they persecute me wrongfully; help thou me.

† Heb. faithfulness.

87 They had almost consumed me upon earth; but I forsook not thy precepts.

88 Quicken me after thy lovingkindness; so shall I keep the testimony of thy mouth.

LAMED.

89 For ever, O LORD, thy word is settled in heaven.

90 Thy faithfulness is † unto all generations: thou hast established the earth, and it † abideth.

† Heb. to generation and generation.

† Heb. standeth.

91 They continue this day according to thine ordinances: for all are thy servants.

---

70. Their heart is as fat &c.] The "fatness of the heart" implies, in this place, two things in those of whom it is affirmed; luxury, and its consequence, insensibility to those spiritual and divine truths, which are not only the study, but the "delight" of temperate and holy persons. Bp. Horne.

71. It is good for me &c.] There is a class of most important duties, which can only be practised in affliction; namely, patience and composure under distress, pain, and affliction: a steadfast keeping up of our confidence in God, and our dependance upon His final goodness, even at a time that every thing present is discouraging and adverse; and, what is no less difficult to retain, a cordial desire for the happiness and comfort of others, even then, when we are deprived of our own. The possession of this temper is almost the perfection of our nature. But it is then only possessed when put to the trial: tried at all it could not have been in a life made up only of pleasure and gratification. It is in the chambers of sickness; under the strokes of affliction; amidst the pinchings of want, the groans of pain, the pressures of infirmity; in grief, in misfortune; through gloom and horrour, that it will be seen, whether we hold fast our hope, our confidence, our trust in God; whether this hope and confidence be able to produce in us resignation, acquiescence, and submission. Archdeacon Paley.

74. — when they see me;] When they see me delivered out of all these troubles. Dr. Wells.

75. I know, &c.] From whatever quarter afflictions come upon us, they are the "judgments of God," without whose providence nothing befalls us. His judgments are always "right," or just, duly proportioned to the disease and strength of the patient; in sending them God is "faithful" and true to His word, wherein He hath never promised the crown without the cross, but hath, on the contrary, assured us, that one will be necessary in order to our obtaining the other; and that they who are beloved by Him shall not sin with impunity, nor go astray without a call to return. Bp. Horne.

79. — turn unto me,] Turn to my side, and become my friends. Bp. Patrick.

81. My soul fainteth &c.] My soul languisheth with a longing desire of Thy salvation; yet still I am sustained by an assured hope of Thy merciful performances. Bp. Hall.

83. — like a bottle in the smoke;] Bottles, among the Jews, were made of skins. One of these, if exposed to heat and "smoke," would become shrivelled and useless. Such a change will labour and sorrow cause in the human frame; and the Psalmist here represents, that his beauty and strength were gone, and the natural moisture dried up; in consequence of which the skin shrivelled, and both colour and vigour departed from him. Bp. Horne.

85. — which are not after thy law.] Who act without any regard to Thy law. Mudge.

89. For ever, &c.] Or, "Thy word, O Lord, is for ever, it is firmly fixed like the heavens." God's word, and His truth and faithfulness, upon which His laws are founded, are as fixed as the heaven and the earth; for they owe their durability to the same word and truth. Green, Mudge.

92 Unless thy law had been my delights, I should then have perished in mine affliction.

93 I will never forget thy precepts: for with them thou hast quickened me.

94 I am thine, save me; for I have sought thy precepts.

95 The wicked have waited for me to destroy me: but I will consider thy testimonies.

96 I have seen an end of all perfection: but thy commandment is exceeding broad.

MEM.

97 O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day.

98 Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies: for † they are ever with me.

† Heb. it is ever with me.

99 I have more understanding than all my teachers: for thy testimonies are my meditation.

100 I understand more than the ancients, because I keep thy precepts.

101 I have refrained my feet from every evil way, that I might keep thy word.

102 I have not departed from thy judgments: for thou hast taught me.

[d] Ps. 19. 10. 103 [d] How sweet are thy words unto my † taste! yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth!

† Heb. palate.

104 Through thy precepts I get understanding: therefore I hate every false way.

NUN.

‖ Or, candle. 105 Thy word is a ‖ lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.

106 I have sworn, and I will perform it, that I will keep thy righteous judgments.

107 I am afflicted very much: quicken me, O LORD, according unto thy word.

108 Accept, I beseech thee, the freewill offerings of my mouth, O LORD, and teach me thy judgments.

109 My soul is continually in my hand: yet do I not forget thy law.

110 The wicked have laid a snare for me: yet I erred not from thy precepts.

111 Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage for ever: for they are the rejoicing of my heart.

112 I have inclined mine heart † to perform thy statutes alway, even unto the end.

† Heb. to do.

SAMECH.

113 I hate vain thoughts: but thy law do I love.

114 Thou art my hiding place and my shield: I hope in thy word.

115 [e] Depart from me, ye evildoers: for I will keep the commandments of my God.

[e] Matth. 7. 23.

116 Uphold me according unto thy word, that I may live: and let me not be ashamed of my hope.

117 Hold thou me up, and I shall be safe: and I will have respect unto thy statutes continually.

118 Thou hast trodden down all them that err from thy statutes: for their deceit is falsehood.

119 Thou † puttest away all the wicked of the earth like dross: therefore I love thy testimonies.

† Heb. causest to cease.

120 My flesh trembleth for fear of thee; and I am afraid of thy judgments.

AIN.

121 I have done judgment and justice: leave me not to mine oppressors.

122 Be surety for thy servant for good: let not the proud oppress me.

123 Mine eyes fail for thy salvation, and for the word of thy righteousness.

124 Deal with thy servant according unto thy mercy, and teach me thy statutes.

125 I am thy servant; give me understanding, that I may know thy testimonies.

---

95. — I will consider thy testimonies.] I will carefully attend to Thy commands. Mudge.

96. I have seen an end &c.] Of "all perfection" in this world, whether of beauty, wit, learning, pleasure, honour, or riches, experience will soon shew us the "end." But where is the end or boundary of the word of God? Who can ascend to the height of its excellency; who can fathom the depth of its mysteries; who can find out the comprehension of its precepts, or conceive the extent of its promises? Bp. Horne.

99, 100. I have more understanding &c.] That is, the spiritual wisdom, in which Thy law instructs me, for conducting myself most advantageously, is infinitely to be preferred before all other knowledge. Dr. Hammond.

108. — the freewill offerings of my mouth,] The "offerings" of the believer are prayer, praise, and holy resolutions and vows, like that of the Psalmist above, to keep God's righteous judgments, in which he therefore petitions to be more and more taught and instructed by the Spirit of truth. Bp. Horne. "Freewill offerings" were such sacrifices as were not offered by the law, or for any fault, but for the sake of thanksgiving. Rosenmüller.

109. My soul is continually in my hand:] I am exposed to continual danger of my life. Bp. Hall. See the note from Dr. Durell on Job xiii. 14.

111. Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage] That is, as that which will be the means of my enjoying the chiefest good. Dr. Wells.

118. — for their deceit is falsehood.] Because it will fail and ruin those who trust in it. Bp. Horne.

122. Be surety for thy servant for good:] Do Thou take my cause upon Thee, and stand out for the protection of mine innocence. Bp. Hall.

126 It is time for thee, LORD, to work: for they have made void thy law.

[f] Prov. 8. 11. Ps. 19. 10.

127 [f] Therefore I love thy commandments above gold; yea, above fine gold.

128 Therefore I esteem all thy precepts concerning all things to be right; and I hate every false way.

P E.

129 Thy testimonies are wonderful: therefore doth my soul keep them.

130 The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple.

131 I opened my mouth, and panted: for I longed for thy commandments.

† Heb. according to the custom towards those, &c.

132 Look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me, † as thou usest to do unto those that love thy name.

133 Order my steps in thy word: and let not any iniquity have dominion over me.

134 Deliver me from the oppression of man: so will I keep thy precepts.

135 Make thy face to shine upon thy servant; and teach me thy statutes.

136 Rivers of waters run down mine eyes, because they keep not thy law.

T Z A D D I.

137 Righteous art thou, O LORD, and upright are thy judgments.

† Heb. righteousness.

138 Thy testimonies that thou hast commanded are † righteous and very † faithful.

† Heb. faithfulness.

[g] Ps. 69. 9. John 2. 17.

139 [g] My zeal hath † consumed me, because mine enemies have forgotten thy words.

† Heb. cut me off.

140 Thy word is very † pure: therefore thy servant loveth it.

† Heb. tried, or, refined.

141 I am small and despised: yet do not I forget thy precepts.

142 Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth.

143 Trouble and anguish have † taken hold on me: yet thy commandments are my delights.

† Heb. found me.

144 The righteousness of thy testimonies is everlasting: give me understanding, and I shall live.

K O P H.

145 I cried with my whole heart; hear me, O LORD: I will keep thy statutes.

146 I cried unto thee; save me, ‖ and I shall keep thy testimonies.

‖ Or, that I may keep.

147 I prevented the dawning of the morning, and cried: I hoped in thy word.

148 Mine eyes prevent the night watches, that I might meditate in thy word.

149 Hear my voice according unto thy lovingkindness: O LORD, quicken me according to thy judgment.

150 They draw nigh that follow after mischief: they are far from thy law.

151 Thou art near, O LORD; and all thy commandments are truth.

152 Concerning thy testimonies, I have known of old that thou hast founded them for ever.

R E S H.

153 Consider mine affliction, and deliver me: for I do not forget thy law.

154 Plead my cause, and deliver me: quicken me according to thy word.

155 Salvation is far from the wicked: for they seek not thy statutes.

‖ Or, Many.

156 ‖ Great are thy tender mercies, O LORD: quicken me according to thy judgments.

157 Many are my persecutors and mine enemies; yet do I not decline from thy testimonies.

158 I beheld the transgressors, and was grieved; because they kept not thy word.

159 Consider how I love thy precepts:

---

126. It is time for thee, — to work:] To shew Thy hatred of the wicked courses of men, by executing due judgments upon them. Bp. Hall.

—— made void thy law.] The law of God is "made void" by those who deny its authority, or its obligation; by those who render it of none effect through their traditions, or their lives. Bp. Horne.

129. Thy testimonies are wonderful: &c.] The Scriptures are "wonderful," with respect to the matter which they contain, the manner in which they are written, and the effects which they produce. Bp. Horne.

130. The entrance of thy words &c.] That is, Thy word or law is no sooner known, but it enlightens the mind with most useful knowledge. Dr. Wells.

—— it giveth understanding unto the simple.] Or, to the most unlearned, so far as to teach them how they may be happy. Dr. Wells.

131. — and panted:] An action expressive of great and affectionate desire.

139. My zeal &c.] "Zeal" is a high degree of love; and when the object of that love is ill-treated, it vents itself in a mixture of grief and indignation, which are sufficient to wear and "consume" the heart. This will be the case, where men rightly conceive of that dishonour, which is continually done to God, by creatures whom He hath made and redeemed. But never could the verse be uttered with such fulness of truth and propriety by any one, as by the Son of God, who had such a sense of His Father's glory, and of man's sin, as no person else ever had. Bp. Horne.

150, 151. They draw nigh that follow &c.] If our enemies "draw nigh" to destroy us, God is still nearer to preserve us; and however His word may be rejected by the wicked, the faithful always find it to be true, to their great and endless comfort. Bp. Horne.

152. — thou hast founded them for ever.] That is, Thy will and pleasure is firm and steadfast, and shall never fail those that depend upon it. Bp. Patrick.

159, 160. Consider how I love &c.] It is observable how the Psalmist delights to dwell on these two grateful topicks, the "lovingkindness" of God in promising salvation, and His "truth" quicken me, O LORD, according to thy lovingkindness.

† Heb. The beginning of thy word is true.

160 † Thy word is true from the beginning: and every one of thy righteous judgments endureth for ever.

SCHIN.

161 Princes have persecuted me without a cause: but my heart standeth in awe of thy word.

162 I rejoice at thy word, as one that findeth great spoil.

163 I hate and abhor lying: but thy law do I love.

164 Seven times a day do I praise thee because of thy righteous judgments.

165 Great peace have they which love thy law: and † nothing shall offend them.

† Heb. they shall have no stumblingblock.

166 LORD, I have hoped for thy salvation, and done thy commandments.

167 My soul hath kept thy testimonies; and I love them exceedingly.

168 I have kept thy precepts and thy testimonies: for all my ways are before thee.

TAU.

169 Let my cry come near before thee, O LORD: give me understanding according to thy word.

170 Let my supplication come before thee: deliver me according to thy word.

171 My lips shall utter praise, when thou hast taught me thy statutes.

172 My tongue shall speak of thy word: for all thy commandments are righteousness.

173 Let thine hand help me; for I have chosen thy precepts.

174 I have longed for thy salvation, O LORD; and thy law is my delight.

175 Let my soul live, and it shall praise thee; and let thy judgments help me.

176 I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek thy servant; for I do not forget thy commandments.

PSALM CXX.

1 David prayeth against Doeg, 3 reproveth his tongue, 5 complaineth of his necessary conversation with the wicked.

¶ A Song of degrees.

about 1058.

IN my distress I cried unto the LORD, and he heard me.

‖ Or, What shall the deceitful tongue give unto thee? or, what shall it profit thee?

2 Deliver my soul, O LORD, from lying lips, and from a deceitful tongue.

3 ‖ What shall be given unto thee? or what shall be † done unto thee, thou false tongue?

† Heb. added.

4 ‖ Sharp arrows of the mighty, with coals of juniper.

‖ Or, It is as the sharp arrows of the mighty man, with coals of juniper.

5 Woe is me, that I sojourn in Mesech, that I dwell in the tents of Kedar!

---

in the constant performance of that promise to His Church, while she loves and adheres to His "precepts." Thus it hath been "from the beginning," and thus it will be, until the whole counsel of Heaven shall be fulfilled, by the resurrection and salvation of the just. Bp. Horne.

164. Seven times] That is, many times, in the day. Bp. Hall.

165. Great peace &c.] To enjoy a peace which sets us above the power of evil; which places us out of the reach of fortune; which inspires us with courage in the midst of danger; which opens our eyes to look through the gloomiest scenes of sorrow to the blessed hope of future glory; which establishes our hearts in a patient expectation of God's deliverance, so that nothing can terrify or dismay us; is that which the world can never give, and which can only proceed from the blessed Spirit of God, whose province it is to confirm the faithful to the end, and so to arm their faith, that "nothing can offend them." This is that peace of which the Psalmist here speaks, and which is the peculiar lot and inheritance of the righteous, of him who loveth the law of God. Bp. Sherlock.

—— and nothing shall offend them.] Or, cause them to fall. Dr. Wells.

168. — before thee.] That is, perfectly known to Thee. The consideration of God's omnipresence is the best motive to an holy life. Bp. Wilson.

That this Psalm may be read with improvement, it will be convenient to add to the particular reflexions already made, these three principal reflexions: 1. That the law of God is most excellent, and its effects most wonderful. David teaches us, that this Divine law is the most perfect; that it gives a heavenly light which enlightens us; that it gives understanding; that it purifies and rejoices the heart; that it supports us in afflictions; that it gives us unspeakable peace of conscience; and that it is infinitely better than all the treasures and riches in this world. 2. In this Psalm we learn to distinguish good men. They are sincere and upright in their ways; they do that which is right; they walk in the law of the Lord, and meditate on it day and night; they love God and His word with all their heart; they abstain from evil, and from the company of the wicked; they join themselves to the righteous; they are struck with terrour at the sight of God's judgments; they trust in Him, and are calm and patient under afflictions. 3. Lastly, this Psalm is full of many excellent prayers, which should be continually in our mouths and in our hearts, begging God to enlighten our minds, to teach us His law, to incline our hearts to obey Him, to take us under His care, and guide us always by His providence and His Holy Spirit. These are the instructions with which this Psalm furnishes us; for which purpose we should do well frequently to read it, and meditate on its contents. Ostervald.

Psalm CXX. This Psalm is one of the fifteen, which are entitled Psalms of Ascensions; that is, which were sung when the people came up either to worship in Jerusalem at the annual festivals, or perhaps from the Babylonish captivity. Bp. Lowth. The Psalmist here begs of God to defend him from the deceits and calumnies of the wicked, and complains that he is forced to dwell among them. Green.

A Song of degrees] Or rather, of ascensions. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 4. Sharp arrows &c.] That is, All the reward thou shalt meet with shall be a swift vengeance from the Almighty. This is figuratively represented by sharp arrows and burning coals of juniper, (or, as some think, the Spanish broom,) the wood of which is supposed to burn more intensely than any other. Green, Parkhurst.

5. Woe is me, &c.] Mesech was the son of Japhet, Gen. x. 2. and Kedar the son of Ishmael, Gen. xxv. 13. The descendants of both of them were idolaters, remarkable for their barbarity and cruelty, and for being enemies to peace. David is not to be understood as saying that he actually dwelt among these people, but only that he lived among people who were of the same tem-

6 My soul hath long dwelt with him that hateth peace.

‖ Or, a man of peace. 7 I am ‖for peace: but when I speak, they are for war.

PSALM CXXI.

The great safety of the godly, who put their trust in God's protection.

¶ A Song of degrees.

‖ Or, Shall I lift up mine eyes to the hills? whence should my help come? [a] Ps. 124. 8.

‖ I WILL lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.

2 [a] My help cometh from the LORD, which made heaven and earth.

3 He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber.

4 Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.

5 The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand.

6 The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night.

7 The LORD shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.

8 The LORD shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.

PSALM CXXII.

1 David professeth his joy for the church, 6 and prayeth for the peace thereof.

¶ A Song of degrees of David.

I WAS glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the LORD.

2 Our feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem.

3 Jerusalem is builded as a city that is compact together:

4 Whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the LORD, unto the testimony of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the LORD.

5 For there † are set thrones of judgment, the thrones of the house of David. † Heb. do sit.

6 Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee.

7 Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces.

8 For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will now say, Peace be within thee.

9 Because of the house of the LORD our God I will seek thy good.

---

pers and manners with the descendants of Mesech and Kedar. Edwards.

This Psalm teaches, 1st, That good men may be exposed to calumny and the malice of men, but that God protects and delivers them. 2dly, That it is a great affliction to good men to live among the wicked and ungodly. Lastly, That it is the character of the righteous to love peace, as it is of the wicked to be addicted to confusion and trouble. Ostervald.

Psalm CXXI. This Psalm is of the dramatick or dialogue form. It is both concise and elegant. The king apparently going forth to battle, first approaches the ark of God, and in the two first verses humbly implores the Divine assistance, on which alone he professes to rest his confidence. In the third and following verses the high priest answers him from the tabernacle. Bp. Lowth.

Ver. 1. — unto the hills,] To the mountains of Zion and Moriah, where Jerusalem was built, where the tabernacle was placed, and from whence Jehovah assisted His people when they were in distress. Green.

5. — thy shade] Thy shelter. Dr. Wells.

6. The sun &c.] The meaning is, that the good man, during his journey through life, shall be under God's protection at all seasons. Bp. Horne.

8. The Lord shall preserve &c.] Bishop Lowth refers these words to the king's going forth to battle. But they may be applicable to the preservation of the Jews from their enemies on their going to their feasts at Jerusalem. Dimock.

How happy is that man "whose help cometh from the Lord." Though the whole creation frowns upon him, and all nature looks black upon him, he has His light and support within him, that is able to cheer his mind and bear him up in the midst of any horrours which may encompass him. He knows that his Helper is at hand, and is always nearer to him than any thing else can be which is capable of annoying or terrifying him. In the midst of calumny or contempt, he attends to that Being who whispers better things within his soul, and whom he looks upon as his Defender, his Glory, and the Lifter-up of his head. In his deepest solitude and retirement, he knows that he is in company with the Greatest of Beings; and perceives within himself such real sensations of His presence, as are more delightful than any thing to be met with in the society of His creatures. Even in the hour of death, he considers the pains of his dissolution to be nothing else but the breaking down of that partition which stands between his own soul, and the sight of that Being who is always present with him, and who will then manifest Himself to him in fulness of joy. Addison.

Psalm CXXII. The subject of this Psalm is that joy which the people were wont to express, upon their going up in companies to keep a feast at Jerusalem, when the Divine services were regulated, and that city was appointed to be a place of publick worship. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 2. — shall stand] More literally, stood or are standing. Abp. Secker.

3. Jerusalem is &c.] Jerusalem is compact as to its buildings, and the inhabitants of it firmly united by mutual harmony and friendship. Dr. Chandler. Jerusalem is built as a city that is placed in the centre of union; that is, it was the great seat and centre of religion and justice, was the centre of union to all the tribes. Mudge, Dr. Delaney.

4. — unto the testimony of Israel,] That is, "unto the ark of the testimony." Dr. Wells, Edwards, Merrick.

6. Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:] A concern for the peace and happiness of our country is not only a political, but a religious virtue; a care that becomes us both as we are men, and as we are Christians; which stands not upon the narrow bottom of self-interest, but rises from a more generous principle, partaking of the love of God and love of our neighbour; since, whilst we seek the publick peace, we shew our beneficence to the one, and our obedience to the other. Bp. Sherlock.

As we are concerned for the happiness of our country in general, so ought we to be for the welfare of the Church in particular. The kingdom of our Master must subsist, as well as other kingdoms and societies do, by the cultivation of peace and unity among those who are the subjects of it. Joined to one common head, Christians should be joined likewise to each other, "keeping the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace," Eph. iv. 3. Bp. Horne.

PSALM CXXIII.

1 The godly profess their confidence in God, 3 and pray to be delivered from contempt.

¶ A Song of degrees.

UNTO thee lift I up mine eyes, O thou that dwellest in the heavens.

2 Behold, as the eyes of servants look unto the hand of their masters, and as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress; so our eyes wait upon the LORD our God, until that he have mercy upon us.

3 Have mercy upon us, O LORD, have mercy upon us: for we are exceedingly filled with contempt.

4 Our soul is exceedingly filled with the scorning of those that are at ease, and with the contempt of the proud.

PSALM CXXIV.

The church blesseth God for a miraculous deliverance.

¶ A Song of degrees of David.

IF it had not been the LORD who was on our side, now may Israel say;

2 If it had not been the LORD who was on our side, when men rose up against us:

3 Then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us:

4 Then the waters had overwhelmed us, the stream had gone over our soul:

5 Then the proud waters had gone over our soul.

6 Blessed be the LORD, who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth.

7 Our soul is escaped as a bird out of the snare of the fowlers: the snare is broken, and we are escaped.

8 [a] Our help is in the name of the LORD, who made heaven and earth. [a] Ps. 121. 2.

PSALM CXXV.

1 The safety of such as trust in God. 4 A prayer for the godly, and against the wicked.

¶ A Song of degrees.

THEY that trust in the LORD shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever.

2 As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the LORD is round about his people from henceforth even for ever.

3 For the rod of † the wicked shall not rest upon the lot of the righteous; lest the righteous put forth their hands unto iniquity. † Heb. wickedness.

4 Do good, O LORD, unto those that be good, and to them that are upright in their hearts.

5 As for such as turn aside unto their crooked ways, the LORD shall lead them forth with the workers of iniquity: but peace shall be upon Israel.

PSALM CXXVI.

1 The church, celebrating her incredible return out of captivity, 4 prayeth for, and prophesieth the good success thereof.

Psalm CXXIII. This is a short address to God for His special assistance under circumstances of distress, from the proud and insolent behaviour of some haughty oppressors. Travell.

Ver. 2. — unto the hand of their masters, &c.] The servants or slaves in the East still attend their masters or mistresses with the profoundest respect. Maundrell observes this to be the case in Turkey: and Bp. Pococke says, that in Egypt "every thing is done with the greatest decency and the most profound silence: the slaves or servants standing at the bottom of the room with their hands joined before them, watching with the utmost attention every motion of their master, who commands them by signs." Parkhurst.

We have never more need of the influence of God's Spirit, than when those who oppress us add contempt and scorn to their injustice, and when the spectators of our misery take occasion from thence to deride and despise our persons; nor can any thing preserve us, in those cases, from some unwarrantable excesses of grief, but the casting up our eyes unto Him from whom all afflictions come. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm CXXIV. This Psalm is an acknowledgment of God's assistance, and a thankful commemoration of the deliverances wrought signally by Him. It was appointed to be sung by the Levites after the return from the captivity, and is very suitable to any other eminent deliverance wrought by God for His servants. Dr. Hammond. This is one of the proper Psalms for the thanksgiving days of the fifth of November, and the twenty-ninth of May.

The great lesson which this Psalm, from the beginning to the end, inculcates, is, that for every deliverance, whether of a temporal or a spiritual nature, we should, in imitation of the saints above, ascribe "salvation to our God, and unto the Lamb," Rev. vii. 10. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXXV. This Psalm, like the preceding, is appointed for the thanksgiving on the fifth of November.

Ver. 2. As the mountains &c.] As Jerusalem is encompassed by high hills, which render it inaccessible by enemies, so is the good providence of God a never-failing barrier and protection to His people. Bp. Patrick, Travell.

3. For the rod &c.] This implies, that the Almighty, with a view to the maintenance of pure religion, will preserve His people from subjection to the power of the wicked.

—— the rod] The power. Merrick.

The clearest and most unquestionable proof that we put our trust in the Lord, is our steadiness and constancy in His precepts; that no allurements and invitations of pleasure and profit, no apprehensions of terrour and misery and calamity, can persuade us in the least degree to swerve from them, in order to compass the one, or to avoid the other; and the surest evidence that He doth accept this our trust in Him, is, when He blesses our constancy, and makes us, as it were, as unmoveable as Himself; and as He cannot fail, or be shaken in His resolutions towards us, so we cannot be shaken in our confidence in Him, or misled by that confidence. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm CXXVI. There is little doubt that this Psalm was expressly composed on the return of the Jews from their captivity in Babylon, which the Psalmist prays may be fully completed by the entire restoration of the faithful. Travell. This is one of the proper Psalms for the thanksgiving on the twenty-ninth of May.

¶ A Song of degrees.

WHEN the LORD † turned again the captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream.

† Heb. returned the returning of Zion.

2 Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing: then said they among the heathen, The LORD † hath done great things for them.

† Heb. hath magnified to do with them.

3 The LORD hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad.

4 Turn again our captivity, O LORD, as the streams in the south.

5 They that sow in tears shall reap in ‖ joy.

‖ Or, singing.

6 He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing ‖ precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

‖ Or, seed basket.

PSALM CXXVII.

1 The virtue of God's blessing. 3 Good children are his gift.

¶ A Song of degrees ‖ for Solomon.

‖ Or, of Solomon.

EXCEPT the LORD build the house, they labour in vain † that build it: except the LORD keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.

† Heb. that are builders of it in it.

2 It is vain for you to rise up early, to sit up late, to eat the bread of sorrows: for so he giveth his beloved sleep.

3 Lo, children are an heritage of the LORD: and the fruit of the womb is his reward.

4 As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man; so are children of the youth.

5 Happy is the man that † hath his quiver full of them: they shall not be ashamed, but they ‖ shall speak with the enemies in the gate.

† Heb. hath filled his quiver with them.

‖ Or, shall subdue, as Psal. 18. 47. or, destroy.

PSALM CXXVIII.

The sundry blessings which follow them that fear God.

¶ A Song of degrees.

BLESSED is every one that feareth the LORD; that walketh in his ways.

2 For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands: happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee.

3 Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine by the sides of thine house: thy children like olive plants round about thy table.

4 Behold, that thus shall the man be blessed that feareth the LORD.

5 The LORD shall bless thee out of Zion: and thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life.

Ver. 1. — we were like them that dream.] We could scarcely believe it, but thought ourselves only in a dream of so great an happiness. Dr. Wells.

4. Turn again our captivity, &c.] The joy occasioned by Cyrus's proclamation having been described in the former part of the Psalm, we may now suppose some of the Jews ready to set out on their return home; at which time, and during their journey, they prefer this petition to God, that He would be pleased to bring back the rest of their countrymen, who, like floods rolling down upon the thirsty regions of the "south," might people the land, and by their labours put an end to the desolations of Judah. Bp. Horne.

—— the streams in the south.] This image seems to be taken from the torrents in the deserts to the south of Judea; which were constantly dried up in summer, (see Job vi. 17, 18,) and as constantly returned after the rainy season, and filled again their deserted channels. Bp. Lowth.

5, 6. They that sow in tears &c.] These verses pray in general, that God from a melancholy beginning (for such was the restoration at first, rather the seed of one, than one maturely grown) would grant a happy issue. Mudge, Green.

This Psalm engages us to reflect on the wonderful things which God has done at all times for His people, by delivering them, contrary to all appearance, from the power of their enemies. It assures us moreover, that if the Church, or the righteous, are in affliction and tears, God gives them at last occasion to rejoice; and, in general, when men have been tried and humbled by affliction, He makes gladness succeed to sorrow; causing those who sow in tears to reap in joy. Ostervald.

Psalm CXXVII. This is a Psalm which can never be out of season, the design of its author being to teach us the necessity of a dependance upon God and His blessing, in every work to which we set our hands. Bp. Horne. It is used in our service for the Thanksgiving of Women after Child-birth.

Ver. 2. It is vain for you &c.] That is, it is in vain for you to rise up early to labour, to go late to rest, and to eat the bread of carefulness, unless the Lord bless your endeavours: whereas He giveth to His beloved even while they sleep. Green.

4. — children of the youth.] Rather, as in the old translation, "the young children." Rosenmüller, Street.

5. — but they shall speak &c.] The "gate" was the place of resort for publick business and justice under the porch that belonged to it. Children would support a man there in his contest and pretensions. Mudge. See the notes on Gen. xxiii. 10, and on Deut. xvi. 18. There is said to be a Chinese proverb to this effect, "When a son is born into a family, a bow and arrow are hung up before the gate:" this should seem to be a figurative expression, signifying that a new protector is added to the family. Merrick.

The Psalmist does not certainly intend to say at ver. 2, that labour and diligence are vain, but that they are so, except the Lord be with the labourer: the business is not to be done by all the industry and pains in the world without Him: whereas, if His aid be called in, if part of our time be spent in prayer, not the whole of it in toiling without prayer, our work will become easier, and go on better; a solicitude and anxiety for its success and completion will no longer prey upon our minds by day, and break our rest at night; we shall cheerfully fulfil our daily tasks, and then with confidence and resignation lay our heads upon our pillows, and God will "give to His beloved" a sweet and undisturbed "sleep," which shall fit them to return every morning, with renewed vigour and alacrity, to their stated employments. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXXVIII. This is generally considered as a marriage-song, sung at the marriages of the Israelites; strongly pointing out the happiness of such as are truly religious, and the claim they thereby obtain to be blessed in their person, in their family, and in the prosperity of their country. Travell. It is introduced into our marriage service.

Marriage was ordained by God to complete the felicity of man

6 Yea, thou shalt see thy children's children, and peace upon Israel.

PSALM CXXIX.

1 An exhortation to praise God for saving Israel in their great afflictions. 5 The haters of the church are cursed.

¶ A Song of degrees.

‖ Or, Much.

‖ MANY a time have they afflicted me from my youth, may Israel now say:

2 Many a time have they afflicted me from my youth: yet they have not prevailed against me.

3 The plowers plowed upon my back: they made long their furrows.

4 The LORD is righteous: he hath cut asunder the cords of the wicked.

5 Let them all be confounded and turned back that hate Zion.

6 Let them be as the grass upon the housetops, which withereth afore it groweth up:

7 Wherewith the mower filleth not his hand; nor he that bindeth sheaves his bosom.

8 Neither do they which go by say, The blessing of the LORD be upon you: we bless you in the name of the LORD.

PSALM CXXX.

1 The psalmist professeth his hope in prayer, 5 and his patience in hope. 7 He exhorteth Israel to hope in God.

¶ A Song of degrees.

OUT of the depths have I cried unto thee, O LORD.

2 Lord, hear my voice: let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications.

3 If thou, LORD, shouldest mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand?

4 But there is forgiveness with thee, that thou mayest be feared.

5 I wait for the LORD, my soul doth wait, and in his word do I hope.

6 My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning: ‖ I say, more than they that watch for the morning.

‖ Or, which watch unto the morning.

7 Let Israel hope in the LORD: for with the LORD there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption.

8 And he shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities.

---

in a state of innocence; and the benediction of Heaven will ever descend upon it, when undertaken in "the fear of the Lord." The vine, a lowly plant, raised with tender care, becoming, by its luxuriancy, its beauty, and its clusters, the ornament and glory of the house to which it is joined, and by which it is supported, forms the finest imaginable emblem of a fair, virtuous, and fruitful wife. The olive trees planted by the inhabitants of the eastern countries around their tables, or banqueting places in their gardens, to cheer the eye by their verdure, and to refresh the body by their cooling shade, do no less aptly and significantly set forth the pleasure which parents feel at the sight of a numerous and flourishing offspring. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXXIX. This Psalm was perhaps composed by Ezra or Nehemiah, for the consolation of the Jews at the time that their enemies obstructed the rebuilding of the city and temple. Dimock. It is one of the proper Psalms of the thanksgiving day on the twenty-ninth of May.

Ver. 3. The plowers plowed &c.] A figurative mode of expressing severe oppression.

4. The Lord is righteous: &c.] But God, who is ever faithful to His promises, has destroyed the power of these wicked oppressors. Travell.

7. — his bosom.] See the note on Ps. lxxix. 12.

8. — The blessing of the Lord &c.] This is a poetical form of saying, Let them be destroyed, as that which is useless; which affords neither the plenty nor the joy of harvest.

Both under the Old Testament and under the New, the church of God has often been assaulted, but He has always preserved it, and its enemies have not been able to destroy it. Hence we may rest in sure belief, that His Church will ever stand secure, and that those who "hate Zion" will be "confounded and turned back." Ostervald.

Psalm CXXX. In the first part of this Psalm, the author prays God earnestly to forgive him his sins, and to remit the consequences of them, in strong expectation that, pursuant to His word, He would grant his prayer: in the second, he has obtained his request, and encourages therefore all his brethren to put their trust in God, for redeeming them from their sins and the punishment of them. Mudge. It seems to have been composed, or at least used, upon occasion of the publick penitence, of which mention is made in the ninth and tenth chapters of Ezra. Rosenmüller. This Psalm is appointed to be used on Ash Wednesday, and is one of those which are styled penitential Psalms.

Ver. 1. Out of the depths] Or deep waters. Troubles and calamities are figuratively represented by deep waters. Green.

3. — shouldest mark iniquities,] Shouldest charge us with all our sins. Bp. Wilson. Wilt be extreme to mark what is done amiss. Old Translation.

6. My soul &c.] The meaning is, The guards every morning that hasten to their watches, are not earlier than I am in my daily addresses to God. By these guards seem to be meant the priests, or some officers of theirs, which were peculiarly appointed, from a tower, to expect the first appearance of break of day, for the purpose of offering the morning oblation. Dr. Hammond. See the note on Exod. xiv. 24.

8. And he shall redeem &c.] He will assuredly rescue them from those distresses and sufferings, which He hath inflicted on them, as a punishment for their iniquities. Travell.

The fourth verse of this Psalm should teach us, upon what ground every man is to build the persuasion of the pardon of his sins. It is the temper of most persons, to be more busy about their assurance, than their obedience; and to be confident of their reward, while they should be solicitous about their duty. But to discover whether such men's confidence be sound and rational, or vain and fallacious, I should recommend them to this one criterion and mark of trial, namely, to reflect upon and consider what effects this persuasion of God's mercy works upon their spirits. If men, from the persuasions of mercy, grow impudent and bold in sin, presume upon God's patience, and venture far upon the stock of a supposed forgiveness, they must know that they are under the power of a destructive infatuation. Mercy was never intended to serve any man in his vice, to smooth him in his sin, and by abused hopes of pardon to strengthen the hands of his corruption. And therefore he that from God's mercy gathers no argument for His fear, may conclude thus much, that there is indeed forgiveness with God, but no forgiveness for him. Dr. South.

PSALM CXXXI.

1 David, professing his humility, 3 exhorteth Israel to hope in God.

¶ A Song of degrees of David.

LORD, my heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty: neither do I † exercise myself in great matters, or in things too † high for me.

† Heb. walk.

† Heb. wonderful.

2 Surely I have behaved and quieted † myself, as a child that is weaned of his mother: my soul is even as a weaned child.

† Heb. my soul.

3 Let Israel hope in the LORD † from henceforth and for ever.

† Heb. from now.

PSALM CXXXII.

1 David in his prayer commendeth unto God the religious care he had for the ark. 8 His prayer at the removing of the ark, 11 with a repetition of God's promises.

¶ A Song of degrees.

LORD, remember David, and all his afflictions:

about 1004. 2 How he sware unto the LORD, and vowed unto the mighty God of Jacob;

3 Surely I will not come into the tabernacle of my house, nor go up into my bed;

4 I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids,

5 Until I find out a place for the LORD, † an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.

† Heb. habitations.

6 Lo, we heard of it at Ephratah: we found it in the fields of the wood.

7 We will go into his tabernacles: we will worship at his footstool.

8 [a] Arise, O LORD, into thy rest; thou, and the ark of thy strength.

[a] 2 Chron. 6. 41. Numb. 10. 35.

9 Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness; and let thy saints shout for joy.

10 For thy servant David's sake turn not away the face of thine anointed.

11 The LORD hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it; [b] Of the fruit of † thy body will I set upon thy throne.

[b] 2 Sam. 7. 12. 1 Kings 8. 25. 2 Chron. 6. 16. Luke 1. 69. Acts 2. 30.

† Heb. thy belly.

12 If thy children will keep my covenant and my testimony that I shall teach them, their children shall also sit upon thy throne for evermore.

13 For the LORD hath chosen Zion; he hath desired it for his habitation.

14 This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell; for I have desired it.

15 I will ‖ abundantly bless her provision: I will satisfy her poor with bread.

‖ Or, surely.

16 I will also clothe her priests with salvation: and her saints shall shout aloud for joy.

17 [c] There will I make the horn of David to bud: I have ordained a ‖ lamp for mine anointed.

[c] Luke 1. 69.

‖ Or, candle.

Psalm CXXXI. This Psalm was probably intended as a form of humble devotion, to be used at seasons of religious humiliation.

Ver. 2. Surely I have behaved &c.] The meaning seems to be, I depend wholly upon God's providence for the way and time of bringing me to the kingdom, as the poor helpless infant, when it is deprived of its natural and accustomed food, the mother's milk, takes no care to provide for itself, but wholly relies upon its mother's care for its support. Poole.

This Psalm expresses the sentiments which all the children of God ought to entertain: they are to be humble, not aiming at high things, but resembling little children in innocence and simplicity. What David teaches us on this head, is the same with what our Lord more fully recommends in the Gospel, when He tells us, that if we become not as little children, He will not acknowledge us for His disciples, nor shall we enter into the kingdom of heaven. Ostervald.

Psalm CXXXII. Some are of opinion that this Psalm was composed by Solomon at the dedication of the temple, since he concludes his prayer upon that occasion with three verses of it. See 2 Chron. vi. 41, 42. Many parts of it refer so plainly to the Messiah, that it is well adapted to the service of Christmas-day. Travell.

Ver. 3. — I will not come into &c.] This is not to be understood literally, but as a figurative expression of his passionate desire to do this work, which was so earnest that neither his house, nor bed, nor sleep, could give him any content till it was completed, or in some forwardness. Poole.

5. — a place for the Lord,] A convenient place for the ark of the Lord, 1 Chron. xv. 1. and xvi. 1—43. Bp. Patrick.

6. Lo, we heard of it &c.] In other words, as Bp. Patrick hath paraphrased this verse, "And now, behold, the Lord Himself, to our great joy, hath told us the very place where He will fix His habitation, (1 Chron. xxi. 18, 26.) in the territory of Beth-lehem Ephrata, (Gen. xxxv. 18, 19.) in the fields of that forest, where the angel stood, and directed David to build an altar to the Lord," 1 Chron. xxi. 18. and xxii. 1. Bp. Horne. Jerusalem being situated not far from Beth-lehem, might be comprehended in the region of Ephrata. Merrick.

7. — we will worship at his footstool.] The Lord's footstool here mentioned, was either the ark of the testimony itself, or the place at least where it stood, called the Holy of Holies, towards which the Jews in their temple used to worship. Jos. Mede.

8. Arise, O Lord, into thy rest;] Arise, O Lord, to take possession of Thy resting place. Green.

10. — turn not away &c.] Do not reject the prayer of him, whom Thou hast consecrated to be king of Thy people. Travell.

11. The Lord hath sworn &c.] That this is a prophecy of the Messiah, we have the authority of St. Peter to say, Acts ii. 30. This promise to David occurs, 2 Sam. vii. 12. and hath a twofold sense, relating to Solomon in type and shadow, to Christ in truth and substance. Bp. Horne.

12 — for evermore.] The temporal kingdom of David continued in the line of David till the birth of Christ, when the spiritual kingdom commenced in the person of this Son of David, of which there shall be no end. Dimock.

16. I will also clothe her priests with salvation:] I will spread My protection and defence over her priests, which are consecrated to Me. Bp. Hall.

17. — the horn of David &c.] The "horn" and "lamp" signify the regal dignity of David. No sooner shall one of his successors fail, but another shall be raised up to succeed him. Green. The Jews confess that this verse mystically refers to Christ. Bp. Horne.

The vow which David had made to establish a fixed place of 18 His enemies will I clothe with shame:

but upon himself shall his crown flourish.

PSALM CXXXIII.

The benefit of the communion of saints.

¶ A Song of degrees of David.

BEHOLD, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell † together in unity!

† Heb. even together.

2 It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard: that went down to the skirts of his garments;

3 As the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for there the LORD commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.

PSALM CXXXIV.

An exhortation to bless God.

¶ A Song of degrees.

BEHOLD, bless ye the LORD, all ye servants of the LORD, which by night stand in the house of the LORD.

‖ Or, in holiness.

2 Lift up your hands ‖ in the sanctuary,
and bless the LORD.

3 The LORD that made heaven and earth bless thee out of Zion.

PSALM CXXXV.

1 An exhortation to praise God for his mercy, 5 for his power, 8 for his judgments. 15 The vanity of idols. 19 An exhortation to bless God.

PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise ye the name of the LORD; praise him, O ye servants of the LORD.

2 Ye that stand in the house of the LORD, in the courts of the house of our God,

3 Praise the LORD; for the LORD is good: sing praises unto his name; for it is pleasant.

4 For the LORD hath chosen Jacob unto himself, and Israel for his peculiar treasure.

5 For I know that the LORD is great, and that our LORD is above all gods.

6 Whatsoever the LORD pleased, that did he in heaven, and in earth, in the seas, and all deep places.

7 [a] He causeth the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth; he maketh lightnings for the rain; he bringeth the wind out of his treasuries.

[a] Jer. 10. 13.

Divine service, was a striking mark of his piety. From hence great men, magistrates, and all men in general, ought to learn, that they should desire, with the greatest fervency, the glory of God, and His true worship, and promote them to the utmost of their power. The choice which God had made of Zion for the place of His worship, and the promises with which He had engaged to dwell there for ever, to bless and prosper it, are to be applied to the Christian Church, in which He dwells in a more particular manner, and wherein He is to be worshipped and adored unto the end of the world. We ought all of us continually to pray for the preservation of the Church, for a blessing on its ministers, and on all its members. Ostervald.

Psalm CXXXIII. This short but pleasing Psalm was composed either to recommend unity among the tribes of Israel, or to celebrate it when it had taken place. It was fitly used by the first Christians to express their joy for the blessed union of Jews and Gentiles; and may now serve the uses of all Christian societies, whose happiness lies in holy peace and concord. Bps. Horne and Patrick.

Ver. 2. It is like the precious ointment &c.] The happiness derived to all classes of the community from the establishment of unity, is here aptly compared to the holy oil, which diffuses sanctity and fragrance over the person and garments of the high priest.

—— skirts] The original word does not signify "skirts," but the upper part of the garment about the neck, near the beard. This garment was put over the head; and the neck part or collar, where the head came through it, is the part meant. Reeves.

3. — the dew of Hermon,] Maundrell says, "We were sufficiently instructed by experience what the holy Psalmist means by 'the dew of Hermon,' our tents being as wet with it as if it had rained all night."

—— the mountains of Zion:] These seem to be those mountains which stood round about Jerusalem. Rosenmüller.

—— for there &c.] That is, God hath promised all kind of prosperity upon the dwelling of those who live together in unity. Green, Rosenmüller.

The colouring of the picture presented to us in this Psalm is much heightened by its being viewed in another light, as a representation of spiritual unity in the Church. The spirit of heavenly love was that oil of gladness which Jehovah poured without measure on Him who is the High Priest and Head of His Church. Insinuating and healing, comforting and exhilarating, it is diffused from Him over His body mystical, even down to the least and lowest members; "of His fulness have we all received." Nor did the dew of heaven, in time of drought, ever prove more refreshing and beneficial to the mountains of Judah, than are the influences of Grace, when descending in soft silence from above upon the Church; in the union and communion of which, God hath "commanded the blessing, even life for evermore." Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXXXIV. This Psalm seems to be nothing more than the alternate cry of the two different divisions of the temple watch. The first watch addresses the second, reminding them of their duty: the second answers by a solemn blessing: the address and the answer seem both to be a set form, which each division proclaimed, or sung aloud at stated intervals, to notify the time of night. Bp. Lowth.

The ministers of God should learn from this Psalm, that as the priests and Levites were by their office called to praise God day and night in His temple, and to pray for the people of Israel; so are the ministers of the Christian church, by their office, in a particular manner, called to bless and praise continually God's holy name, and to pray without ceasing for the prosperity of the Church. Ostervald.

Psalm CXXXV. This Psalm is thought to have been sung by the Levites at the opening of the gates of the temple. Dr. Wells.

Ver. 7. — he maketh lightnings for the rain;] He maketh the lightnings to attend the rain. Green. Dr. Russell, in his description of the weather at Aleppo, in September, tells us, that seldom a night passes without much lightning in the north-west quarter,

[b] Exod. 12. 29.
† Heb. from man unto beast.

8 [b] Who smote the firstborn of Egypt, † both of man and beast.

9 Who sent tokens and wonders into the midst of thee, O Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his servants.

[c] Numb. 21. 24, 25, 26, 34, 35.

10 [c] Who smote great nations, and slew mighty kings;

11 Sihon king of the Amorites, and Og king of Bashan, and all the kingdoms of Canaan:

[d] Josh. 12. 7.

12 [d] And gave their land for an heritage, an heritage unto Israel his people.

† Heb. to generation and generation.

13 Thy name, O LORD, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O LORD, † throughout all generations.

14 For the LORD will judge his people, and he will repent himself concerning his servants.

[e] Psal. 115. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.

15 [e] The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, the work of men's hands.

16 They have mouths, but they speak not; eyes have they, but they see not;

17 They have ears, but they hear not; neither is there any breath in their mouths.

18 They that make them are like unto them: so is every one that trusteth in them.

19 Bless the LORD, O house of Israel: bless the LORD, O house of Aaron:

20 Bless the LORD, O house of Levi: ye that fear the LORD, bless the LORD.

21 Blessed be the LORD out of Zion, which dwelleth at Jerusalem. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXXXVI.

An exhortation to give thanks to God for particular mercies.

[a] Psal. 106. 1 & 107. 1. & 118. 1.

O [a] GIVE thanks unto the LORD; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.

2 O give thanks unto the God of gods: for his mercy endureth for ever.

3 O give thanks to the Lord of lords: for his mercy endureth for ever.

4 To him who alone doeth great wonders: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[b] Gen. 1. 1.

5 [b] To him that by wisdom made the heavens: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[c] Gen. 1. 6. Jer. 10. 12.

6 [c] To him that stretched out the earth above the waters: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[d] Gen. 1. 14

7 [d] To him that made great lights: for his mercy endureth for ever:

† Heb. for the rulings by day.

8 The sun † to rule by day: for his mercy endureth for ever:

9 The moon and stars to rule by night: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[e] Exod. 12. 29.

10 [e] To him that smote Egypt in their firstborn: for his mercy endureth for ever:

[f] Exod. 13. 17.

11 [f] And brought out Israel from among them: for his mercy endureth for ever:

12 With a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[g] Exod. 14. 21, 22.

13 [g] To him which divided the Red sea into parts: for his mercy endureth for ever:

14 And made Israel to pass through the

---

but not attended with thunder; and that when this lightning appears in the west or south-west points, it is a sure sign of the approaching rain, which is often followed with thunder. Harmer.

14. — will judge his people,] Will plead for, or avenge His people. Dr. Hammond.

—— will repent himself concerning his servants.] Will be gracious unto His servants. Old Translation.

18. They that make them &c.] They, who form them for objects of worship, or who blindly depend upon them for favour and support, are as stupid and senseless, as the very idols themselves. Travell.

All the servants of God, they more especially who minister in the temple, are repeatedly in this, as in the foregoing Psalm, excited to praise their blessed Master. Two of the reasons assigned, why they should do this, are; first, the goodness of that Master, and secondly, the pleasantness of the employment. The latter of these reasons hath a natural and necessary dependance on the former. A sense of the Divine mercy will tune our hearts and voices to praise. We, who are upon earth, often find ourselves indisposed for the duty of thanksgiving, because the concerns of the body, the cares and pleasures of life, extinguish, for a time, this sense in us, until grace, prayer, and meditation, render it again lively and active. In the inhabitants of heaven, who behold God without the veil of matter interposed, it is always so; and therefore, they rest not day nor night from singing hallelujahs, nor cease one moment to rejoice in God their Saviour. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXXXVI. This is a delightful hymn of praise and thanksgiving to Jehovah, God of gods, and Lord of lords, for the wonders of creation, of providence, and grace; which were probably celebrated in due order by one half of the choir, while the other half, or perhaps the whole in full chorus, took up the burden of each verse, "For His mercy endureth for ever:" a form prescribed by David (1 Chron. xvi. 41.) to be used continually in the Divine service: a form highly proper for creatures, and sinful creatures, to use; whose great employment it is now, and will be for ever, to magnify the mercy and lovingkindness of their God. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 2. — God of gods:] That is, Sovereign of all the heavenly hosts. Bp. Patrick. See Exod. xviii. 11. Dimock.

3. — Lord of lords:] Lord of the kings and princes of the earth. Bp. Patrick.

4. To him who alone doeth great wonders:] All the works of God are wonderful, and speak Him alone to have been their author. The established course of the world is in reality no less admirable, than are those extraordinary interpositions of Omnipotence, whereby it hath been sometimes interrupted and suspended; though the latter, on account of their novelty, are apt to affect us more than the former doth, which is ever before our eyes, and therefore less regarded by us. How many of those for whom the wonders of creation, providence, and redemption have been wrought, think none of them worthy their attention! Angels admire and adore, where man will not deign to cast an eye, or employ a thought. Bp. Horne.

The Sovereign Being, the great Author of nature, has in Him all possible perfection, as well in kind as in degree: so that when we have raised our notion of this infinite Being as high as it is possi-midst of it: for his mercy endureth for ever:

[h] Exod. 14. 28. † Heb. shaked off.

15 [h] But † overthrew Pharaoh and his host in the Red sea: for his mercy endureth for ever.

[i] Exod. 15. 22.

16 [i] To him which led his people through the wilderness: for his mercy endureth for ever.

17 To him which smote great kings: for his mercy endureth for ever:

[k] Deut. 29. 7. Psal. 135. 10, 11.

18 [k] And slew famous kings: for his mercy endureth for ever:

[l] Numb. 21. 21.

19 [l] Sihon king of the Amorites: for his mercy endureth for ever:

[m] Numb. 21. 33.

20 [m] And Og the king of Bashan: for his mercy endureth for ever:

[n] Josh. 12. 7.

21 [n] And gave their land for an heritage: for his mercy endureth for ever:

22 Even an heritage unto Israel his servant: for his mercy endureth for ever.

23 Who remembered us in our low estate: for his mercy endureth for ever:

24 And hath redeemed us from our enemies: for his mercy endureth for ever.

25 Who giveth food to all flesh: for his mercy endureth for ever.

26 O give thanks unto the God of heaven: for his mercy endureth for ever.

PSALM CXXXVII.

1 The constancy of the Jews in captivity. 7 The prophet curseth Edom and Babel.

BY the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion. about 570.

2 We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof.

3 For there they that carried us away captive required of us † a song; and they that † wasted us required of us mirth, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Zion. † Heb. the words of a song. † Heb. laid us on heaps.

4 How shall we sing the LORD'S song in a † strange land? † Heb. land of a stranger?

5 If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning.

6 If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above † my chief joy. † Heb. the head of my joy.

[a] Obad. 10, &c.

7 Remember, O LORD, [a] the children of Edom in the day of Jerusalem; who said, † Rase it, rase it, even to the foundation thereof. † Heb. Make bare.

8 O daughter of Babylon, who art to be † destroyed; happy shall he be, † that rewardeth thee as thou hast served us. † Heb. wasted. † Heb. that recompenseth unto thee thy deed which thou didst to us.

9 Happy shall he be, that taketh and [b] dasheth thy little ones against † the stones. [b] Isai. 13. 16. † Heb. the rock.

PSALM CXXXVIII.

1 David praiseth God for the truth of his word. 4 He prophesieth that the kings of the earth shall praise God. 7 He professeth his confidence in God.

---

ble for the mind of man to go, it will fall infinitely short of what He really is. "There is no end of His greatness." The most exalted creature He has made is only capable of adoring it, none but Himself can comprehend it. Such He is, when considered by the light of reason and philosophy. But if we would see Him in all the wonders of His mercy, we must have recourse to revelation, which represents Him to us not only as infinitely great and glorious, but as infinitely good and just in His dispensations towards man. We should often refresh our minds with such thoughts of Him, and annihilate ourselves before Him, in the contemplation of our own worthlessness, and of His transcendent excellency and perfection. Addison.

Psalm CXXXVII. This is the woful lamentation of one of the Jewish captives in Babylon, either at the time of their captivity, or at their return from it. It contains a mournful reflexion on their banishment from their native country, combined with the insolent behaviour of their enemies; and foretels the future destruction which awaited the city of Babylon and its devoted inhabitants. Travell.

Ver. 1. — we sat down,] Sitting on the ground was a posture that denoted mourning and deep distress. See Lam. ii. 10. Job ii. 13. Bp. Lowth.

4. How shall we sing &c.] Many singers were carried captives, Ezra ii. 41. These would of course carry their instruments with them and be insulted, as here. Their songs were sacred, and unfit to be sung before idolaters. But the words, "How shall we sing," &c. are not an answer given to their enemies, but the free utterance of the feelings of the Jews amongst themselves. Abp. Secker.

5. — her cunning.] Or, skill to play upon the harp. Dr. Wells.

6. — if I prefer not &c.] Literally, If I do not exalt Jerusalem above the chief, or top, of my joy; that is, if I do not make it the principal subject of my joy. Bp. Lowth.

7. Remember, O Lord, — day of Jerusalem;] Or, Remember, O Lord, to "the children of Edom" the day of Jerusalem; that is, punish them for their cruel insults. Dimock.

—— the day of Jerusalem;] The day on which it was destroyed. Rosenmüller.

8 — happy shall he be,] The meaning of these words is, He shall go on and prosper, for the Lord of Hosts shall go with him, and fight his battles against the enemy and oppressor of His people. Bp. Horne.

9. — dasheth thy little ones against the stones.] That the Babylonians probably used this cruelty to the Israelitish children, see Lam. ii. 11. and Isa. xiii. 16. Dimock.

If the law of nature obliges a man to love and reverence his parents who begat him, it also binds him to a vehement affection and concernment for his country, the place of his birth, and the air that nourished him. The happy state and condition of his country is a greater joy and comfort to a true patriot, than his own particular state of wealth and prosperity can be; and he is more afflicted and cast down for any publick misery that befalls it, than for any circumstance of it that brings calamity to himself. Lord Clarendon.

Psalm CXXXVIII. In the Greek version this Psalm is said to have been made use of by Haggai and Zechariah at the rebuilding of the temple. Dr. Hammond.

¶ A Psalm of David.

I WILL praise thee with my whole heart: [a] before the gods will I sing praise unto thee.

[a] Psal. 119. 46.

2 I will worship toward thy holy temple, and praise thy name for thy lovingkindness and for thy truth: for thou hast magnified thy word above all thy name.

3 In the day when I cried thou answeredst me, and strengthenedst me with strength in my soul.

4 All the kings of the earth shall praise thee, O LORD, when they hear the words of thy mouth.

5 Yea, they shall sing in the ways of the LORD: for great is the glory of the LORD.

6 Though the LORD be high, yet hath he respect unto the lowly: but the proud he knoweth afar off.

7 Though I walk in the midst of trouble, thou wilt revive me: thou shalt stretch forth thine hand against the wrath of mine enemies, and thy right hand shall save me.

8 The LORD will perfect that which concerneth me: thy mercy, O LORD, endureth for ever: forsake not the works of thine own hands.

PSALM CXXXIX.

1 David praiseth God for his allseeing providence, 17 and for his infinite mercies. 19 He defieth the wicked. 23 He prayeth for sincerity.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

O LORD, thou hast searched me, and known me.

2 Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off.

3 Thou ‖ compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways.

‖ Or, winnowest.

4 For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O LORD, thou knowest it altogether.

5 Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me.

6 Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it.

7 Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence?

8 [a] If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there.

[a] Amos 9. 2, 3, 4.

9 If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;

10 Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me.

11 If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me.

12 Yea, [b] the darkness † hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: † the darkness and the light are both alike to thee.

[b] Job 26. 6. Hebr. 4. 13. † Heb. darkeneth not. † Heb. as is the darkness, so is the light.

13 For thou hast possessed my reins: thou hast covered me in my mother's womb.

Ver 1. — before the gods] Probably, in the presence of the princes and nobles assembled at some national solemnity.

2. — toward thy holy temple,] Wherever the ark was, there was the temple of Jehovah. See 1 Sam. iii. 3. And the Psalmist probably directed himself to that point. See Dan. vi. 10. Dimock.

—— for thou hast magnified &c.] God, he says, had done honour to His word beyond all that had ever been said or imagined of Him. Mudge. Or the rendering may be, "for Thou hast magnified Thy name and Thy word above all things." Dimock and Old Translation.

5. — they shall sing in the ways of the Lord:] They shall rejoice in the doctrine of God delivered by Christ.

6. — but the proud he knoweth afar off.] As to the proud, God "knoweth" and He detesteth them; He beholdeth and keepeth them at a distance. Bp. Horne.

In the former part of this hymn, the fervent zeal which animates true believers appears in a strong light; it inclines them to rejoice in God, to worship Him, to sing His praises, and to declare His lovingkindness before all men, even before the great men of the earth, that they may learn to fear God, and shew forth His glory. Ostervald. From the last verse we learn, that in troublous times, and the days of affliction, we must look back on that which God hath already done for us, and from thence draw an argument, that He will perfect that which remains, and not leave His work unfinished: we must remember that His mercies fail not after a time, but endure for ever the same; and when we call to mind, that we are the work of His own hands, how can we think He will forsake us, unless we utterly and finally forsake Him? Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXXXIX. It seems evident, from the latter part of this noble and instructive Psalm, that the author penned it at a time when he was persecuted and calumniated, as an appeal to the allseeing Judge between him and his adversaries. Bp. Horne.

Ver. 2. — afar off.] From heaven, Thy dwelling place. Green. "Long before;" that is, Long before they are uttered, is the rendering in the Old Translation.

3. Thou compassest my path &c.] That is, Thou watchest and siftest all my actions, both by day and night. Travell.

5. — laid thine hand upon me.] That is, hast so restrained me, that I cannot stir without Thy leave. Bp. Patrick.

7. — from thy spirit?] By this expression most of the ancient fathers, and the generality of modern interpreters, understand the Holy Ghost. It is also clear from Psalm li. 13, &c. that this Person of the Trinity was well known to the Jews in the time of David. Dimock.

8. — if I make my bed in hell,] That is, If I lie down in the grave. Abp. Secker.

9. If I take the wings &c.] Could I be transported, with the swiftness of light, to the regions of the farthest east; or could I make my dwelling in the remotest western sea. Travell.

—— the sea;] That is, the Mediterranean sea, which was west of Judea. Dimock.

13. For thou hast possessed my reins:] Or rather, Because Thou hast created my reins. This verse contains the reason why 14 I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth † right well.

† Heb. greatly.

15 My ‖ substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret, and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.

‖ Or, strength, or, body.

16 Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being unperfect; and in thy book † all my members were written, ‖ which in continuance were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them.

† Heb. all of them.
‖ Or, what days they should be fashioned.

17 [c] How precious also are thy t oughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them!

[c] Psal. 40. 5.

18 If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand: when I awake, I am still with thee.

19 Surely thou wilt slay the wicked, O God: depart from me therefore, ye bloody men.

20 For they speak against thee wickedly, and thine enemies take thy name in vain.

21 Do not I hate them, O LORD, that hate thee? and am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee?

22 I hate them with perfect hatred: I count them mine enemies.

23 Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts:

24 And see if there be any † wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.

† Heb. way of pain, or, grief.

PSALM CXL.

1 David prayeth to be delivered from Saul and Doeg. 8 He prayeth against them. 12 He comforteth himself by confidence in God.

¶ To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

DELIVER me, O LORD, from the evil man: preserve me from the † violent man;

† Heb. man of violences.

2 Which imagine mischiefs in their heart; continually are they gathered together for war.

3 They have sharpened their tongues like a serpent; [a] adders' poison is under their lips. Selah.

[a] Rom. 3. 13. Psal. 58. 4.

4 Keep me, O LORD, from the hands of the wicked; preserve me from the violent man; who have purposed to overthrow my goings.

5 The proud have hid a snare for me, and cords; they have spread a net by the wayside; they have set gins for me. Selah.

6 I said unto the LORD, Thou art my God: hear the voice of my supplications, O LORD.

7 O God the LORD, the strength of my salvation, thou hast covered my head in the day of battle.

8 Grant not, O LORD, the desires of the wicked: further not his wicked device; ‖ lest they exalt themselves. Selah.

‖ Or, let them not be exalted.

9 As for the head of those that compass darkness could not screen him from the Lord, because He, who fashioned the heart and reins, would in every place be able to search them. Dimock, Green.

---

14. I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made:] Those who were skilled in anatomy among the ancients, concluded from the outward and inward make of the human body that it was the work of a Being transcendently wise and powerful. As the world grew more enlightened in this art, their discoveries gave them fresh opportunities of admiring the conduct of Providence in the formation of a human body. Galen was converted by his dissections, and could not but own a Supreme Being upon a survey of this His handy-work. By means of modern discoveries we see new wonders in the human frame. In short, the body of man is such a subject as stands the utmost test of examination. Though it appears formed with the nicest wisdom upon a superficial survey of it, it still mends upon the search, and produces our surprise and amazement in proportion as we pry into it. Addison.

15. — in the lowest parts of the earth.] By this expression is meant "the womb;" where, by the wonderful power and wisdom of the Divine Workmaster operating in secret, the human form is gradually fashioned and matured for its birth. Bp. Horne.

16. Thine eyes did see &c.] When the matter, of which I am made, was without form, it was visible to Thee how all my body should be framed; and accordingly all my members were fashioned, and adapted to their several uses. Bp. Patrick.

17. How precious &c.] How precious unto me, O God, are the thoughts of Thee! how numerous are the subjects of them! Green.

19. — ye bloody men.] Ye blood-thirsty men, shedders of blood. Bp. Horne, Poole.

The consideration that the Divine Being inhabits infinitude, that He dwells among all His works, that He is present to the mind of man, and that He discovers Himself in a more glorious manner among the regions of the blessed, should be kept awake in us at all times and in all places, and possess our minds with a perpetual reverence and awe. It should be interwoven with all our thoughts and perceptions, and become one with the consciousness of our being. It is not to be reflected on with the coldness of philosophy, but ought to sink us into the lowest prostration before Him, who is so astonishingly great, wonderful, and holy. Addison.

Psalm CXL. This Psalm is a prayer of David's for deliverance from his malicious and treacherous enemies, such as Doeg and the Ziphites, who had undertaken to overthrow him, and a prediction of the evils which should fall upon them, as a just reward of their dealings with him. Dr. Hammond.

Ver. 1. — from the violent man;] Thus Saul is characterized, Ps. xviii. 48. Green.

3. They have sharpened &c.] That is, By their false accusations, as by so much poison, they have endeavoured to destroy me. Dr. Wells.

5. The proud have hid a snare &c.] David here describes the subtilty and industry employed by his enemies to effect his destruction, by lying in wait for him, as a skilful fowler doth for his game, so that they thought it impossible he should escape their hands. Bp. Horne.

—— gins] Or, "traps." Old Translation.

9, 10, 11. As for the head &c.] The prophet, in these three verses, predicted those just judgments, which Heaven will inflict on the slanderers and persecutors of the righteous. Their lips, me about, let the mischief of their own lips cover them.

10 Let burning coals fall upon them: let them be cast into the fire; into deep pits, that they rise not up again.

† Heb. a man of tongue. ‖ Or, an evil speaker, a wicked man of violence, be established in the earth: let him be hunted to his overthrow.

11 Let not †‖ an evil speaker be established in the earth: evil shall hunt the violent man to overthrow him.

12 I know that the LORD will maintain the cause of the afflicted, and the right of the poor.

13 Surely the righteous shall give thanks unto thy name: the upright shall dwell in thy presence.

PSALM CXLI.

1 David prayeth that his suit may be acceptable, 3 his conscience sincere, 7 and his life safe from snares.

¶ A Psalm of David.

LORD, I cry unto thee: make haste unto me; give ear unto my voice, when I cry unto thee.

† Heb. directed.

2 Let my prayer be †set forth before thee as incense; and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice.

3 Set a watch, O LORD, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips.

4 Incline not my heart to any evil thing, to practise wicked works with men that work iniquity: and let me not eat of their dainties.

5 ‖ Let the righteous smite me; it shall be a kindness: and let him reprove me; it shall be an excellent oil, which shall not break my head: for yet my prayer also shall be in their calamities.

‖ Or, Let the righteous smite me kindly, and reprove me; let not their precious oil break my head, &c

6 When their judges are overthrown in stony places, they shall hear my words; for they are sweet.

7 Our bones are scattered at the grave's mouth, as when one cutteth and cleaveth wood upon the earth.

8 But mine eyes are unto thee, O GOD the Lord: in thee is my trust; †leave not my soul destitute.

† Heb. make not my soul bare.

9 Keep me from the snares which they have laid for me, and the gins of the workers of iniquity.

10 Let the wicked fall into their own nets, whilst that I withal †escape.

† Heb. pass over.

PSALM CXLII.

David sheweth that in his trouble all his comfort was in prayer unto God.

¶ ‖ Maschil of David; A Prayer when he was in the cave.

‖ Or, A Psalm of David, giving instruction.

I CRIED unto the LORD with my voice; with my voice unto the LORD did I make my supplication.

2 I poured out my complaint before him; I shewed before him my trouble.

---

which uttered mischief against others, shall be the means of covering themselves with confusion, when out of their own mouths they shall be judged. Those tongues, which have contributed to set the world on fire, shall be tormented with the hot burning coals of eternal vengeance: and they who with so much eagerness and diligence have prepared pits for the destruction of their brethren, shall be cast into a deep and bottomless pit, out of which they shall never rise. Bp. Horne.

We are here to observe, that God defends the righteous from the violence of the wicked; that His vengeance pursues cruel and unjust men, and those who slander and deceive their neighbours; that, how formidable soever their power may appear, He defeats all their designs; and if He suffers the innocent to be oppressed for a while, He shews at last that He is their Protector, and gives them occasion to own and celebrate His power, justice, and goodness. In this view, and with such a spirit as this, and not with a spirit of resentment and revenge against them that have offended us, we ought to read and meditate on this Psalm. Osterwald.

Psalm CXLI. David being driven out of Judea by Saul, begs of God grace that he may not sin against Him with his tongue, nor be drawn into any sinful compliances by living amongst idolaters. He confides in God's help, and prays that He would deliver him from those who sought his ruin. He probably composed this Psalm just before his flight to Achish, king of Gath; when he had a second time spared Saul's life, but could trust him no longer. See 1 Sam. xxvi. and xxvii. 1. Green, Bp. Horne.

Ver. 2. Let my prayer &c.] This verse plainly shews, that the Psalmist was then at a distance from the tabernacle, where all the solemn prayers of the Israelites, together with their daily sacrifices, were offered up. And therefore he begs that God would accept of all which it was in his power to perform, namely, the devotion of his heart, and the elevation of his hands in prayer; that the one might ascend to heaven, fragrant and well-pleasing as the cloud of "incense" mounting from the holy altar; and the other, in conjunction with it, prevail instead of the "evening oblation," for the deliverance of himself and his companions. Bp. Horne.

4. Incline not my heart] "O let not mine heart be inclined." Old Translation.

—— let me not eat of their dainties.] Let me not partake of their society.

6. When their judges &c.] This passage has been variously rendered. According to our translation, the sense may be, "When their judges" (the leaders, principal persons of my enemies) "are overthrown in stony places," endeavouring to escape into a place of safety, they will hearken to My counsels and offers, which they now despise. Poole.

7. Our bones are scattered &c.] Expressing the great danger, in which he and his friends were, of being utterly destroyed by their enemies. Junius.

The chief security against the fruitless anguish of impatience, must arise from frequent reflexion on the wisdom and goodness of the God of nature, in whose hands are riches and poverty, honour and disgrace, pleasure and pain, life and death. A settled conviction of the tendency of every thing to our good, and the possibility of turning miseries into happiness by receiving them rightly, will incline us to bless the name of the Lord, whether He gives or takes away. Dr. Johnson.

Psalm CXLII. This Psalm is entitled, "A prayer of David when he was in the cave," probably of En-gedi, or Adullam; 1 Sam. xxiv. 1, 2, 3. and xxii. 1. It is an earnest supplication to God, stating the utter failure of all human assistance, and humbly praying for the Divine aid. Travell.

Ver. 1. I cried] Rather, I will cry. The whole of this Psalm seems to be an actual prayer. Bp. Horne.

3 When my spirit was overwhelmed within me, then thou knewest my path. In the way wherein I walked have they privily laid a snare for me.

‖ Or, Look on the right hand, and see. † Heb. perished from me. ‡ Heb. no man sought after my soul.

4 I ‖ looked on my right hand, and beheld, but there was no man that would know me: refuge † failed me; ‡ no man cared for my soul.

5 I cried unto thee, O LORD: I said, Thou art my refuge and my portion in the land of the living.

6 Attend unto my cry; for I am brought very low: deliver me from my persecutors; for they are stronger than I.

7 Bring my soul out of prison, that I may praise thy name: the righteous shall compass me about; for thou shalt deal bountifully with me.

PSALM CXLIII.

1 David prayeth for favour in judgment. 3 He complaineth of his griefs. 5 He strengtheneth his faith by meditation and prayer. 7 He prayeth for grace, 9 for deliverance, 10 for sanctification, 12 for destruction of his enemies.

¶ A Psalm of David.

HEAR my prayer, O LORD, give ear to my supplications: in thy faithfulness answer me, and in thy righteousness.

2 And enter not into judgment with thy servant: for [a] in thy sight shall no man living be justified.

[a] Exod. 34. 7. Rom. 3. 20. Gal. 2. 16.

3 For the enemy hath persecuted my soul; he hath smitten my life down to the ground; he hath made me to dwell in darkness, as those that have been long dead.

4 Therefore is my spirit overwhelmed within me; my heart within me is desolate.

5 I remember the days of old; I meditate on all thy works; I muse on the work of thy hands.

6 I stretch forth my hands unto thee: my soul thirsteth after thee, as a thirsty land. Selah.

7 Hear me speedily, O LORD: my spirit faileth: hide not thy face from me, ‖ lest I be like unto them that go down into the pit.

‖ Or, for I am become like, &c.

8 Cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee.

9 Deliver me, O LORD, from mine enemies: I † flee unto thee to hide me.

† Heb. hide me with thee.

10 Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness.

11 Quicken me, O LORD, for thy name's sake: for thy righteousness' sake bring my soul out of trouble.

12 And of thy mercy cut off mine enemies, and destroy all them that afflict my soul: for I am thy servant.

---

3. When my spirit was overwhelmed &c.] Or, When my spirit is overwhelmed within me, then Thou knowest my path: in the way wherein I walk, have they privily laid a snare for me. The meaning is, Though my thoughts are so broken and confused, that I am not able to counsel and direct myself in these straits, yet Thou knowest the path wherein I walk, Thou art with me, and wilt preserve me from those who watch all my steps, and lie in ambush for me. Bp. Horne.

7.— out of prison,] That is, out of the cave in which he was confined. Bp. Patrick.

—— the righteous shall compass me about;] To join my party and assist me.

The state of David in the cave of Adullam was a state of utter destitution; but in that disconsolate, and seemingly desperate situation, he desponded not. He had a Friend in heaven, into whose bosom he "poured forth his complaint," and to whom he told the story of his trouble and distress. When danger besets us around, and fear is on every side, let us follow the example of David, and that of a greater than David, who, when the Jews and Gentiles conspired against Him, and He was left all alone, in the garden, and on the cross, gave Himself unto prayer. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXLIII. In this Psalm David beseeches God that, passing by his manifold sins, and considering only what he suffered from his enemies, He would be pleased, according to His mercies in times past, to hearken unto his prayer, to conduct him by His good Spirit, and to deliver him from persecution. This being one of the penitential Psalms, is appointed to be used on Ash Wednesday. Travell.

Ver. 2. — for in thy sight shall &c.] For if Thou shouldest proceed according to the rigour of the law, the best man living would not be acquitted at Thy tribunal. Bp. Patrick.

3. — he hath made me to dwell &c.] He hath forced me to seek my safety in holes and obscure places in the wilderness, where I seem to be buried alive, without any hope of a resurrection. Bp. Patrick.

5. — on the work of thy hands.] On what Thou hast done for others in the like distress. Bp. Wilson.

6. — as a thirsty land.] The circumstance of the lands of the East being subject to great dryness, which causes them to crack, affords the foundation of this figure, which is certainly extremely beautiful; for these dry lands have deep chinks, which "thirst" for the rain: this may be observed in India more than any where, a little before the rains fall, and wherever the lands are rich and hard. Harmer.

8. — in the morning;] That is, speedily. Dimock.

10. — thy spirit is good; lead me] Let Thy good Spirit lead me. Abp. Secker.

—— into the land of uprightness.] Or, "through plain ground;" the clause before leads to this sense, and there is an expression much the same, Psal. xxvii. 11, in which the Psalmist prays God to conduct him in a plain level way, (such was that of God's law,) because, if he went out of that, he should be liable to stumble. Mudge.

The prayer which king David makes at the beginning of this Psalm, in these words, "Enter not into judgment with Thy servant; for in Thy sight shall no man living be justified;" is of such general use, that there is no man who has not reason to make it with humility and fervency. His application to God in the time of trouble teaches us, that, whatever danger we are in,

PSALM CXLIV.

1 David blesseth God for his mercy both to him and to man. 5 He prayeth that God would powerfully deliver him from his enemies. 9 He promiseth to praise God. 11 He prayeth for the happy state of the kingdom.

¶ A Psalm of David.

BLESSED be the LORD † my strength, [a] which teacheth my hands † to war, and my fingers to fight:

2 [b] ‖ My goodness, and my fortress; my high tower, and my deliverer; my shield, and he in whom I trust; who subdueth my people under me.

3 [c] LORD, what is man, that thou takest knowledge of him! or the son of man, that thou makest account of him!

4 [d] Man is like to vanity: his days are as a shadow that passeth away.

5 Bow thy heavens, O LORD, and come down: touch the mountains, and they shall smoke.

6 [e] Cast forth lightning, and scatter them: shoot out thine arrows, and destroy them.

7 Send thine † hand from above; rid me, and deliver me out of great waters, from the hand of strange children;

8 Whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood.

9 I will sing a new song unto thee, O God: upon a psaltery and an instrument of ten strings will I sing praises unto thee.

10 It is he that giveth ‖ salvation unto kings: who delivereth David his servant from the hurtful sword.

11 Rid me, and deliver me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood:

12 That our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth; that our daughters may be as corner stones, † polished after the similitude of a palace:

13 That our garners may be full, affording † all manner of store: that our sheep may bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our streets:

14 That our oxen may be † strong to labour; that there be no breaking in, nor going out; that there be no complaining in our streets.

15 [f] Happy is that people, that is in such a case: yea, happy is that people, whose God is the LORD.

† Heb. my rock.
[a] 2 Sam. 22. 35.
† Heb. to the war, &c.
[b] 2 Sam. 22. 2, 3, 40.
‖ Or, My mercy.
[c] Job 7. 17. Psal. 8. 4. Hebr. 2. 6.
[d] Psal. 39. 5. Job 14. 2.
[e] Psal. 18. 13, 14.
† Heb. hands.
‖ Or, victory.
† Heb. cut.
† Heb. from kind to kind.
† Heb. able to bear burdens, or, loaden with flesh.
[f] Ps. 33. 12. & 65. 4.

PSALM CXLV.

1 David praiseth God for his fame, 8 for his goodness, 11 for his kingdom, 14 for his providence, 17 for his saving mercy.

¶ David's Psalm of praise.

I WILL extol thee, my God, O king; and I will bless thy name for ever and ever.

2 Every day will I bless thee; and I will praise thy name for ever and ever.

3 Great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised; † and his greatness is unsearchable.

4 One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts.

† Heb. and of his greatness there is no search.

---

we ought to seek for security and comfort in prayer, and trust in God; and to this end we should meditate upon His works, and the many proofs He has given in all ages of His lovingkindness towards those that fear Him. But whether we are in affliction, or in any other state, we ought above all things to beg of God grace to fear Him, that we may feel the effects of His love, and be guided by His good Spirit. Ostervald.

Psalm CXLIV. ver. 3. Lord, what is man, &c.] This is spoken in rapture on the regard God had shewn to his petition. Mudge.

7. — great waters,] See the notes on Ps. xviii. 16. and on Numb. xxiv. 7.

—— from the hand of strange children;] That is, from the Philistines, or from idolaters. Dimock.

8. — their right hand is &c.] The forms of oaths, like other religious ceremonies, have been always various; but consisting, for the most part, of some bodily action, and of a prescribed form of words. Amongst the Jews, the juror held up his right hand towards heaven, which explains this passage. Archdeacon Paley. See the note on Deut. xxxii. 40.

13. — our garners] Our storehouses. Green.

14. — no breaking in, nor going out;] No hostile invasion, nor going into captivity. Green.

The last verse of this Psalm leads us to reflect, wherein the peculiar happiness doth now principally consist, of "that people, whose God is the Lord." Their happiness consists in something far above riches and outward greatness; it consists in having the Lord Himself, the Supreme Governour of the world, to take care of them, and to provide all things needful for them. They have His wisdom to instruct them; His power to protect them; His mercy to pardon them; His grace to adorn them here, and His glory to crown them for ever; and all because they have the Lord Himself for their God, not only for their light, their life, their hope, their help, their strength, their tower, their sun, their shield, and their exceeding great reward, but for their God; which is infinitely more than can be couched under any other expression whatsoever. What can those persons lack who are thus related to, and interested in, Him that is all things in Himself? Bp. Beveridge.

Psalm CXLV. Hitherto in this Divine book we have been presented with chequered scenes of danger and deliverance, distress and mercy. The voice of complaint hath been sometimes succeeded by that of thanksgiving; and praise, at other times, hath terminated in prayer. But now, as if the days of mourning in Zion were ended, we hear no more of Messiah as a man of sorrows, or of the Church as despised and afflicted, after the same example, in the world. Henceforth we seem not to be upon earth, but in heaven, mingling with celestial spirits around the throne, and singing, as in the following Psalm, the praises of our God and King; extolling His greatness, His might, His glory, His justice, His mercy; the majesty of His kingdom, and all His adorable perfections and wondrous works. The general subject of this Psalm makes it suitable to the service of Whit-Sunday, when we celebrate that great blessing, the descent of the Holy Spirit. Bp. Horne, Travell.

5 I will speak of the glorious honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous † works.

† Heb. things, or, words.

6 And men shall speak of the might of thy terrible acts: and I will † declare thy greatness.

† Heb. declare it.

7 They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and shall sing of thy righteousness.

8 [a] The LORD is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and † of great mercy.

[a] Exod. 34. 6, 7. Numb. 14. 18. Ps. 86. 5, 15. & 103. 8.

† Heb. great in mercy.

9 The LORD is good to all: and his tender mercies are over all his works.

10 All thy works shall praise thee, O LORD; and thy saints shall bless thee.

11 They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power;

12 To make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom.

† Heb. a kingdom of all ages.

13 Thy kingdom is † an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations.

14 The LORD upholdeth all that fall, and raiseth up all those that be bowed down.

‖ Or, look unto thee.

15 The eyes of all ‖ wait upon thee; and thou givest them their meat in due season.

16 Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing.

17 The LORD is righteous in all his ways, and ‖ holy in all his works.

‖ Or, merciful, or, bountiful.

18 The LORD is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth.

19 He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him: he also will hear their cry, and will save them.

20 The LORD preserveth all them that love him: but all the wicked will he destroy.

21 My mouth shall speak the praise of the LORD: and let all flesh bless his holy name for ever and ever.

PSALM CXLVI.

1 The psalmist voweth perpetual praises to God. 3 He exhorteth not to trust in man. 5 God, for his power, justice, mercy, and kingdom, is only worthy to be trusted.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise the LORD, O my soul.

† Heb. Hallelujah.

2 While I live will I praise the LORD: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being.

3 [a] Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no ‖ help.

[a] Psal. 118. 8, 9. ‖ Or, salvation.

4 His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish.

5 Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the LORD his God:

6 Which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth for ever:

7 Which executeth judgment for the oppressed: which giveth food to the hungry. The LORD looseth the prisoners:

8 The LORD openeth the eyes of the blind: the LORD raiseth them that are bowed down: the LORD loveth the righteous:

Ver. 5, 6, 7. I will speak of the glorious honour &c.] Those works of God which demand to be celebrated by the tongues of men, are here divided into three kinds: First, such as declare His glory, and excite our admiration, whenever we behold them. Of this sort are the shining frame of the heavens, and all the bodies which move therein; the earth, with its furniture without, and contents within; the magnificent and stupendous ocean, which flows around it; the different tribes of animals inhabiting both the one and the other; and above all, the construction of man, the lord of this lower world. Under the second class of God's works are ranged all those which the Psalmist styles His "terrible acts," or the exertions of His power against His enemies; such as the destruction of the old world by water; of Sodom and Gomorrah by fire; of Pharaoh and his host in the Red sea; of the Canaanitish nations by the sword; and the victory gained over sin and death by the resurrection of Christ. In the third rank stand those works which have proceeded from the goodness of God, and His righteousness in the performance of His promises. And among these we may reckon all the different provisions, which have been made by Him for the bodies of men in the world, and by grace for their souls in the Church. On any of these subjects, meditation cannot be long employed without breaking forth into wonder, gratitude, and praise. Bp. Horne.

We can never speak too much upon the goodness of God, nor ought we to be ever weary in hearing about it. Yet it is to be feared that this point is not well considered and applied. For how could we be so void of love to God, of gratitude towards Him, of faith and hope in Him, were we thoroughly persuaded, did we seriously consider, that He is so exceedingly good towards us? How can we be so insensible of the benefits we enjoy, so distrustful of finding succour in our need, so dissatisfied and discontented with what befalls us, if we conceive and weigh, that all things are guided and governed by immense goodness? How also, if men have such an opinion of God impressed on their minds, comes it to pass, that they are so little careful to imitate Him in kindness, bounty, and mercy to one another? Dr. Isaac Barrow.

Psalm CXLVI. It is observable that, in the original, this and the following Psalms all begin and end with Hallelujah, that is, Praise ye the Lord. The Psalmist here extols the name of God, and calls upon all men to place their confidence in Him alone, who is the Creator, the Preserver, and the Governour of the universe, the Protector of the helpless, and the everlasting King of His people. Travell.

Ver. 4.—his thoughts] All his devices and contrivances. Dr. Wall.

We may learn from this Psalm, 1. That the best use we can make of our lives is to employ them in praising and glorifying God's holy name. 2. That it is a great folly to put our trust in princes, or in any man, since they are mortal, and therefore are mere weakness, and even as nothing; but to enjoy true happiness, we must confide alone in God, who is the Creator of the world, who loves truth and equity, does right to those that are oppressed, and delivers them; and who will reign for ever for the defence of His people and children. Ostervald.

9 The LORD preserveth the strangers; he relieveth the fatherless and widow: but the way of the wicked he turneth upside down.

[b] Exod. 15. 18. 10 [b] The LORD shall reign for ever, even thy God, O Zion, unto all generations. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXLVII.

1 The prophet exhorteth to praise God for his care of the church, 4 his power, 6 and his mercy: 7 to praise him for his providence: 12 to praise him for his blessings upon the kingdom, 15 for his power over the meteors, 19 and for his ordinances in the church.

PRAISE ye the LORD: for it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is pleasant; and praise is comely.

2 The LORD doth build up Jerusalem: he gathereth together the outcasts of Israel.

3 He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their † wounds. † Heb. griefs.

4 He telleth the number of the stars; he calleth them all by their names.

5 Great is our LORD, and of great power: † his understanding is infinite. † Heb. of his understanding there is no number.

6 The LORD lifteth up the meek: he casteth the wicked down to the ground.

7 Sing unto the LORD with thanksgiving; sing praise upon the harp unto our God:

8 Who covereth the heaven with clouds, who prepareth rain for the earth, who maketh grass to grow upon the mountains.

[a] Job 38. 41. Psal. 104. 27, 28. 9 [a] He giveth to the beast his food, and to the young ravens which cry.

10 He delighteth not in the strength of the horse: he taketh not pleasure in the legs of a man.

11 The LORD taketh pleasure in them that fear him, in those that hope in his mercy.

12 Praise the LORD, O Jerusalem; praise thy God, O Zion.

13 For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates; he hath blessed thy children within thee.

14 † He maketh peace in thy borders, and filleth thee with the † finest of the wheat. † Heb. Who maketh thy border peace. † Heb. fat of wheat.

15 He sendeth forth his commandment upon earth: his word runneth very swiftly.

16 He giveth snow like wool: he scattereth the hoarfrost like ashes.

17 He casteth forth his ice like morsels: who can stand before his cold?

18 He sendeth out his word, and melteth them: he causeth his wind to blow, and the waters flow.

19 He sheweth † his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. † Heb. his words.

20 He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXLVIII.

1 The psalmist exhorteth the celestial, 7 the terrestrial, 11 and the rational creatures to praise God.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise ye the LORD from the heavens: praise him in the heights. † Heb. Hallelujah.

Psalm CXLVII. This is a Psalm of praise: by the second, third, and thirteenth verses, it seems to have been composed just after the restoration from captivity upon the rebuilding of Jerusalem. Mudge. Whether it were composed upon the above occasion or not, it is an earnest exhortation to praise God for the illustrious proofs of His power, wisdom, mercy, and justice towards all His creatures, and more especially for the abundant marks of His kindness and favour, which He bestowed upon His chosen people. Travell.

Ver. 2. The Lord doth build &c.] It is the Lord that enables us to build up Jerusalem again, Ezra vi. 14, and encourages all our brethren, that still remain in foreign countries, to return home. Dr. Wells.

10. He delighteth not &c.] He grants not His favour to the nations which excel in military power, in cavalry and infantry; but He "taketh pleasure," &c. ver. 11.

13. For he hath strengthened &c.] That is, He hath enabled us to fortify again the city of Jerusalem with walls and gates. See Neh. vi. 15, 16. Dr. Wells.

15. He sendeth forth &c.] Whatsoever His pleasure is concerning His creatures upon earth, it is speedily and effectually accomplished. Bp. Hall.

17. — his ice] Meaning the hail. Street.

This Psalm presents us with two grand motives to induce us to love and praise God. The first, which is common to us with the Jews, and with all men, is taken from the power and wonderful wisdom by which He governs the world. The second is taken from the blessings God bestowed on the Jews; and particularly for granting them, together with His protection, the peace and plenty which they enjoyed in the land of Canaan, and giving them His holy word and His law. In this respect we have still stronger motives to praise the Lord, in consideration of the spiritual blessings vouchsafed to us; among which, the most valuable privilege of all is, to be enlightened by the Gospel, and by the knowledge of His will. Osterwald.

Psalm CXLVIII. In this most beautiful Psalm the whole creation is incited to celebrate the glory of the most high God. This hymn is elegantly imitated, and put into the mouth of Adam by our countryman Milton, (Paradise Lost, b. v.) who is justly accounted the next in sublimity to those poets who wrote under the influence of Divine inspiration. In truth, if we consider man on his first creation, such as the sacred writings represent him; in perfect possession of reason and speech; neither ignorant of his own nor of the Divine nature, but fully conscious of the goodness, majesty, and power of God; not an unobservant spectator of the beautiful fabrick of the universe; it is most probable, that on the contemplation of these objects his heart would glow with gratitude and love, and that the effect of such an emotion would be an effusion of praise to his great Creator, accompanied with a suitable energy and exaltation of voice. Indeed we scarcely seem to conceive rightly of that original and perfect state of man, unless we assign to him some of the aids of harmony and poetical expression, to enable him to testify, in terms becoming the dignity of the subject, his devout affections towards his infinite Creator. Bp. Lowth.

2 Praise ye him, all his angels: praise ye him, all his hosts.

3 Praise ye him, sun and moon: praise him, all ye stars of light.

4 Praise him, ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that be above the heavens.

5 Let them praise the name of the LORD: for he commanded, and they were created.

6 He hath also stablished them for ever and ever: he hath made a decree which shall not pass.

7 Praise the LORD from the earth, ye dragons, and all deeps:

8 Fire, and hail; snow, and vapours; stormy wind fulfilling his word:

9 Mountains, and all hills; fruitful trees, and all cedars:

10 Beasts, and all cattle; creeping things, and † flying fowl: † Heb. birds of wing.

11 Kings of the earth, and all people; princes, and all judges of the earth:

12 Both young men, and maidens; old men, and children:

13 Let them praise the name of the LORD: for his name alone is † excellent; his glory is above the earth and heaven. † Heb. exalted.

14 He also exalteth the horn of his people, the praise of all his saints; even of the children of Israel, a people near unto him. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXLIX.

1 The prophet exhorteth to praise God for his love to the church, 5 and for that power which he hath given to the church to rule the consciences of men.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. Sing unto the LORD a new song, and his praise in the congregation of saints. † Heb. Hallelujah.

2 Let Israel rejoice in him that made him: let the children of Zion be joyful in their King.

3 Let them praise his name ‖in the dance: let them sing praises unto him with the timbrel and harp. ‖ Or, with the pipe.

4 For the LORD taketh pleasure in his people: he will beautify the meek with salvation.

5 Let the saints be joyful in glory: let them sing aloud upon their beds.

6 Let the high praises of God be † in their mouth, and a two edged sword in their hand; † Heb. in their throat.

7 To execute vengeance upon the heathen, and punishments upon the people;

8 To bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron;

9 [a] To execute upon them the judgment written: this honour have all his saints. Praise ye the LORD. [a] Deut. 7. 1.

PSALM CL.

1 An exhortation to praise God, 3 with all kind of instruments.

Ver. 7. — ye dragons,] The word here translated "dragons," probably means whales and other sea monsters. Dimock. See note on Lam. iv. 3.

8. Fire,] That is, lightning. Dimock.

9. — and all cedars:] Comprehending all forest trees.

14. He also exalteth &c.] He hath given strength and power to His chosen people, and hath thereby afforded them a constant subject of praise and thanksgiving; even that peculiar people, with whom He made a special covenant, and who are near that sacred spot where His glory resides. Travell.

—— near unto him.] Namely, by special relation, friendship, and covenant, and by familiar intercourse, God manifesting His presence and favour to them, and they frequently and solemnly approaching His presence and worshipping Him at His footstool. Poole.

The material heavens, through all their various regions, with the luminaries placed in them, and the waters sustained by them, though they have neither speech nor language, and want the tongue of men, yet by their splendour and magnificence, their motions and their influences, all regulated and exerted according to the ordinance of their Maker, do, in a very intelligible and striking manner, declare the glory of God: they call upon us to translate their actions into our language, and copy their obedience in our lives; that so we may, both by word and deed, glorify, with them, the Creator and Redeemer of the universe. Bp. Horne.

Psalm CXLIX. In this Psalm there is a reference to some signal deliverance or victory, which God vouchsafed to His people; whom therefore the Psalmist exhorts to praise the Lord with every mark of joy and gratitude, in expectation of their future complete triumph over all their opponents and persecutors. Travell.

Ver. 1. — a new song,] An illustrious hymn for recent victory. Fenton.

3. — in the dance:] See 2 Sam. vi. 16. and the note there.

4. — he will beautify the meek with salvation.] Those that meekly depend upon Him, He will make glorious; both with His rich blessings here, and with salvation hereafter. Bp. Hall.

5. — in glory:] That is, for the honour which God putteth upon them. Poole.

—— upon their beds.] That is, in a state of perfect ease and security. Bp. Horne.

6. Let the high praises &c.] That the Jews were wont to sing the praises of God as they advanced to combat, may be seen in 2 Macc. xiii. 15. and xv. 26. Street. See also 2 Chron. xx. 21.

9. — the judgment written:] The judgment written in the law, Deut. vii. 24. and xxxii. 41—43. Dr. Wells. This is added to shew that they do not this work to satisfy their own malicious or revengeful inclinations, but in obedience to God's commands. Poole.

This Psalm should stir up all the true members of the Church to sing and publish the praises of God, and to rejoice in Him continually. And as the Israelites sung hymns of joy, because God had made them triumph over their enemies, and the kings that waged war with them; we ought likewise to praise Him for the care He has taken of His Church, and for all the favours we have received from Him; but chiefly, for subduing our spiritual enemies, and putting it in our power to triumph over them ourselves, and to be in all things "more than conquerors," through Jesus Christ our Lord. Ostervald.

Psalm CL. This short concluding Psalm is an invocation to every creature to declare the glory of God, by the tribute of a grateful heart, and the cheerful sound of musical instruments.

† Heb. Hallelujah.

† PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise God in his sanctuary: praise him in the firmament of his power.

2 Praise him for his mighty acts: praise him according to his excellent greatness.

‖ Or, cornet.

3 Praise him with the sound of the ‖ trumpet: praise him with the psaltery and harp.

4 Praise him with the timbrel and ‖ dance: praise him with stringed instruments and organs. ‖ Or, pipe.

5 Praise him upon the loud cymbals: praise him upon the high sounding cymbals.

6 Let every thing that hath breath praise the LORD. Praise ye the LORD.

Travell. The Hebrews themselves acknowledge that they do not understand the several sorts of musical instruments mentioned in this Psalm. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 1.— praise him in the firmament &c.] That is, Let the angels and heavenly hosts praise Him in heaven, where He clearly shews forth His power. Rosenmüller.

3. Praise him with the sound of the trumpet: &c.] The people of God are enjoined in this Psalm to use all the various kinds of musical instruments, in the performance of their Divine services. Sacred musick, under proper regulations, removes the hindrances of our devotion, cures the distractions of our thoughts, and banishes weariness from our minds. It adds solemnity to the publick service, raises all the devout passions in the soul, and causes our duty to become our delight. Bp. Horne.

6. Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord.] How can we sufficiently prostrate ourselves and fall down before our Maker, when we consider that ineffable goodness and wisdom, which contrived existence for finite natures! What must be the overflowings of that good will, which prompted our Creator to adapt existence to beings, in whom it is not necessary; especially when we consider, that He Himself was before in the complete possession of existence and of happiness, and in the full enjoyment of eternity! What man can think of himself, as called out and separated from nothing, of his being made a conscious, a reasonable, and happy creature, in short, of his being admitted as a sharer of existence, and a kind of partner in eternity, without being swallowed up in wonder, in praise, in adoration! It is indeed a thought too big for the mind of man, and rather to be entertained in the secrecy of devotion, and in the silence of the soul, than to be expressed by words. The Supreme Being has not given us powers or faculties sufficient to extol and magnify such unutterable goodness. It is however some comfort to us, that we shall be always doing what we shall be never able to do, and that a work, which cannot be finished, will be the work of AN ETERNITY. Addison.

THE PROVERBS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Proverbs, as we are informed at the beginning, and in other parts of the Book, were written, for the most part, by Solomon the son of David; a man, as the Sacred Writings assure us, peculiarly endued with Divine wisdom. Whatever ideas of his superiour understanding we may be led to form by the particulars recorded of his judgment and attainments, we shall find them amply justified on perusing the works which remain, and give testimony of his abilities. This enlightened monarch, being desirous of employing the wisdom which he had received, to the advantage of mankind, produced several works for their instruction. Of these, however, three only were admitted into the canon of Sacred Writ by Ezra; the others being either not designed for religious instruction, or so mutilated by time and accident, as to have been judged imperfect. The Book of Proverbs, that of Ecclesiastes, and that of the Song of Solomon, are all that remain of the writings of him, who is related to have spoken "three thousand proverbs," whose "songs were a thousand and five," and who "spake of trees from the cedar that is in Lebanon, even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall;" who "spake also of beasts, and of fowl, and of creeping things, and of fishes." If, however, many valuable compositions of Solomon have perished, we have reason to be grateful for what still remains. Of his Proverbs and Songs the most excellent have been providentially preserved; and as we possess his doctrinal and moral works, we have no right to murmur at the loss of his physical and philosophical productions.

This Book of Proverbs contains the maxims of long experience, framed by one who was well calculated, by his rare qualities and endowments, to draw just lessons from a comprehensive survey of human life. Solomon judiciously sums up his precepts in brief energetick sentences, which are well contrived for popular instruction. The wisdom, indeed, of all ages, from the highest antiquity, hath chosen to compress its lessons into compendious sentences, which were peculiarly adapted to the simplicity of earlier times; which are readily conceived and easily retained; and which circulate in society as useful principles, to be unfolded and applied as occasion may require. The inspired son of David had the power of giving peculiar energy and weight to this style of writing, and his works have been as it were the storehouse from which posterity hath drawn its best maxims. His Proverbs are so justly founded on principles of human nature, and so adapted to the permanent interests of man, that they agree with the manners of every age, and may be assumed as rules for the direction of our conduct in every condition and rank of life, however varied in its complexion, or diversified by circumstances; they embrace not only the concerns of private morality, but the great objects of political importance. The Book may be considered under five divisions. The first part, which is a kind of preface, extends to the tenth chapter. This contains general cautions and exhortations from a teacher to his pupil, delivered in very various and elegant language: duly connected in its parts, illustrated with beautiful descriptions, decorated with all the ornaments of poetical composition, and well contrived as an engaging introduction to awaken and interest the attention. The second part extends from the beginning of the tenth chapter to the seventeenth verse of the twenty-second chapter, and contains what may strictly and properly be called Proverbs, given in unconnected general sentences with much neatness and simplicity; adapted to the instruction of youth, and probably more immediately designed by Solomon for the improvement of his son. In the third part, which contains what is included between the sixteenth verse of the twenty-second chapter and the twenty-fifth chapter, the tutor is supposed, for a more lively effect, to address his pupil as present; he drops the sententious style of Proverbs, and communicates exhortations in a more continued and connected strain.

The Proverbs which are included between the twenty-fifth and thirtieth chapters, and which constitute the fourth part, are supposed to have been selected from a much greater number by the "men of Hezekiah;" that is, by the prophets whom he employed to restore the service and the writings of the church, as Eliakim, and Joah, and Shebnah, and probably Hosea, Micah, and even Isaiah, who all flourished in the reign of that monarch, and doubtless cooperated with his endeavours to reestablish true religion among the Jews. These Proverbs, indeed, appear to have been selected by some collectors after the time of Solomon, as they repeat some which he had previously introduced in the former part of the Book. The fifth part contains the prudent admonitions which Agur the son of Jakeh delivered to his pupils Ithiel and Ucal; these are included in the thirtieth chapter. It contains also the precepts which the mother of Lemuel delivered to her son, as described in the thirty-first chapter. Concerning these persons, whose works are annexed to those of Solomon, commentators have entertained various opinions. The original words which describe Agur as the author of the thirtieth chapter, might be differently translated; but admitting the present construction as most natural and just, we may observe, that the generality of the fathers and ancient commentators have supposed that under the name of Agur, Solomon describes himself, though no satisfactory reason can be assigned for his assuming this name. Others, upon very insufficient grounds, conjecture that Agur and Lemuel were interlocutors with Solomon. The Book has no appearance of dialogue, nor is there any interchange of person: it is more probable, that though the Book was designed principally to contain the sayings of Solomon, others might be added by the "men of Hezekiah:" and Agur might have been an inspired writer, whose moral and proverbial sentences (for such is the import of the word Massa, rendered Prophecy) were joined with those of the Wise Man, because of the conformity of their matter. So likewise the dignity of the Book is not affected, if we suppose the last chapter to have been written by a different hand, and admit the mother of Lemuel to have been a Jewish woman, married to some neighbouring prince; or Abijah, the daughter of the high priest Zechariah, and mother of king Hezekiah; since in any case it must be considered as the production of an inspired writer, or it would not have been received into the canon of Scripture. But it was perhaps meant that by Lemuel we should understand Solomon; for the name which signifies one belonging to God, might have been given unto him as descriptive of his character, since to Solomon God had expressly declared that He would be a Father. Dr. Gray.

This Book is frequently quoted by the Apostles, who considered it as a treasure of revealed morality, from which Christians were to derive their rules of conduct; and the canonical authority of no part of the Old Testament is so ratified by the evidence of quotations

Dominions of
DAVID & SOLOMON, With PLACES REMOTE.
Thomson sculp!
ASIA MINOR
CYPRUS GREAT SEA
ARAM
ARAM NAHARAIM
ARAM ZOBAH
ARAM OR SYRIA
ARABIA DESERTA ARABIA ARABIA PETRÆA
ISRAEL
MOAB
DOM
MIDIANITES
Haran
Tiphsah
Gebal
Giblites
Arvad
Arvadites
Hamath
Riblah
Sinites
Tadmor in the Wilderness
Damascus
Sepharvaim
Sepharvites
R. Hiddekel or Tigris
R. Euphrates
BABYLONIA
Plains of Dura
BABYLON
Tyre
Mt. Carmel
Mt. Tabor
Gilead
Heshbon
Rabbath-Ammon
Jericho
Gaza
Ashdod
Ashkelon
Ekron
Hormah
Beersheba
Zoar
Valley of Salt
Petra
Gerzites
Geshurites
Amalekites
Desert of Shur
Desert of Paran
Mount Seir or Edom
Sukkiims
Pathros
CUSH OR ETHIOPIA
Elath
Ezion-geber
Midian
Horeb
Sinai
Paran
Kadesh
Meribah
Rephidim
Red Sea
Gulf of Suez or Western Arm of the Red Sea
Gulf of Akaba or Eastern Arm of the Red Sea
Mouths of the Nile
Shur or Egypt
Land of Egypt

as that of the Proverbs. But it is remarkable, that the Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach, which has so striking an affinity to the Book of Proverbs, is not quoted in a single instance by the Apostles and Evangelists; and the difference between Canonical and Apocryphal, is no where so strongly marked as in this example. Michaelis.

This Book is entitled "the Proverbs;" but what we call Proverbs, properly and strictly speaking, are of a different nature; and most of Solomon's Proverbs are rather to be called Maxims or Sentences. A Proverb is a short moral sentence, which means something else than what the words naturally and literally imply; that is to say, it must be expressed in a figurative manner. When Solomon says, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding;" this is no proverb, but a moral sentence. When he says, "Drink waters out of thine own cistern;" this is a proverb: and it means, "Meddle not with that which belongs to another." These Proverbs of Solomon are a collection of wise and moral sayings, usually plain and concise; they are also of the poetical kind, and fall into metre, and therefore were the more easily learned and remembered by those in whose language they were written. They have not that air of smartness and vivacity and wit which modern writers have usually affected in their maxims and sentences; but they have what is better, truth and solid good sense. No one subject is long pursued in this treatise of Solomon, nor is there any coherence or connexion between its parts. The nature of this sort of writing does not admit it. But, though the composition be of the disjointed kind, yet there is a general design running through the whole, which the author keeps always in view: and that is, to instruct the people, and particularly young people, at their entrance into publick and active life; to give them an early love and earnest desire of real wisdom, and to lay down such clear rules for their behaviour, as shall carry them through the world with peace and credit.

Solomon is the first author that we know of who may be called a moralist; and as such he appears in this Book, as well as in that of Ecclesiastes. He says nothing, or very little, concerning the Law of Moses; he leaves the explaining or enforcing of it to the Prophets, the Priests, and the Levites. He says nothing about revealed religion, but rather confines himself to natural religion or morality. He wrote under the assistance of the Divine Spirit, but has no claim, that we perceive, to the title of a prophet; for he does not discourse in the prophetical style and manner: he says not, The word of the Lord came to me; and, Thus saith the Lord; he foretold no future events, and wrought no miracles. Dr. Jortin.

CHAP. I.

1 The use of the proverbs. 7 An exhortation to fear God, and believe his word. 10 To avoid the enticings of sinners. 20 Wisdom complaineth of her contempt. 24 She threateneth her contemners.

Before CHRIST written about 1000.

THE proverbs of Solomon the son of David, king of Israel;

2 To know wisdom and instruction; to perceive the words of understanding;

3 To receive the instruction of wisdom, justice, and judgment, and † equity;

† Heb. equities.

4 To give subtilty to the simple, to the young man knowledge and ‖ discretion.

‖ Or, advisement.

5 A wise man will hear, and will increase learning; and a man of understanding shall attain unto wise counsels:

Before CHRIST about 1000.

6 To understand a proverb, and ‖ the interpretation; the words of the wise, and their dark sayings.

‖ Or, an eloquent speech.

7 ¶ [a] The fear of the LORD is the ‖ beginning of knowledge: but fools despise wisdom and instruction.

[a] Job 28. 28. Ps. 111. 10. Chap. 9. 10.

‖ Or, the principal part.

8 My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother:

9 For they shall be † an ornament of grace unto thy head, and chains about thy neck.

† Heb. an adding.

10 ¶ My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not.

Chap. I. ver. 2. To know wisdom &c.] The use of these proverbs is, to give true moral and spiritual wisdom and instruction to those that carefully hear of, and read them. Bp. Hall.

4. To give subtilty to the simple,] Meaning, that the reading of this book will strengthen and shield all easy, flexible, seducible persons, especially the young, who want experience in affairs, and so are subject to be misled and ensnared. Dr. Hammond.

6. To understand a proverb, &c.] To understand a proverb, and its mysterious sense. This study was much in vogue in the time of Solomon, as appears from the instance of the queen of Sheba, who came to prove Solomon "with hard questions." Calmet.

A wise writer requires a wise reader; and therefore it is that Solomon, in his Introduction to the Book of Proverbs, represents that person a considerable proficient in knowledge, who is able to understand a proverb and the interpretation of it; the words of the wise and their dark sayings. Dr. Jortin.

7. The fear of the Lord &c.] The first lesson he gives, as being worthy of the first consideration, is, that all saving knowledge, including a practice answerable to that knowledge, an uniform persevering obedience to the commands of God, is founded in humble and pious reverence towards God, in the tender fear of displeasing Him, and the readiness to receive, embrace, and lay up, in an honest heart, His word and His grace, whenever it shall be revealed and afforded to us. Dr. Hammond.

"The fear of the Lord" is not only now and then, but almost every where, in Scripture, put for the whole duty of man, for godliness in general; and the reason is, that the true fear of God always qualifies and tempers the mind so, that a man dares not do otherwise than please and obey God to the utmost of his knowledge and power. Bp. Beveridge.

8. My son, hear the instruction of thy father, &c.] Listen to the instructions, that is, follow the lessons of piety and virtue, which thy father and mother give thee.

9. For they shall be an ornament &c.] Meaning, that a child well brought up is adorned by the wisdom, and virtues, and graces, which he wears; they are like a crown covering his head, and a chain embellishing his neck. Calmet.

10—16. My son, if sinners entice thee, &c.] The next and most important advice is, to avoid ill company. "The whole world lieth in wickedness," saith an apostle, 1 John v. 19; and nothing can be more proper or seasonable than for instructors of youth to caution their inexperience against bad examples. The wise man here instances in one particular vice, the love of money, as being the most predominant and common of all others; and shews how it leads to the most enormous crimes, and is indeed the very "root of all evil." Wogan.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

11 If they say, Come with us, let us lay wait for blood, let us lurk privily for the innocent without cause:

12 Let us swallow them up alive as the grave; and whole, as those that go down into the pit:

13 We shall find all precious substance, we shall fill our houses with spoil:

14 Cast in thy lot among us; let us all have one purse:

15 My son, walk not thou in the way with them; refrain thy foot from their path:

[b] Isai. 59. 7. Rom. 3. 15.

16 [b] For their feet run to evil, and make haste to shed blood.

† Heb. in the eyes of every thing that hath a wing.

17 Surely in vain the net is spread † in the sight of any bird.

18 And they lay wait for their own blood; they lurk privily for their own lives.

19 So are the ways of every one that is greedy of gain; which taketh away the life of the owners thereof.

† Heb. Wisdoms, that is, excellent wisdom.

[c] Chap. 8. 1.

20 ¶ † [c] Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth her voice in the streets:

21 She crieth in the chief place of concourse, in the openings of the gates: in the city she uttereth her words, saying,

22 How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? and the scorners delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge?

23 Turn you at my reproof: behold, I will pour out my spirit unto you, I will make known my words unto you.

[d] Isaiah 65. 12. & 66. 4. Jer. 7. 13. Ezek. 8. 18.

24 ¶ [d] Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded;

Before CHRIST about 1000.

25 But ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof:

26 I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh;

27 When your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you.

[e] Job 27. 9. Isaiah 1. 15. Jer. 11. 11. & 14. 12. Micah 3. 4.

28 [e] Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me:

29 For that they hated knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the LORD:

30 They would none of my counsel: they despised all my reproof.

31 Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices.

‖ Or, ease of the simple.

32 For the ‖ turning away of the simple shall slay them, and the prosperity of fools shall destroy them.

33 But whoso hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, and shall be quiet from fear of evil.

CHAP. II.

1 Wisdom promiseth godliness to her children, 10 and safety from evil company, 20 and direction in good ways.

MY son, if thou wilt receive my words, and hide my commandments with thee;

2 So that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom, and apply thine heart to understanding;

† Heb. givest thy voice.

3 Yea, if thou criest after knowledge, and † liftest up thy voice for understanding;

---

17. Surely in vain the net is spread &c.] The general sense seems to be, Surely a bird has sense enough to fly from the net when he sees it: but these persons are by their wicked deeds laying snares for their own lives.

18. And they lay wait for their own blood;] These men are setting a trap for themselves, when they lie in wait to take away the lives of others: for they shall not always escape the hand of justice. Bp. Patrick.

19. — which taketh away the life of the owners thereof.] Which (evil gain) bringeth destruction on those who pursue it. Bp. Hall.

20. Wisdom crieth without; &c.] Men cannot fail to be as well acquainted with the excellent instructions of wisdom, as they are with that which is proclaimed in the streets. Bp. Patrick.

Wisdom is opposed to folly, and folly in the sacred style is all impiety; so by wisdom is meant universal piety, or obedience of all sorts due unto God; and so the precepts of universal righteousness are those things which wisdom proclaims. Dr. Hammond.

20, 21. — in the streets: — in the chief place of concourse, &c.] Here seems to be an enumeration of all the publick places where proclamations were made: the highways, the streets, the tops of houses, the gates where all go in and out, and particularly the chief city Jerusalem, from which all laws were proclaimed and dispersed to the lesser cities and regions. Dr. Hammond.

22. — the scorners] Profane persons, who mock at religion and piety.

27. When your fear cometh as desolation, &c.] When calamities and dangers come upon you, which, the less they are before expected, will the more frightfully, tumultuously, and dismally seize you.

The Hebrew word translated "a desolation" seems to signify an occasion of great noise and tumult, when men are thrown into an alarm of approaching danger, and, not knowing what it is, are unable to prepare for avoiding it. Dr. Hammond.

28. Then shall they call upon me, &c.] This awful menace of God's judgment upon impenitent and hardened sinners is incorporated by the Church into the solemn and impressive exhortation contained in her Commination Service.

31. — be filled with their own devices.] Be glutted with that which they have chosen, receive the just rewards of their own ways and works. Dr. Hammond.

32. — the prosperity of fools shall destroy them.] Foolish sinners are hardened in their wicked courses by the sense of their continuing prosperity, and are therefore hurried on to their own destruction. Bp. Hall.

Chap. II. ver. 1—6. Solomon in this passage teaches us, that God is the only fountain of all true wisdom; and that the only way by which we can draw wisdom out of this fountain is, by studying and practising the sacred law of God. Reading.

3. — if thou criest after knowledge,] If thou expressest such a

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[a] Matt. 13. 44. 4 [a] If thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures;

5 Then shalt thou understand the fear of the LORD, and find the knowledge of God.

[b] Jam. 1. 5. 1 Kings 3. 9. 6 [b] For the LORD giveth wisdom: out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding.

7 He layeth up sound wisdom for the righteous: he is a buckler to them that walk uprightly.

8 He keepeth the paths of judgment, and preserveth the way of his saints.

9 Then shalt thou understand righteousness, and judgment, and equity; yea, every good path.

10 ¶ When wisdom entereth into thine heart, and knowledge is pleasant unto thy soul;

11 Discretion shall preserve thee, understanding shall keep thee:

12 To deliver thee from the way of the evil man, from the man that speaketh froward things;

13 Who leave the paths of uprightness, to walk in the ways of darkness;

14 Who rejoice to do evil, and delight in the frowardness of the wicked;

15 Whose ways are crooked, and they froward in their paths:

16 To deliver thee from the strange woman, [c] even from the stranger which flattereth with her words;

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[c] Chap. 5. 3. & 7. 5.

17 Which forsaketh the guide of her youth, and forgetteth the covenant of her God.

18 For her house inclineth unto death, and her paths unto the dead.

19 None that go unto her return again, neither take they hold of the paths of life.

20 That thou mayest walk in the way of good men, and keep the paths of the righteous.

[d] Ps. 37. 29. 21 [d] For the upright shall dwell in the land, and the perfect shall remain in it.

[e] Job 18. 17. Ps. 104. 35. 22 [e] But the wicked shall be cut off from the earth, and the transgressors shall be ‖ rooted out of it.

‖ Or, plucked up.

CHAP. III.

1 An exhortation to obedience, 5 to faith, 7 to mortification, 9 to devotion, 11 to patience. 13 The happy gain of wisdom. 19 The power, 21 and the benefits of wisdom. 27 An exhortation to charitableness, 30 peaceableness, 31 and contentedness. 33 The cursed state of the wicked.

[a] Deut. 8. 1. & 30. 16. MY son, forget not my law; [a] but let thine heart keep my commandments:

† Heb. years of life. 2 For length of days, and † long life, and peace, shall they add to thee.

[b] Exod. 13. 9. Deut. 6. 8. 3 Let not mercy and truth forsake thee: [b] bind them about thy neck; write them upon the table of thine heart:

---

desire of it, as men do of that for which they have the most ardent affection. Bp. Patrick.

The Chaldee version expresses "criest" by a word which signifies the impatient crying of a child to its mother, aptly describing that vehement desire of grace and wisdom here, which is a special ingredient in piety. Dr. Hammond.

4. If thou seekest her as silver,] If thou seekest her with as much earnestness as covetous men search for money. Perhaps it is a proverbial expression, taken from those who dig in mines. Bp. Patrick.

8. He keepeth the paths of judgment,] He preserves pious men in their integrity, encouraging them not to swerve from the rules of justice, or to cease to exercise mercy and kindness, being their Keeper and Defender in all their proceedings. Bp. Patrick.

12. — from the man that speaketh froward things;] Not to suffer thee to be perverted by the mouth of him, who would subtilely insinuate his evil principles into thee. Bp. Patrick.

13. — to walk in the ways of darkness;] In the melancholy gloomy crooked path that leads to eternal misery. Dr. Hammond.

16. — the strange woman,] The proper meaning of the Hebrew word is, one who is estranged or alienated in her affections from her husband or her God. Dr. Durell.

The practice here alluded to was chiefly and more openly carried on by women who came from neighbouring and heathen countries; and these being of another religion, if they were of any religion, would probably seduce those who frequented them into the additional and heinous crime of idolatry, as Solomon afterwards knew by his own woful experience. Dr. Jortin.

17. Which forsaketh the guide of her youth,] The adulteress which forsakes her husband, to whom she was joined in her youth, and whom she took for her guide and governour when love was in its greatest warmth, and has wickedly broken the laws of God, and violated the solemn vow of fidelity which she formerly made. Bp. Patrick.

18. — her house inclineth unto death, &c.] Various plagues and miseries of this world attend upon this sin, which promises pleasure at a distance, but in reality ensnares men into an abyss of endless evils. Dr. Hammond.

22. But the wicked &c.] The proper portion of the wicked is, to be cut off and extirpated, either by the hand of human justice, or by the curse of God, which invisibly pursues them till they be rooted out. Dr. Hammond.

The happiness of good and bad men in this world has this signal and important difference: that of the righteous is chiefly internal; less visible, perhaps, but more perfect: the other's is only external; more dazzling and conspicuous, but never lasting nor sincere. When the good man dies, he passes to a state of most consummate felicity: when the wicked man departs, all his prosperity dies with him; he exchanges a mere empty show of happiness for real and eternal misery. So that his end, whenever it comes, is indeed "a cutting off from the earth," earth being the only ground in which his happiness can grow; his end is indeed a "rooting out." Wogan.

Chap. III. ver. 2. For length of days &c.] I can give thee all assurance from God, Solomon says, that, besides the endless advantages of another world, thou shalt thus obtain the blessings of this life, the prolonging of thy days here in peace and prosperity: not that the pious faithful servant of God will be exempt from afflictions in this world; but that, in the general course of things, such a person will, by God's special blessing, and by the very temper of Christian virtues, have a security of much greater real worldly happiness, than those who use unlawful arts to obtain the riches and honours of the world. Dr. Hammond.

3. — bind them about thy neck;] Alluding to the custom of

Before CHRIST about 1000.

4 [c] So shalt thou find favour and ‖ good understanding in the sight of God and man.

[c] Ps. 111. 10.

‖ Or, good success.

5 ¶ Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding.

6 [d] In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.

[d] 1 Chron. 28. 9.

7 ¶ [e] Be not wise in thine own eyes: fear the LORD, and depart from evil.

[e] Rom. 12. 16.

8 It shall be † health to thy navel, and † marrow to thy bones.

† Heb. medicine.

† Heb. watering, or, moistening.

9 [f] Honour the LORD with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase:

[f] Exod. 23. 19. & 34. 26. Deut. 26. 2, &c. Mal. 3. 10, &c.

10 [g] So shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine.

[g] Luke 14. 13.

11 ¶ [h] My son, despise not the chastening of the LORD; neither be weary of his correction:

[h] Job 5. 17. Hebr. 12. 5. Rev. 3. 19.

12 For whom the LORD loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth.

13 ¶ Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and ‡ the man that getteth understanding.

‡ Heb. the man that draweth out understanding.

14 [i] For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.

[i] Job 28. 15, &c. Ps. 19. 10. Chap. 8. 11, 19. & 16. 16.

15 She is more precious than rubies: and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

16 Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honour.

17 Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.

18 She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her: and happy is every one that retaineth her.

19 The LORD by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he ‖ established the heavens.

‖ Or, prepared.

20 By his knowledge the depths are broken up, and the clouds drop down the dew.

21 ¶ My son, let not them depart from thine eyes: keep sound wisdom and discretion:

22 So shall they be life unto thy soul, and grace to thy neck.

23 [k] Then shalt thou walk in thy way safely, and thy foot shall not stumble.

[k] Ps. 37. 24. & 91. 11.

24 When thou liest down, thou shalt not be afraid: yea, thou shalt lie down, and thy sleep shall be sweet.

25 Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when it cometh.

26 For the LORD shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken.

† Heb. the owners thereof.

27 ¶ Withhold not good from † them to wearing on their foreheads and wrists the precepts of the Lord, written on slips of parchment. Dr. Isham.

---

5. — lean not unto thine own understanding.] Rely not on thy wisdom, contrivances, or artifices, to compass thy designs in this world, but keep thyself to the ways and means which God affords thee, and approves: and this, beyond all worldly policy, will secure to thee a happy and easy passage through the dangers of this life. Dr. Hammond.

7. Be not wise in thine own eyes:] That is, Do not follow the dictates of worldly prudence in opposition to the commands of God.

—— fear the Lord, and depart from evil.] We find these expressions frequently put together in Scripture, as having nearly the same import, differing only as cause and effect; the proper fear of the Lord producing a departure from evil. Abp. Tillotson.

8. It shall be health to thy navel, &c.] This is the means of preserving a good habit both of body and soul, and of remaining, under all circumstances, cheerful, happy, and without dejection. These peculiar expressions seem to be merely a metaphorical representation of that firmness, and vigorous health and cheerfulness of mind, which virtue imparts. Bp. Patrick.

In the East, it is usual, for the most part, to apply medicines externally, and especially to the stomach. The expression "health to thy navel" seems to bear allusion to this custom. Harmer.

9. Honour the Lord with thy substance,] Honour the Lord in His ministers, by paying them their dues, and bringing oblations to His house at the three solemn feasts, (Exod. xxiii. 14, 15.) together with the firstfruits of all that thy estate produces, (Exod. xxii. 29, 30.) in token of thy gratitude to Him for His blessings. "So shall thy barns be filled," &c. So will God pour His blessings upon thee more abundantly, and convince thee, by sending a seasonable and plentiful harvest and vintage, that this is the method, not to diminish, but to increase the possessions which He hath given thee; Deut. xxviii. 4, 5. 2 Chron. xxxi. 10. Bp. Patrick.

11. My son, despise not the chastening] Neither disregard the chastening of the Lord, nor be impatient under it.

15. — than rubies:] The meaning of the Hebrew word is not well ascertained: there are reasons for thinking that pearls are meant by it, as they were esteemed at a very high rate, not only by the Jews, but by the Romans, and even by the Medes, Persians, and Indians. Bochart.

16. Length of days is in her right hand;] Wisdom is here represented figuratively as a queen, holding in one hand length of days, and in the other, riches and honours.

17. Her ways are ways of pleasantness,] Thus it is most true that religion gives us the greatest delights and advantages in this life, even if there were no life hereafter; and hence is most apparent the extreme folly of Atheists, who, besides running a most desperate hazard after death, deprive themselves here of that very pleasure and tranquillity, for which they so anxiously seek. Dr. Bentley. When Solomon observes that the ways of wisdom, that is, of piety, are ways of pleasantness, he means, that this is not only the excellence, but the peculiar excellence of religion; and consequently that the ways of folly and vice, all things considered, are not ways of pleasantness. Thus the sense of this text is, that the good will infallibly enjoy a satisfaction and delight, of which the wicked will as certainly be deprived. Dr. Jortin. See note on ver. 2.

18. She is a tree of life] This seems an allusion to the tree of life which God planted at first in paradise, and which was to give to man life, health, and immortality. Such is wisdom to those who possess it; it preserves to them a long and happy life in this world, and a blessed immortality in the next. Calmet.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it.

28 Say not unto thy neighbour, Go, and come again, and to morrow I will give; when thou hast it by thee.

‖ Or, Practise no evil.

29 ‖ Devise not evil against thy neighbour, seeing he dwelleth securely by thee.

30 ¶ Strive not with a man without cause, if he have done thee no harm.

[1] Ps. 37. 1. † Heb. a man of violence.

31 ¶ [1] Envy thou not † the oppressor, and choose none of his ways.

[m] Ps. 25. 14.

32 For the froward is abomination to the LORD: [m] but his secret is with the righteous.

[n] Mal. 2. 2.

33 ¶ [n] The curse of the LORD is in the house of the wicked: but he blesseth the habitation of the just.

[o] Jam. 4. 6. 1 Pet. 5. 5.

34 [o] Surely he scorneth the scorners: but he giveth grace unto the lowly.

† Heb. exalteth the fools.

35 The wise shall inherit glory: but shame † shall be the promotion of fools.

CHAP. IV.

1 Solomon, to persuade obedience, 3 sheweth what instruction he had of his parents, 5 to study wisdom, 14 and to shun the path of the wicked. 20 He exhorteth to faith, 23 and sanctification.

HEAR, ye children, the instruction of a father, and attend to know understanding.

2 For I give you good doctrine, forsake ye not my law.

[a] 1 Chron. 29. 1.

3 For I was my father's son, [a] tender and only beloved in the sight of my mother.

[b] 1 Chron. 28. 9.

4 [b] He taught me also, and said unto me, Let thine heart retain my words: keep my commandments, and live.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

5 Get wisdom, get understanding: forget it not; neither decline from the words of my mouth.

6 Forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee: love her, and she shall keep thee.

7 Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding.

8 Exalt her, and she shall promote thee: she shall bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her.

[c] Chap. 1. 9.

9 She shall give to thine head [c] an ornament of grace: ‖ a crown of glory shall she deliver to thee.

‖ Or, she shall compass thee with a crown of glory.

10 Hear, O my son, and receive my sayings; and the years of thy life shall be many.

11 I have taught thee in the way of wisdom; I have led thee in right paths.

[d] Ps. 91. 11.

12 When thou goest, thy steps shall not be straitened; [d] and when thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble.

13 Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go: keep her; for she is thy life.

[e] Chap. 1. 10, 15. Ps. 1. 1.

14 ¶ [e] Enter not into the path of the wicked, and go not in the way of evil men.

15 Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it, and pass away.

16 For they sleep not, except they have done mischief; and their sleep is taken away, unless they cause some to fall.

17 For they eat the bread of wickedness, and drink the wine of violence.

18 But the path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day.

---

29. Devise not evil, — seeing he dwelleth securely] Let not the quietness of any man's temper, much less the confidence he has in thy honesty and goodness, tempt thee to contrive any mischief against him; for the more securely he relies on thy virtue, and the less mistrust he has of any harm from thee, the greater wickedness will it be to entertain even the thought of doing him an injury. Bp. Patrick.

32. — the froward] He that perversely departs from all the rules of truth and justice. Bp. Patrick.

—— his secret is with the righteous.] Rather, "His counsel is with the righteous," as the Hebrew words admit, and as the Greek translators give the sense. Dr. Hammond. "His secret counsel is with the righteous." Schultens.

35. — shall inherit glory:] The glory here mentioned as the inheritance of the wise is threefold; the approbation of their own minds, of their fellow creatures, and of the Supreme Being, the great Searcher of hearts. Dr. J. Balguy.

—— shame shall be the promotion of fools.] "The branding of infamy ennobles or distinguishes fools." Schultens.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. Hear, ye children, &c.] So great are the sluggishness and forgetfulness of mankind in their principal concernments, that we need not wonder the wise man repeats nearly the same things, and quickens our attention to them in the beginning of this chapter. The very first step to wisdom is to have a mind to be wise. Bp. Patrick.

3. — and only beloved] According to some readings of the Hebrew Bible, the expression is, "only beloved among the sons of my mother." Dr. Hammond.

8. Exalt her, and she shall promote thee:] Whatever value or love thou expressest for this sort of wisdom, shall be abundantly repaid to thee by her. Dr. Hammond.

12. When thou goest, &c.] If thy actions and designs have no other rule than this which I give thee, thou shalt be at ease and free from those straits and difficulties with which others meet: if thy business should require haste, this will be the safest, as well as the most inoffensive way to accomplish thy ends. Bp. Patrick.

17. — they eat the bread of wickedness,] They live by robbery and spoil; having no other meat and drink but that which is the fruit of their rapine and violence, and not of their honest labours. Bp. Patrick.

18. — the shining light, that shineth more and more &c.] The whole course of righteous men, the beginning, progress, and consummation, is all imitable and exemplary, fit to attract all others to it, whether in respect to its inward lustre and excellency, or the present satisfaction and peace which attends it. In all these respects it cannot better be represented than by the light of the sun, when it is come above the horizon, continually increasing till it come to perfect noon, the day continually arraying and adorning itself, and putting on new lustre, till the whole face of nature is fully illuminated, no degree of shade or darkness any where remaining. Dr. Hammond.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

19 The way of the wicked is as darkness: they know not at what they stumble.

20 ¶ My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings.

21 Let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart.

22 For they are life unto those that find them, and † health to all their flesh.

† Heb. medicine.

23 ¶ Keep thy heart † with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life.

† Heb. above all keeping.

24 Put away from thee † a froward mouth, and perverse lips put far from thee.

† Heb. frowardness of mouth, and perverseness of lips.

25 Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee.

‖ Or, all thy ways shall be ordered aright.

26 Ponder the path of thy feet, and ‖ let all thy ways be established.

[f] Deut.5.32.

27 [f] Turn not to the right hand nor to the left: remove thy foot from evil.

CHAP. V.

1 Solomon exhorteth to the study of wisdom. 3 He sheweth the mischief of whoredom and riot. 15 He exhorteth to contentedness, liberality, and chastity. 22 The wicked are overtaken with their own sins.

MY son, attend unto my wisdom, and bow thine ear to my understanding:

2 That thou mayest regard discretion, and that thy lips may keep knowledge.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

3 ¶ [a] For the lips of a strange woman drop as an honeycomb, and her † mouth is smoother than oil:

[a] Chap.2.16. & 6. 24.

† Heb. palate.

4 But her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a two edged sword.

[b] Chap.7.27.

5 [b] Her feet go down to death; her steps take hold on hell.

6 Lest thou shouldest ponder the path of life, her ways are moveable, that thou canst not know them.

7 Hear me now therefore, O ye children, and depart not from the words of my mouth.

8 Remove thy way far from her, and come not nigh the door of her house:

9 Lest thou give thine honour unto others, and thy years unto the cruel:

† Heb. thy strength.

10 Lest strangers be filled with † thy wealth; and thy labours be in the house of a stranger;

11 And thou mourn at the last, when thy flesh and thy body are consumed,

12 And say, How have I hated instruction, and my heart despised reproof;

13 And have not obeyed the voice of my teachers, nor inclined mine ear to them that instructed me!

14 I was almost in all evil in the midst of the congregation and assembly.

---

21. — keep them in the midst of thine heart.] Preserve them studiously, and lay them up as a most precious treasure, in the closest affections of thy heart. Bp. Patrick.

23. Keep thy heart with all diligence;] The heart is here used to denote the seat of the affections, passions, and desires; and by the precept "to keep our hearts," is meant, that we should diligently preserve our good dispositions, and correct our bad ones; for which two things principally are necessary, a frequent examination of our own heart, and a constant endeavour to wean our affections from this world, and to fix them on another. Dr. Waterland.

—— for out of it are the issues of life.] The genuine and natural sense of this is, that all the actions of a man's life issue and proceed from the heart; which is the fountain, not only of our natural life, but of our moral too; so that, as a man's heart is, so will his life be: if his heart be kept clear and pure, his life cannot be wicked and vicious; and if his heart be wicked and vicious, his life cannot be kept clean and pure from sin; as our Saviour Himself teaches, Matth. vii. 16—20. Bp. Beveridge.

24. Put away from thee a froward mouth,] Never speak any thing thyself contrary to truth, honesty, and religion, nor listen to, or associate with, those that do so. Bp. Patrick.

25. Let thine eyes look right on, &c.] Let neither thine eyes, nor thy other senses, be drawn aside to the right hand or to the left, but let them be directed aright, according to the law of thy God. Bp. Hall.

27. Turn not to the right hand &c.] Let no temptation either of hope or fear, passion or interest, be able to seduce or divert thee from the straight and even path of virtue, but exactly and carefully preserve thyself from every thing that is evil. Dr. Hammond.

Chap. V. ver. 3. For the lips of a strange woman] The wise man here gives a new caution against those impure desires, which he had before noticed (chap. ii. 16, 17.) as great obstructions to religious wisdom; and he describes their miserable effects by several apt resemblances, ver. 4, 5, which shew how by these vices men lose their honour, their time, their health and estates, and at last lie down in sorrow, and end their days in an unprofitable repentance. Bp. Patrick.

—— drop as an honeycomb,] Are full of sweet enticements. Bp. Hall.

5. Her feet go down to death;] She leads those that follow her steps to certain and inevitable destruction, not only here, but in another world. Bp. Patrick.

—— her steps take hold on hell.] Rather, "Her steps lead on to the tomb." By the English term "hell," is commonly understood the place of torment; whereas here is meant the grave, the place where the body is consumed. Dr. Hodgson.

6. Lest thou shouldest ponder the path of life,] The Hebrew words admit of being translated in the third person, "She ponders not the path of life;" and this seems a preferable construction. Dr. Durell. "Her paths are always moveable," "wandering," "dangerous," "unstable," according to different versions. Dr. Hammond. She gives herself up to pleasure without reflexion: her ways are inconstant, she has no fixed attachments, has neither knowledge, wisdom, or discernment, and follows no rule but her passion. Calmet.

9. Lest thou give thine honour unto others, &c.] Lest thou put thy reputation in the power of others, and even thy life; that is, of those who may divulge or revenge thy adultery, chap. vi. 34.

11. And thou mourn] "Mourn" is too feeble a word to convey the meaning of the original. It signifies more properly, "and thou roar" with pain. Dr. Hodgson.

12. — How have I hated &c.] How stupidly foolish have I been, in not considering all this sooner; how senselessly bent on my own ruin! I am amazed to think how I hated the timely cautions and just reproofs which were given me. Bp. Patrick.

14. I was almost in all evil &c.] Better, perhaps, "I was in almost all evil." I have plunged myself into all sort of evil, in the midst of my people, being too well known for my vices, and obtaining no compassion. Calmet.

15 ¶ Drink waters out of thine own cistern, and running waters out of thine own well.

16 Let thy fountains be dispersed abroad, and rivers of waters in the streets.

17 Let them be only thine own, and not strangers' with thee.

18 Let thy fountain be blessed: and rejoice with the wife of thy youth.

19 Let her be as the loving hind and pleasant roe; let her breasts † satisfy thee at all times; and † be thou ravished always with her love.

† Heb. water thee.

† Heb. err thou always in her love.

20 And why wilt thou, my son, be ravished with a strange woman, and embrace the bosom of a stranger?

[c] Job 31. 4. & 34. 21. Chap. 15. 3. Jer. 16. 17. & 32. 19.

21 [c] For the ways of man are before the eyes of the LORD, and he pondereth all his goings.

22 ¶ His own iniquities shall take the wicked himself, and he shall be holden with the cords of his † sins.

† Heb. sin.

23 He shall die without instruction; and in the greatness of his folly he shall go astray.

CHAP. VI.

1 Against suretiship, 6 idleness, 12 and mischievousness. 16 Seven things hateful to God. 20 The blessings of obedience. 25 The mischiefs of whoredom.

MY son, if thou be surety for thy friend, if thou hast stricken thy hand with a stranger, Before CHRIST about 1000.

2 Thou art snared with the words of thy mouth, thou art taken with the words of thy mouth.

3 Do this now, my son, and deliver thyself, when thou art come into the hand of thy friend; go, humble thyself, ‖ and make sure thy friend.

‖ Or, so shalt thou prevail with thy friend.

4 Give not sleep to thine eyes, nor slumber to thine eyelids.

5 Deliver thyself as a roe from the hand of the hunter, and as a bird from the hand of the fowler.

6 ¶ Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise:

7 Which having no guide, overseer, or ruler,

8 Provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest.

9 [a] How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? when wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?

[a] Chap. 24. 33.

10 Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep:

11 [b] So shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth, and thy want as an armed man.

[b] Chap. 13. 4. & 20. 4.

---

15. Drink waters &c.] The wise man, having thus represented the dangers and wasting miseries of incontinence, gives the seasonable and necessary advice, that every man should strictly abstain from wandering lusts, and remain in the society of his own wife. Dr. Hammond.

16. Let thy fountains be dispersed &c.] Besides many other blessings, thou wilt hence derive the comforts of a numerous flourishing offspring, which, as streams or rivers from a fountain, will flow from a chaste conjugal bed. Dr. Hammond.

17. Let them be only thine own,] Thou wilt thus have the assurance, that the children thou ownest are truly thine. Dr. Hammond.

19. — as the loving hind and pleasant roe;] Rather, "as the beloved hind and the favourite roe." The comparison is here very appropriate, for it is well known that all the males of the deer-kind are remarkably fond of the females which they have selected for their partners; and, although timid animals in general, will, on their account, encounter any danger to the hazard of their lives. Dr. Durell.

22. — he shall be holden with the cords of his sins.] The wicked man engages in these shameful and illicit pursuits, without foreseeing their mournful consequences; he thinks he will be able to disengage himself from them whenever he pleases, but he is forging chains for himself which he will not be able to break; when he has contracted the habit, he will not have the power to quit it. Calmet.

23. He shall die without instruction;] He shall die for want of instruction. Dr. Waterland.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. — if thou be surety for thy friend,] My son, be advised by me not to pass thy word rashly for the money which thy neighbour or friend borroweth of another, much less stand bound to a stranger, of whose honesty or ability thou art not assured; for if thou hast been so incautious as to be drawn into such engagements, "thou art snared with the words of thy mouth," look upon thyself no longer as a free man, but hampered and enslaved by dangerous obligations. Bp. Patrick.

— if thou hast stricken thy hand &c.] To strike hands with another person was a general emblem of agreement, bargaining, or suretiship. Thus the ancient poets often represent it. Burder. Solomon frequently exhorts to the avoiding of suretiship, as a most dangerous indiscretion; by which he seems to mean, that we should never be bound in behalf of another for more than we can afford to lose, without any considerable detriment to our fortunes or families. Dr. Jortin.

3. — go, humble thyself, &c.] These words may rather be rendered, "Go, stir up thyself, and prevail with thy companion;" "give not sleep to thine eyes," ver. 4; that is, without the least delay take this course to disentangle thyself. Dr. Hammond.

6. Go to the ant, thou sluggard; &c.] As in the matter just mentioned, the least delay is pernicious, so, in all things else, sluggishness or negligence of those things which concern us most nearly, should ever be avoided; and if we need any instructor on this head, we may go to one of the least and meanest of creatures. Dr. Hammond.

8. Provideth her meat in the summer,] The industry of the ant has been frequently noticed by the ancient poets. It has been generally believed that these animals lay up stores of corn for their winter's provision, and that they gnaw off the buds of the grains so as to prevent their growing in the earth. This fact is asserted by Pliny; Bochart produces many writers asserting the same. La Pluche says, "A prevailing passion in these little animals is to amass stores of grain; and, lest the humidity of the cells should make the corn shoot up, we are told for a certainty, that they gnaw off the buds which grow at the point of the grain." Parkhurst.

10. Yet a little sleep, a little slumber,] By the repetition of the words here seems to be implied, sleep and slumber often repeated at different intervals. The change of the person speaking, from the preceptor to the sluggard, in this verse, is extremely beautiful.

11. — as one that travelleth, — as an armed man.] "As one that travelleth," that is, by surprise: "as an armed man," with irresistible violence. Bp. Patrick, Calmet.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

12 ¶ A naughty person, a wicked man, walketh with a froward mouth.

13 He winketh with his eyes, he speaketh with his feet, he teacheth with his fingers;

14 Frowardness is in his heart, he deviseth mischief continually; he † soweth discord.

† Heb. casteth forth.

15 Therefore shall his calamity come suddenly; suddenly shall he be broken without remedy.

16 ¶ These six things doth the LORD hate: yea, seven are an abomination † unto him:

† Heb. of his soul.

17 † A proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, † Heb. Haughty eyes.

18 An heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, [c] feet that be swift in running to mischief,

[c] Rom. 3. 15.

19 A false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren.

[d] Chap. 1. 8.

20 ¶ [d] My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother:

21 Bind them continually upon thine heart, and tie them about thy neck.

22 When thou goest, it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, it shall keep thee; and when thou awakest, it shall talk with thee.

[e] Ps. 19. 8. & 119. 105. ‖ Or, candle.

23 [e] For the commandment is a ‖ lamp; and the law is light; and reproofs of instruction are the way of life:

24 [f] To keep thee from the evil woman, from the flattery ‖ of the tongue of a strange woman.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[f] Chap. 2. 16. & 5. 3. & 7. 5. ‖ Or, of the strange tongue.

25 [g] Lust not after her beauty in thine heart; neither let her take thee with her eyelids.

[g] Matth. 5. 28.

26 For by means of a whorish woman a man is brought to a piece of bread: and † the adulteress will hunt for the precious life.

† Heb. the woman of a man, or, a man's wife.

27 Can a man take fire in his bosom, and his clothes not be burned?

28 Can one go upon hot coals, and his feet not be burned?

29 So he that goeth in to his neighbour's wife; whosoever toucheth her shall not be innocent.

30 Men do not despise a thief, if he steal to satisfy his soul when he is hungry;

31 But if he be found, he shall restore sevenfold; he shall give all the substance of his house.

32 But whoso committeth adultery with a woman lacketh † understanding: he that doeth it destroyeth his own soul.

† Heb. heart.

33 A wound and dishonour shall he get; and his reproach shall not be wiped away.

34 For jealousy is the rage of a man: therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance.

35 † He will not regard any ransom; neither will he rest content, though thou givest many gifts.

† Heb. He will not accept the face of any ransom.

---

12. A naughty person,] In the Hebrew, "a man of Belial;" denoting probably an idle foolish wicked man, who cares not for God's directions of his tongue or life. "With a froward mouth;" in the Hebrew, "with perverseness of mouth," in the sense of detracting from the actions of other men, and so perverting all to the worst sense that is possible. Dr. Hammond.

13. He winketh with his eyes, &c.] Such a person, when he has nothing of weight to say against a man, will, by significant gestures of all sorts, intimate matters to his disadvantage, and so persuade others, without laying any particular thing to his charge. Dr. Hammond. Such a person composes all his parts to deceit; every gesture of his tends to fraud; the very motion of his eyes, of his feet, of his fingers, is significant, and expresses some secret intimation of guile. Bp. Hall.

15. Therefore shall his calamity come suddenly;] Such a person shall be brought to utter ruin, when he fancies he has carried his matters so cunningly, that no one discerns his villany. Bp. Patrick. "He shall be broken without remedy;" alluding, it appears, to an earthen vessel which, when broken into pieces, cannot be made whole again. Dr. Wells.

16. These six things &c.] These six things, which are commonly found in such profligate persons, "doth the Lord hate:" yea, there is one more, and so in all there are seven things commonly found in such persons, which are an abomination to him. Dr. Wells. The seven things are these: pride or haughtiness; lying or fraudulence; guilt of blood; malice or projecting of evil; a pleasure in doing mischief; false witness or calumny; a causing of discord or ill-will among those who live friendly together. Dr. Hammond.

22. it shall talk with thee.] Shall suggest good thoughts to thee. Dr. Wells.

23. — with her eyelids.] See note at 2 Kings ix. 30.

26. — will hunt for the precious life.] Will bring the adulterer to his grave. See Ezek. xiii. 18. Dr. Isham.

The general meaning of this verse and the following is, However odious is the sin of theft, yet if the thief be compared with the adulterer, we shall find much difference made in the heinousness of the offence. Men are not wont to be inexorably cruel against him who steals out of pure necessity; but if he be detected, however dearly he may pay for his fault by way of satisfaction, the sum is yet accepted of the injured party; but he who committeth adultery, destroyeth his own soul. Bp. Hall.

31. — he shall restore sevenfold;] The law of Moses does not enjoin a restitution of sevenfold, but in a smaller proportion, Exod. xxii. 1, 4. Bp. Patrick. Seven seems only put here for a number of perfection: the meaning is, he shall make perfect and full restitution according to the law, so far as his substance or estate will reach. Abp. Tillotson.

32. But whoso committeth adultery &c.] The adulterer robs a man of his wife, without any such necessity, and therefore is destitute of all excuse, and must be looked upon as void of all understanding; and when he is discovered, he will be punished, not merely in his estate, but with the loss of his life, Lev. xx. 10. Bp. Patrick.

34. For jealousy is the rage of a man:] No translation can fully express the force of the original here. "The inflammation of jealousy is the setting a man on fire:" as much as to say, The jealousy with which a man is inflamed, so heats him and rages within him, that he can never be appeased, but is borne with irresistible violence to the revenge of his defiled bed. Schultens.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

CHAP. VII.

1 Solomon persuadeth to a sincere and kind familiarity with wisdom. 6 In an example of his own experience, he sheweth 10 the cunning of an whore, 22 and the desperate simplicity of a young wanton. 24 He dehorteth from such wickedness.

MY son, keep my words, and lay up my commandments with thee.

2 Keep my commandments, and live; and my law as the apple of thine eye.

[a] Deut. 6. 8. & 11. 18. Chap. 3. 3. 3 [a] Bind them upon thy fingers, write them upon the table of thine heart.

4 Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call understanding thy kinswoman:

[b] Chap. 5. 3. 5 [b] That they may keep thee from the strange woman, from the stranger which flattereth with her words.

6 ¶ For at the window of my house I looked through my casement,

7 And beheld among the simple ones, † Heb. the sons. I discerned among † the youths, a young man void of understanding,

8 Passing through the street near her corner; and he went the way to her house,

† Heb. in the evening of the day. 9 In the twilight, † in the evening, in the black and dark night:

10 And, behold, there met him a woman with the attire of an harlot, and subtil of heart.

[c] Chap. 9. 13. 11 [c] (She is loud and stubborn; her feet abide not in her house:

12 Now is she without, now in the streets, and lieth in wait at every corner.)

† Heb. she strengthened her face, and said. 13 So she caught him, and kissed him, and † with an impudent face said unto him,

14 † I have peace offerings with me; this day have I payed my vows. Before CHRIST about 1000.

15 Therefore came I forth to meet thee, † Heb. Peace offerings are upon me. diligently to seek thy face, and I have found thee.

16 I have decked my bed with coverings of tapestry, with carved works, with fine linen of Egypt.

17 I have perfumed my bed with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon.

18 Come, let us take our fill of love until the morning: let us solace ourselves with loves.

19 For the goodman is not at home, he is gone a long journey:

20 He hath taken a bag of money † with him, and will come home at ‖ the day appointed. † Heb. in his hand. ‖ Or, the new moon.

21 With her much fair speech she caused him to yield, with the flattering of her lips she forced him.

22 He goeth after her † straightway, as an ox goeth to the slaughter, or as a fool to the correction of the stocks; † Heb. suddenly.

23 Till a dart strike through his liver; as a bird hasteth to the snare, and knoweth not that it is for his life.

24 ¶ Hearken unto me now therefore, O ye children, and attend to the words of my mouth.

25 Let not thine heart decline to her ways, go not astray in her paths.

26 For she hath cast down many wounded: yea, many strong men have been slain by her.

Chap. VII. ver. 2. — as the apple of thine eye.] Rather, "as the pupil of thine eye." Dr. Durell.

3. Bind them upon thy fingers, &c.] It is sufficiently evident that Solomon could not mean this precept to be understood literally, any more than the next expression, which frequently occurs, "Write them on the table of thine heart;" yet it was on such texts as these (see Exod. xiii. 16. Deut. vi. 8. xi. 18.) that the Pharisees founded the practice of binding on their foreheads phylacteries, or slips with particular precepts of the law inscribed upon them. Dr. Durell. See note at Exod. xiii. 9.

4. Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister;] Be as familiar with wisdom, as if she were thy own natural sister. Bp. Hall. The name of "sister" occurs often as the name of friendship, and is employed to express the affection of the husband to his bride, Cant. iv. 9. v. 1, &c. It here marks the chaste love which we ought to bear to wisdom. Calmet.

9. In the twilight, &c.] He seems to enumerate the several periods of the night, intending to imply that he had frequently observed the scene which he describes, although he professes to be describing only one particular instance. Schultens.

11. (She is loud and stubborn;] Translators have differed in rendering these words; they seem rather to mean, "She is prating, petulant, and wandering, running about from house to house." Dr. Hammond.

14. I have peace offerings with me; &c.] "I have peace offerings with me," that is, "I have an entertainment or feast at my house;" for in sacrifices of this sort, the person that offered reserved a part of the victim for convivial purposes. Dr. Durell. This narrative is strongly expressive of the woman's character; of her levity in making the payment of vows a prelude to sin, and of her shameless falsehood, ver. 15.

16. — with carved works,] Meaning probably figured tapestry or carpeting, from its resemblance to carved work. Parkhurst.

17. — aloes,] See note at Cant. iv. 14.

—— cinnamon.] It is remarkable that the name of this tree in Hebrew is the same as in English. Parkhurst.

19. — the goodman] Literally in Hebrew, "the man," meaning her husband. In the earlier English writers, "goodman" was a common appellation for the master of a family.

20. — at the day appointed.] Some interpreters prefer the reading of our margin, "at the new moon," or, "at the day of assembly," which the time of the new moon was amongst the Jews. The Greek translators render it, "after many days." Dr. Hammond.

23. Till a dart strike through his liver; &c.] Thus he yields to his lust, until the revenging husband, actuated by jealousy, give a deadly stroke to the adulterer, or till the just judgment of God seize upon body and soul, being thus heedlessly drawn in as a bird is into the snare, not considering that its life is brought into danger. Bp. Hall.

26. For she hath cast down &c.] For many have been the examples of no mean persons, who have fallen in their reputation, their estates, their healths, and comforts of life, and in truth have utterly perished by her; innumerable are the mighty men, both for valour and wisdom, whom she has brought to ruin. Solomon himself, as well as Samson, became an example of the "mighty

Before CHRIST about 1000.

27 [d] Her house is the way to hell, going down to the chambers of death.

[d] Chap. 2. 18 & 5. 5.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The fame, 6 and evidency of wisdom. 10 The excellency, 12 the nature, 15 the power, 18 the riches, 22 and the eternity of wisdom. 32 Wisdom is to be desired for the blessedness it bringeth.

[a] Chap. 1. 20.

DOTH not [a] wisdom cry? and understanding put forth her voice?

2 She standeth in the top of high places, by the way in the places of the paths.

3 She crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city, at the coming in at the doors.

4 Unto you, O men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man.

5 O ye simple, understand wisdom: and, ye fools, be ye of an understanding heart.

6 Hear; for I will speak of excellent things; and the opening of my lips shall be right things.

7 For my mouth shall speak truth; and wickedness is † an abomination to my lips.

† Heb. the abomination of my lips.

8 All the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing † froward or perverse in them.

† Heb. wreathed.

9 They are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge.

10 Receive my instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold.

[b] Job 28. 15. Psal. 19. 10. Chap. 3. 15. & 16. 16.

11 [b] For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

12 I wisdom dwell with ‖ prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions.

‖ Or, subtilty.

13 The fear of the LORD is to hate evil: pride, and arrogancy, and the evil way, and the froward mouth, do I hate.

14 Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom: I am understanding; I have strength.

15 By me kings reign, and princes decree justice.

16 By me princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth.

17 I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me.

18 [c] Riches and honour are with me; yea, durable riches and righteousness.

[c] Chap. 3. 16.

19 [d] My fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold; and my revenue than choice silver.

[d] Chap. 3. 14.

20 I ‖ lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgment:

‖ Or, walk.

21 That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures.

22 The LORD possessed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old.

23 I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was.

24 When there were no depths, I was brought forth; when there were no fountains abounding with water.

---

men" here mentioned, who were ruined by bad women. Bp. Patrick.

27. — the chambers of death.] The Jewish sepulchres consisted of large vaults and caves, in the sides of which were cut out distinct niches for receiving each a dead body. Parkhurst.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. Doth not wisdom cry? &c.] We may consider this chapter as connected with the preceding, and forming with it a continued discourse. The wise man had before been representing the dangerous seductions of false pleasure. He now describes to us wisdom, who invites us to love her by a noble, grand, elevated discourse, and by magnificent promises of substantial good. Calmet.

A sublime allegory is here introduced, of wisdom standing in the most conspicuous and frequented places of the city, and proclaiming aloud to men those great precepts of truth, religion, and virtue, by which they may rise from the vanities of the world to life and immortality. Schultens.

10. Receive my instruction, and not silver;] That is, receive it in preference to silver. Calmet. Make no comparison of my instruction with silver and gold, for these are base and corruptible metals, not worthy to be mentioned together with those heavenly treasures, which are contained in, and conveyed by, my Divine counsels. Bp. Hall.

12. I wisdom dwell with prudence,] I alone endow men with real prudence, always giving the most safe and least fallible advice, and directing men to more discreet resolutions in difficult cases than the most subtle head in the world that consults not with me. Bp. Patrick.

—— and find out knowledge of witty inventions.] Implying, that no advice or subtle contrivances can be good, or can have a happy event, which are not agreeable to true piety. Dr. Wells.

14. — I have strength.] I inspire men with true and rational courage to persist in good resolutions which are neither rashly taken up, nor wrongly pursued. Dr. Wells.

15, 16. By me kings reign, &c.] Meaning, that all lawful authority, the power of all kings and magistrates, are most surely founded in wisdom.

17. — those that seek me early shall find me.] This holds true in every useful acquisition: youth is the time when the foundation of knowledge, either secular or religious, is to be laid; and they who begin any useful study or pursuit late in life, seldom become great proficients. Dr. Jortin.

19. — and my revenue] Rather, "my produce," which answers better to "my fruit," in the preceding clause. Dr. Durell.

21. That I may cause &c.] That I may confer on all those who sincerely love and adhere to me a happy settlement in a state of eternal peace and substantial satisfaction. Bp. Patrick.

22. The Lord possessed me &c.] The passage which follows is expressed in such magnificent language, that the ancient Christians thought the application of the words was to the wisdom revealed to us in the Gospel by the Son of God, nay to the Son of God Himself, the Eternal Word and Wisdom of the Father. Bp. Patrick.

The wisdom, he says, which directs us to all this, is but a ray of that Eternal wisdom of the Father, the Word and Son of God, which, in the fulness of time, was to be incarnate, but before all time was present with God, before any part of this world, earth, sea, fountains, hills, mountains, or valleys, were created. Dr. Hammond. God has possessed the Son from all eternity, since "the Word was with God," from the beginning, John i. 1. Calmet.

"The Lord possessed me in the beginning of His way;" rather, "The Lord possessed me when He first went forth," that is, when He first exerted Himself in the work of creation. Dr. Durell.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

25 Before the mountains were settled, before the hills was I brought forth:

26 While as yet he had not made the earth, nor the ‖ fields, nor ‖ the highest part of the dust of the world.

‖ Or, open places. ‖ Or, the chief part.

27 When he prepared the heavens, I was there: when he set ‖ a compass upon the face of the depth:

‖ Or, a circle.

28 When he established the clouds above: when he strengthened the fountains of the deep:

29 [c] When he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment: when he appointed the foundations of the earth:

[c] Gen. 1. 9, 10. Job 38. 10, 11. Psal. 104. 9.

30 Then I was by him, as one brought up with him: and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him;

31 Rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth; and my delights were with the sons of men.

32 Now therefore hearken unto me, O ye children: for [f] blessed are they that keep my ways.

[f] Psal. 119. 1, 2. & 128. 1. Luke 11. 28.

33 Hear instruction, and be wise, and refuse it not.

34 Blessed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors.

35 For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall † obtain favour of the LORD.

† Heb. bring forth.

36 But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul: all they that hate me love death.

CHAP. IX.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

1 The discipline, 4 and doctrine of wisdom. 13 The custom, 16 and error of folly.

WISDOM hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars:

2 She hath killed † her beasts; she hath mingled her wine; she hath also furnished her table.

† Heb. her killing.

3 She hath sent forth her maidens: she crieth upon the highest places of the city,

4 Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither: as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him,

5 Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled.

6 Forsake the foolish, and live; and go in the way of understanding.

7 He that reproveth a scorner getteth to himself shame: and he that rebuketh a wicked man getteth himself a blot.

8 [a] Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee: rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee.

[a] Matth. 7. 6.

9 Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser: teach a just man, and he will increase in learning.

10 [b] The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the holy is understanding.

[b] Job 28. 28. Ps. 111. 10. Chap. 1. 7.

11 [c] For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and the years of thy life shall be increased.

[c] Chap. 10. 27.

12 If thou be wise, thou shalt be wise

---

30. Then I was by him,] Then was I very near to Him, contriving all things; nor had He greater delight in any thing than in me, who day by day, during the creation of the world, produced some lovely work or other, in which He rejoiced, to see how good and agreeable they were, Gen. i. 4, &c. Bp. Patrick.

31. — my delights were with the sons of men.] Beholding them made in the image of God, and after His likeness, and capable of holding converse with me. Bp. Patrick.

34. — waiting at the posts of my doors.] Going to the places where true religion and piety are taught. Dr. Wells.

36. — all they that hate me love death.] These words can scarcely signify any thing else than the destruction brought upon the soul by death eternal. Dr. Graves.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. Wisdom hath builded her house, &c.] Wisdom is represented as a glorious queen, the daughter of heaven, adorned with all excellencies and perfections, inviting all misguided souls to her stately palace, and promising to them the most delicious entertainment, if they will forsake their follies. By this notion of a feast the sacred writers are wont to express the high satisfaction, joy, and pleasure, with which the principles of virtue and wisdom fill the hearts of men when they have a true relish for them. This is the substance of the allegory here given, but the several parts of it are not to be too minutely scanned. Bp. Patrick.

2. She hath killed her beasts; &c.] She hath made a plentiful provision for all hungry and thirsty souls, who will find no less life, and vigour, and strength, and joy communicated to them from her sacred instructions, than the body does when t partakes of a liberal and delicious feast. Bp. Patrick.

3. She hath sent forth her maidens:] She hath sent forth her attendants and ministers, persons of uncorrupted purity and sincerity, to invite men with a loud voice, which cannot but be heard by whole cities and countries. This expression may be illustrated by a passage from Hasselquist, who at Alexandria, in Egypt, saw ten or twelve women going about and inviting people to a banquet by a particular kind of cry or noise. Parkhurst.

—— upon the highest places of the city,] The schools of the prophets were seated on "high places," as appears from 1 Sam. x. 5, 10, &c.; which seems to be the allusion here of wisdom crying upon the highest places of the city, to invite those who had a disposition towards her to come and hear her instructions. Bp. Patrick. Or the expression may allude merely to the tops of the houses and parapets, to which it was customary to go for the purpose of proclaiming any thing aloud, agreeably to the expression of our Saviour, "Preach ye upon the housetops," Matt. x. 27. Calmet.

7. He that reproveth a scorner &c.] He who performs the charitable office of reproving those who deride religion, and scoff at all good admonition, not only loses his labour, but will probably be requited with reproaches. Bp. Patrick.

—— getteth himself a blot.] Suffers vile and unworthy usage. Dr. Wells.

10. — of the holy] Of sacred things, or Divine revelations. Dr. Isham.

12. If thou be wise, &c.] If thou be wise, thou shalt be wise for the good of thyself; but if thou scornest religion, thou alone shalt bear the punishment of it. Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

for thyself: but if thou scornest, thou alone shalt bear it.

[d] Chap. 7. 11.

13 ¶ [d] A foolish woman is clamorous: she is simple, and knoweth nothing.

14 For she sitteth at the door of her house, on a seat in the high places of the city,

15 To call passengers who go right on their ways:

16 Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither: and as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him,

17 Stolen waters are sweet, and bread

† Heb. of secrecies.

† eaten in secret is pleasant.

18 But he knoweth not that the dead are there; and that her guests are in the depths of hell.

CHAP. X.

From this chapter to the five and twentieth are sundry observations of moral virtues, and their contrary vices.

[a] Chap. 15. 20.

THE proverbs of Solomon. [a] A wise son maketh a glad father: but a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother.

[b] Chap. 11. 4.

2 [b] Treasures of wickedness profit nothing: but righteousness delivereth from death.

[c] Ps. 37. 25.

|| Or, the wicked for their wickedness.

3 [c] The LORD will not suffer the soul of the righteous to famish: but he casteth away || the substance of the wicked.

[d] Chap. 12. 24.

4 [d] He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand: but the hand of the diligent maketh rich.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

5 He that gathereth in summer is a wise son: but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame.

6 Blessings are upon the head of the just: but [e] violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.

[e] Ver. 11.

7 [f] The memory of the just is blessed: but the name of the wicked shall rot.

[f] Ps. 112. 6.

8 The wise in heart will receive commandments: but † a prating fool || shall fall.

† Heb. a fool of lips.

|| Or, shall be beaten.

9 [g] He that walketh uprightly walketh surely: but he that perverteth his ways shall be known.

[g] Ps. 23. 4.

10 [h] He that winketh with the eye causeth sorrow: but a prating fool || shall fall.

[h] Chap. 6. 13.

|| Or, shall be beaten.

11 [i] The mouth of a righteous man is a well of life: but violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.

[i] Chap. 13. 14.

12 Hatred stirreth up strifes: but [k] love covereth all sins.

[k] 1 Pet. 4. 8. 1 Cor. 13. 4.

13 In the lips of him that hath understanding wisdom is found: but a rod is for the back of him that is void of † understanding.

† Heb. heart.

14 Wise men lay up knowledge: but the mouth of the foolish is near destruction.

[l] Chap. 18. 11.

15 [l] The rich man's wealth is his strong

---

14. — on a seat in the high places] For the purpose of inveigling passengers. It is related by travellers in the East, that it is still the practice for prostitutes to sit at the doors of their houses, in the most alluring pomp that they can display. Harmer.

17. Stolen waters are sweet, &c.] Forbidden pleasures are sweet when enjoyed in secret.

18. — he knoweth not that the dead are there;] He considers not all this while, that she invites him to his utter ruin both of body and soul, and sinks down all those who accept of her invitation to the pit of destruction. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. X. ver. 1. The proverbs of Solomon.] Here now properly begins the Book of the Proverbs, as the title of this chapter tells us; what has been delivered hitherto being rather a preface, to awaken attention, and form sundry arguments to commend the wise instructions which now follow to every one's practice, and to caution those who would receive benefit by these instructions, to avoid such things as may hinder their edification in the school of wisdom. Bp. Patrick.

From this chapter to the twenty-fifth, are contained more particularly the theorems of the doctrine of morality; which, under sundry observations concerning virtue and vice, or moral good and evil, may form a full and complete system of Divine ethicks. The virtues and vices are for the most part set in opposition the one to the other, and compared together; that so the wisdom and beauty of the one, and the folly and deformity of the other, may the more convincingly appear. Wogan.

3. — he casteth away the substance of the wicked.] He dissipates or destroys the estate, the possessions of the wicked. Dr. Hammond.

4. — that dealeth with a slack hand;] That dealeth or worketh with a lazy hand. Dr. Wells.

6. — violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.] Their own wickedness shall violently overwhelm, to their utter confusion, those who wickedly defraud and oppress their neighbour. Bp. Patrick.

8. The wise in heart will receive &c.] It is the part of wisdom to open the ear and heart to all good advice, especially to the commandments of God; whereas they who keep no guard on their tongues, frequently discover things which bring ruin and mischief on themselves. Dr. Hammond.

9. He that walketh uprightly walketh surely:] "To walk surely," is to be in safe condition, to be out of danger of falling into any extreme calamity, and to have our main interest so secured, that, notwithstanding whatever may happen for a time, yet our chief and great design shall certainly succeed happily in the end. The sum therefore of Solomon's assertion is this: He that in the whole course of his life acts sincerely and justly, with a continual respect to the reason of things and the law of God, that carries on his undertakings by fair and equitable means, avoiding all fraud and deceit, all base and unworthy practice; this man takes the wisest and surest course to succeed in all his designs, respecting either his present, or his future happiness. Dr. S. Clarke.

10. He that winketh with the eye &c.] The double dealing and dissembling person causes much sorrow at the last, both to himself and to those who have been deceived by him. Bp. Hall.

11. The mouth of a righteous man is a well of life:] The discourse of a good man, like a perpetual spring of wholesome water, always tends to the profit, comfort, and refreshment of those who receive it. Bp. Patrick.

12. — love covereth all sins.] Love induces men to cover or overlook several great offences. Dr. Wells. See James v. 20.

14. — the mouth of the foolish is near destruction.] The fool is always talking, and seldom opens his mouth but it proves a present mischief to himself or to others. Bp. Patrick.

15. The rich man's wealth &c.] Riches, being a powerful defence to their owners against numerous evils, naturally raise men's city: the destruction of the poor is their poverty.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

16 The labour of the righteous tendeth to life: the fruit of the wicked to sin.

17 He is in the way of life that keepeth instruction: but he that refuseth reproof ‖ erreth.

‖ Or, causeth to err.

18 He that hideth hatred with lying lips, and he that uttereth a slander, is a fool.

19 In the multitude of words there wanteth not sin: but he that refraineth his lips is wise.

20 The tongue of the just is as choice silver: the heart of the wicked is little worth.

21 The lips of the righteous feed many: but fools die for want † of wisdom.

† Heb. of heart.

22 The blessing of the LORD, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it.

[m] Chap. 14. 9.

23 [m] It is as sport to a fool to do mischief: but a man of understanding hath wisdom.

24 The fear of the wicked, it shall come upon him: but the desire of the righteous shall be granted.

25 As the whirlwind passeth, so is the wicked no more: but the righteous is an everlasting foundation.

26 As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes, so is the sluggard to them that send him.

[n] Chap. 9. 11.

27 [n] The fear of the LORD † prolongeth days: but the years of the wicked shall be shortened.

† Heb. addeth.

28 The hope of the righteous shall be gladness: but the [o] expectation of the wicked shall perish.

[o] Job 8. 13. & 11. 20. Ps 112. 10.

29 The way of the LORD is strength to the upright: but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

30 [p] The righteous shall never be removed: but the wicked shall not inhabit the earth.

[p] Ps. 125. 1. & 37. 22.

31 The mouth of the just bringeth forth wisdom: but the froward tongue shall be cut out.

32 The lips of the righteous know what is acceptable: but the mouth of the wicked speaketh † frowardness.

† Heb. frowardnesses.

CHAP. XI.

[a] Lev. 19. 36. Deut. 25. 15. Chap. 16. 11. & 20. 10, 23.

A [a] † FALSE balance is abomination to the LORD: but † a just weight is his delight.

† Heb. balances of deceit.

† Heb. a perfect stone.

2 [b] When pride cometh, then cometh shame: but with the lowly is wisdom.

[b] Chap. 16. 18. & 15. 33. & 18. 12

3 [c] The integrity of the upright shall guide them: but the perverseness of transgressors shall destroy them.

[c] Chap. 13. 6.

4 [d] Riches profit not in the day of wrath: but righteousness delivereth from death.

[d] Chap. 10. 2. Ezek. 7. 19. Zeph. 1. 18.

5 The righteousness of the perfect shall † direct his way: but the wicked shall fall by his own wickedness.

† Heb. rectify.

6 The righteousness of the upright shall deliver them: but [e] transgressors shall be taken in their own naughtiness.

[e] Chap. 5. 22.

7 When a wicked man dieth, his expectation shall perish: and the hope of unjust men perisheth.

8 [f] The righteous is delivered out of trouble, and the wicked cometh in his stead.

[f] Chap. 21. 18.

9 An [g] hypocrite with his mouth de-

[g] Job 8. 13.

---

minds, and make them confident; whereas poverty exposes men to injuries and abuses, and is apt to depress and deject their spirits. Bp. Patrick.

19. In the multitude of words &c.] There are so many ways of offending God or man, by profanations, falsehoods, slanders, &c. that there cannot be a more necessary part of moral wisdom, or wherein the exercise of true piety is more concerned, than the art of restraining the tongue, and keeping it within proper bounds, as to all such matters. Dr. Hammond.

24. The fear of the wicked, it shall come upon him:] The evil which the wicked fears shall come upon him.

26. As vinegar to the teeth, &c.] Vinegar is not more offensive to the teeth, nor smoke more vexatious to the eyes, than a remiss and negligent servant is to him that employs him, and relies on him in a weighty business. Bp. Patrick.

27. — the years of the wicked shall be shortened.] See note at Prov. iii. 2.

This truth here announced is confirmed by the nature of things, and the positive appointments of Providence. In the nature of things, men destroy themselves and shorten their days by many kinds of wickedness. By wars and desolations, they unpeople whole countries; by private quarrels, they bring each other to untimely ends; by capital crimes, they cause themselves to be cut off by the hands of justice; by luxury and intemperance, they destroy their bodies; by envy and malice, they consume themselves in the midst of their iniquity. In like manner, according to the same tendency, by peace and charity, men are preserved from destruction; by temperance, their bodies are maintained in health; by quiet of conscience and satisfaction of mind, new life is added to their spirits. Dr. S. Clarke.

31. — the froward tongue shall be cut out.] That is, he that does mischief with his tongue shall be duly punished. Dr. Wells.

32. — know what is acceptable:] What is pleasing to God and edifying to man. See Eph. iv. 29. and v. 3, 4. Dr. Isham.

Chap. XI. ver. 2. When pride cometh, then cometh shame:] Pride makes men foolish and void of caution, and this puts them upon doing things which bring them to dishonour. Dr. S. Clarke.

7. — his expectation shall perish:] The wicked man, having no other expectation than in his own means of strength, will see all his projects dissipated by death. Calmet.

8. — the wicked cometh in his stead.] That is, the wicked falls into those very distresses from which the just is happily freed. Bp. Patrick. See Esther vii. 9.

9. An hypocrite &c.] A dissembling friend, with fair and false words, and semblances, draws his neighbour into some dangerous inconvenience; but a wise and just man will soon perceive his fraud, and will avoid the mischief plotted against him. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

stroyeth his neighbour: but through knowledge shall the just be delivered.

10 When it goeth well with the righteous, the city rejoiceth: and when the wicked perish, there is shouting.

11 By the blessing of the upright the city is exalted: but it is overthrown by the mouth of the wicked.

† Heb. destitute of heart.

12 He that is † void of wisdom despiseth his neighbour: but a man of understanding holdeth his peace.

† Heb. He that walketh, being a talebearer.

13 † A talebearer revealeth secrets: but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter.

[h] 1 Kings 12. 1.

14 [h] Where no counsel is, the people fall: but in the multitude of counsellers there is safety.

† Heb. shall be sore broken.

15 He that is surety for a stranger † shall smart for it: and he that hateth † suretiship is sure.

† Heb. those that strike hands.

16 A gracious woman retaineth honour: and strong men retain riches.

17 The merciful man doeth good to his own soul: but he that is cruel troubleth his own flesh.

18 The wicked worketh a deceitful work: but to him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward.

19 As righteousness tendeth to life: so he that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own death.

20 They that are of a froward heart are abomination to the LORD: but such as are upright in their way are his delight.

21 Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not be unpunished: but the seed of the righteous shall be delivered. Before CHRIST about 1000.

22 As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout, so is a fair woman which † is without discretion. † Heb. departeth from.

23 The desire of the righteous is only good: but the expectation of the wicked is wrath.

24 There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty.

25 [i] † The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself. [i] 2 Cor. 9. 9. † Heb. The soul of blessing.

26 He that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him: but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it.

27 He that diligently seeketh good procureth favour: [k] but he that seeketh mischief, it shall come unto him. [k] Psal. 7. 15, 16. & 9. 15, 16. & 10. 2. & 57. 6.

28 He that trusteth in his riches shall fall: but [l] the righteous shall flourish as a branch. [l] Ps. 1. 3. & 92. 12, &c. Jer. 17. 8.

29 He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind: and the fool shall be servant to the wise of heart.

30 The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that † winneth souls is wise. † Heb. taketh.

31 [m] Behold, the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth: much more the wicked and the sinner. [m] 1 Pet. 4. 18.

---

11. By the blessing of the upright &c.] By God's benediction for their sakes. Dr. Isham.

12. — despiseth his neighbour: &c.] That is, speaks contemptuously of him, or ridicules him. Dr. Wells. Speaks spitefully and scornfully of him; but a man of understanding conceals his thoughts, and will not utter any thing to the reproach of another. Bp. Hall.

14. — in the multitude of counsellers there is safety.] A country is safe when there are many wise men to govern affairs; for, if one fail, others still remain; and what one or two discover not, others may be able to discern. Bp. Patrick.

16. A gracious woman &c.] Beauty and virtue in a woman advance her to honour, as formidable power and strength in men advance them to riches: and, as their principal care is to keep their treasures, so should her's be to preserve her reputation. Bp. Patrick.

21. Though hand join in hand, &c.] Though the wicked man endeavour to strengthen himself and his family by powerful leagues and confederations, he shall not be able to escape the punishment his iniquity deserves. Bp. Patrick. To join hands was anciently, and still continues in the East, a solemn method of taking an oath on making an engagement. To this circumstance allusion seems clearly to be made in these words of Solomon.

22. As a jewel of gold &c.] Allusion is here made to the Eastern custom of wearing valuable rings in the nostril. As such an ornament would be very ill placed in the snout of a swine which grovels continually in the mire, so beauty is equally misplaced in a woman who is without virtue and discretion. Bp. Patrick. See Sir J. Chardin's note on Gen. xxiv. 22.

24. There is that scattereth,] That is, that giveth liberally on all proper occasions. Dr. Wells.

25. The liberal soul shall be made fat:] The liberal "soul," or the liberal "man;" "soul" being often in Hebrew put for "man." Dr. Durell. "Shall be made fat," or rich; and he that "watereth," or giveth plenteously to others, shall be watered, or receive plentifully from God himself. Dr. Wells.

26. He that withholdeth corn,] He that hoardeth up corn in a time of scarcity, on purpose to raise the price. Bp. Patrick.

29. He that troubleth &c.] He that troubleth his own house or family, or whatever else he holds under his authority, by making or fomenting dissensions therein, "shall inherit the wind," shall be deceived as to any advantage he may expect thereby, and gain nothing; and the fool of this description shall be, as is often found by experience, "servant to the wise of heart," who manages his affairs after a prudent manner. Dr. Wells. "He that troubleth his own house," either by improvidently dissipating his property, or by sowing divisions and discord among the members of his family. Calmet.

30. — he that winneth souls] That draws souls to the love of virtue by communicating wisdom seasonably and charitably. Bp. Patrick.

31. — shall be recompensed in the earth:] Shall be recompensed for their righteousness.

CHAP. XII.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

WHOSO loveth instruction loveth knowledge: but he that hateth reproof is brutish.

2 A good man obtaineth favour of the LORD: but a man of wicked devices will he condemn.

3 A man shall not be established by wickedness: but the [a] root of the righteous shall not be moved.

[a] Chap. 10. 25.

4 [b] A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband: but she that maketh ashamed is as rottenness in his bones.

[b] 1 Cor. 11. 7.

5 The thoughts of the righteous are right: but the counsels of the wicked are deceit.

6 [c] The words of the wicked are to lie in wait for blood: but the mouth of the upright shall deliver them.

[c] Chap. 1. 11, 18.

7 [d] The wicked are overthrown, and are not: but the house of the righteous shall stand.

[d] Ps. 37. 37. Chap. 11. 21.

8 A man shall be commended according to his wisdom: but he that is † of a perverse heart shall be despised.

† Heb. perverse of heart.

9 He that is despised, and hath a servant, is better than he that honoureth himself, and lacketh bread.

10 A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast: but the ‖ tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.

‖ Or, bowels.

11 [e] He that tilleth his land shall be satisfied with bread: but he that followeth vain persons is void of understanding.

[e] Chap. 28. 19.

12 The wicked desireth ‖ the net of evil men: but the root of the righteous yieldeth fruit.

‖ Or, the fortress.

13 † [f] The wicked is snared by the transgression of his lips: but the just shall come out of trouble.

† Heb. The snare of the wicked is in the transgression of lips.

[f] Chap. 18. 7.

14 [g] A man shall be satisfied with good by the fruit of his mouth: and the recompence of a man's hands shall be rendered unto him.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[g] Chap. 13. 2.

15 [h] The way of a fool is right in his own eyes: but he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise.

[h] Chap. 3. 7.

16 A fool's wrath is † presently known: but a prudent man covereth shame.

† Heb. in that day.

17 [i] He that speaketh truth sheweth forth righteousness: but a false witness deceit.

[i] Chap. 14. 5.

18 [k] There is that speaketh like the piercings of a sword: but the tongue of the wise is health.

[k] Psal. 57. 4. & 59. 7.

19 The lip of truth shall be established for ever: but a lying tongue is but for a moment.

20 Deceit is in the heart of them that imagine evil: but to the counsellers of peace is joy.

21 There shall no evil happen to the just: but the wicked shall be filled with mischief.

22 Lying lips are abomination to the LORD: but they that deal truly are his delight.

23 [l] A prudent man concealeth knowledge: but the heart of fools proclaimeth foolishness.

[l] Chap. 13. 16. & 15. 2.

24 [m] The hand of the diligent shall bear rule: but the ‖ slothful shall be under tribute.

[m] Chap. 10. 4.

‖ Or, deceitful.

25 [n] Heaviness in the heart of man maketh it stoop: but a good word maketh it glad.

[n] Chap. 15. 13.

26 The righteous is more ‖ excellent than his neighbour: but the way of the wicked seduceth them.

‖ Or, abundant.

27 The slothful man roasteth not that

Chap. XII. ver. 4. — is as rottenness in his bones.] Is an incurable grief and vexation, consuming him and all that he hath. Bp. Patrick.

6. — shall deliver them.] That is, those whom the wicked seek to destroy. Dr. Isham.

9. He that is despised, &c.] He is far happier who makes no shew in the world, but has a competent estate, than he who appears in great splendour and pomp abroad, but wants bread to eat when he is at home. Bp. Patrick.

10. — the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.] The very kindnesses pretended by the wicked are intended only for a cover to bring about their mischievous designs the more securely and effectually. Dr. Wells.

11. — he that followeth vain persons] He that followeth idle persons. Dr. Wells. In some translations it is given, "He that followeth idleness." Calmet.

12. The wicked desireth the net of evil men:] The wicked man desires to employ those means of fraudulent circumvention, which he sees some crafty oppressors use to their advantage. Bp. Hall.

14. A man shall &c.] A good man shall, by God's merciful retribution, find comfort and benefit, both to himself and others, from the gracious words of holy counsel, which proceed from His mouth, and also from the holy works of His hands. Bp. Hall.

15. The way of a fool is right &c.] Whoever is wise, is apt to suspect and be diffident of himself, and upon that account is willing to "hearken unto counsel;" whereas the foolish man, being in proportion to his folly full of himself, and swallowed up in conceit, will seldom take any counsel but his own, and for that very reason, because it is his own. Dr. J. Balguy.

16. A fool's wrath &c.] A fool is soon provoked, and shews his anger in an indecent manner by his countenance, words, or actions; but a prudent man "covereth shame;" that is, is not transported with passion in an unseemly manner. Dr. Wells.

19. — a lying tongue is but for a moment.] A liar is soon detected, being apt to contradict himself, and to blast his reputation for ever. Bp. Patrick.

23. A prudent man &c.] A prudent man will not display his knowledge, except on proper occasions; but a fool on all occasions betrays his ignorance and folly. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Durell.

25. — a good word maketh it glad.] The kind and encouraging discourses of a friend raise it and make it glad. Bp. Patrick.

27. The slothful man &c.] The slothful man for want of ex-

Before CHRIST about 1000.

which he took in hunting: but the substance of a diligent man is precious.

28 In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death.

CHAP. XIII.

A WISE son heareth his father's instruction: but a scorner heareth not rebuke.

[a] Chap. 12. 14.

2 [a] A man shall eat good by the fruit of his mouth: but the soul of the transgressors shall eat violence.

3 He that keepeth his mouth keepeth his life: but he that openeth wide his lips shall have destruction.

4 The soul of the sluggard desireth, and hath nothing: but the soul of the diligent shall be made fat.

5 A righteous man hateth lying: but a wicked man is loathsome, and cometh to shame.

[b] Chap. 11. 3, 5, 6.

6 [b] Righteousness keepeth him that is upright in the way: but wickedness overthroweth † the sinner.

† Heb. sin.

7 There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing: there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches.

8 The ransom of a man's life are his riches: but the poor heareth not rebuke.

[c] Job 18. 6. & 21. 17. || Or, candle.

9 The light of the righteous rejoiceth: [c] but the || lamp of the wicked shall be put out.

10 Only by pride cometh contention: but with the well advised is wisdom.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[d] Chap. 10. 2. & 20. 21. † Heb. with the hand.

11 [d] Wealth gotten by vanity shall be diminished: but he that gathereth † by labour shall increase.

12 Hope deferred maketh the heart sick: but when the desire cometh, it is a tree of life.

13 Whoso despiseth the word shall be destroyed: but he that feareth the commandment || shall be rewarded.

|| Or, shall be in peace.

[e] Chap. 14. 27.

14 [e] The law of the wise is a fountain of life, to depart from the snares of death.

15 Good understanding giveth favour: but the way of transgressors is hard.

[f] Chap. 12. 23. & 15. 2. † Heb. spreadeth.

16 [f] Every prudent man dealeth with knowledge: but a fool † layeth open his folly.

17 A wicked messenger falleth into mischief: but a faithful ambassador is health.

18 Poverty and shame shall be to him that refuseth instruction: but he that regardeth reproof shall be honoured.

19 The desire accomplished is sweet to the soul: but it is abomination to fools to depart from evil.

20 He that walketh with wise men shall be wise: but a companion of fools † shall be destroyed.

† Heb. shall be broken.

21 Evil pursueth sinners: but to the righteous good shall be repayed.

22 A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children: and the [g] wealth of the sinner is laid up for the just.

[g] Job 27. 17.

---

ertion loses even the fruit of his former labours; but the diligent man sets a just value on it, and converts it to its proper use.

28. In the way of righteousness is life; &c] This is, as it were, the sum and substance of the chapter, and a proper conclusion of all that we have been taught in the foregoing maxims of Divine philosophy; namely, that religion and a holy conversation are the only sure and infallible way to happiness. So excellent, and so far beyond every other scheme, is this "way of righteousness," that not one of all the actions and pursuits in which it engages us shall ever end in misery and disappointment. "In the pathway thereof there is no death;" but, saith the Gospel, seconding the royal moralist, "All things work together for good to them that love God," Rom. viii. 28. Wogan.

Chap. XIII. ver. 2. A man shall eat good &c.] He that speaks well of others, and gives them faithful counsel, shall reap the benefit thereof himself; and they that perfidiously calumniate or deceive others, shall suffer themselves the injury which they design to do their neighbours. Bp. Patrick.

7. There is that maketh himself rich, &c.] There are those who are rich in their poverty, because they are content, and use generously what they have; there are others, who in the midst of their riches are really poor, from their insatiable covetousness or profusion. Calmet.

8. The ransom of a man's life &c.] The rich, on account of their wealth, are sometimes accused of high crimes, that they may pay a large sum to save their lives; but nobody takes the trouble of finding fault with the poor, or bringing charges against him. Bp. Patrick.

9. The light of the righteous &c.] The happiness of the righteous shines like the sun, and increases to their endless joy; but the happiness of the wicked is as feeble as the light of a candle, and will soon be extinguished. Bp. Patrick.

Or, "The lamp of the wicked shall be put out:" the seeming and false mirth of wicked men, with which they are vainly elated, will soon be put out and end in sorrow. Bp. Hall.

12. Hope deferred maketh the heart sick:] He speaks of a case, when by repeated disappointments the hope seems to be removed farther off from day to day; which is justly said to sicken the heart. Dr. Durell.

13. Whoso despiseth the word &c.] Despiseth the good counsels and admonitions that are given him. Bp. Patrick.

14. The law of the wise &c.] The law of God, which is the matter and scope to which all the instruction of wise teachers tends, is that fountain, from which spiritual and eternal life flows, and the only means of delivering the soul from the snares of eternal death. Bp. Hall.

15. Good understanding giveth favour:] A prudent, pious, and regular behaviour, is most amiable and acceptable to all men; but the conversation of those who live by no law but their own lusts, like a rough way, is grievously uneasy. Bp. Patrick.

20. He that walketh with wise men] That is, who chooses wise persons for his companions, and loses no opportunity of receiving their advice and instruction. Dr. Jortin.

21. — to the righteous good shall be repayed.] This sentence expresses the general truth, that the practice of righteousness is men's true interest, even in the present life; and that wickedness is attended with great misery generally, even here as well as hereafter. Dr. S. Clarke.

22. — the wealth of the sinner is laid up for the just.] Being transferred from his family to another which is virtuous. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

23 [h] Much food is in the tillage of the poor: but there is that is destroyed for want of judgment.

[h] Chap. 12. 11.

24 [i] He that spareth his rod hateth his son: but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes.

[i] Chap. 23. 13.

25 [k] The righteous eateth to the satisfying of his soul: but the belly of the wicked shall want.

[k] Ps. 37. 3. & 34. 10.

CHAP. XIV.

EVERY wise woman buildeth her house: but the foolish plucketh it down with her hands.

2 He that walketh in his uprightness feareth the LORD: [a] but he that is perverse in his ways depiseth him.

[a] Job 12. 4.

3 In the mouth of the foolish is a rod of pride: but the lips of the wise shall preserve them.

4 Where no oxen are, the crib is clean: but much increase is by the strength of the ox.

5 [b] A faithful witness will not lie: but a false witness will utter lies.

[b] Exod. 20. 16. & 23. 1. chap. 6. 19. & 12. 17.

6 A scorner seeketh wisdom, and findeth it not: but [c] knowledge is easy unto him that understandeth.

[c] Chap. 8. 9.

7 Go from the presence of a foolish man, when thou perceivest not in him the lips of knowledge.

8 The wisdom of the prudent is to understand his way: but the folly of fools is deceit.

9 [d] Fools make a mock at sin: but among the righteous there is favour.

[d] Chap. 10 23.

10 The heart knoweth † his own bitterness; and a stranger doth not intermeddle with his joy.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

† Heb. the bitterness of his soul.

11 The house of the wicked shall be overthrown: but the tabernacle of the upright shall flourish.

12 [e] There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death.

[e] Chap. 16. 25.

13 Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful; and the end of that mirth is heaviness.

14 The backslider in heart shall be [f] filled with his own ways: and a good man shall be satisfied from himself.

[f] Chap. 1. 31.

15 The simple believeth every word: but the prudent man looketh well to his going.

16 A wise man feareth, and departeth from evil: but the fool rageth, and is confident.

17 He that is soon angry dealeth foolishly: and a man of wicked devices is hated.

18 The simple inherit folly: but the prudent are crowned with knowledge.

19 The evil bow before the good; and the wicked at the gates of the righteous.

20 [g] The poor is hated even of his own neighbour: but † the rich hath many friends.

[g] Chap. 19. 7.

† Heb. many are the lovers of the rich.

21 He that despiseth his neighbour sinneth: [h] but he that hath mercy on the poor, happy is he.

[h] Ps. 112. 9.

22 Do they not err that devise evil? but mercy and truth shall be to them that devise good.

---

24. He that spareth his rod &c.] A fond indulgence of children is frequently their utter ruin, and in truth is not love, but hatred. Abp. Tillotson.

25. The righteous eateth &c.] A righteous man never wants a sufficiency, because his desires are moderate, and he makes a temperate use of God's blessings: whereas wicked men bring themselves to poverty by riot and dissipation. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. — buildeth her house:] By her diligent and prudent management raises up a family, and increases its riches and reputation. Bp. Patrick.

3. In the mouth of the foolish &c.] The tongue of the fool is a scourge by which his own pride is lashed; but the lips of the wise are a safe defence to himself. Bp. Hall.

4. Where no oxen are, &c.] If the fields lie fallow and neglected, a famine will follow; but good husbandry bestowed upon them makes great plenty.—Oxen were the principal instruments of husbandry in Palestine, being employed, not only in ploughing the land, and carrying home the crop, but also in treading out the corn. Bp. Patrick.

6. A scorner seeketh wisdom, and findeth it not:] He that comes to seek after knowledge with a mind to scorn and censure, shall be sure to find matter enough for his humour, but none for his instruction. Lord Bacon.

—— but knowledge is easy unto him that understandeth.] But he who does not deem himself too wise to learn, easily and quickly attains the knowledge of things necessary and useful. Bp. Patrick.

9. Fools make a mock at sin:] Wantonly commit sin, think nothing of injuring others.

—— but among the righteous there is favour.] Righteous men do not injure each other, but mutually confer what kindness they can. Dr. Wells.

10. The heart knoweth &c.] Every man is best acquainted with his own secret sorrows, and knows where he is inwardly wrung, while the world thinks him happy; as, on the other hand, he may have hidden occasions of joy, which cannot be judged of by others. Bp. Hall.

14. The backslider in heart &c.] He that is froward and perverse, and willingly falls from his former good purposes, shall be sure to suffer the punishment of his wicked courses. Bp. Hall.

—— a good man shall be satisfied from himself.] A good man hath the pleasure of being wise and acting reasonably, the pleasure of being justified to himself in what he does, and of being acquitted by the sentence of his own mind. There is great pleasure in being innocent, because that prevents guilt and trouble; it is pleasant to be virtuous and good, because that is to excel others; and it is pleasant to grow better, because that is to excel ourselves. Abp. Tillotson.

19. The evil bow before the good;] The meaning is, The wicked finally yield the ascendancy in life to the good.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

23 In all labour there is profit: but the talk of the lips tendeth only to penury.

24 The crown of the wise is their riches: but the foolishness of fools is folly.

[i] Ver. 5.

25 [i] A true witness delivereth souls: but a deceitful witness speaketh lies.

26 In the fear of the LORD is strong confidence: and his children shall have a place of refuge.

[k] Chap. 13. 14.

27 [k] The fear of the LORD is a fountain of life, to depart from the snares of death.

28 In the multitude of people is the king's honour: but in the want of people is the destruction of the prince.

† Heb. short of spirit.

29 He that is slow to wrath is of great understanding: but he that is † hasty of spirit exalteth folly.

30 A sound heart is the life of the flesh: but envy the rottenness of the bones.

[l] Chap. 17. 5. Matth. 25. 40.

31 [l] He that oppresseth the poor reproacheth his Maker: but he that honoureth him hath mercy on the poor.

32 The wicked is driven away in his wickedness: but the righteous hath hope in his death.

33 Wisdom resteth in the heart of him that hath understanding: but that which is in the midst of fools is made known.

† Heb. to nations.

34 Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach † to any people.

35 The king's favour is toward a wise servant: but his wrath is against him that causeth shame.

CHAP. XV.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[a] Chap. 25. 15.

A [a] SOFT answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger.

[b] Ver. 28. chap. 12. 23. & 13. 16. † Heb. boileth, or, bubbleth.

2 The tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright: [b] but the mouth of fools † poureth out foolishness.

[c] Job 34. 21. chap. 5. 21. Jer. 16. 17. & 32. 19. Hebr. 4. 13. † Heb. The healing of the tongue.

3 [c] The eyes of the LORD are in every place, beholding the evil and the good.

4 † A wholsome tongue is a tree of life: but perverseness therein is a breach in the spirit.

[d] Chap. 10. 1.

5 [d] A fool despiseth his father's instruction: but he that regardeth reproof is prudent.

6 In the house of the righteous is much treasure: but in the revenues of the wicked is trouble.

7 The lips of the wise disperse knowledge: but the heart of the foolish doeth not so.

[e] Chap. 21. 27. Amos 5. 22. Isai. 1. 11. & 66. 3. Jer. 6. 20. & 7. 22.

8 [e] The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the LORD: but the prayer of the upright is his delight.

9 The way of the wicked is an abomination unto the LORD: but he loveth him that followeth after righteousness.

‖ Or, Instruction.

10 ‖ Correction is grievous unto him that forsaketh the way: and he that hateth reproof shall die.

[f] Job 26. 6.

11 [f] Hell and destruction are before the LORD: how much more then the hearts of the children of men?

12 A scorner loveth not one that re-

---

23. — but the talk of the lips &c.] He that spendeth his time in idle talk, and doth nothing, will be certain of coming to poverty. Bp. Hall.

24. The crown of the wise &c.] Riches are a singular advantage and ornament to a wise and virtuous man, who knows how to use them; but such is the folly of wicked men, that their wealth makes them the more vile, and serves to render their folly more conspicuous. Bp. Patrick.

29. — he that is hasty of spirit exalteth folly.] Exposes his own folly, and makes it apparent to every one. Bp. Patrick.

Anger is certainly one of the most foolish passions of human nature, and commonly betrays men to the most imprudent and unreasonable things. Abp. Tillotson.

30. A sound heart is the life] A quiet, honest, contented mind, is "the life of the flesh," conduces much to health and happiness. Dr. Wells.

32. — the righteous hath hope in his death.] These words have no sense or meaning except on the supposition of a future state: for hope always looks forward, and has respect unto something that is future: but, if death puts an end to our being; if, according to the creed of the unbeliever, we die like brute animals, and have no after-existence; what hope can the righteous have in his death, any more than the wicked, or how can either of them have any hope at all? This hope can be built on nothing, but the belief of the soul's immortality, and a future state of retribution. Dr. Ibbot.

33. — resteth in the heart] That is, is locked up in his breast, till the proper time comes of drawing it forth. Dr. Isham.

34. Righteousness exalteth a nation:] We must enlarge in this sentence the meaning of the word "righteousness" to the general strain of the Book of Proverbs, in which the words wisdom and righteousness are commonly used very comprehensively to signify all religion and virtue. Abp. Tillotson.

—— sin is a reproach] Brings down calamities and misery. Dr. Wells. This is an admirable sentence, and ought to be engraved in all the most publick places of every nation. Calmet.

35. — that causeth shame.] That disgraces his master's government by his evil and unfaithful management of the trust or office committed to him. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. A soft answer &c.] Solomon here gives this general caution, that we should not think it enough, never to begin strife and contention; but if others begin it, we should not continue it by rough answers, but endeavour presently to make an end by softening the matter, and yield much for the sake of tranquillity. Bp. Patrick.

3. The eyes of the Lord &c.] A continual sense of the Divine presence is the best and only true restraint from vice, the strongest and most encouraging motive to virtue. Wogan.

4. A wholsome tongue] A sound (or a healing) tongue, a tongue which imparts sound advice, or pacifies anger. Dr. Durell. "Is a tree of life;" is an incomparable blessing to all within its influence. But perverseness therein hurts or wounds the soul. Bp. Patrick.

8 The sacrifice of the wicked &c.] The sacrifice of the wicked, however costly it may be, is an abomination to the Lord; but the bare prayer of the upright, though he be unable to bring any costly offerings or sacrifices, is His delight. Dr. Wells.

11. Hell and destruction &c.] Even the devouring grave, and the lowest depths of the earth, lie open to the eyes of the Lord; how much more does He behold the bottom of man's heart! Bp. Hall. See the notes on Job xxvi. 6.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

proveth him: neither will he go unto the wise.

[g] Chap. 17. 22. 13 [g] A merry heart maketh a chearful countenance: but by sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken.

14 The heart of him that hath understanding seeketh knowledge: but the mouth of fools feedeth on foolishness.

15 All the days of the afflicted are evil: but he that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast.

[h] Ps. 37. 16. 1 Tim. 6. 6. chap. 16. 8. 16 [h] Better is little with the fear of the LORD than great treasure and trouble therewith.

[i] Chap. 17. 1. 17 [i] Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith.

[k] Chap. 26. 21. & 29. 22. 18 [k] A wrathful man stirreth up strife: but he that is slow to anger appeaseth strife.

19 The way of the slothful man is as an hedge of thorns: but the way of the righteous † is made plain.

† Heb. is raised up as a causey.

[l] Chap. 10. 1. 20 [l] A wise son maketh a glad father: but a foolish man despiseth his mother.

[m] Chap. 10. 23. † Heb. void of heart. 21 [m] Folly is joy to him that is † destitute of wisdom: but a man of understanding walketh uprightly.

[n] Chap. 11. 14. 22 [n] Without counsel purposes are disappointed: but in the multitude of counsellers they are established.

† Heb. in his season. 23 A man hath joy by the answer of his mouth: and a word spoken † in due season, how good is it!

24 [o] The way of life is above to the wise, that he may depart from hell beneath.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

25 [p] The LORD will destroy the house of the proud: but he will establish the border of the widow.

26 [q] The thoughts of the wicked are an abomination to the LORD: but the words of the pure are † pleasant words.

[o] Phil. 3. 20. Coloss. 3. 1, 2. [p] Chap. 12. 7. & 14. 11. [q] Chap. 6. 18. † Heb. words of pleasantness.

27 He that is greedy of gain troubleth his own house; but he that hateth gifts shall live.

28 The heart of the righteous studieth to answer: but the mouth of the wicked poureth out evil things.

[r] Ps. 34. 16. & 145. 18. 29 [r] The LORD is far from the wicked: but he heareth the prayer of the righteous.

30 The light of the eyes rejoiceth the heart: and a good report maketh the bones fat.

31 The ear that heareth the reproof of life abideth among the wise.

‖ Or, correction. ‖ Or, obeyeth. † Heb. possesseth an heart. [s] Chap. 18. 12. 32 He that refuseth ‖ instruction despiseth his own soul: but he that ‖ heareth reproof † getteth understanding.

33 The fear of the LORD is the instruction of wisdom; and [s] before honour is humility.

CHAP. XVI.

[a] Ver. 9. chap. 19. 21. & 20. 24. Jer. 10. 23. ‖ Or, disposings. THE [a] ‖ preparations of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue, is from the LORD.

---

13. — by sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken.] When grief and sorrow seize on the heart, they deject, enfeeble, and break the most courageous spirit. Bp. Patrick.

16. — and trouble therewith.] That disquiet and confusion of thoughts which, where there is no religious fear of God, is apt to attend on abundance of wealth. Bp. Patrick.

17. — a dinner of herbs where love is,] That is, It is better to have peace without plenty, than plenty without peace. Seed. "A dinner of herbs," or of green pottage, was the poorest entertainment in Eastern countries, and "a stalled (or crammed) ox," an ox put up in a stall, and there fatted, was esteemed the best entertainment. Thus in the New Testament, the marriage provision which the king made for his son's wedding was "oxen and fatlings," Matt. xxii. 4. And "the fatted calf" was brought forth to entertain the returning prodigal. In the same manner Homer describes the entertainments of his greatest princes and heroes, as consisting almost entirely of fatted oxen and other animals. Bochart.

19. The way of the slothful man &c.] The proceedings of the slothful man are full of embarrassments and uneasiness; like a man breaking through a hedge of thorns, he moves with difficulty and pain.

23. A man hath joy &c.] It is a great pleasure to a man to give wholesome counsel, and to see the good success of it; and the greatest of all, both to himself and to others, is to have it given so seasonably, that a business has been easily effected by it, which would not have been done without it. Bp. Patrick.

24. The way of life is above to the wise,] He that is truly wise has his affections and conversation above; and in the holy way of obedience walketh to eternal life. Bp. Hall.

25. — he will establish the border of the widow.] He will preserve the poor widow, who has no helper, in her right, when insolent persons invade it. Bp. Patrick.

27. — troubleth his own house;] Throweth his house or family into confusion.

—— he that hateth gifts] That hateth bribes and all unlawful gains, "shall live" and prosper. Dr. Wells.

28. The heart of the righteous &c.] A good man does not speak without consideration: but bad men are rash, and forward to utter their mind. Bp. Patrick.

30. The light of the eyes &c.] As light gives pleasure to the eye, and pours joy into the recesses of the heart, so a good reputation creates inward satisfaction, and contributes to the health of the body. Calmet.

31. — the reproof of life] Salutary reproof.

33. — before honour is humility.] Humility, docility, the fear of God, are the means which lead to honour and true wisdom. Calmet. Our Lord Himself has made "humility" the first entrance to the "honour" of being His disciple, as well as the first step in His scale of blessings, Matt. v. And with this important maxim the chapter concludes, as the sum total of the foregoing precepts, "Before honour is humility." Wogan.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. The preparations of the heart &c.] The literal version of the original gives the best and truest sense of this text, "To man are the dispositions of the heart, but from the Lord is the answer of the tongue;" that is, Man hath a power over his thoughts to propose and dispose, to intend and contrive; but to bring such thoughts to effect, or even to utter them with the tongue, especially to utter them wisely, depends wholly upon God. A similar sentence occurs in this chapter at ver. 9; also chap. xx. 24, &c. Wogan.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

2 [b] All the ways of a man are clean in his own eyes; but the LORD weigheth the spirits.

[b] Chap. 21. 2.

3 [c] † Commit thy works unto the LORD, and thy thoughts shall be established.

[c] Ps. 37. 5. & 55. 22. Matt. 6. 25. Luke 12. 22. 1 Pet. 5. 7.

4 The LORD hath made all things for himself: [d] yea, even the wicked for the day of evil.

† Heb. Roll.

[d] Job 21. 30.

5 [e] Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the LORD: though hand join in hand, he shall not be † unpunished.

[e] Chap. 6. 17. & 8. 13.

† Heb. held innocent.

6 By mercy and truth iniquity is purged: and by the fear of the LORD men depart from evil.

7 When a man's ways please the LORD, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.

8 [f] Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues without right.

[f] Ps. 37. 16. chap. 15. 16.

9 [g] A man's heart deviseth his way: but the LORD directeth his steps.

[g] Ver. 1.

10 † A divine sentence is in the lips of the king: his mouth transgresseth not in judgment.

† Heb. Divination.

11 [h] A just weight and balance are the LORD's: † all the weights of the bag are his work.

[h] Lev. 19. 36. chap. 11. 1.

† Heb. all the stones.

12 It is an abomination to kings to commit wickedness: for the throne is established by righteousness.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

13 Righteous lips are the delight of kings; and they love him that speaketh right.

14 The wrath of a king is as messengers of death: but a wise man will pacify it.

15 In the light of the king's countenance is life; and [i] his favour is as a cloud of the latter rain.

[i] Chap. 19. 12.

16 [k] How much better is it to get wisdom than gold? and to get understanding rather to be chosen than silver?

[k] Chap. 8. 11.

17 The highway of the upright is to depart from evil: he that keepeth his way preserveth his soul.

18 [l] Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall.

[l] Chap. 11. 2. & 18. 12.

19 Better it is to be of an humble spirit with the lowly, than to divide the spoil with the proud.

20 ‖ He that handleth a matter wisely shall find good: and whoso [m] trusteth in the LORD, happy is he.

‖ Or, He that understandeth a matter.

[m] Psal. 2. 12. & 34. 8. & 125. 1. Isai. 30. 18. Jer. 17. 7.

21 The wise in heart shall be called prudent: and the sweetness of the lips increaseth learning.

---

2. All the ways of a man &c.] Every man is apt to think the best of his own actions, and to justify himself in his own courses; but the Lord judgeth and examineth the inward disposition, the soul and spirit of a man. Bp. Hall.

3. Commit thy works &c.] When thou undertakest any thing, implore the Divine blessing; and, committing the success of it to God's providence, leave it to Him to give what issue to it He pleases; which is the surest way to have thy honest designs accomplished. Bp. Patrick.

4. The Lord hath made &c.] This text may be rendered, with much better sense, and much nearer to the Hebrew, "God hath ordained every thing to that which is fit to it, and the wicked hath He ordained for the day of evil;" that is, The wisdom of God hath fitted one thing to another, punishment to sin, the evil day to the evil doer. Abp. Tillotson.

"Even the wicked for the day of evil;" that is, Even the most wicked and the worst of men are under His direction and control: however they may be set on mischief, they can proceed no further than God permits, being instruments only in His hands to afflict others, and bring evil upon them. Dr. Waterland.

The meaning is, as Scripture elsewhere expresses, "The wicked are reserved to the day of destruction, they shall be brought forth to the day of wrath," Job xxi. 30. Dr. S. Clarke.

The wicked are indeed the work of God's hands, as being a part of the creation; and He gave them the faculties which they have abused and perverted to a sinful purpose: but this power to abuse and pervert is inseparable from the character of a free agent. The true meaning of this passage is, that God made all things to display His own glorious attributes; and that even wicked men, whose existence and frequent prosperity may seem scarcely reconcileable with the Divine perfections, will, in the end, be found to furnish the strongest proof of His longsuffering in bearing with their iniquities, and of His power and justice in punishing their incorrigible depravity; upon such men "the day of evil" will certainly come. Bp. Tomline.

6. By mercy and truth iniquity is purged:] By a sincere observance of God's law, iniquity is most effectually purged away: sorrow for sin may begin repentance, but obedience only completes it. Wogan.

10. A divine sentence is &c.] God is present in an especial manner with a pious king, inspiring his mind with sagacity to penetrate doubtful and obscure things, that all causes may be decided by him so justly and exactly that no man may be wronged in the judgment which he passes. Bp. Patrick.

11. — all the weights of the bag are his work.] That is, God requires exact justice in all our dealings, and therefore it is our duty to take care that the weights and balance be just. Dr. Wells. In the margin, "all the stones."—Stones were anciently used for weights. Dr. Isham.

14. The wrath of a king &c.] The wrath of a king strikes terrour into him with whom he is offended, no less than if the sentence of death were pronounced upon him; but a virtuous and prudent man appeases his anger and makes a reconciliation. Bp. Patrick.

—— as messengers of death:] It is usual in Turkey, when a warrant for a person's death is procured, for an executioner to carry it to him, and execute it immediately. The same seems to have been the case in Palestine, 1 Kings ii. 25. Matt. xiv. 10. This may perhaps be considered as giving peculiar energy to the term "messengers of death" here used. Harmer.

15. — as a cloud of the latter rain.] As a cloud producing the grateful rain of spring. See note at Deut. xi. 14. Job uses a similar comparison, to express how he was esteemed and desired by his people, Job xxix. 23. Calmet.

17. The highway of the upright] The habitual and accustomed course of the upright. Wogan.

18. Pride goeth before destruction,] That is, pride and haughtiness commonly bring men to shame and destruction; they lead to it, and generally end in it. Dr. Waterland. Pride makes men rash and peevish, obstinate and insolent; and this seldom fails to bring down ruin upon them. Dr. S. Clarke.

19. — to divide the spoil with the proud.] To partake with the proud in the rapine and spoil obtained from the meek and lowly. Bp. Patrick.

21. — the sweetness of the lips increaseth learning.] He who

Before CHRIST about 1060.

22 [a] Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it: but the instruction of fools is folly.

[a] Chap. 13. 14.

23 The heart of the wise † teacheth his mouth, and addeth learning to his lips.

† Heb. maketh wise.

24 Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul, and health to the bones.

25 [c] There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death.

[c] Chap. 14. 12.

26 † He that laboureth laboureth for himself; for his mouth † craveth it of him.

† Heb. The soul of him that laboureth.

27 † An ungodly man diggeth up evil: and in his lips there is as a burning fire.

† Heb. boweth unto him.

28 [p] A froward man † soweth strife: and a whisperer separateth chief friends.

† Heb. A man of Belial.

29 A violent man enticeth his neighbour, and leadeth him into the way that is not good.

[p] Chap. 6. 14, 19. & 15. 18. & 26. 21. & 29. 22.

30 He shutteth his eyes to devise froward things: moving his lips he bringeth evil to pass.

† Heb. sendeth forth.

31 The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness.

32 He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city.

33 The lot is cast into the lap; but the whole disposing thereof is of the LORD.

CHAP. XVII.

[a] Chap. 15. 17.

BETTER is [a] a dry morsel, and quietness therewith, than an house full of ‖ sacrifices with strife.

‖ Or, good cheer.

2 A wise servant shall have rule over a son that causeth shame, and shall have part of the inheritance among the brethren.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

3 [b] The fining pot is for silver, and the furnace for gold: but the LORD trieth the hearts.

[b] Ps. 26. 2. chap. 27. 21. Jer. 17. 10. Mal. 3. 3.

4 A wicked doer giveth heed to false lips; and a liar giveth ear to a naughty tongue.

5 [c] Whoso mocketh the poor reproacheth his Maker: and he that is glad at calamities shall not be † unpunished.

[c] Chap. 14. 31.

† Heb. held innocent.

6 [d] Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers.

[d] Ps. 127. 3. & 128. 3.

7 † Excellent speech becometh not a fool: much less do † lying lips a prince.

† Heb. A lip of excellency.

8 [e] A gift is as a † precious stone in the eyes of him that hath it: whithersoever it turneth, it prospereth.

† Heb. a lip of lying.

[e] Chap. 18. 16.

† Heb. stone of grace.

9 [f] He that covereth a transgression ‖ seeketh love; but he that repeateth a matter separateth very friends.

[f] Chap. 10. 12.

‖ Or, procureth.

10 ‖ A reproof entereth more into a wise man than an hundred stripes into a fool.

‖ Or, A reproof entereth more into a wise man, than to strike a fool an hundred times.

11 An evil man seeketh only rebellion: therefore a cruel messenger shall be sent against him.

12 Let a bear robbed of her whelps meet a man, rather than a fool in his folly.

13 Whoso [g] rewardeth evil for good, evil shall not depart from his house.

[g] Rom. 12. 17. 1 Thess. 5. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 9.

14 The beginning of strife is as when one letteth out water: therefore leave off contention, before it be meddled with.

---

has the powerful charms of eloquence to convey his mind pleasantly to others, adds a greater value to his wisdom, and makes it more diffusive, as well as more instructive to the world. Bp. Patrick.

26. He that laboureth &c.] A man needs no other inducement to labour than his own profit and necessity; for it is by his labour that he must sustain himself and uphold nature, which craveth it of him. Bp. Hall.

27. — diggeth up evil:] This expression signifies labouring after evil with toil and application, searching for it as a person searching for a hidden treasure. "In his lips there is as a burning fire;" he carries on his tongue a burning fire, which spreads on every side destruction and devastation. Calmet.

30. He shutteth his eyes] Expressing the profound study with which he contrives the ruin of others. Bp. Patrick.

32. — than he that taketh a city.] It is a greater thing, in case of great provocation, to calm a man's own spirit, than to storm and take a strong city. Abp. Tillotson.

33. The lot is cast &c.] The lots are thrown at random, but the overruling hand of God disposeth of them, how they shall light. Bp. Hall.

Hence every good man may draw this comfortable reflexion, that he is not left to the caprice or hazard of a blind chance; but that his least, as well as greatest, concerns, are under the constant and infallible direction of Infinite wisdom, which maketh "all things work together for good to them that love God." Wogan.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. — a dry morsel,] A morsel of bread, without butter or oil, which the Hebrews were wont to use. Bp. Patrick.

— an house full of sacrifices] When sacrifices were offered in the temple, it was usual for the person to have a feast at home with his friends on the remains of the animal slain. Thus a house full of sacrifices means a house full of good provision. See Prov. vii. 14. Calmet.

2. A wise servant shall have rule &c.] Probity and prudence are so much better than mere riches and noble birth, that a wise and faithful servant sometimes arrives at the honour of being appointed the governour of a son, whose folly and wickedness make him a discredit to his family. Bp. Patrick.

8. A gift is as a precious stone &c.] Secret gifts are wont to win favour to those who bring them; and, if they fall into the hands of corrupt judges, they have power to draw them on either side, and to sway any cause whatever. Bp. Hall.

9. He that covereth a transgression seeketh love;] He that concealeth within himself an offence done to him by his friend, takes a course to maintain friendship and love. Bp. Hall.

11. An evil man seeketh only &c.] An evil man is so refractory, that he has shaken off all reverence to God or to his governours, and is so wholly bent on mischief, that he cannot be reclaimed; therefore a severe execution shall be done upon him, to cut him off in his folly without mercy. Bp. Patrick.

12. — a bear robbed of her whelps] The female bear is eminent for intense affection to her young, and dreadfully furious when deprived of them, as many writers have observed. Parkhurst.

14. The beginning of strife &c.] This observation is no less true than the image is lively: while passion is kept within its proper channel, all is safe and well; but if once we suffer the

Before CHRIST about 1000.

15 [h] He that justifieth the wicked, and he that condemneth the just, even they both are abomination to the LORD.

[h] Exod. 23. 7. Is. 5. 23. ch. 24. 24.

16 Wherefore is there a price in the hand of a fool to get wisdom, seeing he hath no heart to it?

17 [i] A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity.

[i] Chap. 18. 24.

18 [k] A man void of † understanding striketh hands, and becometh surety in the presence of his friend.

[k] Chap. 6. 1. & 11. 15. † Heb. heart.

19 He loveth transgression that loveth strife: and he that exalteth his gate seeketh destruction.

20 † He that hath a froward heart findeth no good: and he that hath a perverse tongue falleth into mischief.

† Heb. The froward of heart.

21 [l] He that begetteth a fool doeth it to his sorrow: and the father of a fool hath no joy.

[l] Chap. 10. 1.

22 [m] A merry heart doeth good ‖ like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones.

[m] Chap. 15. 13. & 12. 25. ‖ Or, to a medicine.

23 A wicked man taketh a gift out of the bosom to pervert the ways of judgment.

24 [n] Wisdom is before him that hath understanding; but the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth.

[n] Eccles. 2. 14. & 8. 1.

25 [o] A foolish son is a grief to his father, and bitterness to her that bare him.

[o] Chap. 10. 1. & 15. 20. & 19. 13.

26 Also to punish the just is not good, nor to strike princes for equity.

27 [p] He that hath knowledge spareth his words: and a man of understanding is of ‖ an excellent spirit.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[p] Jam. 1. 19. ‖ Or, a cool spirit.

28 [q] Even a fool, when he holdeth his peace, is counted wise: and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding.

[q] Job 13. 5.

CHAP. XVIII.

‖ THROUGH desire a man, having separated himself, seeketh and intermeddleth with all wisdom.

‖ Or, He that separateth himself seeketh according to his desire, and intermeddleth in every business.

2 A fool hath no delight in understanding, but that his heart may discover itself.

3 When the wicked cometh, then cometh also contempt, and with ignominy reproach.

4 [a] The words of a man's mouth are as deep waters, and the wellspring of wisdom as a flowing brook.

[a] Chap. 20. 5.

5 [b] It is not good to accept the person of the wicked, to overthrow the righteous in judgment.

[b] Chap. 24. 23. Lev. 19. 15. Deut. 1. 17. & 16. 19.

6 A fool's lips enter into contention, and his mouth calleth for strokes.

[c] Chap. 10. 14. & 12. 13. & 13. 3.

7 [c] A fool's mouth is his destruction, and his lips are the snare of his soul.

[d] Chap. 12. 18. & 26. 22.

8 [d] The words of a ‖ talebearer are ‖ as wounds, and they go down into the † innermost parts of the belly.

‖ Or, whisperer. ‖ Or, like as when men are wounded. † Heb. chambers.

9 He also that is slothful in his work is brother to him that is a great waster.

---

banks, that should dam it, to be broken down, it roars and rages like a mighty torrent, and overspreads and carries all before it. Dean Stanhope.

16. Wherefore is there a price &c.] A wealthy fool doth in vain hope by means of his riches to purchase wisdom, since he has not a heart that is capable of it. Bp. Hall.

17. — a brother is born for adversity.] To give help in the season of adversity. Dr. Wells.

18. — striketh hands, &c.] See notes at chap. vi. 1.

19. — he that exalteth his gate] This seems to be a figurative expression for a haughty carriage in general. Dr. Durell.

22. — a broken spirit drieth the bones.] Preys upon the strength, and eats out the vigour of the constitution. Bp. Horne.

23. — taketh a gift out of the bosom] The Hebrews used to carry in their bosom their purse, money, and all valuables. Thus perhaps the expression here may not be intended to convey any idea of secrecy, but merely to mark out something precious and valuable, as being carried in the bosom. Calmet.

24. — the eyes of a fool &c.] The eyes of a fool are constantly wandering every where, and his thoughts fix on nothing that may avail to his good. Bp. Hall.

26. — princes] Or, "honourable men." Schultens.

27. — is of an excellent spirit.] In the margin, "of a cool spirit." A man of understanding is of a well tempered spirit, not too forward in putting himself forth. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. Through desire a man, &c.] He that in a fervent desire of knowledge has set himself apart to its continual study, labours to inform himself in all parts of wisdom, so that he may not be a stranger to any kind of learning. Bp. Hall.

"Having separated himself."—A total separation from society and its pleasures, for the pursuit of wisdom, cannot be the meaning of the text, because that is contrary to the main tenour of the Book of Proverbs; and besides, it is obvious that every one man's sense, however excellent, unless it mixes in society with that of others, always degenerates into singularity and caprice. Seed.

2. A fool hath no delight &c.] A fool will never take pleasure in true understanding, but all the design of his studies is to make a vain ostentation of wisdom unto others. Bp. Patrick.

3. When the wicked cometh,] Wheresoever the wicked cometh, he is apt to cast contempt and reproach on others. Bp. Hall.

4. The words of a man's mouth &c.] This sentence expresses the depth, the abundance, the clearness, and the force of the counsels of the wise man. Calmet.

5. — to accept the person of the wicked,] To shew favour or partiality to the wicked. Calmet. See Job xiii. 8, 10.

6. — his mouth calleth for strokes.] He increases a difference which may arise between others, till from words they come to blows. Bp. Patrick.

8. — are as wounds,] The Hebrew word here rendered "wounds," occurs no where else in the Bible, and translators have differed much in rendering the verse. "The words of the talebearer inflict a deadly wound on those who are the objects of his calumny, and sink deep into the minds of all who hear them." Bp. Patrick. The Hebrew word is allied to one in Arabick, which signifies "to swallow quickly or greedily." Thus perhaps the meaning may be, "are like dainties which are eagerly swallowed up by those who hear them." Schultens. Otherwise, "are like subtle poisons, which insinuate themselves, and produce their effects insensibly, for they penetrate into the inward parts of the belly, where they lie rankling and gnawing the vitals." Dr. Durell.

9. — is brother to him] Is little better than him that is a great spender; he equally consumes the estate with which he is entrusted. Bp. Hall. See the note on Job xxx. 29.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

10 [e] The name of the LORD is a strong tower: the righteous runneth into it, and † is safe.

[e] Psal. 18. 2. & 27. 1. & 144. 2.

† Heb. is set aloft.

11 [f] The rich man's wealth is his strong city, and as an high wall in his own conceit.

[f] Chap. 10. 15.

12 [g] Before destruction the heart of man is haughty, and before honour is humility.

[g] Chap. 11. 2. & 15. 33. & 16. 18.

13 He that † answereth a matter before he heareth it, it is folly and shame unto him.

† Heb. returneth a word.

14 The spirit of a man will sustain his infirmity; but a wounded spirit who can bear?

15 The heart of the prudent getteth knowledge; and the ear of the wise seeketh knowledge.

[h] Chap. 17. 8.

16 [h] A man's gift maketh room for him, and bringeth him before great men.

17 He that is first in his own cause seemeth just; but his neighbour cometh and searcheth him.

18 The lot causeth contentions to cease, and parteth between the mighty.

19 A brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city: and their contentions are like the bars of a castle.

[i] Chap. 12. 14. & 13. 2.

20 [i] A man's belly shall be satisfied with the fruit of his mouth; and with the increase of his lips shall he be filled.

21 Death and life are in the power of the tongue: and they that love it shall eat the fruit thereof.

[k] Chap. 19. 14.

22 [k] Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing, and obtaineth favour of the LORD.

23 The poor useth intreaties; but the rich answereth [l] roughly.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[l] James 2. 3.

24 A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly: [m] and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

[m] Chap. 17. 17.

CHAP. XIX.

[a] BETTER is the poor that walketh in his integrity, than he that is perverse in his lips, and is a fool.

[a] Chap. 28. 6.

2 Also, that the soul be without knowledge, it is not good; and he that hasteth with his feet sinneth.

3 The foolishness of man perverteth his way: and his heart fretteth against the LORD.

4 [b] Wealth maketh many friends; but the poor is separated from his neighbour.

[b] Chap. 14. 20.

5 [c] A false witness shall not be † unpunished, and he that speaketh lies shall not escape.

[c] Exodus 23. 1. Deut. 19. 16. chap. 6. 19. & 21. 28.

† Heb. held innocent.

6 Many will intreat the favour of the prince: and every man is a friend to † him that giveth gifts.

† Heb. a man of gifts.

7 [d] All the brethren of the poor do hate him: how much more do his friends go far from him? he pursueth them with words, yet they are wanting to him.

[d] Chap. 14. 20.

8 He that getteth † wisdom loveth his own soul: he that keepeth understanding shall find good.

† Heb. an heart.

9 [e] A false witness shall not be unpunished, and he that speaketh lies shall perish.

[e] Ver. 5.

10 Delight is not seemly for a fool;

---

11. The rich man's wealth is his strong city,] This verse seems opposed to the preceding. The righteous rests all his strength on God, the name of God is his strong tower; but the rich man regards his riches as an impregnable fortress. Calmet.

14. The spirit of a man &c.] A resolute and unbounded spirit is able to bear up against infirmities of mind and body: but if the heart of a man be wounded, and dejected with any crosses which befall him, what means has he of any longer sustaining himself? there remains no remedy, but he must needs droop and yield. Bp. Hall.

—— but a wounded spirit who can bear?] The words admit also of being rendered, "a wounded (or dejected) spirit, who can raise it up?" As both senses are true and pertinent, we may well take the passage in both; for the misery of a broken spirit is, that it is very hard to be borne, and that it is without remedy or support. The words may be understood, not of a wounded conscience merely, but of a wounded spirit in general, wounded by grief, and sinking under its load of troubles, no particular cause of trouble being expressed. They contain a caution against yielding too far to any troubles or misfortunes, against letting our spirits sink, or our courage fail us in our day of calamity. Dr. Waterland.

16. — maketh room for him, &c.] Opens a way for him, and procures him admittance before great men. Calmet. See note on Gen. xxi. 27.

17. He that is first &c.] He that is first in telling his own cause, seems to have justice on his side; but his neighbour cometh and examines what was said by him, and then shews the falsity of it. Dr. Wells.

18. The lot causeth contentions &c.] In some cases of difficult adjustment, the casting of lots is an equal way of determining the controversy, and of putting each party in quiet possession of that which falls to his share. Bp. Patrick.

22. Whoso findeth a wife] The Greek and almost all the old versions read, "whoso findeth a good wife." Dr. Durell. The meaning is, "one who truly answers to the character of a wife." Dr. Wells. "Obtaineth favour of the Lord;" hath met with an excellent blessing, and ought thankfully to acknowledge the favour of God in guiding his mind to so happy a choice. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XIX. ver. 1. — than he that is perverse &c.] Than he that gathers great riches by fraud and circumvention, which he takes to be cunning, but which will prove folly in the end. Bp. Patrick.

2. — he that hasteth — sinneth.] "He that hasteth — stumbleth or falleth." He that comes rashly to his determinations, without weighing all the circumstances, cannot but stumble and err. Bp. Hall.

3. The foolishness of man &c.] Men commit numberless errours through ignorance or inconsideration, and so miss their ends; and then their heart frets not against themselves for their misfortunes, but against the Lord, as if Providence were unkind to them. Dr. Wells.

10. Delight is not seemly for a fool;] A foolish man is unable to make a good use of pleasures; he will use them without rule and without measure, and will often destroy himself by them. Calmet.

much less [f] for a servant to have rule over princes.

11 [g] The ‖ discretion of a man deferreth his anger; and it is his glory to pass over a transgression.

12 [h] The king's wrath is as the roaring of a lion; but his favour is as dew upon the grass.

13 [i] A foolish son is the calamity of his father: [k] and the contentions of a wife are a continual dropping.

14 House and riches are the inheritance of fathers: and [l] a prudent wife is from the LORD.

15 Slothfulness casteth into a deep sleep; and an idle soul [m] shall suffer hunger.

16 [n] He that keepeth the commandment keepeth his own soul; but he that despiseth his ways shall die.

17 [o] He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the LORD; and ‖ that which he hath given will he pay him again.

18 [p] Chasten thy son while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare ‖ for his crying.

19 A man of great wrath shall suffer punishment: for if thou deliver him, yet thou must † do it again.

20 Hear counsel, and receive instruction, that thou mayest be wise in the latter end.

21 [q] There are many devices in a man's heart; nevertheless the counsel of the LORD, that shall stand.

22 The desire of a man is his kindness: and a poor man is better than a liar.

23 The fear of the LORD tendeth to life: and he that hath it shall abide satisfied; he shall not be visited with evil.

24 [r] A slothful man hideth his hand in his bosom, and will not so much as bring it to his mouth again.

25 [s] Smite a scorner, and the simple † will beware: and reprove one that hath understanding, and he will understand knowledge.

26 He that wasteth his father, and chaseth away his mother, is a son that causeth shame, and bringeth reproach.

27 Cease, my son, to hear the instruction that causeth to err from the words of knowledge.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[f] Eccles. 10. 6.
[g] Chap. 14. 29.
‖ Or, prudence.
[h] Chap. 16. 15. & 20. 2. & 28. 15.
[i] Chap. 10. 1. & 15. 20. & 17. 21, 25.
[k] Chap. 21. 9. & 27. 15.
[l] Chap. 18. 22.
[m] Chap. 10. 4. & 20. 13.
[n] Luke 11. 28.
[o] Matt. 10. 42. & 25. 40. 2 Cor. 9. 6, 7.
‖ Or, his deed.
[p] Chap. 13. 24. & 23. 13.
‖ Or, to his destruction: or, to cause him to die.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

† Heb. add.
[q] Job 23. 13. Psal. 33. 10, 11. chap. 16. 1, 9. Isai. 46. 10.
[r] Chap. 15. 19. & 26. 13, 15.
[s] Chap. 21. 11.
† Heb. will be cunning.

—— much less for a servant &c.] Power is still less suited to a vile slave, who is intolerably insolent when he can wantonly domineer over the greatest persons. Bp. Patrick.

12. — as the roaring of a lion; &c.] The roaring of a lion, it is said, is so terrible, that, in a wild state, all other animals fly away in consternation at the very sound. In the same manner, cruel and headstrong kings spread on every side alarm and consternation. Calmet.

—— as dew upon the grass.] In hot Eastern climates, where it rarely rains in summer, the copious dews which fall during the night contribute greatly to the nourishment of vegetables in general. The dew, says Hasselquist, speaking of the excessively hot weather in Egypt, is particularly serviceable to the trees, which would otherwise never be able to resist the heat; but with this assistance they thrive well and blossom. Parkhurst.

13. — are a continual dropping.] Like a roof which continually drops with rain. Implying, that it is not more difficult to live in a house with such a roof, than with a quarrelsome woman. Calmet. The old English version explains "continual dropping" by "rain that droppeth and rotteth a house;" perhaps the meaning may be, like the continued dropping of the eaves of a house, or any continued gentle falling of water, than which nothing is apt to be more tiresome or distracting. Dr. Durell.

14. — a prudent wife is from the Lord.] A prudent and virtuous wife is an especial blessing from God. Bp. Hall.

15. — casteth into a deep sleep;] Insensibly sinks the mind into a dull stupidity and unconcernedness about necessary things. Bp. Patrick.

16. — he that despiseth his ways] Cares not in how disorderly a manner he lives. Dr. Wells.

17. He that hath pity &c.] He that hath compassion on the poor, and relieves their necessities, does not impoverish but enrich himself. For the Lord considers that which is given to the poor as lent to Himself, and will not fail to make a full compensation, returning the benefit he hath done to others with large interest and increase of blessings on himself and his posterity. Bp. Patrick.

Sir Thomas More, a famous Lord Chancellor of England, used always to say, "There was more rhetorick," more persuasive argument, "in this little sentence, than in a whole library." Bp. Horne.

19. A man of great wrath &c.] A man that is subject to frequent and extreme passions of anger, cannot avoid many and great inconveniences, which he brings on himself: and if thou do in a friendly manner free him from some dangerous effects of his intemperance, he will "do it again," he will repeat the same misconduct. Bp. Hall.

21 — the counsel of the Lord, that shall stand.] That which God has in His everlasting counsels either determined to do Himself, or to suffer to be done by any of His creatures, shall, whether we will or not, undoubtedly so come to pass, as He hath appointed. Bp. Sanderson.

22. The desire of a man is his kindness:] There is nothing more desirable for a man than to have wherewithal to be kind to others, and to confer obligations on his friends and neighbours. Bp. Patrick.

—— a poor man is better than a liar.] If a wealthy man promise much and perform nothing, a poor man, who is unable to undertake or to perform, is better than he. Bp. Hall.

24. A slothful man hideth &c.] The word which we translate "bosom," signifies more properly "a pan" or "dish." Thus the verse is rendered by many, "The slothful man hideth or plungeth his hand in the pan, and will not so much as (that is, it irketh or grieveth him to) bring it to his mouth again." In illustration of which sense it is to be remarked, that, to this day, the Arabs and Moors make use at their meals of neither knives, forks, nor spoons, but only of their hands and fingers, in eating pottage, or what we call spoon meats. To this purpose Le Bruyn says, "The Arabs in feeding on milk use no spoons. They dip their hands into the milk, which is placed before them in a wooden bowl, and sup it out of the palms of their hands." Parkhurst, Harmer.

25. Smite a scorner, and the simple will beware:] Punish severely a derider of religion; and, even if it do him no good, those incautious persons whom he hath deluded will be awakened by it to greater circumspection. Bp. Patrick.

27. — that causeth to err from the words of knowledge.] By "the words of knowledge" we are here to understand, generally, the precepts of virtue and religion; and the sum of the advice given is, that we should be careful to guard against the arts and insinuations of such as set themselves up for teachers of infidelity and irreligion. Bp. Sherlock.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

28 † An ungodly witness scorneth judgment: and the mouth of the wicked devoureth iniquity.

† Heb. A witness of Belial.

29 Judgments are prepared for scorners, and stripes for the back of fools.

CHAP. XX.

WINE is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

[a] Chap. 16. 14. & 19. 12.

2 [a] The fear of a king is as the roaring of a lion: whoso provoketh him to anger sinneth against his own soul.

3 It is an honour for a man to cease from strife: but every fool will be meddling.

[b] Chap. 10. 4.

4 [b] The sluggard will not plow by reason of the ‖ cold; therefore shall he beg in harvest, and have nothing.

‖ Or, winter.

[c] Chap. 18. 4.

5 [c] Counsel in the heart of man is like deep water; but a man of understanding will draw it out.

‖ Or, bounty.

[d] Ps. 112. 2.

6 Most men will proclaim every one his own ‖ goodness: but a faithful man who can find?

[e] Ps. 51. 5. Job 14. 4. 1 Kings 8. 46. 2 Chron. 6. 36. Eccles. 7. 20. 1 John 1. 8.

7 The just man walketh in his integrity: [d] his children are blessed after him.

8 A king that sitteth in the throne of judgment scattereth away all evil with his eyes.

[f] Deut. 25. 13, &c. chap. 11. 1. & 16. 11.

9 [e] Who can say, I have made my heart clean, I am pure from my sin?

† Heb. A stone and a stone. † Heb. An ephah and an ephah.

10 [f] † Divers weights, and † divers measures, both of them are alike abomination to the LORD.

11 Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[g] Exodus 4. 11. Psal. 94. 9.

12 [g] The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the LORD hath made even both of them.

[h] Chap. 12. 11. & 19. 15.

13 [h] Love not sleep, lest thou come to poverty; open thine eyes, and thou shalt be satisfied with bread.

14 It is naught, it is naught, saith the buyer: but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth.

15 There is gold, and a multitude of rubies: but the lips of knowledge are a precious jewel.

[i] Chap. 27. 13.

16 [i] Take his garment that is surety for a stranger: and take a pledge of him for a strange woman.

[k] Chap. 9. 17.

17 [k] † Bread of deceit is sweet to a man; but afterwards his mouth shall be filled with gravel.

† Heb. Bread of lying, or, falsehood.

[l] Chap. 15. 22.

18 [l] Every purpose is established by counsel: and with good advice make war.

[m] Chap. 11. 13.

19 [m] He that goeth about as a talebearer revealeth secrets: therefore meddle not with him that ‖ flattereth with his lips.

‖ Or, enticeth.

[n] Exodus 21. 17. Lev. 20. 9. Matt. 15. 4.

20 [n] Whoso curseth his father or his mother, his ‖ lamp shall be put out in obscure darkness.

‖ Or, candle.

21 An inheritance may be gotten hastily at the beginning; but the end thereof shall not be blessed.

[o] Deut. 32. 35. chap. 17. 13. & 24. 29. Rom. 12. 17. 1 Thes. 5. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 9.

22 [o] Say not thou, I will recompense evil; but wait on the LORD, and he shall save thee.

[p] Ver. 10.

23 [p] Divers weights are an abomination unto the LORD; and † a false balance is not good.

† Heb. balances of deceit.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging:] Excess of wine beguiles a man of his senses, and incites him to wanton wickedness and violence. Bp. Hall.

2. — sinneth against his own soul.] Incurs the danger of death. Dr. Isham.

4. The sluggard will not plow by reason of the cold;] In Syria they begin to plough about the latter end of September, and sow their earliest wheat about the middle of October. The frosts are never severe enough to prevent their ploughing all the winter. Dr. Russell.

5. Counsel in the heart of man &c.] Though the designs and intentions of some men are as hard to be sounded as deep waters; yet there are persons of such penetrating understandings, and of so great a reach, that they will find means to discover them, and to draw them out. Bp. Patrick.

6. — but a faithful man who can find?] A faithful man, one who will steadily perform what he has promised, and what he has boasted he would perform. Schultens.

8. A king that sitteth in the throne of judgment &c.] A king who acts justly.

10. Divers weights, &c.] A fraudulent diversity of weights and measures is abominable unto the Lord. Bp. Hall.

11. Even a child &c.] It is not difficult, by the carriage and disposition of a person in childhood, to judge what is to be hoped or feared of him in riper years; either good or evil begins to shew itself betimes. Bp. Hall.

12. The hearing ear, &c.] We are here reminded, that we derive from God all that we have, and all that we are, and that therefore none ought to take glory to himself for any excellent qualities of mind or body which he may possess. Calmet.

13. — open thine eyes,] That is, arise betimes in the morning, and follow some honest employment. Dr. Wells.

14. It is naught, — saith the buyer:] That is, the buyer unjustly tries to overreach the seller, by disparaging his goods: but when he has obtained them at his own price, he boasts of having tricked him. Dr. Wells.

16. Take his garment] Take a garment (take the uttermost security thou canst) from him who is so inconsiderate as to become surety for an utter stranger; and also take a present pledge of him who has the folly to become surety for a strange or infamous woman. Dr. Wells.

17. Bread of deceit] Under the name of the "bread of deceit" may be included all things wrongfully obtained, which, however they may please in the beginning, will bring sorrow and pain in the conclusion. Bp. Patrick.

20. — his lamp shall be put out in obscure darkness.] His comfort and help shall be taken from him when he has most need of it, and he shall be left utterly miserable and disconsolate. Bp. Hall.

22. Say not thou, I will recompense &c.] Take not revenge for an injury received, where thou art not the proper judge, but leave thy cause to the Lord, and expect His righteous sentence. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

24 [q] Man's goings are of the LORD; how can a man then understand his own way?

[q] Ps. 37. 23. chap. 16. 9. Jer. 10. 23.

25 It is a snare to the man who devoureth that which is holy, and after vows to make enquiry.

26 [r] A wise king scattereth the wicked, and bringeth the wheel over them.

[r] Ver. 8. Ps. 101. 5, &c.

27 The spirit of man is the ‖ candle of the LORD, searching all the inward parts of the belly.

‖ Or, lamp.

28 [s] Mercy and truth preserve the king: and his throne is upholden by mercy.

[s] Ps. 101. 1. chap. 29. 14.

29 The glory of young men is their strength: and [t] the beauty of old men is the grey head.

[t] Chap. 16. 31.

30 The blueness of a wound † cleanseth away evil: so do stripes the inward parts of the belly.

† Heb. is a purging medicine against evil.

CHAP. XXI.

[a] Chap. 16. 2. [b] 1 Samuel 15. 22. Isai. 1. 11. Hos. 6. 6. Mic. 6. 7, 8. chap. 15. 8. [c] Chap. 6, 17. † Heb. Haughtiness of eyes. ‖ Or, the light of the wicked.

THE king's heart is in the hand of the LORD, as the rivers of water: he turneth it whithersoever he will.

2 [a] Every way of a man is right in his own eyes: but the LORD pondereth the hearts.

3 [b] To do justice and judgment is more acceptable to the LORD than sacrifice.

4 [c] † An high look, and a proud heart, and ‖ the plowing of the wicked, is sin.

5 The thoughts of the diligent tend only to plenteousness; but of every one that is hasty only to want.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

6 [d] The getting of treasures by a lying tongue is a vanity tossed to and fro of them that seek death.

[d] Chap. 10. 2. & 13. 11.

7 The robbery of the wicked shall † destroy them; because they refuse to do judgment.

† Heb. saw them, or, dwell with them.

8 The way of man is froward and strange: but as for the pure, his work is right.

9 [e] It is better to dwell in a corner of the housetop, than with † a brawling woman in † a wide house.

[e] Chap. 19. 13. & 25. 24. & 27. 15. † Heb. a woman of contentions. † Heb. an house of society.

10 [f] The soul of the wicked desireth evil: his neighbour † findeth no favour in his eyes.

[f] James 4. 5. † Heb. is not favoured.

11 [g] When the scorner is punished, the simple is made wise: and when the wise is instructed, he receiveth knowledge.

[g] Chap. 19. 25.

12 The righteous man wisely considereth the house of the wicked: but God overthroweth the wicked for their wickedness.

13 [h] Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard.

[h] Matt. 18. 30.

14 [i] A gift in secret pacifieth anger: and a reward in the bosom strong wrath.

[i] Chap. 17. 8. & 18. 16.

15 It is joy to the just to do judgment: but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity.

16 The man that wandereth out of the

---

24. Man's goings are of the Lord;] No man can take one step towards any thing he designs, without the permission of the Lord; who sometimes overrules the motions of men unto ends so far distant from their thoughts, that it is impossible for them to know what the event shall be of any thing they undertake. Bp. Patrick.

25. It is a snare to the man &c.] That man entangleth his soul in the snares of death, who taketh back to a profane use that which is once consecrated to God, and who, after he has vowed any thing to the Lord, argues within himself how he may alter that holy purpose, and defraud God of His due. Bp. Hall.

26. — and bringeth the wheel over them.] A metaphor, to express the due punishment of the wicked, taken from the custom of threshing corn by means of a wheel drawn over it by oxen. Isa. xxviii. 27, 28. Bp. Patrick.

27. The spirit of man &c.] The soul is a principle of light to guide and direct man in all his motions, enabling him to reflect, not only on his own actions, but on his most secret thoughts, and to discover the good or evil which is in them. Dr. Wells.

30. The blueness of a wound &c.] The meaning seems to be, that a wicked man, who has received due correction for his crimes, will be cured of them, or will not so easily fall into the like again; and that though stripes chiefly affect the body, yet they have likewise an effect on (the chambers of the belly) the inward recesses of the mind; restraining the offender by the fear of punishment. That this is the meaning of the Hebrew, rendered "the inward parts of the belly," appears from that elegant comparison of the conscience or spirit of a man, ver. 27, to a light within him, searching out and discovering his most secret thoughts. Dr. Gray.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. The king's heart is &c.] It is not in the power of kings, much less of other men, either to do or to design what they please, but their very wills are subject to the great Lord of all, who diverts them as easily from what they intend, or inclines them to that which they resolve against, as the gardener draws the streams of water, through the trenches he cuts, into what part of the ground he thinks good. Bp. Patrick.

4. — the plowing of the wicked,] The designs and contrivances of the wicked. Bp. Patrick.

5. — that is hasty] Who hopes to get rich rapidly by improper means.

6. The getting of treasures &c.] Wealth acquired by falsehood and lying is altogether uncertain and unstable; and will occasion utter destruction both of soul and body to him who unjustly acquires it. Bp. Hall. "Is a vanity tossed to and fro;" is not more durable than heaps of chaff or clouds of smoke, which are soon dissipated by the wind. Bp. Patrick.

8. — and strange:] Alienated from God and goodness. Dr. Isham.

9. — in a corner of the housetop,] During the summer season, it was usual to sleep on the tops of the houses, which were flat and properly guarded by a parapet wall; for which purpose little arbours were formed upon them. This, however pleasant in fine weather, must have been much otherwise in bad weather. Harmer.

12. — but God overthroweth &c.] The word "God" is not in the Hebrew, and is inserted to make up the sense: still the meaning is sufficiently good without this insertion, if by the term "righteous man," we understand not a private person, but a just and upright magistrate. The sense may then be, "A just judge makes a prudent but strict scrutiny into all the actions of a wicked man's family, that he may so punish them for their rapine, violence, and extortion, as to deprive them of all power to do further mischief." Bp. Patrick.

14. — a reward in the bosom] See note at Ps. lxxix. 12.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

way of understanding shall remain in the congregation of the dead.

17 He that loveth ‖ pleasure shall be a poor man: he that loveth wine and oil shall not be rich.

‖ Or, sport.

18 [k] The wicked shall be a ransom for the righteous, and the transgressor for the upright.

[k] Chap. 11. 8.

19 [l] It is better to dwell † in the wilderness, than with a contentious and an angry woman.

[l] Ver. 9. † Heb. in the land of the desert.

20 There is treasure to be desired and oil in the dwelling of the wise; but a foolish man spendeth it up.

21 He that followeth after righteousness and mercy findeth life, righteousness, and honour.

22 [m] A wise man scaleth the city of the mighty, and casteth down the strength of the confidence thereof.

[m] Eccles. 9. 14.

23 [n] Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles.

[n] Chap. 12. 13. & 18. 21. † Heb. in the wrath of pride.

24 Proud and haughty scorner is his name, who dealeth † in proud wrath.

[o] Chap. 13. 4.

25 [o] The desire of the slothful killeth him; for his hands refuse to labour.

[p] Ps. 112. 9.

26 He coveteth greedily all the day long: but the [p] righteous giveth and spareth not.

[q] Chap. 15. 8. Isai. 66. 3. Jer. 6. 20. Ps. 50. 9. Amos 5. 22. † Heb. in wickedness.

27 [q] The sacrifice of the wicked is abomination: how much more, when he bringeth it † with a wicked mind?

[r] Chap. 19. 5, 9. † Heb. A witness of lies.

28 [r] † A false witness shall perish: but the man that heareth speaketh constantly.

29 A wicked man hardeneth his face: but as for the upright, he ‖ directeth his way.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

‖ Or, considereth.

30 [s] There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the LORD.

[s] Jer. 9. 23.

31 [t] The horse is prepared against the day of battle: but [u] ‖ safety is of the LORD.

[t] Ps. 33. 17. [u] Ps. 3. 8. ‖ Or, victory.

CHAP. XXII.

[a] A GOOD name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and ‖ loving favour rather than silver and gold.

[a] Eccles. 7. 1. ‖ Or, favour is better than, &c.

2 [b] The rich and poor meet together: the LORD is the maker of them all.

[b] Chap. 29. 13.

3 [c] A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself: but the simple pass on, and are punished.

[c] Chap. 27. 12.

4 [d] ‖ By humility and the fear of the LORD are riches, honour, and life.

[d] Ps. 112. 3. ‖ Or, The reward of humility, &c.

5 Thorns and snares are in the way of the froward: he that doth keep his soul shall be far from them.

‖ Or, Catechise.

6 ‖ Train up a child † in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it.

† Heb. in his way. † Heb. to the man that lendeth.

7 The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant † to the lender.

[e] Job 4. 8. Hos. 10. 13. ‖ Or, and with the rod of his anger he shall be consumed.

8 [e] He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity: ‖ and the rod of his anger shall fail.

[f] 2 Cor. 9. 6. † Heb. good of eye.

9 [f] † He that hath a bountiful eye shall be blessed; for he giveth of his bread to the poor.

---

17. — that loveth wine and oil] That loveth eating and drinking.

18. The wicked shall be a ransom &c.] It frequently falls out, through the wise and just providence of God, that those calamities which threatened to seize on the godly and righteous man, fall, in their stead, on the wicked and transgressors. Bp. Hall.

24. Proud and haughty scorner &c.] He that deals proudly in his anger, is worthy to be branded with the name of an insolent scorner. Bp. Hall.

25. The desire of the slothful killeth him;] The slothful man is consumed by vain longings.

27. — when he bringeth it with a wicked mind?] When at the very time he is projecting some wicked design which he thinks to sanctify by his sacrifices. Bp. Patrick.

28. — but the man that heareth] The man who heard, that is, who testifies only to what he heard, "speaketh" convincingly, so as to carry his point. Bate, Parkhurst.

29. — hardeneth his face:] He hardens his face against shame, laughs at correction, and impudently defends the evil he has done. The upright, on the contrary, watches over his ways, and corrects them when he is made aware of his errours. Calmet.

30. There is no wisdom &c. — against the Lord.] Wisdom, counsel, &c. avail nothing when they oppose the counsels and decrees of Heaven. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. — and loving favour] The loving favour of good men. Dr. Wells.

2. The rich and poor meet together: &c.] The obvious meaning of this proverbial speech is, that the rich and poor are mingled, or rather associated together, as members of the same community; under very different circumstances indeed, as to their outward appearance and condition, but with a manifest equality, as to their nature and origin; "the Lord is maker of them all." Dean Moss.

3. — foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself:] Foresees a calamity before it comes, and withdraws himself from the danger into a place of safety. Bp. Patrick.

6. Train up a child &c.] In these words are contained, 1st, the duty of parents and instructors, "Train up a child in the way he should go;" that is, in the course of life which he ought to lead; instruct him carefully in the knowledge and practice of his whole duty to God and man, which he ought to perform and observe all the days of his life: 2d, the fruit and benefit of good education, that, "when he is old, he will not depart from it." This we must understand according to the moral probability of things, not as if this happy effect did always and infallibly follow upon the good education of a child, but that this very frequently is, and may probably be hoped and presumed to be, the fruit and effect of a pious and prudent education: though exceptions may occur, yet they are not sufficient to infringe the general truth of the assertion. Abp. Tillotson.

7. — and the borrower &c.] Loses his liberty, and depends on the will and pleasure of the lender. Bp. Patrick.

9. He that hath a bountiful eye] He who freely gives, and delights to afford pleasure to others; opposed to him who has an evil eye. "Is thine eye evil," &c. Matt. xx. 15. Calmet.

"Good of eye," as in the margin, denotes kindness or benevolence in heart, which quality is usually accompanied with a good natured benevolent eye or look. On the contrary, "evil in eye," is equivalent to envious, grudging, chap. xxiii. 6. xxviii. 22. Parkhurst.

10 [g] Cast out the scorner, and contention shall go out; yea, strife and reproach shall cease.

11 He that loveth pureness of heart, ‖ for the grace of his lips the king shall be his friend.

12 The eyes of the LORD preserve knowledge, and he overthroweth ‖ the words of the transgressor.

13 [h] The slothful man saith, There is a lion without, I shall be slain in the streets.

14 [i] The mouth of strange women is a deep pit: he that is abhorred of the LORD shall fall therein.

15 Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but [k] the rod of correction shall drive it far from him.

16 He that oppresseth the poor to increase his riches, and he that giveth to the rich, shall surely come to want.

17 Bow down thine ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thine heart unto my knowledge.

18 For it is a pleasant thing if thou keep them † within thee; they shall withal be fitted in thy lips.

19 That thy trust may be in the LORD, I have made known to thee this day, ‖ even to thee.

20 Have not I written to thee excellent things in counsels and knowledge,

21 That I might make thee know the certainty of the words of truth; that thou mightest answer the words of truth ‖ to them that send unto thee?

22 Rob not the poor, because he is poor: [l] neither oppress the afflicted in the gate:

23 [m] For the LORD will plead their cause, and spoil the soul of those that spoiled them.

24 Make no friendship with an angry man; and with a furious man thou shalt not go:

25 Lest thou learn his ways, and get a snare to thy soul.

26 [n] Be not thou one of them that strike hands, or of them that are sureties for debts.

27 If thou hast nothing to pay, why should he take away thy bed from under thee?

28 [o] Remove not the ancient ‖ landmark, which thy fathers have set.

29 Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before † mean men.

CHAP. XXIII.

WHEN thou sittest to eat with a ruler, consider diligently what is before thee:

2 And put a knife to thy throat, if thou be a man given to appetite.

3 Be not desirous of his dainties: for they are deceitful meat.

4 [a] Labour not to be rich: cease from thine own wisdom.

---

13. The slothful man saith, &c.] The slothful man feigns idle excuses, and pretences of danger, when he ought to be employed on his business. Bp. Hall.

14. The mouth of strange women &c.] The plausible and smooth tongue of a harlot is no less dangerous than a deep pit fairly covered, into which if a man fall, there is small hope of his recovering himself; and it is a fearful sign and effect of God's anger to be given over to her enticements. Bp. Hall.

15. Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child;] There is a foolish waywardness, which is natural to the child, and cleaves close to its disposition. Bp. Hall.

16. — and he that giveth to the rich,] He that giveth to the rich and powerful, to induce them to wink at his oppression of others. Dr. Wells.

17. Bow down thine ear, &c.] From this verse, all interpreters have observed, that another form of speech, different from the preceding, begins and continues to the twenty-fifth chapter. From the beginning of the tenth chapter, to this place, the instructions of wisdom are delivered in short sentences, and proverbs properly so called, which have seldom any connexion. But now follow exhortations and precepts in the imperative mood, and those comprehended in two, three, or more verses. Bp. Patrick.

18. — they shall withal be fitted in thy lips.] "They shall withal be ready upon thy lips." Dr. Durell. So that thou shalt be able to produce them as there is occasion, and aptly communicate them for other men's instruction. Bp. Patrick.

22. — in the gate:] The gate of the city where publick justice was administered. See notes at Deut. xxi. 19. xxii. 9. xxv. 7. Ruth. iv. 1, 2.

24. — thou shalt not go:] Rather, "Go not," for both parts of the sentence are expressed in the same tense. Dr. Durell.

27. If thou hast nothing to pay, &c.] If thou hast nothing to pay, why shouldest thou be so egregiously foolish as only to incense the creditor against thee, by taking upon thee to pay what thou art not able, and so provoke him to shew thee no pity, but even to take away thy bed from under thee. Dr. Wells.

29. — he shall stand before kings;] He shall soon be preferred to the service of his prince, and shall not continue long in the service of a private person. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. When thou sittest to eat with a ruler,] As the foregoing chapter closes with an observation concerning the qualities of a person who is most likely to come to preferment, so this begins with a caution to him, as to his behaviour when he is promoted to it. Solomon advises such a person to be very considerate on such occasions who and what is before him, and to be always on his guard lest he commit excess, or betray want of respect. Bp. Patrick.

2. — put a knife to thy throat,] Be careful by all means to restrain thy wanton appetite, if thou be a man given to please thy palate. Bp. Hall. This is a bold Eastern phrase, expressive of the absolute necessity of restraining the appetites, and intimating that there is as much danger in indulging them, as there is in running against a knife applied to the throat. Dr. Durell.

4. Labour not to be rich:] Do not too eagerly strive and labour to be rich; and follow not thy own carnal wisdom, which suggests to thee wrong ways to the hasty acquirement of wealth. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

5 † Wilt thou set thine eyes upon that which is not? for riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away as an eagle toward heaven.

† Heb. Wilt thou cause thine eyes to fly upon.

6 Eat thou not the bread of him that hath an evil eye, neither desire thou his dainty meats:

7 For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he: Eat and drink, saith he to thee; but his heart is not with thee.

8 The morsel which thou hast eaten shalt thou vomit up, and lose thy sweet words.

9 Speak not in the ears of a fool: for he will despise the wisdom of thy words.

[b] Chap. 22. 28. Deut. 19. 14. & 27. 17. ‖ Or, bound.

10 [b] Remove not the old ‖ landmark; and enter not into the fields of the fatherless:

[c] Chap. 22. 23. Job 31. 21.

11 [c] For their redeemer is mighty; he shall plead their cause with thee.

12 Apply thine heart unto instruction, and thine ears to the words of knowledge.

[d] Chap. 13. 24. & 19. 18. & 22. 15.

13 [d] Withhold not correction from the child: for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die.

14 Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell.

15 My son, if thine heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice, ‖ even mine.

‖ Or, even I will rejoice.

16 Yea, my reins shall rejoice, when thy lips speak right things.

[e] Chap. 3. 31. & 24. 1. Psal. 37. 1. & 73. 3.

17 [e] Let not thine heart envy sinners: but be thou in the fear of the LORD all the day long.

[f] Chap. 24. 14. ‖ Or, reward.

18 [f] For surely there is an ‖ end; and thine expectation shall not be cut off.

19 Hear thou, my son, and be wise, and guide thine heart in the way.

20 [g] Be not among winebibbers; among riotous eaters † of flesh:

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[g] Rom. 13. 13. Ephes. 5. 18. † Heb. of their flesh.

21 For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty: and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags.

22 [h] Hearken unto thy father that begat thee, and despise not thy mother when she is old.

[h] Chap. 1. 8.

23 Buy the truth, and sell it not; also wisdom, and instruction, and understanding.

24 [i] The father of the righteous shall greatly rejoice: and he that begetteth a wise child shall have joy of him.

[i] Chap. 10. 1. & 15. 20.

25 Thy father and thy mother shall be glad, and she that bare thee shall rejoice.

26 My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways.

27 [k] For a whore is a deep ditch; and a strange woman is a narrow pit.

[k] Chap. 22. 14.

28 [l] She also lieth in wait ‖ as for a prey, and increaseth the transgressors among men.

[l] Chap. 7. 12. ‖ Or, as a robber.

29 [m] Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes?

[m] Isai. 5. 11.

30 They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine.

31 Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his colour in the cup, when it moveth itself aright.

32 At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like ‖ an adder.

‖ Or, a cockatrice.

33 Thine eyes shall behold strange women, and thine heart shall utter perverse things.

34 Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth

---

5. Wilt thou set thine eyes] Wilt thou be so intent upon riches, and pursue them with such haste and earnestness, which, perhaps, thou canst never catch; or which if thou dost, may be gone as fast as they came; and by all thy care and pains never be recovered?

"They fly away as an eagle." He sets forth the inconstancy of riches by the flight of an eagle, which of all birds is observed to fly swiftest and highest "toward heaven." Bp. Patrick.

6—8. Eat thou not the bread &c.] Court not the acquaintance of a malicious person; whatever kindness he may shew thee will be dearly paid for, and all thy friendly language will be lost on him.

10. — enter not into the fields &c.] Invade not the estates of the fatherless; for God (ver. 11.) is in a special manner their Redeemer and Protector, who is mighty above all others. Dr. Wells.

13. — he shall not die.] He shall be preserved from destruction. Dr. Isham.

18. For surely there is an end;] For surely there shall be a blessed reward of all thy holy endeavours, and thy expectation of a joyful retribution shall not be disappointed. Bp. Hall.

20. — among riotous eaters of flesh:] This is a general caution against intemperate and riotous feasting.

23. Buy the truth, and sell it not;] That is, Spare no cost to purchase truth, and sell it not for any gain. Dr. Ibbot.

27. — is a deep ditch;] From which it is difficult to escape. Dr. Isham. See chap. xxii. 14.

29. — who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause?] Who is given to idle obscene words? who suffers stripes and wounds in distempered frays? Bp. Hall.

30. — mixed wine.] The Hebrew word means wine mixed with the lees, which was of a highly intoxicating quality. Parkhurst. Or, spiced wine. Michaelis.

31. Look not thou upon the wine &c.] Suffer not thine eyes to be tempted by beholding with too much pleasure the pure and grateful colour of wine, when it shews itself in the cup and sparkles, through the strength and spirit that is in it. Bp. Hall.

—— when it is red,] Red wine is more esteemed in the East than white; and we are told in the Travels of Olearius, that it is customary with the Armenian Christians in Persia to put Brazil wood, or saffron, into their wine, to give it an higher colour, when the wine is not so red as they like; as they set little value on white wine. Harmer.

34. — thou shalt be as he that &c.] Thy head shall be as giddy, and thy brain as much turned, as if thou wert laid sea-sick in the midst of the ship, or placed on the top of the tottering mast. Bp. Hall.

down † in the midst of the sea, or as he that lieth upon the top of the mast.

35 They have stricken me, shalt thou say, and I was not sick; they have beaten me, and † I felt it not: when shall I awake? I will seek it yet again.

† Heb. in the heart of the sea.
† Heb. I knew it not.

CHAP. XXIV.

[a] BE not thou envious against evil men, neither desire to be with them.

2 [b] For their heart studieth destruction, and their lips talk of mischief.

3 Through wisdom is an house builded; and by understanding it is established:

4 And by knowledge shall the chambers be filled with all precious and pleasant riches.

5 A wise man † is strong; yea, a man of knowledge † increaseth strength.

6 [c] For by wise counsel thou shalt make thy war: and in multitude of counsellers there is safety.

7 Wisdom is too high for a fool: he openeth not his mouth in the gate.

8 He that deviseth to do evil shall be called a mischievous person.

9 The thought of foolishness is sin: and the scorner is an abomination to men.

10 If thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is † small.

11 [d] If thou forbear to deliver them that are drawn unto death, and those that are ready to be slain;

12 If thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not; doth not he that pondereth the heart consider it? and he that keepeth thy soul, doth not he know it? and shall not he render to every man [e] according to his works?

13 My son, eat thou honey, because it is good; and the honeycomb, which is sweet † to thy taste:

14 [f] So shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul: when thou hast found it, [g] then there shall be a reward, and thy expectation shall not be cut off.

15 Lay not wait, O wicked man, against the dwelling of the righteous; spoil not his resting place:

16 [h] For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again: but the wicked shall fall into mischief.

17 [i] Rejoice not when thine enemy falleth, and let not thine heart be glad when he stumbleth:

18 Lest the LORD see it, and † it displease him, and he turn away his wrath from him.

19 [k] ‖ Fret not thyself because of evil men, neither be thou envious at the wicked;

20 For there shall be no reward to the evil man; [l] the ‖ candle of the wicked shall be put out.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

[a] Chap. 23. 17. ver. 19. Psal. 37. 1, &c. & 73. 3.
[b] Psal. 10. 7.
† Heb. is in strength.
† Heb. strengtheneth might.
[c] Chap. 11. 14. & 15. 22. & 20. 18.
† Heb. narrow.
[d] Psal. 82. 4.
[e] Job 34. 11. Psal. 62. 12. Jer. 32. 19. Rom. 2. 6. Rev. 22. 12.
† Heb. upon thy palate.
[f] Ps. 19. 10. & 119. 103.
[g] Chap. 23. 18.
[h] Psal. 34. 19 & 37. 24. Job 5. 19.
[i] Psal. 35. 15. chap. 17. 5. Job 31. 29.
† Heb. it be evil in his eyes.
[k] Ps. 37. 1. chap. 23. 17.
‖ Or, Keep not company with the wicked.
[l] Chap. 13. 9. Job 21. 17.
‖ Or, lamp.

---

35. They have stricken me, &c.] This verse describes the drunken man's insensibility to blows.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 1. Be not thou envious &c.] The proneness of good men to be dejected at the prosperity of the ungodly, and so to be tempted to imitate them, is the reason that the admonition given in this verse is so often repeated. We find it before at ch. iii. 31. xxiii. 17. and it is repeated at ver. 19. of this chapter. Bp. Patrick.

5. — a man of knowledge increaseth strength.] A man of knowledge and understanding imparts a great increase of strength and defence to the whole city or community in which he is. Bp. Hall.

7. Wisdom is too high for a fool:] Wisdom is too high for a vain or inconsiderate person duly to value, and consequently to take sufficient pains to attain; whence it is, that he "openeth not his mouth in the gate," never becomes a judge or publick magistrate. Dr. Wells.

9. The thought of foolishness is sin:] He that is wickedly foolish entertains commonly no thoughts but sinful. Bp. Hall.

—— the scorner is an abomination to men.] It is worthy of remark that Solomon frequently exhorts us not to be scorners or scoffers in religion. Such persons he considers as the worst sort of sinners, as incurable fools and reprobates. The scorner, if he be in a mean and poor condition, does all the mischief he can in his narrow sphere of action; if he be in an exalted station, he is a publick curse and a national calamity. Dr. Jortin.

11, 12. If thou forbear &c.] The sum of the instruction conveyed in these verses is, that every man, according to his place and power, and especially those who are armed with any publick authority, are bound, both in charity and in justice, to use the utmost of their power, and to embrace all lawful opportunities, by all lawful means, to help those to right that suffer wrong; to stand by their poorer brethren and neighbours in the day of calamity and distress, to defend them in their righteous causes, to protect them from injuries, and to deliver them out of the hands of those who are too mighty, or too crafty, for them, who seek, either by violence or cunning, to deprive them of their lives or livelihoods. Bp. Sanderson.

13. — eat thou honey, &c.] The wise man shews with what pleasure the instructions of wisdom should be received, (ver. 14.) and how profitable also and necessary they are, by the example of honey, which was not only esteemed for its grateful flavour in those countries, but deemed most useful for the support of human life. It was held in great esteem for food, for drink, for medicine, for preserving of dead bodies, and particularly for infants. See Isa vii. 15. Ecclus. xxxix. 26. Hence the ancient Christians used to give a little milk and honey to those who were baptized, as persons newly regenerate and born again; because honey, as well as milk, was the nutriment of little children in those countries. See 1 Sam. xiv. 27. Luke xxiv. 41, 42. All this may be applied to heavenly wisdom, from which the mind derives the greatest satisfaction, and therefore it ought to be our daily diet, from the beginning of our days to the end of them. Bp. Patrick.

16. For a just man falleth seven times,] Rather, "Though a just man falleth seven times, yet will he rise again." Dr. Durell. A righteous man, if he fall into manifold miseries and calamities, yet, through the goodness of God, shall be delivered out of them all. Bp. Hall.

18. Lest the Lord see it, &c.] Lest the Lord see thy inward gladness, which man cannot see, and such a sinful and unreasonable feeling displease Him, and "He turn away His wrath" from the wicked man, and transfer it on thee. Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST about 1000.

21 My son, fear thou the LORD and the king: and meddle not with † them that are given to change:

† Heb. changers.

22 For their calamity shall rise suddenly; and who knoweth the ruin of them both?

23 These things also belong to the wise. [m] It is not good to have respect of persons in judgment.

[m] Lev. 19. 15. chap. 18. 5. & 28. 21. Deut. 1. 17. & 16. 19. John 7. 24.

24 [n] He that saith unto the wicked, Thou art righteous; him shall the people curse, nations shall abhor him:

[n] Chap. 17. 15. Isai. 5. 23.

25 But to them that rebuke him shall be delight, and † a good blessing shall come upon them.

† Heb. a blessing of good.

26 Every man shall kiss his lips † that giveth a right answer.

† Heb. that answereth right words.

27 Prepare thy work without, and make it fit for thyself in the field; and afterwards build thine house.

28 Be not a witness against thy neighbour without cause; and deceive not with thy lips.

[o] Chap. 20. 22.

29 [o] Say not, I will do so to him as he hath done to me: I will render to the man according to his work.

30 I went by the field of the slothful, and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding;

31 And, lo, it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down.

† Heb. set my heart.

32 Then I saw, and † considered it well: I looked upon it, and received instruction.

[p] Chap. 6. 9, &c.

33 [p] Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep:

Before CHRIST about 1000.

34 So shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth; and thy want as † an armed man.

† Heb. a man of shield.

CHAP. XXV.

1 Observations about kings, 8 and about avoiding causes of quarrels, and sundry causes thereof.

about 709.

THESE are also proverbs of Solomon, which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah copied out.

2 It is the glory of God to conceal a thing: but the honour of kings is to search out a matter.

3 The heaven for height, and the earth for depth, and the heart of kings † is unsearchable.

† Heb. there is no searching.

4 Take away the dross from the silver, and there shall come forth a vessel for the finer.

5 [a] Take away the wicked from before the king, and his throne shall be established in righteousness.

[a] Chap. 20. 8.

6 † Put not forth thyself in the presence of the king, and stand not in the place of great men:

† Heb. Set not out thy glory.

7 [b] For better it is that it be said unto thee, Come up hither; than that thou shouldest be put lower in the presence of the prince whom thine eyes have seen.

[b] Luke 14. 10.

8 Go not forth hastily to strive, lest thou know not what to do in the end thereof, when thy neighbour hath put thee to shame.

[c] Matth. 5. 25. & 18. 15.

9 [c] Debate thy cause with thy neighbour himself; and ‖ discover not a secret to another:

‖ Or, discover not the secret of another.

---

21. — and meddle not with them that are given to change:] And have nothing to do with those, whose discontent with the present state of things, or continual love of novelty, makes them desire a change of government, and depart from their duty both to God and man. Bp. Patrick.

26. Every man shall kiss his lips &c.] Every good man shall applaud and bless the mouth of him who giveth an upright sentence in judgment. Bp. Hall.

27. Prepare thy work without, &c.] Get thy estate in good order, and then go, build thy house.

28. — and deceive not with thy lips.] The word which we render "deceive" signifies, in the original, any damage, any inconvenience, brought upon a man in the way of slander, calumny, backsliding, or any other injurious manner of representing him. We must consider every degree of this sin as forbidden in the precept. Dr. S. Clarke.

29. Say not, I will do so to him &c.] That is, whether revenge, or any other feeling, be the temptation to the practice, the sin itself is of the deepest die, and condemned amongst the most detestable crimes, both by reason and Scripture. Dr. S. Clarke.

31. — and the stone wall] Stone walls were frequently used for the preservation of vineyards, as well as living fences. Van Egmont and Heyman, describing the country round about Saphet, a celebrated city of Galilee, tell us, "the country round is finely improved, the declivity being covered with vines supported by low walls." Harmer.

33, 34. Yet a little sleep, &c.] See before at chap. vi. 10, 11.

Chap. XXV. Here begins the third part of the Book of Proverbs; which is a collection made by some belonging to Hezekiah, and acknowledged here, in the entrance of the book, as well as the former, to be Solomon's. Bp. Patrick. See the Introduction.

Ver. 2. It is the glory of God to conceal &c.] It is the peculiar glory of God, as being a prerogative justly due to His transcendant majesty, wisdom, goodness, and justice, "to conceal a thing;" that is, not to make known all the reasons of His providence, or of His decrees or judgments. Dr. Wells.

3. The heaven for height, &c.] It is as impossible for vulgar minds to penetrate into the secrets of state, and understand the counsels and designs of wise princes, and the various ways and means whereby they project to effect their ends, as it is to know how far it is from hence to the highest heavens, or how far to the centre of the earth upon which we tread. Bp. Patrick. Dr. Durell.

6. Put not forth thyself &c.] He here admonishes subjects not to be vainly ambitious, nor bold and forward in thrusting themselves into offices that do not belong to them, but to be modest, and, according to our Saviour's rule, Luke xiv. 8, to be invited to honour, rather than to seek it. Bp. Patrick.

9. Debate thy cause &c.] If there be a difference between thy neighbour and thee, take him aside, and in a friendly manner argue the matter with him alone, and discover not a secret unkindness to a third person, till thou seest no other way of reconciliation. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 700.

10 Lest he that heareth it put thee to shame, and thine infamy turn not away.

† Heb. spoken upon his wheels.

11 A word † fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver.

12 As an earring of gold, and an ornament of fine gold, so is a wise reprover upon an obedient ear.

[d] Chap. 13. 17.

13 [d] As the cold of snow in the time of harvest, so is a faithful messenger to them that send him: for he refresheth the soul of his masters.

† Heb. in a gift of falsehood.

14 Whoso boasteth himself † of a false gift is like clouds and wind without rain.

[e] Gen. 32. 4, &c. 1 Sam. 25. 24, &c. chap. 15. 1. & 16. 14.

15 [e] By long forbearing is a prince persuaded, and a soft tongue breaketh the bone.

16 Hast thou found honey? eat so much as is sufficient for thee, lest thou be filled therewith, and vomit it.

‖ Or, Let thy foot be seldom in thy neighbour's house. † Heb. full of thee.

17 ‖ Withdraw thy foot from thy neighbour's house; lest he be † weary of thee, and so hate thee.

[f] Ps. 120. 4. chap. 12. 18.

18 [f] A man that beareth false witness against his neighbour is a maul, and a sword, and a sharp arrow.

19 Confidence in an unfaithful man in time of trouble is like a broken tooth, and a foot out of joint.

Before CHRIST about 700.

20 As he that taketh away a garment in cold weather, and as vinegar upon nitre, so is he that singeth songs to an heavy heart.

[g] Exod. 23. 4. Rom. 12. 20.

21 [g] If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink:

22 For thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head, and the LORD shall reward thee.

‖ Or, The north wind bringeth forth rain: so doth a backbiting tongue an angry countenance.

23 ‖ The north wind driveth away rain: so doth an angry countenance a backbiting tongue.

[h] Chap. 19. 13. & 21. 9.

24 [h] It is better to dwell in the corner of the housetop, than with a brawling woman and in a wide house.

25 As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country.

26 A righteous man falling down before the wicked is as a troubled fountain, and a corrupt spring.

27 It is not good to eat much honey: so for men to search their own glory is not glory.

[i] Chap. 16. 32.

28 [i] He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls.

---

11. A word fitly spoken &c.] The general design of this sentence is manifestly to express the value and gratefulness of a word of counsel, reproof, or comfort, delivered in due time and place. Bp. Patrick. The Hebrew, translated in its most literal form, is, "a word spoken on its wheels," as the margin gives it; figuratively expressing a discourse which is grateful, which flows smoothly, agreeably, and without harshness. Calmet.

—— like apples of gold in pictures of silver.] As oranges or citrons in curiously engraved work of silver. Parkhurst. It may be doubtful whether by "apples of gold" be meant "apples that look like gold," or "apples made of gold." "Like golden balls or beautiful apples presented in a silver network basket." Bp. Patrick. Solomon probably alludes to the pomegranates and network in the temple, 1 Kings vii. 20.

12. —an ornament of fine gold,] The Hebrew words seem to mean any costly ornament wrought with great labour and pains. Parkhurst.

13. As the cold of snow in the time of harvest, &c.] As the mixing of snow with wine in the sultry time of harvest is pleasing and refreshing, so a successful messenger revives the spirit of his master who sent him, and who was ready to faint from an apprehension of his failure. The practice of cooling wines with snow was usual among the Eastern nations. It was derived from the Asiaticks and Greeks to the Romans. Plutarch describes the manner in which they preserved the snow by covering it with straw, and coarse cloths unshorn. In some hot countries it was often difficult to obtain it, and they were obliged to search into the hollow cliffs to collect it. Mount Hebron, which was always covered with snow, plentifully supplied the inhabitants of the country near it, from whence it was often carried to Tyre. Barry.

14. Whoso boasteth himself &c.] He that makes bountiful and deluding promises of great gifts which will never be performed, is like a cloud that makes a shew of rain which it cannot yield. Bp. Hall.

15. — a soft tongue breaketh the bone.] A gentle and submissive answer softens and renders supple the hardest and most inflexible heart. Bp. Hall.

16. Hast thou found honey? &c.] Moderation is here recommended in our pursuits and enjoyments. Dr. Isham.

18. — is a maul,] Or hammer—to beat down a man's fame, or break in pieces his estate. Bp. Patrick.

Solomon very fully and elegantly expresses the destructive nature of this sin; he intimates that, among all the instruments of ruin and mischief which have been devised by mankind, none is of more pernicious consequence to human society than perjury and breach of faith. It is a pestilence that usually walketh in darkness, a secret stab and blow, against which, frequently, there is no possibility of defence. Abp. Tillotson.

20. As he that taketh away a garment &c.] He that offers musick to a man in deep heaviness does it as unseasonably as he that takes away a covering in extreme cold weather. Bp. Hall.

—— as vinegar upon nitre,] By the nitrum or nitre of the ancients is not meant what we now call nitre, or saltpetre, but the (mineral) alkali, called soda by chemists, which occasions a strong fermentation with all acids. Thus, in the passage before us, the unsuitableness of the singing of songs to a heavy heart is very finely compared to the opposition which subsists between vinegar and nitre. For the nitre of the ancients, see further, Jer. ii. 22. Dr. Shaw.

22. — thou shalt heap coals of fire &c.] If he have the least spark of goodness in him, it will work a change in his mind, and make him throw off all his enmities; or, if it have the contrary effect, he shall have so much the sorer punishment, and thou shalt not lose thy reward, which the Lord Himself will give thee. Bp. Patrick.

23. The north wind driveth away rain: &c.] It appears, from the version given in the margin, that these words admit of two opposite senses. Either, "as the north wind scatters clouds and drives away rain, so a severe countenance puts a stop to a slanderous tongue;" or, "as the north wind begetteth rain, so a backbiting tongue raiseth up anger and indignation." Bp. Patrick.

27. — is not glory.] Proves at last not honourable, but reproachful, to them. Bp. Patrick.

28. — that hath no rule over his own spirit] Or over his passions, is thereby exposed to innumerable dangers, like a city without walls. Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST about 700.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 Observations about fools, 13 about sluggards, 17 and about contentious busybodies.

AS snow in summer, and as rain in harvest, so honour is not seemly for a fool.

2 As the bird by wandering, as the swallow by flying, so the curse causeless shall not come.

[a] Chap. 10. 13. Ps. 32. 9.

3 A [a] whip for the horse, a bridle for the ass, and a rod for the fool's back.

4 Answer not a fool according to his folly, lest thou also be like unto him.

† Heb. his own eyes. ‖ Or, violence.

5 Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in † his own conceit.

† Heb. are lifted up. ‖ Or, As he that putteth a precious stone in an heap of stones.

6 He that sendeth a message by the hand of a fool cutteth off the feet, and drinketh ‖ damage.

7 The legs of the lame † are not equal: so is a parable in the mouth of fools.

8 ‖ As he that bindeth a stone in a sling, so is he that giveth honour to a fool.

‖ Or, A great man grieveth all, and he hireth the fool, he hireth also transgressors.

9 As a thorn goeth up into the hand of a drunkard, so is a parable in the mouth of fools.

10 ‖ The great God that formed all things both rewardeth the fool, and rewardeth transgressors.

[b] 2 Pet. 2. 22. † Heb. iterateth his folly.

11 [b] As a dog returneth to his vomit, so a fool † returneth to his folly.

12 Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? there is more hope of a fool than of him.

Before CHRIST about 700

13 [c] The slothful man saith, There is a lion in the way; a lion is in the streets.

[c] Chap. 22. 13.

14 As the door turneth upon his hinges, so doth the slothful upon his bed.

15 [d] The slothful hideth his hand in his bosom; ‖ it grieveth him to bring it again to his mouth.

[d] Chap. 19. 24. ‖ Or, he is weary.

16 The sluggard is wiser in his own conceit than seven men that can render a reason.

17 He that passeth by, and ‖ meddleth with strife belonging not to him, is like one that taketh a dog by the ears.

‖ Or, is enraged.

18 As a mad man who casteth † firebrands, arrows, and death,

† Heb. flames, or, sparks.

19 So is the man that deceiveth his neighbour, and saith, Am not I in sport?

20 † Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out: so [e] where there is no ‖ talebearer, the strife † ceaseth.

† Heb. Without wood. [e] Chap. 22. 10. ‖ Or, whisperer. † Heb. is silent.

21 [f] As coals are to burning coals, and wood to fire; so is a contentious man to kindle strife.

22 [g] The words of a talebearer are as wounds, and they go down into the † innermost parts of the belly.

[f] Chap. 15. 18. & 29. 22. [g] Chap. 18. 8. † Heb. chambers.

23 Burning lips and a wicked heart are like a potsherd covered with silver dross.

24 He that hateth ‖ dissembleth with his lips, and layeth up deceit within him;

‖ Or, is known

Chap. XXVI. ver. 2. As the bird by wandering, &c.] The meaning of this verse has been variously explained. Curses which fly out of men's mouths causelessly, shall no more fall where they intend, than a swallow which wanders uncertainly, or a dove which flies away swiftly, will settle according to their direction. Bp. Patrick. The meaning may perhaps be, that evils, natural or moral, owe not their being to chance, like the accidental flight of birds in this or that direction, but are all directed by the will of an all-wise superintending Providence. Dr. Durell.

3. — a bridle for the ass,] According to our English notions, we should rather say, A bridle for an horse, and a whip for an ass. It should be considered, however, that the Eastern asses, particularly those of the Arabian breed, are much larger, more beautiful, and better goers, than those in our cold northerly countries, and so, no doubt, they were anciently in Palestine, where, as we find from many passages, they were the beasts on which people usually rode. See Job xxxix. 7. Parkhurst.

4, 5. Answer not a fool &c.] In the first of these verses, the meaning is, Enter not into contest with a fool. In the second, Suffer not his folly to go unreproved: both to be determined by times and circumstances.

6. He that sendeth a message &c.] He that sends a witless man, or one that minds nothing but his pleasure, to treat about his business, will be sure not only to miscarry in it, but to suffer great damage by his ill management. Bp. Patrick.

7. The legs of the lame &c.] A wise saying as ill becomes a fool, as dancing does a cripple: for, as his lameness never so much appears as when he would seem nimble, so the other's folly is never so ridiculous as when he would seem wise. Bp. Patrick.

8. As he that bindeth a stone &c.] The application of this comparison to the moral sentiment seems to be sufficiently obvious; the honour bestowed upon a fool is thrown away, as the stone from a sling. Dr. Durell. Or, the sense of the marginal translation is good and clear, "As he that putteth a precious stone in a heap of stones," &c. The precious stone in the one case, and the honour in the other, is thrown away and lost. Parkhurst.

9. As a thorn goeth up] It is no more fit for fools to meddle with a wise speech, than for a drunken man to handle a bush of thorns. Bp. Hall.

They hurt themselves by the interpretation and application of it, as a drunken man does his hand with a hook or thorn, which he has not steadiness to handle. Parkhurst.

11. As a dog returneth to his vomit, &c.] As a dog which has often vomited by eating too much food which is nauseous to his stomach, yet will do the like again, and so make himself vomit again, so a fool that is not to be reclaimed returns to his folly, though he has suffered often for it before. Dr. Wells. It is said, that, of all animals, the dog is the only one known that will return to eat food which it has vomited. Calmet.

12. Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit?] Pride makes men impatient of good advice and instruction, and that renders them incorrigible in their vices. Dr. S. Clarke.

13. The slothful man &c.] See before at chap. xxii. 13.

16. The sluggard &c.] The sluggard will not be beaten out of his sloth; and, however many wise men may endeavour to persuade him out of his dull idleness, yet he persists in his errour, and thinks himself herein wiser than them all. Bp. Hall.

19. — the man that deceiveth his neighbour, &c.] That is, who leads his neighbour into any mischief. Dr. S. Clarke.

21. As coals are to burning coals, &c.] Provoking language as quickly passes into quarrels, as dead coals do into burning coals, and wood into fire, when they are applied the one to the other. Bp. Patrick.

22. The words of a talebearer] See chap. xviii. 8.

23. Burning lips &c.] "Warm lips," that is, lips making warm and eager professions, and a bad deceitful heart. Parkhurst.

Before CHRIST about 700.

25 When he † speaketh fair, believe him not: for there are seven abominations in his heart.

† Heb. maketh his voice gracious.

26 ‖ Whose hatred is covered by deceit, his wickedness shall be shewed before the whole congregation.

‖ Or, Hatred is covered in secret.

27 [h] Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein: and he that rolleth a stone, it will return upon him.

[h] Eccles. 10. 8. Psal. 7. 15, 16. & 9. 15.

28 A lying tongue hateth those that are afflicted by it; and a flattering mouth worketh ruin.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 Observations of selflove, 5 of true love, 11 of care to avoid offences, 23 and of the houshold care.

[a] James 4. 13, &c.

[a] BOAST not thyself of † to morrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.

† Heb. to morrow day.

2 Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine own lips.

† Heb. heaviness.

3 A stone is † heavy, and the sand weighty; but a fool's wrath is heavier than them both.

† Heb. Wrath is cruelty, and anger an overflowing.

4 † Wrath is cruel, and anger is outrageous; but who is able to stand before ‖ envy?

‖ Or, jealousy?

5 Open rebuke is better than secret love.

[b] Psal. 141. 5.

6 [b] Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but the kisses of an enemy are ‖ deceitful.

‖ Or, earnest, or, frequent.

7 The full soul † loatheth an honeycomb; but [c] to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet.

† Heb treadeth under foot.

[c] Job 6. 7.

8 As a bird that wandereth from her nest, so is a man that wandereth from his place.

Before CHRIST about 700.

9 Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart: so doth the sweetness of a man's friend † by hearty counsel.

† Heb. from the counsel of the soul.

10 Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not; neither go into thy brother's house in the day of thy calamity: for [d] better is a neighbour that is near than a brother far off.

[d] Chap. 17. 17. & 18. 24.

11 [e] My son, be wise, and make my heart glad, that I may answer him that reproacheth me.

[e] Chap. 10. 1. & 23. 24.

12 [f] A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on, and are punished.

[f] Chap. 22. 3.

13 [g] Take his garment that is surety for a stranger, and take a pledge of him for a strange woman.

[g] Chap. 20. 16.

14 He that blesseth his friend with a loud voice, rising early in the morning, it shall be counted a curse to him.

15 [h] A continual dropping in a very rainy day and a contentious woman are alike.

[h] Chap. 19. 13.

16 Whosoever hideth her hideth the wind, and the ointment of his right hand, which bewrayeth itself.

17 Iron sharpeneth iron; so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend.

18 Whoso keepeth the fig tree shall eat the fruit thereof: so he that waiteth on his master shall be honoured.

19 As in water face answereth to face, so the heart of man to man.

† Heb. not.

20 Hell and destruction are † never full; so [i] the eyes of man are never satisfied.

[i] Eccles. 1. 8.

21 [k] As the fining pot for silver, and the furnace for gold; so is a man to his praise.

[k] Chap. 17. 3.

---

25. — there are seven abominations] There is a great variety of secret wickedness in his heart. Bp. Hall.

26. — shewed before the whole congregation.] Openly exposed to the view of all the world. Bp. Patrick. Made to appear before a publick court of judicature. Dr. Wells.

28. A lying tongue hateth &c.] A man of a lying tongue hates those whom he has wronged, from a consciousness of his injurious conduct, and from a knowledge that he has deserved their hatred. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XXVII. ver. 3. — is heavier than them both.] Is more intolerable, is more troublesome to bear. Bp. Hall.

5. Open rebuke is better than secret love.] He that rebukes others freely, when need requires, is a more valuable friend than he who from fear of offending has not courage to tell them of their faults. Bp. Patrick.

6. — the wounds of a friend;] The reproofs of a friend, however sharp and cutting. Dr. Wells.

8. — that wandereth from his place.] From his home or country. Dr. Durell.

10. — neither go into thy brother's house &c.] Neither go to thy brother's house for shelter and relief in the day of thy calamity, only because he is thy brother, unless thou art well assured beforehand that he is thy true friend as well as brother: for better is a neighbour that is near to one in true friendship and affection, than a brother that is only near in kin, but far off in affection. Dr. Wells.

14. He that blesseth his friend &c.] That is, lavishes on him flattering and unseasonable commendations. Dr. Isham.

16. Whosoever hideth her &c.] A contentious woman can no more be hid, than the wind which bloweth on the face, or the perfume of the ointment on the hand; these both will be perceived: so will the unquiet spirit of a contentious woman. Bp. Hall.

17. — so a man sharpeneth the countenance] So a man imparts to his friend alacrity and spirits. Dr. Durell. So, by the conversation of one friend with another, are the good parts and faculties of men improved. Bp. Hall.

18. Whoso keepeth] That is, diligently looks after it and preserves it from injury.

—— he that waiteth on his master] He that faithfully defends his master's person or reputation, and takes care of his estate, "Shall be honoured;" shall be duly rewarded. Bp. Patrick.

19. — so the heart of man to man.] So he that looks into his friend's heart sees there his own heart. Bp. Hall.

20. Hell and destruction &c.] Meaning the grave, the state of the dead. See the note on Job xxvi. 5, 6.

—— so the eyes of man &c.] So the eyes of man, and also his desires, are never satisfied, but require some new object to please them. Dr. Wells.

21. — so is a man to his praise.] There is no way so sure of trying a man's discretion and temper, as by praising him: if he be vain and light, he will be puffed up with it; if he be wise and solid, he will not be moved by it. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 700.

22 Though thou shouldest bray a fool in a mortar among wheat with a pestle, yet will not his foolishness depart from him.

23 Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flocks, and † look well to thy herds.

† Heb. set thy heart.

24 For † riches are not for ever: and doth the crown endure † to every generation?

† Heb. strength.

† Heb. to generation and generation?

25 The hay appeareth, and the tender grass sheweth itself, and herbs of the mountains are gathered.

26 The lambs are for thy clothing, and the goats are the price of the field.

27 And thou shalt have goats' milk enough for thy food, for the food of thy houshold, and for the † maintenance for thy maidens.

† Heb. life.

CHAP. XXVIII.

General observations of impiety and religious integrity.

[a] Lev. 26. 36.

THE [a] wicked flee when no man pursueth: but the righteous are bold as a lion.

2 For the transgression of a land many are the princes thereof: but ‖ by a man of understanding and knowledge the state thereof shall be prolonged.

‖ Or, by men of understanding and wisdom shall they likewise be prolonged.

3 A poor man that oppresseth the poor is like a sweeping rain † which leaveth no food.

† Heb. without food.

4 They that forsake the law praise the wicked: but such as keep the law contend with them.

5 Evil men understand not judgment: but they that seek the LORD understand all things.

Before CHRIST about 700.

6 [b] Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich.

[b] Chap. 19. 1.

7 [c] Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son: but he that ‖ is a companion of riotous men shameth his father.

[c] Chap. 29. 3.

‖ Or, feedeth gluttons.

8 [d] He that by usury and † unjust gain increaseth his substance, he shall gather it for him that will pity the poor.

[d] Chap. 13. 22. Eccles. 2. 26.

† Heb. by increase.

9 He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.

10 [e] Whoso causeth the righteous to go astray in an evil way, he shall fall himself into his own pit: but the upright shall have good things in possession.

[e] Chap. 26. 27.

11 The rich man is wise † in his own conceit; but the poor that hath understanding searcheth him out.

† Heb. in his eyes.

12 [f] When righteous men do rejoice, there is great glory: but when the wicked rise, a man is ‖ hidden.

[f] Ver. 28. chap. 11. 10. Eccles. 10. 6.

‖ Or, sought for.

13 [g] He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.

[g] Psal. 32. 5. 1 John 1. 9, 10.

14 Happy is the man that feareth alway: [h] but he that hardeneth his heart shall fall into mischief.

[h] Rom. 11. 20.

15 As a roaring lion, and a ranging bear; so is a wicked ruler over the poor people.

16 The prince that wanteth understand-

---

22. — in a mortar among wheat] Before there were any publick mills, it was usual for those who could not afford the expense of a handmill in their houses to beat their corn with a pestle in a mortar. Calmet. The meaning is, So incurable is the folly and wickedness of some men, that though to reproofs and chidings you should add stripes and blows, they would not grow wiser or better. Bp. Patrick.

24. — and doth the crown endure] Even the crown itself will not continue to many generations, without due care to preserve its revenue. Bp. Patrick.

25. The hay appeareth,] Rather, "the herbage." See the note on Isaiah xv. 6.

26. — the goats are the price of the field.] "Are for the price of the field:" by selling thy goats, thou wilt pay for the cultivation of thy land, or purchase it for thyself. Calmet.

Chap. XXVIII. ver. 2. — many are the princes thereof:] The wickedness of a land is the cause of many changes in the princes and governours thereof, whereby both the people and princes, conspiring in evil, are punished. Bp. Hall. "Many are the princes;" that is, none reign long, or many reign together, opposing and thrusting out one another. Bp. Patrick.

3. A poor man &c.] A rich oppressor leaves a man poor, but a poor oppressor leaves to him nothing. Bp. Hall.

4. They that forsake the law praise the wicked:] They that willingly break and cast off the law of God, by so doing, give approbation and encouragement to wickedness. Bp. Hall.

5. — understand all things.] Understand their whole duty to God. Bp. Hall.

8. — he shall gather it for him that will pity the poor.] According to this remarkable saying of the wise man, the reason why so many estates are blasted so soon, and brought to nothing, is, that men do not render to God the duty and tribute which He has charged upon their estates for Himself and the poor; and then it is no wonder if God in His providence turn them out of their possession, and give their estate to others, who will be better tenants, and more careful to pay the duties He requires. Bp. Beveridge.

9. — from hearing the law,] That is, from obeying it. "Even his prayer shall be abomination;" however men of impious lives may trust to the forms of outward devotion, frequenting the church and service of God, and hearing His word and receiving His sacrament; let them not deceive themselves: God is not mocked. All this is so far from making amends for the impiety of their lives, that, on the contrary, the impiety of their lives spoils all the acceptance of their devotions. Abp. Tillotson.

If we live like Heathens or Infidels, our Christian prayers do but affront God's majesty. Lord Clarendon.

11. — searcheth him out.] Discovers his weakness. Dr. Isham.

12. — a man is hidden.] Good men are forced to hide themselves. Dr. Wells.

13. He that covereth his sins &c.] Here the blessing of God's mercy is declared to sinners, on the condition of their confessing and forsaking their sins; and this condition contains the whole nature of that great and necessary duty of repentance, without which none can have a reasonable hope of the mercy of God. Abp. Tillotson.

14. — the man that feareth] That is, who is cautious always: "but he that hardeneth his heart," that is, who is careless and negligent, shall fall into mischief. Dr. S. Clarke.

ing is also a great oppressor: but he that hateth covetousness shall prolong his days.

17 [i] A man that doeth violence to the blood of any person shall flee to the pit; let no man stay him.

18 [k] Whoso walketh uprightly shall be saved: but he that is perverse in his ways shall fall at once.

19 [l] He that tilleth his land shall have plenty of bread: but he that followeth after vain persons shall have poverty enough.

20 A faithful man shall abound with blessings: [m] but he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be ‖ innocent.

21 [n] To have respect of persons is not good: for for a piece of bread that man will transgress.

22 ‖ He that hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him.

23 [o] He that rebuketh a man afterwards shall find more favour than he that flattereth with the tongue.

24 Whoso robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, It is no transgression; the same is the companion of † a destroyer.

25 [p] He that is of a proud heart stirreth up strife: but he that putteth his trust in the LORD shall be made fat.

26 He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool: but whoso walketh wisely, he shall be delivered.

27 [q] He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack: but he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse.

28 [r] When the wicked rise, men hide themselves: but when they perish, the righteous increase.

Before CHRIST about 700.

Gen. 9. 6. Exod. 21. 14.

[i] Chap. 10. 25.

[k] Chap. 12. 11.

[l] Chap. 13. 11. & 23. 4. 1 Tim. 6. 9.

[m] Or, unpunished.

[n] Chap. 18. 5. & 24. 23.

‖ Or, He that hath an evil eye hasteth to be rich. Ver. 20.

[o] Chap. 27. 6.

† Heb. a man destroying.

[p] Chap. 13. 10.

[q] Deut. 15. 7, &c. chap. 22. 9.

[r] Ver. 12. chap. 29. 2.

CHAP. XXIX.

Before CHRIST about 700.

1 Observations of publick government, 15 and of private. 22 Of anger, pride, thievery, cowardice, and corruption.

† HE, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy.

2 [a] When the righteous are ‖ in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn.

3 [b] Whoso loveth wisdom rejoiceth his father: [c] but he that keepeth company with harlots spendeth his substance.

4 The king by judgment establisheth the land: but † he that receiveth gifts overthroweth it.

5 A man that flattereth his neighbour spreadeth a net for his feet.

6 In the transgression of an evil man there is a snare: but the righteous doth sing and rejoice.

7 [d] The righteous considereth the cause of the poor: but the wicked regardeth not to know it.

8 Scornful men ‖ bring a city into a snare: but wise men turn away wrath.

9 If a wise man contendeth with a foolish man, whether he rage or laugh, there is no rest.

10 † The bloodthirsty hate the upright: but the just seek his soul.

11 A fool uttereth all his mind: but a wise man keepeth it in till afterwards.

12 If a ruler hearken to lies, all his servants are wicked.

13 [e] The poor and ‖ the deceitful man meet together: the LORD lighteneth both their eyes.

† Heb. A man of reproofs.

[a] Chap. 11. 10. & 28. 28. Eccles. 10. 5.

‖ Or, increased.

[b] Chap. 10. 1. & 15. 20. & 27. 11.

[c] Chap. 5. 9. & 28. 7. Luke 15. 13.

† Heb. a man of oblations.

[d] Job 29. 16.

‖ Or, set a city on fire.

† Heb. Men of blood.

[e] Chap. 22. 2.

‖ Or, the usurer.

17. — let no man stay him.] Or, "no man shall stay him." Dr. Wells. He that murders a man shall never think himself safe, being pressed by his conscience, or pursued by the avenger of blood, and shall lead a restless life to his grave: all men shall refuse to succour him, and though they see him falling unawares into the pit, they shall not stop him. Bp. Patrick.

21. To have respect of persons &c.] For a judge to incline to consider the quality of the person, and not the merits of the cause that is brought before him, "is not good." Bp. Patrick.

22. — hath an evil eye,] Hath a covetous eye and a base niggardly heart; and "considereth not," &c. that is, knows not that through the just judgments of God this his immoderate eagerness will be punished with want and beggary. Bp. Hall.

24. — is the companion of a destroyer.] Is, for the heinousness of his sin, in the next degree to a murderer. Bp. Hall.

25. — shall be made fat.] Shall thrive and abound with plenty of all good things. Bp. Patrick.

27. — he that hideth his eyes] He that regards not the miseries of others, and is not willing so much as to know them. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXIX. ver. 1. — hardeneth his neck,] Refuses to be guided by reproofs, and to submit to them. The expression is taken from oxen in the yoke. Bp. Patrick.

5. — spreadeth a net for his feet.] Is so far from being a true friend, as he imagines, that he is a traitor to him, and leads him unawares into danger. Bp. Patrick.

6. In the transgression &c.] Rather, "The wicked is snared by transgression;" so these words are rendered at chap. xii. 13. Dr. Durell.

—— doth sing and rejoice.] Has always cause to be cheerful on account of his righteousness. Dr. Wells.

8. — bring a city into a snare:] Bring down judgments upon the city where they live. Bp. Hall.

9. — whether he rage or laugh, there is no rest.] Whether a wise man deal with him seriously and severely, or jestingly, he will not be able to prevail, either for his own peace or the other's reformation. Bp. Hall.

10. — seek his soul.] Labour to preserve him. Dr. Isham.

12. If a ruler hearken to lies, &c.] If a prince listen to the false suggestions of others, or too easily believe, without any examination, all the stories and accusations that are brought to him by others, he will fill his whole court with wicked men. Bp. Patrick.

13. The poor and the deceitful man &c.] The innocent poor man, and the crafty griping usurer, meet both together; and the Lord causeth his sun to shine on them both, maintaining them both in life, doing good outwardly even to the worst-deserving. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 700.

14 [f] The king that faithfully judgeth the poor, his throne shall be established for ever.

15 [g] The rod and reproof give wisdom: but [h] a child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame.

16 When the wicked are multiplied, transgression increaseth: [i] but the righteous shall see their fall.

17 [k] Correct thy son, and he shall give thee rest; yea, he shall give delight unto thy soul.

18 Where there is no vision, the people ‖ perish: but he that keepeth the law, happy is he.

19 A servant will not be corrected by words: for though he understand he will not answer.

20 Seest thou a man that is hasty ‖ in his words? there is more hope of a fool than of him.

21 He that delicately bringeth up his servant from a child shall have him become his son at the length.

22 [l] An angry man stirreth up strife, and a furious man aboundeth in transgression.

23 [m] A man's pride shall bring him low: but honour shall uphold the humble in spirit.

24 Whoso is partner with a thief hateth his own soul: he heareth cursing, and bewrayeth it not.

25 The fear of man bringeth a snare: but whoso putteth his trust in the LORD † shall be safe.

26 [n] Many seek † the ruler's favour; but every man's judgment cometh from the LORD.

27 An unjust man is an abomination to the just: and he that is upright in the way is abomination to the wicked.

Before CHRIST about 700.

CHAP. XXX.

1 Agur's confession of his faith. 7 The two points of his prayer. 10 The meanest are not to be wronged. 11 Four wicked generations. 15 Four things insatiable. 17 Parents are not to be despised. 18 Four things hard to be known. 21 Four things intolerable. 24 Four things exceeding wise. 29 Four things stately. 32 Wrath is to be prevented.

THE words of Agur the son of Jakeh, even the prophecy: the man spake unto Ithiel, even unto Ithiel and Ucal,

2 Surely I am more brutish than any man, and have not the understanding of a man.

3 I neither learned wisdom, nor † have the knowledge of the holy.

4 [a] Who hath ascended up into heaven, or descended? [b] who hath gathered the wind in his fists? who hath bound the waters in a garment? who hath established all the ends of the earth? what is his name, and what is his son's name, if thou canst tell?

5 [c] Every word of God is † pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him.

6 [d] Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar.

7 Two things have I required of thee; † deny me them not before I die:

8 Remove far from me vanity and lies: give me neither poverty nor riches; [e] feed me with food † convenient for me:

---

f Chap. 20. 28.
g Ver. 17.
h Chap. 10. 1. & 17. 21, 25.
i Psal. 37. 36. & 58. 10. & 91. 8.
k Chap. 13. 24. & 22. 15. & 23. 13, 14.
‖ Or, is made naked.
‖ Or, in his matters?
l Chap. 15. 18. & 26. 21.
m Chap. 15. 33. & 18. 12. Job 22. 29 Luke 14. 11. Matth. 23. 12.
† Heb. shall be set on high.
n Chap. 19. 6.
† Heb. the face of a ruler.
† Heb. know.
a John 3. 13.
b Job 38. 4. Psal. 104. 3. Isai. 40. 12.
c Psal. 12. 6. & 18. 30. & 19. 8. & 119. 140.
† Heb. purified.
d Deut. 4. 2. & 12. 32. Rev. 22. 18, 19.
† Heb. withhold not from me.
e Matth. 6. 11.
† Heb. of my allowance.

---

18. Where there is no vision, &c.] Where there is none to instruct the people, and expound the will of God to them. Bp. Patrick.

19. A servant &c.] A slave, and one that is of a servile nature, is not to be amended by reason and persuasions; though he hear and understand too what you say, he will not obey till he be forced to it by blows. Bp. Patrick.

21. He that delicately bringeth up &c.] He that expresses too much kindness for a servant, thereby makes him become saucy, so that he will at last assume too much authority. Dr. Wells.

24. — hateth his own soul:] Brings upon himself the same guilt with the thief himself. Bp. Patrick.

—— he heareth cursing, and bewrayeth it not.] He heareth men urged with oaths respecting the theft, and yet keeps his wicked counsel, and discovers not the malefactor. Bp. Hall.

26. — but every man's judgment cometh from the Lord.] Men eagerly solicit the favour and protection of princes, but they forget God, who is the Judge Supreme both of prince and people. Calmet.

Chap. XXX. ver. 1. — Agur] See the Introduction.

—— even the prophecy:] Even the weighty sentences. Dr. Wells. The lesson or charge. Dr. Durell.

2. Surely I am more brutish &c.] It would appear that his scholars came to him admiring his wisdom, and desiring to be resolved in many difficulties; to whom Agur modestly and humbly replied, Do not call me wise, for I am so far from that acuteness which is natural to one excelling in wisdom, that I am stupid in comparison with such a person; nay I cannot arrogate to myself the understanding of a common man. Bp. Patrick.

3. — nor have the knowledge of the holy.] The knowledge of Divine things, of heavenly truths. Calmet.

4. Who hath ascended &c.] Indeed what can man do? How poor and impotent creatures we all are! Is any of us able to ascend up into heaven, and to descend thence again? Have we power to command any thing in these lower regions? Have we the rule of the winds, the waters, or the earth? Shew me the man who can or dares arrogate this power to himself. Bp. Hall.

—— in his fists?] The Hebrew word seems to mean the two hands considered as joined together and capacious, forming a hollow to enclose any thing. Parkhurst.

—— who hath bound the waters in a garment?] Who can confine the waters of the sea within their proper limits, as if he had tied them "in a garment?" Calmet.

6. — thou be found a liar.] Be found guilty of the worst of forgeries in counterfeiting Divine inspiration. Dr. Wells.

7. Two things have I required of thee; &c.] Agur seems here to answer a question of his scholars respecting prayer, and enjoins them to pray as he himself was wont to do, I humbly beg only two things of Thee, O God, which I most earnestly beseech Thee I may not want, as long as I remain in this world. Bp. Patrick.

8. — give me neither poverty nor riches;] We must not consider Agur as praying absolutely against riches, or absolutely against poverty; for poverty and riches are of themselves things indifferent, and the blessing of God may go with them both; but

Before CHRIST about 700.

9 [f] Lest I be full, and † deny thee, and say, Who is the LORD? or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain.

[f] Deut. 32. 15.

† Heb. belie thee.

10 † Accuse not a servant unto his master, lest he curse thee, and thou be found guilty.

† Heb. Hurt not with thy tongue.

11 There is a generation that curseth their father, and doth not bless their mother.

12 There is a generation that are pure in their own eyes, and yet is not washed from their filthiness.

[g] Chap. 6. 17.

13 There is a generation, O how [g] lofty are their eyes! and their eyelids are lifted up.

[h] Psal. 52. 2. & 57. 4. Job 29. 17.

14 [h] There is a generation, whose teeth are as swords, and their jaw teeth as knives, to devour the poor from off the earth, and the needy from among men.

15 The horseleach hath two daughters, crying, Give, give. There are three things that are never satisfied, yea, four things say not, † It is enough:

† Heb. Wealth.

16 The grave; and the barren womb; the earth that is not filled with water; and the fire that saith not, It is enough.

Before CHRIST about 700.

17 The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of ‖ the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it.

‖ Or, the brook.

18 There be three things which are too wonderful for me, yea, four which I know not:

19 The way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the † midst of the sea; and the way of a man with a maid.

† Heb. heart.

20 Such is the way of an adulterous woman; she eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I have done no wickedness.

21 For three things the earth is disquieted, and for four which it cannot bear:

22 [i] For a servant when he reigneth; and a fool when he is filled with meat;

[i] Chap. 19. 10.

23 For an odious woman when she is married; and an handmaid that is heir to her mistress.

24 There be four things which are little

---

it is a prayer of choice, or a comparative prayer: as if he had said, Give me, O God, if it be Thy will, the middle between both, and feed me with food convenient for me. For though all the three conditions be so far indifferent that a man may be good, and ought to be contented or resigned, in any of them, yet, if it were matter of choice, the middle is the easiest and most desirable. Dr. Jortin.

—— feed me with food convenient for me:] "With bread sufficient for me:" in the Syriack, "with the bread of my sufficiency or convenience." Dr. Hales.

This "convenient food" is in the original, "the bread of my competent allowance." It is even that "sufficient bread," that "daily bread," which Christ our Lord in His prayer hath taught us all to pray for. By "bread," or "food," the Hebrews understand all provisions for the use of life. Jos. Mede.

9. Lest I be full, &c.] That is, lest too much plenty make me worldly-minded, profane, and irreligious. To say in a contemptuous manner, Who is the Lord? is to deny the being or the providence of God. We may deny these by our words, or by our behaviour. To deny them by words, is to utter a lie; and to deny them by behaviour, may be called, to act a lie, and a lie of the most detestable kind. Dr. Jortin.

—— take the name of my God in vain.] That is, have recourse to perjury to clear myself from the charge of theft. Dr. Wells. Lest poverty tempt me to steal, and stealth involve me in perjury. Abp. Tillotson. It will illustrate this expression to mention, that the danger of perjury, on committing a theft, was greater among the Jews than among us, by reason of a custom or law amongst them, to tender an oath to those who were suspected of theft, and who were thus to clear themselves. Dr. Jortin.

10. — lest he curse thee, and thou be found guilty.] Lest in the bitterness of his soul he curse thee, and God hearing him should punish thy guiltiness. Bp. Hall.

11. There is a generation &c.] There are four descriptions of men (ver. 11—14.) worthy of our avoidance and detestation; the first is of graceless children who curse their parents, the next of false hypocrites and self-pleasers, the third of proud men who are exalted in their own opinions, the fourth of cruel oppressors who kill and devour the poor, &c. Bp. Hall.

13. — O how lofty are their eyes!] Who superciliously overlook other men, as if they were not worthy of the least regard from them. Bp. Patrick.

15. The horseleach &c.] This verse has considerable difficulty in it. It seems to contain an answer to a question which the disciples of Agur had propounded to him, after the manner of enigmatical discourses or riddles, what is most insatiable; to which he answers, The horseleach, which sucks the blood of other creatures till it bursts, as those wicked men (mentioned at ver. 14.) do the livelihood of the poor, till they ruin themselves. And as to this perpetual craving of more, the "horseleach has two daughters;" that is, there are two things so like to her in this, that they may be called her daughters, as they always cry, Give more. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

—— There are three things &c.] This he expresses after the manner of the Hebrews, who often, when intending to mention several things, separate them at first, beginning with a lesser number, and proceeding then to the greater. There are examples of this at Amos i. 3, 6, 9, &c. and also at Prov. vi. 16. and in this chapter, ver. 18, 21, &c. Bp. Patrick.

17. — the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, &c.] Meaning, they shall come to an infamous end, and their dead bodies shall be exposed, and become a prey to the ravens and eagles. Bp. Patrick.

18. There be three things &c.] In these words he resolves another riddle, which it appears had been proposed to him, namely, what things are most obscure and unaccountable, though ordinary and common. Bp. Patrick.

19. — the way of a serpent upon a rock;] A serpent seems here to be specified rather than any other animal, because he would be more likely to discover himself by the marks left behind him on the dust; but upon a rock he leaves no more trace than the eagle in the air, or the ship in the sea. Dr. Durell.

—— the way of a man &c.] In the Latin translation, the words are rendered with a very different sense, "The way of a man in his youth," alluding to the secret and imperceptible manner in which he advances from the feebleness, mental and bodily, of childhood, to the strength and stature of manhood. Calmet.

20. — she eateth, &c.] A modest way of expressing her unlawful commerce. Dr. Durell.

22. — a fool when he is filled with meat;] A man of no principles, when pampered and brought into affluent circumstances. Dr. Durell.

23. — an odious woman] A woman whose moroseness, bad qualities, and passions, make her hated by every body. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 700.

upon the earth, but they are † exceeding wise:

† Heb. wise, made wise.

25 [k] The ants are a people not strong, yet they prepare their meat in the summer;

[k] Chap. 6. 6.

26 The conies are but a feeble folk, yet make they their houses in the rocks;

27 The locusts have no king, yet go they

† Heb. gathered together.

forth all of them † by bands;

28 The spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in kings' palaces.

29 There be three things which go well, yea, four are comely in going:

30 A lion which is strongest among beasts, and turneth not away for any;

‖ Or, horse. † Heb. girt in the loins.

31 A ‖ † greyhound; an he goat also; and a king, against whom there is no rising up.

32 If thou hast done foolishly in lifting up thyself, or if thou hast thought evil,

[l] Job 21. 5. & 40. 4.

[l] lay thine hand upon thy mouth.

33 Surely the churning of milk bringeth forth butter, and the wringing of the nose bringeth forth blood: so the forcing of wrath bringeth forth strife.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 Lemuel's lesson of chastity and temperance. 6 The afflicted are to be comforted and defended. 10 The praise and properties of a good wife.

THE words of king Lemuel, the prophecy that his mother taught him.

2 What, my son? and what, the son of my womb? and what, the son of my vows?

Before CHRIST about 1015.

3 Give not thy strength unto women, nor thy ways to that which destroyeth kings.

4 It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink:

5 Lest they drink, and forget the law, and † pervert the judgment † of any of the afflicted.

† Heb. alter. † Heb. of all the sons of affliction.

6 [a] Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those that be † of heavy hearts.

[a] Psal. 104. 15. † Heb. bitter of soul.

7 Let him drink, and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more.

8 Open thy mouth for the dumb in the cause of all † such as are appointed to destruction.

† Heb. the sons of destruction.

9 Open thy mouth, [b] judge righteously, and plead the cause of the poor and needy.

[b] Lev. 19. 15. Deut. 1. 16.

10 ¶ [c] Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies.

[c] Chap. 12. 4.

11 The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil.

12 She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life.

13 She seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands.

14 She is like the merchants' ships; she bringeth her food from afar.

15 She riseth also while it is yet night, and giveth meat to her houshold, and a portion to her maidens.

16 She considereth a field, and † buyeth

† Heb. taketh.

---

26. The conies &c.] See note at Levit. xi. 5. That the animal meant is "Israel's lamb," otherwise called Ashkoko, is confirmed by this passage in Proverbs, where they are described to be "a feeble folk," an expression probably alluding to their feet, which appear very inadequate to the work of digging holes in the rock: these feet are frequently round, very pulpy or fleshy; notwithstanding which, they build houses on the very hardest rocks, more inaccessible than those of the rabbit, in which they abide in greater safety, not by exertion of strength, (for, in Solomon's words, they are altogether "a feeble folk,") but by their own sagacity and judgment. Bruce.

27. The locusts &c.] See the notes on Exod. x. 4. and 15. and on Joel ii. 2, &c.

31. A greyhound;] The words in the Hebrew signify literally, "girt or narrow in the loins." Some suppose a horse to be meant. Bochart applies it to the greyhound. Dr. Russell says, that the greyhounds at Aleppo are of a very light slender make, and remarkably fleet. It is probable they had the same breed in Judea. Parkhurst.

32. If thou hast done foolishly &c.] If thou hast felt the emotions of pride, or entertained a wicked thought, add not to thy sin by uttering it.

33. — butter;] See note at Judg. v. 25.

— so the forcing of wrath &c.] So the earnest provocation of anger is the occasion of quarrels and much strife. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XXXI. ver. 1. The words of king Lemuel,] See the Introduction.

2. What, my son? &c.] "What terms shall I employ, my son?" &c. To shew her son what anxiety she feels to see him wise and happy, she expresses that she knows not how to begin to point out to him his duties, and the dangers he ought to avoid. Calmet.

6. Give strong drink &c.] Rather, Give strong drink to the man that is dejected in spirits, and near to perishing, through extremity of affliction. Bp. Hall.

8. Open thy mouth &c.] Speak thou for them that are not able to speak for themselves, and plead thou for them that are undeservedly marked out for destruction. Bp. Hall.

10. Who can find a virtuous woman?] The instructions of Lemuel seem to end here; and a lesson for daughters begins, ranged in verses according to the letters of the Hebrew alphabet, with which each verse successively begins, for the convenience of the memory.

13. She seeketh wool, &c.] She loves to be always employed in some piece of useful housewifery suitable to her condition. Dr. Wells.

This description of a virtuous woman consists of twenty-two verses. It is well worthy of observation, that eleven of these verses, half the number, are taken up in setting forth her industry, and the effects of it. A variety of magnificent language is made use of to describe her different employments, to recommend simplicity of manners, and make good housewifery and honest labour to be admired in the rich and noble, as well as in the poor and obscure, among women. In works of the several kinds here mentioned, queens and princesses of old time disdained not to be occupied. Bp. Horne.

14. She is like the merchants' ships;] By exchange of what is made by her own care at home, she procures such foreign goods as her family needs, and her own country does not afford. Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST about 1015.

it: with the fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard.

17 She girdeth her loins with strength, and strengtheneth her arms.

† Heb. She tasteth.

18 † She perceiveth that her merchandise is good: her candle goeth not out by night.

19 She layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff.

† Heb. She spreadeth.

20 † She stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy.

21 She is not afraid of the snow for her houshold: for all her houshold are clothed with ‖ scarlet.

‖ Or, double garments.

22 She maketh herself coverings of tapestry; her clothing is silk and purple.

23 Her husband is known in the gates, when he sitteth among the elders of the land.

24 She maketh fine linen, and selleth it; and delivereth girdles unto the merchant.

Before CHRIST about 1015.

25 Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come.

26 She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness.

27 She looketh well to the ways of her houshold, and eateth not the bread of idleness.

28 Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her.

29 Many daughters ‖ have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all.

‖ Or, have gotten riches.

30 Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the LORD, she shall be praised.

31 Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates.

---

20. She stretcheth out her hand to the poor;] This is another good effect of her economy and management. She is not only able to provide plentifully for her household, but has always something in store for the poor. A charitable disposition avails little, where vanity, folly, and extravagance, have taken away the power to exert it. Bp. Horne.

21. She is not afraid of the snow &c.] She is careful to provide what is requisite for her family in the severest part of the year, and sufficient clothing in the coldest weather. Dr. Wells.

—— are clothed with scarlet.] Or, "with double garments," as in the margin. The Hebrew word signifies literally, "double;" and when applied to clothes, signifies either double in quantity and texture, or "double-dyed;" hence, as the purple and scarlet were the most usual dyes among the Hebrews, the word came to signify, a purple or scarlet dye. Parkhurst. As the sentence seems to refer to a security against cold, it seems better to translate here "double garments." Dr. Durell.

23. Her husband is known in the gates,] That is, he is known as her husband; as a man blessed with such a wife; as indebted, perhaps, for his promotion, to the wealth acquired by her management at home; for the splendour and elegance of his apparel, to the labour of her hands; and, it may be, for the preservation and establishment of his virtue and integrity, to the encouragement, in all that is holy and just and good, furnished by her example as well as by her conversation. Bp. Horne.

24. —girdles] Girdles curiously wrought, which she sells to the merchant. Bp. Patrick. Curiously wrought or embroidered girdles are still an essential part of Eastern finery, both to men and women. Parkhurst. Maillet informs us, that the Arab women have been accustomed to deal in buying and selling things woven of silk, cotton, &c. and simple linen cloth; which is precisely what is here said of the industrious Israelitish women. Harmer.

25. Strength and honour are her clothing;] See the note on Job xxix. 14.

29. Many daughters have done &c.] Her husband will extol her worth and virtue above other women, saying, Other wives have done and deserved well, but thou surpassest them all. Bp. Hall. Happy the children of such a mother; they will be living proofs of the care taken by her in their education, when she taught them to walk, by the paths of honour and virtue, to the mansions of rest and glory. Happy the husband of such a wife, who sees all things prosper under her direction, and the blessing of Heaven derived to his family through her. They will all join in proclaiming, that, among women who do well, honour is chiefly due to the virtuous and diligent wife, the affectionate and sensible mother. Bp. Horne.

30. Favour] A handsome shape and graceful behaviour. Bp. Patrick.

31. Give her of the fruit of her hands; &c.] Let every one extol her virtue; let her not want the just commendations of her pious labours in the greatest assemblies, where, if all men should be silent, her own works will declare her excellent worth. Bp. Patrick.

The picture which is drawn in this chapter of a good housewife is perhaps the most finished of all antiquity. It is drawn at full length, and equally pleasing in every point of view. Dr. Durell.

The following Chapters from the Proverbs are appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. I.	21st Sunday after Trinity,	Evening.
—— II.	22d Sunday after Trinity,	Morning.
—— III.	Ditto,	Evening.
—— XI.	23d Sunday after Trinity,	Morning.
—— XII.	Ditto,	Evening.
—— XIII.	24th Sunday after Trinity,	Morning.
—— XIV.	Ditto,	Evening.
—— XV.	25th Sunday after Trinity,	Morning.
CHAP. XVI.	25th Sunday after Trinity,	Evening.
—— XVII.	26th Sunday after Trinity,	Morning.
—— XIX.	Ditto,	Evening.
—— XX.	St. Andrew,	Morning.
—— XXI.	Ditto,	Evening.
—— XXIII.	St. Thomas,	Morning.
—— XXIV.	Ditto,	Evening.
—— XXVIII.	St. Stephen,	Morning.

ECCLESIASTES;

OR,

THE PREACHER.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Book of Ecclesiastes is called in Hebrew "Coheleth," a word which signifies one who speaks in publick; and which indeed is properly translated by the Greek word Ecclesiastes, or the Preacher. It is unquestionably the production of Solomon, who for the great excellency of his instructions is emphatically styled, "the Preacher:" for the writer of it styles himself, "the son of David, king of Jerusalem," chap. i. 1; he describes too his wisdom, his riches, his writings, and his works, in a manner which is applicable only to Solomon; and by all tradition, Jewish and Christian, the book is attributed to him. It is said by the Jews to have been written by him, upon his awakening to repentance, after he had been seduced, in the decline of life, to idolatry and sin; and, if this be true, it affords valuable proofs of the sincerity with which he regretted his departure from righteousness.

The main scope and tendency of the Book have been variously represented by different writers. It may be considered as a kind of inquiry into the chief good; an inquiry conducted on sound principles, and terminating in a conclusion which all on mature reflexion will approve. The great object of Solomon appears to have been, from a comprehensive consideration of the circumstances of human life, to demonstrate the vanity of all secular pursuits. He endeavours to illustrate, by a just estimate, the insufficiency of earthly enjoyment; not with design to excite in us a disgust at life, but to influence us to prepare for that state where there is no vanity. With this view, the Preacher affirms, that man's labour, as far as it has respect only to present objects, is vain and unprofitable; that however prosperous and flattering circumstances may appear, yet, as he could from experience assert, neither knowledge, nor pleasure, nor magnificence, nor greatness, nor uncontrolled indulgence, can satisfy the desires of man; that the solicitude with which some men toil and heap up possessions for descendants often unworthy, is especial vexation; that it is better far to derive those enjoyments from the gifts of Providence which they were designed to furnish, by being rendered subservient to good actions. Solomon at chap. iii. 16. proceeds to observe, that in this life iniquity usurps the place of righteousness; that man appears in some respects to have "no preeminence above the beast" that perishes; and that the consideration of these circumstances may at first sight lead to wrong conclusions concerning the value of life; but that God should not be hastily arraigned, for that "He that is higher than the highest regardeth:" that even here, those who "pervert judgment" are not satisfied by abundance, but that "the sleep of a labouring man is sweet," chap. iii.—vi.: that though the hearts of men be encouraged in evil by the delay of God's sentence, and though the days of the sinner may be prolonged on earth, yet, finally, it shall be well only with them who fear God, chap. viii. 11—13. Solomon then sums up his exhortations to good deeds, and to a remembrance of the Creator in the days of youth, "or ever the silver cord (of life) be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken," chap. xii. 6, 7. when "the dust shall return to the earth, and the spirit unto God who gave it." And the inspired teacher bids us "hear the conclusion of the whole matter," which is, to "fear God, and keep His commandments; for this is the whole duty of man." Dr. Gray.

It has been objected against the Book of Ecclesiastes, that some passages in it savour of irreligion, others of immorality. But these are, in truth, either innocent, when rightly interpreted; or else express, not the wise king's sentiments, but the false opinions of others, in whose name he speaks, in order to confute them; or, however, are not his deliberate sentiments, but such hasty wrong notions as, during the course of his inquiry after happiness, rose up successively in his mind, and were on mature consideration rejected by him, in order to fix at last on the true basis, "the conclusion of the whole matter; to fear God and keep his commandments." Abp. Secker.

The doctrine of a future retribution forms the great basis, and the leading truth, of this Book. In it, the Royal Preacher expatiates on the transitory condition of mankind, if considered as confined to the present state of existence; the vanity and vexation of spirit attending all present human enjoyment, which his own experience had so abundantly proved; the apparent inequality of Providence, (except under the Jewish dispensation,) by which there appears one event to the righteous and to the wicked. But in all the difficulties and perplexities, all that vanity and vexation of spirit, which this partial view of human nature implies, the Royal Preacher brings forward the prospect of a future life and just retribution, as the solution and the remedy, the consolation and the cure. See chap. iii. 17. viii. 11. xi. 9. xii. 14. Dr. Graves.

The style of this Book is different from that of others; the diction is for the most part plain, but particularly obscure; often vague and prosaick; nor is there much of poetick character in the composition and structure of it, which perhaps may be properly attributed to the nature of the argument. The Jews are unwilling to have it reckoned among the poetical books; and if their authority availed much in matters of this kind, we might perhaps in this particular be disposed to agree with their opinion. Bp. Lowth.

The Book may be divided into two general parts; the first, comprising the six first chapters, in which Solomon shews that all things relating to this world only are vain and perishing, and therefore can afford no true, or solid, or lasting satisfaction or happiness; the second, comprising the six last chapters, in which he shews that piety is the only means, by which we can attain true and lasting happiness. Dr. Wells.

I cannot but exhort all men to study this Book diligently, and with great intention of mind; both for the author's sake and for the matter of it. For he handles his subject in such a manner as first to draw us from the desire and love of earthly things, and from the perverse use of them; and then to lead us to the true and lawful use of them; without either offence to God or injury to ourselves. And he teaches us how we may, without an excessive solicitude and anxiety about events, enjoy all things in the fear of God, with tranquillity and satisfaction of mind at present; and at last, by the same fear of God and observance of His commandments, arrive at a never-ending felicity. Bp. Patrick.

CHAP. I.

1 The preacher sheweth that all human courses are vain: 4 because the creatures are restless in their courses, 9 they bring forth nothing new, and all old things are forgotten, 12 and because he hath found it so in the studies of wisdom.

Before CHRIST about 977

THE words of the Preacher, the son of David, king of Jerusalem.

[a] Chap. 12. 8. Psal. 39. 5, 6. & 62. 9. & 144. 4.
2 [a] Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity.

[b] Chap. 2. 22. & 3. 9.
3 [b] What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun?

4 One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: [c] but the earth abideth for ever.

[c] Psal. 104. 5. & 119. 90.
5 The sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and † hasteth to his place where he arose.

† Heb. panteth.
6 The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits.

[d] Psal. 104. 8, 9. Job 38. 10.
7 [d] All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they † return again.

† Heb. return to go.
8 All things are full of labour; man cannot utter it: the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing.

[e] Ch. 3. 15.
9 [e] The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun.

10 Is there any thing whereof it may be said, See, this is new? it hath been already of old time, which was before us.

Before CHRIST about 977.
11 There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after.

12 ¶ I the Preacher was king over Israel in Jerusalem.

13 And I gave my heart to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven: this sore travail hath God given to the sons of man ‖ to be exercised therewith.

‖ Or, to afflict them.
14 I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit.

[f] Ch. 7. 13.
† Heb. defect.
15 [f] That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and † that which is wanting cannot be numbered.

16 I communed with mine own heart, saying, Lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten [g] more wisdom than all they that have been before me in Jerusalem: yea, my heart † had great experience of wisdom and knowledge.

[g] 1 Kings 4. 30. & 10. 7, 23.
† Heb. had seen much.
17 [h] And I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly: I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit.

[h] Chap. 2. 12. & 7. 23.
18 For in much wisdom is much grief: and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

CHAP. II.

1 The vanity of human courses in the works of pleasure. 12 Though the wise be better than the fool, yet both have one event. 18 The vanity of human labour, in leaving it they know not to whom. 24 Nothing better than joy in our labour; but that is God's gift.

Chap. I. ver. 1. The words of the Preacher,] See the Introduction.

—— king of Jerusalem.] The Greek renders, King of Israel in Jerusalem.

2. Vanity &c.] In the eleven first verses, Solomon lays the foundation of his following discourses, and makes his way to the proof of what he intends, that nothing here can make us permanently happy, by shewing how empty all things are, how short a time man has to possess them; and that, while this time lasts, he can only enjoy the same empty things over and over again, till he be cloyed with them. Bp. Patrick.

In this expression that "all is vanity," the wise man principally refers to the labours of mankind, about the things of the present world; and must be understood, not as absolutely condemning the things themselves, or our pursuits about them, but only as the one may be in some cases unsuitable, and the other irregular or excessive. Dr. J. Balguy.

4. — but the earth abideth for ever.] That is, constantly, notwithstanding these fluctuations. Script. illust.

5. The sun also ariseth, &c.] The sun in a settled course observes its times of rising and setting, whereas man, when he goes down to the earth, cannot, like the sun, return again. The author is representing, in this and the two next verses, by four comparisons, with the earth, the sun, the wind, and the sea, man to be more subject to vanity than other things. Bp. Patrick.

8. All things are full of labour;] He now proceeds to consider more particularly what he said in general words, (ver. 3,) of man's vain endeavour to satisfy himself in worldly designs and contrivances, in which he is tired, and comes to no end of his desires; and how indeed should he, when his whole business here is only to enjoy the same things over and over again, as all men have done before us, and will do after us? ver. 9, 10, 11. Bp. Patrick.

9. — there is no new thing under the sun.] This expression of the Preacher is only to be understood as a general inference from what he had said, namely, that there is nothing among the appearances of nature which happens now otherwise than it has done for some generations before; and, in the moral world, men being subject to the same passions and affections as heretofore, it is no wonder the same causes should operate in the production of the same effects. Dr. Durell.

15. That which is crooked &c.] The shortness of human wit, however improved, is here represented by two things; first, that it cannot remove what is inconvenient; secondly, that it cannot supply what is deficient, in any condition of life. Bp. Patrick.

17. — to know madness and folly:] Referring perhaps to all the idle speculations in which men of parts and wit are apt to employ themselves. Bp. Patrick.

18. For in much wisdom &c.] Meaning that, though knowledge is the most excellent of earthly goods, yet the possession of it is insufficient for our happiness, and is often attended with trouble and vexation. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 977.

I SAID in mine heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure: and, behold, this also is vanity.

2 I said of laughter, It is mad: and of mirth, What doeth it?

[a] Ch. 1. 17. † Heb. to draw my flesh with wine.

3 [a] I sought in mine heart † to give myself unto wine, yet acquainting mine heart with wisdom; and to lay hold on folly, till I might see what was that good for the sons of men, which they should do under the heaven † all the days of their life.

† Heb. the number of the days of their life.

4 I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards:

5 I made me gardens and orchards, and I planted trees in them of all kind of fruits:

6 I made me pools of water, to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees:

† Heb. sons of my house.

7 I got me servants and maidens, and had † servants born in my house; also I had great possessions of great and small cattle above all that were in Jerusalem before me:

[b] 1 Kings 9. 28. & 10. 14.

8 [b] I gathered me also silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings and of the provinces: I gat me men singers and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, as † musical instruments, and that of all sorts.

† Heb. musical instrument and instruments.

9 So I was great, and increased more than all that were before me in Jerusalem: also my wisdom remained with me.

10 And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them, I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labour: and this was my portion of all my labour.

11 Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labour that I had laboured to do: and, behold, all was [c] vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun.

Before CHRIST about 977.

[c] Chap. 1. 3.

12 ¶ And I turned myself to behold wisdom, [d] and madness, and folly: for what can the man do that cometh after the king? ‖ even that which hath been already done.

[d] Chap. 1. 17. & 7. 25.

‖ Or, in those things which have been already done.

13 Then I saw † that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness.

† Heb. that there is an excellency in wisdom more than in folly, &c.

14 [e] The wise man's eyes are in his head; but the fool walketh in darkness: and I myself perceived also that one event happeneth to them all.

[e] Prov. 17. 24. ch. 8. 1.

15 Then said I in my heart, As it happeneth to the fool, so it † happeneth even to me; and why was I then more wise? Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity.

† Heb. happeneth to me, even to me.

16 For there is no remembrance of the wise more than of the fool for ever; seeing that which now is in the days to come shall all be forgotten. And how dieth the wise man? as the fool.

17 Therefore I hated life; because the work that is wrought under the sun is grievous unto me: for all is vanity and vexation of spirit.

18 ¶ Yea, I hated all my labour which I had † taken under the sun: because [f] I should leave it unto the man that shall be after me.

† Heb. laboured.

[f] Psal. 49. 10.

19 And who knoweth whether he shall be a wise man or a fool? yet shall he have rule over all my labour wherein I have laboured, and wherein I have shewed myself wise under the sun. This is also vanity.

20 Therefore I went about to cause my

Chap. II. ver. 2. I said of laughter,] Meaning excessive laughter, dissolute and frantick merriment. Bp. Patrick.

3. — and to lay hold on folly, &c.] That is, not altogether to follow the study of wisdom, nor yet altogether to pursue pleasure, but to mix them together; "till I might see," &c. that is, till I might sufficiently try whether herein lay that so much desired good, which men pursue here all their lives. Dr. Wells.

6. — the wood that bringeth forth trees:] That is, the nurseries of young trees. Desvoeux.

7. I got me servants and maidens,] The servants among the Hebrews were chiefly slaves, either bought or taken in war. Dr. Hodgson.

8. — the peculiar treasure of kings and of the provinces:] That is, I procured whatever was choice and precious in other kingdoms, and especially in those countries which were subject to me. Dr. Wells.

12. — for what can the man do that cometh after the king?] For who is there that can give a better account than I the king, who have had such advantages, beyond any private man, to know the history of former times, as well as my own; so that, I am confident, they who come after can pass no better judgment on things than I do now. Bp. Patrick.

13. — as far as light excelleth darkness.] Meaning, that religion and virtue are as much more excellent and profitable to men than wickedness, as it is possible for one thing to be preferable to another. Dr. S. Clarke.

14. The wise man's eyes &c.] A wise man, looking around him and before him, is cautious and well aware of danger, into which the fool, blinded with the sottish love of pleasure, falls rashly and inconsiderately. Yet, with all his circumspection, he is not able to avoid many calamities which are common to all mankind. Bp. Patrick.

17. Therefore I hated life; &c.] I became quite out of love with this life, because the toil attending it is grievous; and yet, after all, it affords no solid or lasting satisfaction. Dr. Wells.

18. — because I should leave it unto the man that shall be after me.] Solomon seems here to speak with a melancholy reflexion on his own son Rehoboam. "Who knoweth," he adds, "whether he shall be a wise man, or a fool?" He appears to speak doubtfully, but he had a very shrewd guess, what kind of man his son would make, for he speaks more despondingly in the words which follow; and he feelingly expresses how much the very fear and apprehension of this embittered the fruit of all his labour. Abp. Tillotson.

20. Therefore I went about &c.] Therefore I bent my thoughts to do away all hope of any good issue to all my earthly labours and endeavours. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 977.

heart to despair of all the labour which I took under the sun.

21 For there is a man whose labour is in wisdom, and in knowledge, and in equity; yet to a man that hath not laboured therein shall he † leave it for his portion. This also is vanity and a great evil.

† Heb. give.

22 [g] For what hath man of all his labour, and of the vexation of his heart, wherein he hath laboured under the sun?

[g] Chap. 1. 3. & 3. 9.

23 For all his days are [h] sorrows, and his travail grief; yea, his heart taketh not rest in the night. This is also vanity.

[h] Job 14. 1.

24 ¶ [i] There is nothing better for a man, than that he should eat and drink, and that he ‖ should make his soul enjoy good in his labour. This also I saw, that it was from the hand of God.

[i] Chap. 3. 12, 13, 22. & 5. 18. & 8. 15.

‖ Or, delight his senses.

25 For who can eat, or who else can hasten hereunto, more than I?

26 For God giveth to a man that is good † in his sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy: but to the sinner he giveth travail, to gather and to heap up, that [k] he may give to him that is good before God. This also is vanity and vexation of spirit.

† Heb. before him.

[k] Job 27. 17.

CHAP. III.

1 By the necessary change of times, vanity is added to human travail. 11 There is an excellency in God's works. 16 But as for man, God shall judge his works there, and here he shall be like a beast.

TO every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven:

2 A time † to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;

† Heb. to bear.

3 A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;

Before CHRIST about 977.

4 A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance;

5 A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time † to refrain from embracing;

† Heb. to be far from.

6 A time to ‖ get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away;

‖ Or, seek.

7 A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;

8 A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.

9 [a] What profit hath he that worketh in that wherein he laboureth?

[a] Chap. 1. 3.

10 I have seen the travail, which God hath given to the sons of men to be exercised in it.

11 He hath made every thing beautiful in his time: also he hath set the world in their heart, so that no man can find out the work that God maketh from the beginning to the end.

12 I know that there is no good in them, but for a man to rejoice, and to do good in his life.

13 And also that every man should eat and drink, and enjoy the good of all his labour, it is the gift of God.

14 I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him.

15 [b] That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth † that which is past.

[b] Chap. 1. 9.

† Heb. that which is driven away.

---

24. There is nothing better for a man, &c.] He here teaches, that all the benefit of mere human labour is the moderate or sober enjoyment of what we have acquired by it. Dr. Wells. For the truth of which, he says in the next verse, you may rely on my experience. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. III. ver. 1. To every thing there is a season, &c.] Solomon proceeds to shew that the vicissitude of the seasons, and of all earthly things, teaches us that we should enjoy what we get, as well as labour to get it; and that it also adds to the vanity of all things connected with human life. Dr. Wells.

3. A time to kill,] A time, whether in a just war, or in a peaceable execution of justice, in which it is warrantable to kill. Bp. Hall.

5. A time to cast away stones, &c.] This may signify, "A time to cast away stones with a sling, and a time to collect them again in a bag;" or, "a time to cast stones on a field to render it barren, and a time to collect stones out of a field to render it fertile;" or, "a time to cast away stones improper for building, and to collect proper ones." Calmet.

7. A time to rend, and a time to sew;] The "rending" here mentioned undoubtedly refers to the oriental mode of expressing sorrow, by rending the clothes. The "sewing" is designed as the opposite to it, and may mean the making up of new garments; for in the East it is thought essentially necessary for the due solemnization of a time of rejoicing, to put on new clothes. Harmer.

9. What profit hath he &c.] What stability or lasting profit can a man expect from that which he does, since there is such a changeable vicissitude in all actions and events? Bp. Hall.

11. — he hath set the world in their heart,] Solomon here declares not obscurely, that God has framed the mind of man as a mirrour capable of the image of the whole world, not only delighted in beholding the variety of things and the changes of times, but ambitious to find out and discover the immovable and settled laws and decrees of nature. And, though he intimates that this whole economy of nature (which he calls "the work that God maketh from the beginning to the end") cannot be found out by man, it does not derogate from the power and capacity of his mind, but is to be imputed to the impediments of human learning, &c. Lord Bacon.

12. — but for a man to rejoice, and to do good] So true it is that the pleasure of doing good remains after a thing is done, the thoughts of it lie easy in our minds, and the reflexion upon it afterwards ministers to us, ever after, joy and delight. In this passage Solomon, after all his experience of worldly pleasures, pitches at last upon this as the greatest happiness of human life, and the only good use which is to be made of a prosperous fortune. Abp. Tillotson.

Before CHRIST about 977.

16 ¶ And moreover I saw under the sun the place of judgment, that wickedness was there; and the place of righteousness, that iniquity was there.

17 I said in mine heart, God shall judge the righteous and the wicked: for there is [c] a time there for every purpose and for every work.

[c] Ver. 1.

18 I said in mine heart concerning the estate of the sons of men, ‖ that God might manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are beasts.

‖ Or, that they might clear God, and see, &c.

19 [d] For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast: for all is vanity.

[d] Ps. 49. 12. chap. 2. 16.

20 All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again.

21 Who knoweth the spirit † of man that † goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth?

† Heb. of the sons of man. † Heb. is ascending.

22 [e] Wherefore I perceived that there is nothing better, than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion: for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him?

[e] Chap. 2. 24. & 5. 18.

CHAP. IV.

1 Vanity is increased unto men by oppression, 4 by envy, 5 by idleness, 7 by covetousness, 9 by solitariness, 13 by wilfulness.

SO I returned, and considered all the [a] oppressions that are done under the sun: and behold the tears of such as were oppressed, and they had no comforter; and on the † side of their oppressors there was power; but they had no comforter.

Before CHRIST about 977.

[a] Chap. 5. 8.

† Heb. hand.

2 [b] Wherefore I praised the dead which are already dead more than the living which are yet alive.

[b] Job 3. 17, &c.

3 [c] Yea, better is he than both they, which hath not yet been, who hath not seen the evil work that is done under the sun.

[c] Job 3. 11, 16, 21.

4 ¶ Again, I considered all travail, and † every right work, that † for this a man is envied of his neighbour. This is also vanity and vexation of spirit.

† Heb. all the rightness of work. † Heb. this is the envy of a man from his neighbour.

5 [d] The fool foldeth his hands together, and eateth his own flesh.

[d] Prov. 6. 10. & 24. 33.

6 [e] Better is an handful with quietness, than both the hands full with travail and vexation of spirit.

[e] Prov. 15. 16. & 16. 8.

7 ¶ Then I returned, and I saw vanity under the sun.

8 There is one alone, and there is not a second; yea, he hath neither child nor brother: yet is there no end of all his labour; neither is his eye satisfied with riches; neither saith he, For whom do I labour, and bereave my soul of good? This is also vanity, yea, it is a sore travail.

9 ¶ Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labour.

---

19. For that which befalleth &c.] Among the passages of this book with which, for want of discerning the true design and scope of it, vain and wicked persons would encourage themselves in their follies and impiety, is this, from ver. 19. to 21, "that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts," &c. as if the end of man and beasts were the same, and therefore men might lead sensual lives, as beasts do, without concern for the future; whereas Solomon, speaking of "the estate of the sons of men," (ver. 18,) not in the next world but in this, pursues his main purpose, in shewing the vanity of earthly things and designs, that, whatever content or satisfaction men may propose to themselves in this world, all is but vanity, they are in many respects like beasts, they draw in the same air, their breath will fail them, they will die and be turned to dust as well as the beasts. Yea, so vain is man, and so like the beasts as to outward appearance, that, although when he dieth "his spirit shall return unto God," and he shall be judged in order to be rewarded suitably to his deeds, (ver. 17. and chap. xii. 7, 14.) yet no one knoweth "the spirit of man that goeth upward," &c. that is, no one can experimentally, or by sense and reasoning, discern a man's soul that ascends or goes upwards, any more than that of the beast which descends or goes downwards: so great is man's ignorance of such matters. This thought should wean us from too much care for the future, and make us thank God for our portion in this world, disposing us to do good with it to others, and to enjoy it without solicitude. Collyer.

21. Who knoweth the spirit of man &c.] The sense may be, How few men live as if they knew that the soul of man is immortal, and that, when the body dies, it goeth upward to God to be judged by Him; and that the spirit of the beast dying with the body, and going downward to the earth, there utterly perishes. Dr. Wells.

22. — that a man should rejoice in his own works;] That he should make a cheerful use of God's good blessings, as the only fruit and alleviation which the earth will afford of all his painful labours here. Bp. Hall.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. So I returned,] He proceeds to consider the power which many times falls into the hands of unjust and cruel men, and to represent the miserable estate of those that are subject to them, as a further argument of the vanity and vexation to which all men are liable in this troublesome world; and, having noted some of the principal mischiefs of this sort, he concludes this chapter with some animadversions on the condition of the greatest and best of princes, who are not so happy as the world is apt to think them. Bp. Patrick.

2. Wherefore I praised the dead &c.] Considering the various oppressions which were so frequent in the world, Solomon considered those persons happier who were out of it, than those who still lived in it. Abp. Tillotson.

5. — eateth his own flesh.] Consumes his own substance.

8. There is one alone, &c.] In opposition to the character of the idler, he here introduces (ver. 8—12.) the character of an indefatigable covetous man, who, having nobody with whom to share his fortune, cannot resolve either to leave off heaping up riches, or quietly to enjoy what he has already acquired. Desvoeux.

9. — because they have a good reward for their labour.] How much wiser, Solomon says, is he who not only enjoys what he has himself, but takes others into his society for purposes of common counsel and mutual assistance, and of mutual partici-

Before CHRIST about 977.

10 For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up.

11 Again, if two lie together, then they have heat: but how can one be warm alone?

12 And if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

13 ¶ Better is a poor and a wise child than an old and foolish king, † who will no more be admonished.

† Heb. who knoweth not to be admonished.

14 For out of prison he cometh to reign; whereas also he that is born in his kingdom becometh poor.

15 I considered all the living which walk under the sun, with the second child that shall stand up in his stead.

16 There is no end of all the people, even of all that have been before them: they also that come after shall not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and vexation of spirit.

CHAP. V.

1 Vanities in divine service, 8 in murmuring against oppression, 9 and in riches. 18 Joy in riches is the gift of God.

KEEP thy foot when thou goest to the house of God, and be more ready to hear, [a] than to give the sacrifice of fools: for they consider not that they do evil.

Before CHRIST about 977.

[a] 1 Sam. 15. 22. Ps. 50. 8. Prov. 15. 8. & 21. 27.

2 Be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be hasty to utter any ‖ thing before God: for God is in heaven, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be [b] few.

‖ Or, word.

[b] Matt. 6. 7. Prov. 10. 19.

3 For a dream cometh through the multitude of business; and a fool's voice is known by multitude of words.

4 [c] When thou vowest a vow unto God, defer not to pay it; for he hath no pleasure in fools: [d] pay that which thou hast vowed.

[c] Deut. 23. 21.

[d] Psal. 66. 13, 14.

5 Better is it that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow and not pay.

6 Suffer not thy mouth to cause thy flesh to sin; neither say thou before the angel, that it was an error: wherefore should God be angry at thy voice, and destroy the work of thine hands?

7 For in the multitude of dreams and many words there are also divers vanities: but fear thou God.

8 ¶ If thou seest the oppression of the poor, and violent perverting of judgment and justice in a province, marvel not † at the matter: for he that is higher than the † Heb. at the will, or, purpose.

---

pation in the good things which God has given him! Bp. Patrick. "Two are better than one;" implying generally, that society is productive of much comfort and benefit. Bp. Hall.

13 Better is a poor and a wise child &c.] He proceeds to shew, that still it is not society alone which will make men happy, without wisdom or virtue. For who are better attended or guarded than kings? and yet the poorest man that is, if he be wise and good, is far happier than the wealthiest prince on earth who foolishly abuses his power. Bp. Patrick.

14. For out of prison &c.] For it has been known that he who was poor and abject as the vilest slave in a prison has come to reign by singular prudence, while he that is born of royal ancestors is sometimes through his folly deserted by his subjects, loses his kingdom, and "becometh poor." By the expression "out of prison," it is not improbable that Solomon has here respect to the case of Joseph in Egypt. Dr. Wells.

15. I considered all the living &c.] If what is mentioned at ver. 13, 14. happen not to a king, I have seen, he adds, another great unhappiness which more usually befalls kings; namely, their being left with only the bare title of royalty, while the hearts and affections of the kingdom incline to "the second son," that is, to the child who was second to him, or heir of the kingdom. Dr. Wells.

16. There is no end of all the people,] There will be no end of this disposition in all mankind, so deeply is it rooted in them; for, as it has always been the disposition "of all that have been before them" to be weary of what they have long enjoyed, and pleased with novelty, and therefore to slight an old king and court his successor, so "they that come after shall not rejoice in him;" that is, shall in like manner slight the present heir when he comes to be old, and pay court to his son or heir, as they now do to him. Dr. Wells.

Chap. V. ver. 1. Keep thy foot when thou goest &c.] Beware how thou treadest, be always on thy guard, in the house of God. Let thy carriage be adjusted to the ideas of His presence whose courts thou enterest: let thy whole deportment there be such as best suits the sacredness of the place, and the majesty of Him to whom it is dedicated. Archdeacon Sharp.

—— and be more ready to hear, &c.] The meaning is, Be more ready to hear practically, that is, to obey the commandments of God: a similar expression to that of 1 Sam. xv. 22, "To obey is better than sacrifice." Have a care rather to approach the Divine Majesty with an offering of an obedient disposition, than with the bare rites of outward service. Jos. Mede.

—— to give the sacrifice of fools:] That is, barely to offer outward sacrifice, without giving due care to lead also a holy life. Dr. Wells.

2. Be not rash with thy mouth,] That is, when thou art going to pray, recollect thyself, consider that thy Creator is great, and wise, and good above all, and thou a poor dependant mortal being; weigh thy expressions, think before thou speakest, and take heed to use few words, and to ask for nothing improper. Dr. Jortin.

—— for God is in heaven, and thou upon earth:] God is in heaven, a great, infinite, eternal, all-glorious, incomprehensible Being; heaven is His throne, and earth His footstool: thou art a poor silly worm, a creeping, crawling, sinful dust and ashes: have therefore a care what thou sayest unto Him, and fear to speak any thing amiss before Him. Bp. Beveridge.

3. For a dream cometh &c.] For, as in a multitude of business, there will be troublesome and confused dreams, so in a multitude of words there will be futility and errour. Bp. Hall.

6. Suffer not thy mouth &c.] Do not entangle thy life with a rash vow, which the frailty of human nature may impel thee afterwards to break. Abp. Tillotson.

—— the angel,] "The Messenger of the covenant," Mal. iii. 1. Junius.

8. — marvel not at the matter:] Be not dismayed and amazed at the matter. Bp. Hall.

highest regardeth; and there be higher than they.

9 ¶ Moreover the profit of the earth is for all: the king himself is served by the field.

10 He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver; nor he that loveth abundance with increase: this is also vanity.

11 When goods increase, they are increased that eat them: and what good is there to the owners thereof, saving the beholding of them with their eyes?

12 The sleep of a labouring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much: but the abundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep.

13 There is a sore evil which I have seen under the sun, namely, riches kept for the owners thereof to their hurt.

14 But those riches perish by evil travail: and he begetteth a son, and there is nothing in his hand.

[e] Job 1. 21. 1 Tim. 6. 7. Psal. 49. 17. 15 [e] As he came forth of his mother's womb, naked shall he return to go as he came, and shall take nothing of his labour, which he may carry away in his hand.

16 And this also is a sore evil, that in all points as he came, so shall he go: and [f] what profit hath he that hath laboured for the wind?

[f] Chap. 1. 3.

[g] Ch. 2. 24. & 3. 12. [†] Heb. there is a good which is comely, &c. 17 All his days also he eateth in darkness, and he hath much sorrow and wrath with his sickness.

18 ¶ Behold that which I have seen: [g] [†] it is good and comely for one to eat and to drink, and to enjoy the good of all his labour that he taketh under the sun [†] all the days of his life, which God giveth him: for it is his portion.

Before CHRIST about 977.

[†] Heb. the number of the days.

19 Every man also to whom God hath given riches and wealth, and hath given him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to rejoice in his labour; this is the gift of God.

20 [‖] For he shall not much remember the days of his life; because God answereth him in the joy of his heart.

[‖] Or, Though he give not much, yet he remembereth, &c.

CHAP. VI.

1 The vanity of riches without use. 3 Of children, 6 and old age without riches. 9 The vanity of sight and wandering desires. 11 The conclusion of vanities.

THERE is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is common among men:

2 A man to whom God hath given riches, wealth, and honour, so that he wanteth nothing for his soul of all that he desireth, yet God giveth him not power to eat thereof, but a stranger eateth it: this is vanity, and it is an evil disease.

3 ¶ If a man beget an hundred children, and live many years, so that the days of his years be many, and his soul be not filled with good, and also that he have no burial; I say, that an untimely birth is better than he.

4 For he cometh in with vanity, and departeth in darkness, and his name shall be covered with darkness.

5 Moreover he hath not seen the sun,

---

11. — they are increased that eat them:] He implies, that it is but a small portion of his wealth that a rich man can enjoy personally; since, as his riches increase, he must maintain a greater family and retinue, who have a greater share than himself in the daily provision that is made by his expenses. Bp. Patrick.

14. But those riches perish &c.] Besides, these riches often perish by some disaster, so that the son, whom he thought to have left possessed of abundance of wealth, hath nothing at all left to support him. Bp. Patrick.

—— there is nothing in his hand.] He is a beggar, hath nothing in his possession. Jos. Mede.

17. All his days also he eateth in darkness,] He deprives himself of all comfort, through the too eager pursuit of wealth, and pinches his body, and tortures his mind with many vexations and discontentments. Bp. Hall.

18. — it is good and comely — to eat and to drink,] When Solomon utters this expression, it is sufficiently obvious his meaning cannot be that we should give way to sensuality and pleasures. We cannot ascribe such a thought to him, if we consider what he has just said, of the reverence with which we ought to present ourselves before God, of the judgments which God will pass on those who judge others, and of the joy which He sheds abroad in the hearts of good men. His meaning is only this, that, when God gives us wealth, we ought to be content with it, to receive it and possess it as His gracious gift, and use it with sobriety and gratitude. Ostervald.

20. For he shall not much remember &c.] For such an one will not think his life here tedious or irksome, because God gives him his very heart's desire, in enjoying comfortably the fruits of his honest labours. Dr. Wells. Otherwise it may be rendered, "He will not be anxious about the duration of his life, since God blesseth him with cheerfulness of heart." Dr. Hodgson.

Chap. VI. ver. 2. — God giveth him not power to eat thereof,] God, in His just judgment, permits him to be so far overruled by his covetous temper, that he has not power or heart to eat thereof for fear he should come to want; and so he leaves his wealth, and perhaps a stranger becomes master of it, and "eateth it," or lives plentifully upon it. Dr. Wells.

3. — and his soul be not filled with good,] And he will not allow himself what is fitting while he lives. Dr. Wells.

—— also that he have no burial;] In opposition to the blessings of a numerous progeny and long life, are placed want of contentment in this life, and want of burial after death, which, Solomon says, are such abatements of happiness, that abortion would have been preferable to life under such circumstances. Dr. Durell.

4. For he cometh in with vanity, &c.] For the stillborn child comes into the world without noise, and to no use, and passes away obscurely without notice; and, as he lived not to have a name, so the memory of him vanishes into darkness and oblivion: still (ver. 5.) "this hath more rest than the other;" that is, he is freed by so early a death from those vexations which an old covetous man draws on himself. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 977.

nor known any thing: this hath more rest than the other.

6 ¶ Yea, though he live a thousand years twice told, yet hath he seen no good: do not all go to one place?

7 All the labour of man is for his mouth, and yet the † appetite is not filled.

† Heb. soul.

8 For what hath the wise more than the fool? what hath the poor, that knoweth to walk before the living?

† Heb. than the walking of the soul.

9 ¶ Better is the sight of the eyes † than the wandering of the desire: this is also vanity and vexation of spirit.

10 That which hath been is named already, and it is known that it is man: neither may he contend with him that is mightier than he.

11 ¶ Seeing there be many things that increase vanity, what is man the better?

12 For who knoweth what is good for man in this life, † all the days of his vain life which he spendeth as [z] a shadow? for who can tell a man what shall be after him under the sun?

† Heb. the number of the days of the life of his vanity.

[z] Psal. 144. 4.

CHAP. VII.

1 Remedies against vanity are, a good name, 2 mortification, 7 patience, 11 wisdom. 23 The difficulty of wisdom.

Before CHRIST about 977.

A [a] GOOD name is better than precious ointment; and the day of death than the day of one's birth.

[a] Prov. 22. 1. & 15. 30.

2 ¶ It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the house of feasting: for that is the end of all men; and the living will lay it to his heart.

3 ‖ Sorrow is better than laughter: for by the sadness of the countenance the heart is made better.

‖ Or, Anger.

4 The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.

5 [b] It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise, than for a man to hear the song of fools.

[b] Prov. 13. 18. & 15. 31, 32.

6 For as the † crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of the fool: this also is vanity.

† Heb. sound.

7 ¶ Surely oppression maketh a wise man mad; [c] and a gift destroyeth the heart.

[c] Deut. 16. 19.

8 Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof: and the patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit.

9 [d] Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry: for anger resteth in the bosom of fools.

[d] Prov. 14. 17. & 16. 32.

---

7. All the labour of man &c.] All the labour of man that is necessary to be taken is only for his mouth, or what is required to sustain him; and yet the appetite of the covetous is never satisfied. Dr. Wells.

8. — knoweth to walk before the living?] Knoweth to behave himself among men suitably to his condition, and to be contented with it. Dr. Wells.

9. Better is the sight of the eyes &c.] The meaning is, It is better to make a wise use of what lies before us, and to enjoy quietly and contentedly what we have, than to let our desires be continually running out after fresh objects, and shifting from point to point; such restless pursuits being not only vain and unprofitable, but creating abundance of needless trouble and perplexity. Dr. J. Balguy.

10. That which hath been &c.] The sense seems to be, What if a man be renowned? It is known that he is but man, made out of dust, and therefore subject to much evil which he cannot overcome. Bp. Patrick.

12. — all the days of his vain life &c.] The reflexions which Solomon here makes are very proper to moderate the heat of men's pursuit after earthly goods. The vanity of their labours appears not only in their not knowing how to enjoy the good things which they so eagerly pursue, but chiefly in this, that they often deprive themselves of the greatest blessing of life, which is ease and a contented mind, and cannot secure themselves any thing for the future. The Gospel gives us clearer directions on this head, when we are told that "godliness with contentment is great gain," 1 Tim. vi. 6. Ostervald.

Chap. VII. Having discoursed, in the foregoing part of the book, of the courses which men usually take to make themselves happy; the Preacher now seems to proceed to prescribe the best remedies that can be found against that vanity to which we are subject, by setting down many wise precepts for our direction, comfort, and support in a troublesome world. Of this nature are the doctrines which begin this chapter, quite opposite to the common opinions of the world; but they are the maxims of true wisdom and policy, which must be learnt in order to the settlement of our minds in peace and tranquillity, notwithstanding the vanity that is in all things. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 1. — and the day of death than the day of one's birth.] The day of a good and faithful man's death is better than the day of his birth; for his death puts an end to those miseries which his birth begins, and opens that more perfect happiness, of which the present life is not capable. Bp. Hall.

As death to a good man is more advantageous than life, so to a wise man the contemplation of the former is more desirable than all the enjoyments of the latter. Bp. Atterbury.

2. It is better to go &c.] When the wise man bids us go to the house of mourning, when he tells us that sorrow is better than laughter, he is not to be understood as prohibiting all mirth, as requiring us to wear a perpetual cloud on our brow, and to sequester ourselves from every cheerful entertainment of social life. His true meaning is, that there is a certain temper and state of mind which is of far greater consequence to real happiness, than the habitual indulgence of giddy and thoughtless mirth; that, for the attainment and cultivation of this temper, frequent returns of grave reflexion are necessary; that, upon this account, it is profitable to give admission to those views of human distress, which tend to awaken such reflexions in the mind; and that thus, from the vicissitudes of sorrow which we either experience in our own lot, or sympathize with in the lot of others, much wisdom and improvement may be derived. Dr. Blair.

6. — as the crackling of thorns under a pot,] Like a blaze, noisy but soon spent. In the East they commonly use the dung of animals for fuel, which burns very slow: the burning of thorns and furze affords a striking contrast to this, and it is probably this contrast which gives energy to the comparison. Harmer.

7. — a gift destroyeth the heart.] A bribe destroys, or tends to corrupt the heart. Dr. Wells.

8. Better is the end of a thing] Better is it, toward the right conduct of life, to consider what will be the end of a thing, than what is the beginning of it; for what promises fair at first may prove ill, and what seems at first a disadvantage, may prove very advantageous. Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST about 977.

10 Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not enquire † wisely concerning this.

† Heb. out of wisdom.

11 ¶ Wisdom ‖ is good with an inheritance: and by it there is profit to them that see the sun.

‖ Or, as good as an inheritance, yea, better too.

12 For wisdom is a † defence, and money is a defence: but the excellency of knowledge is, that wisdom giveth life to them that have it.

† Heb. shadow.

[c] Chap. 1. 15.

13 Consider the work of God: for [c] who can make that straight, which he hath made crooked?

14 In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider: God also hath † set the one over against the other, to the end that man should find nothing after him.

† Heb. made.

15 All things have I seen in the days of my vanity: there is a just man that perisheth in his righteousness, and there is a wicked man that prolongeth his life in his wickedness.

16 Be not righteous over much; neither make thyself over wise: why shouldest thou † destroy thyself?

† Heb. be desolate?

17 Be not over much wicked, neither be thou foolish: why shouldest thou die † before thy time?

† Heb. not in thy time?

18 It is good that thou shouldest take hold of this; yea, also from this withdraw not thine hand: for he that feareth God shall come forth of them all.

19 [f] Wisdom strengtheneth the wise more than ten mighty men which are in the city.

Before CHRIST about 977.

[f] Prov. 21. 22. & 24. 5. chap. 9. 16.

20 [g] For there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not.

[g] Prov. 20. 9. 1 Kings 8. 46. 1 John 1. 8.

21 Also † take no heed unto all words that are spoken; lest thou hear thy servant curse thee:

† Heb. give not thine heart.

22 For oftentimes also thine own heart knoweth that thou thyself likewise hast cursed others.

23 ¶ All this have I proved by wisdom: I said, I will be wise; but it was far from me.

24 That which is far off, and exceeding deep, who can find it out?

25 † I applied mine heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason of things, and to know the wickedness of folly, even of foolishness and madness:

† Heb. I and mine heart compassed.

[h] Prov. 22. 14.

26 [h] And I find more bitter than death the woman, whose heart is snares and nets, and her hands as bands: † whoso pleaseth God shall escape from her; but the sinner shall be taken by her.

† Heb. he that is good before God.

27 Behold, this have I found, saith the preacher, ‖ counting one by one, to find out the account:

‖ Or, weighing one thing after another, to find out the reason.

28 Which yet my soul seeketh, but I find not: one man among a thousand have I found; but a woman among all those have I not found.

---

10. Say not thou, What is the cause &c.] Be not discontented and complaining at the present condition of things, so as to murmur at the providence of God; for this would be foolish and unjust: rather, in a humble thankfulness and submission, make use of the present. Bp. Hall.

13. Consider the work of God &c.] Complain not of times and events; but consider well the wise, just, and powerful proceedings of God: for when He has thought good, for the punishment of men's sins, to give them up to disorder, it is not in the power of human means to rectify them. Bp. Hall.

14. In the day of prosperity &c.] In the day of prosperity rejoice: yet have an eye towards the day of adversity; for the Lord hath placed the one near unto the other, "that man should find nothing after him," that is, that he should be uncertain what next may befall him. Dr. Hodgson.

15. — there is a just man that perisheth] There is an innocent and just man that miscarries, notwithstanding his righteousness, through the cruelty and injustice of others. Bp. Hall.

16. Be not righteous over much; &c.] Perhaps the meaning may be, Do not exercise justice with too much rigour. Dr. Waterland. These expressions must by no means be understood as a caution against being too wise or too good, since no man can possibly be wise or good enough, or can use sufficient endeavours to become so. But Solomon speaks these words against those, who, when insisting on their own right, or passing judgment on others, proceed with the utmost rigour and severity, not observing the rules of moderation and equity, and are so presumptuous as busily to intermeddle with what does not concern them. Ostervald.

17. Be not over much wicked,] Let not impunity tempt any man to grow enormously wicked, and foolish in following the lewdest opinions; for this may awaken publick justice, or the Divine vengeance, so as to cut him off before he come to the natural term of life. Bp. Patrick.

18. — he that feareth God shall come forth of them all.] The Greek translators render it, "To him that feareth God, all things shall succeed." Dr. Wall.

26. — the woman, whose heart is snares and nets,] The following method of ensnaring travellers, sometimes practised by robbers in Eastern countries, affords a lively comment on these words of Solomon. They send out a handsome woman upon the road, with her hair dishevelled, and in tears, who seems to be in the deepest distress, complaining of some misfortune which she pretends had befallen her. She easily draws the traveller into conversation with her, and engages him to assist her; but he has no sooner taken her up on horseback behind him, than she throws a snare about his neck, and strangles him; or, at least, stuns him, till the robbers, who are lying in wait, come running to her aid, and complete what she has begun. Thevenot.

28. — but a woman among all those &c.] That which Solomon here says should be well understood. As the Scriptures often speak of women illustrious for their virtues, and Solomon himself praises such, (Prov. xii. 4. xviii. 22. xxxi. 10.) he could not mean that a virtuous woman was no where to be found. There is, in this respect, no difference between the two sexes. But Solomon's meaning is, that, having searched out the reason of all the wickedness that passes in the world, ver. 25, he had found that there was nothing more dangerous and wicked than a disorderly woman, such as he describes at ver. 26, whose malice and artifice are scarcely to be conceived; nor can they, who have suffered themselves to be surprised by her, without great difficulty escape her snares. Solomon therefore does not here speak of women in general, but of such as he had been describing. One reason, no

Before CHRIST about 977. 29 Lo, this only have I found, [i] that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.

[i] Gen. 1. 27.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Kings are greatly to be respected. 6 The divine providence is to be observed. 12 It is better with the godly in adversity, than with the wicked in prosperity. 16 The work of God is unsearchable.

WHO is as the wise man? and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? [a] a man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and † the boldness of his face shall be changed.

[a] Prov. 17. 24.

† Heb. the strength.

2 I counsel thee to keep the king's commandment, and that in regard of the oath of God.

3 Be not hasty to go out of his sight: stand not in an evil thing; for he doeth whatsoever pleaseth him.

4 Where the word of a king is, there is power: and who may say unto him, What doest thou?

5 Whoso keepeth the commandment † shall feel no evil thing: and a wise man's heart discerneth both time and judgment.

† Heb. shall know.

6 ¶ Because to every purpose there is time and judgment, therefore the misery of man is great upon him.

7 For he knoweth not that which shall be: for who can tell him ‖ when it shall be?

‖ Or, how it shall be?

8 There is no man that hath power [b] over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death: and there is no ‖ discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it.

[b] Job 14. 5.

‖ Or, casting off weapons.

9 All this have I seen, and applied my heart unto every work that is done under the sun: there is a time wherein one man ruleth over another to his own hurt. Before CHRIST about 977.

10 And so I saw the wicked buried, who had come and gone from the place of the holy, and they were forgotten in the city where they had so done: this is also vanity.

11 Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.

12 ¶ Though a sinner do evil an hundred times, and his days be prolonged, yet surely I know that [c] it shall be well with them that fear God, which fear before him:

[c] Psal. 37. 11, 18, 19.

13 But it shall not be well with the wicked, neither shall he prolong his days, which are as a shadow; because he feareth not before God.

14 There is a vanity which is done upon the earth; that there be just men, unto whom it [d] happeneth according to the work of the wicked; again, there be wicked men, to whom it happeneth according to the work of the righteous: I said that this also is vanity.

[d] Psal. 73. 14.

15 [e] Then I commended mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry: for that shall abide with him of his labour the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun.

[e] Chap. 3. 22.

16 ¶ When I applied mine heart to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done upon the earth: (for also there is that doubt, which induced him to speak thus, was the fact of his having been himself seduced by evil women; see 1 Kings xi. Ostervald.

---

29. Lo, this only have I found, &c.] The sense is, Our depravation is from ourselves; our first parents, created in perfect innocency, having followed the devices of their own hearts, and the suggestions of their common enemy, we their sinful posterity do nothing but devise further means of our own ruin. Bp. Hall.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. Who is as the wise man? &c.] What creature under heaven is so excellent as a wise man? He only can find out the secrets of nature and of art: his wisdom makes him gracious, and respected of all men; it alters and improves his disposition and his carriage, and from rude and harsh makes him gentle and ingenuous. Bp. Hall.

—— maketh his face to shine,] Gives him fair reputation and honour.

3. Be not hasty &c.] Let not thy passion transport thee to shew the least disrespect to him; if thou hast offended him, let thy care be, not to persist obstinately in the errour, but to humble thyself, and beg his pardon; for his power is so great, that it will one time or other lay hold on thee and punish thee. Bp. Patrick.

5. — a wise man's heart &c.] The heart of the wise man discerneth both the time when every thing should be done, and the best method of doing it. Bp. Hall.

6. Because to every purpose] Because God has so ordered things, that to every purpose there is a proper time, and judgment or proper manner of doing what is intended, and therefore the misery of man is often great upon him, because he does not duly observe the said time and manner. Dr. Wells.

8. There is no man that hath power &c.] No man hath power to keep his soul when God calls for it, neither hath he power to protract the day of death; there is no possibility of avoiding that last conflict; the bold and presumptuous wickedness of men cannot deliver them from it. Bp. Hall.

10. — who had come and gone from the place of the holy,] Who had been honoured as gods while they were living, because they were God's ministers, and sat in the judgment seat, in that very place where He Himself is present. Bp. Patrick.

11. Because sentence against an evil work &c.] Because the punishment does not immediately follow the offence.

—— therefore the heart — is fully set in them] In the original, "their heart has filled them," they are presumptuous, to do evil. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. Then I commended mirth, &c.] Then I resolved that it is good for man to be cheerful in his calling, and in the good and holy use of God's blessings. Bp. Hall. We must well remember, that when he in this manner "commends mirth," he speaks of reasonable pleasures, which proceed from a moderate and lawful use of the good things which God has given us, which have nothing in them irregular and contrary to piety. Ostervald.

Before CHRIST about 977. neither day nor night seeth sleep with his eyes :)

17 Then I beheld all the work of God, that a man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun: because though a man labour to seek it out, yet he shall not find it; yea farther; though a wise man think to know it, yet shall he not be able to find it.

CHAP. IX.

1 Like things happen to good and bad. 4 There is a necessity of death unto men. 7 Comfort is all their portion in this life. 11 God's providence ruleth over all. 13 Wisdom is better than strength.

† Heb. I gave, or, set to my heart.

FOR all this † I considered in my heart even to declare all this, that the righteous, and the wise, and their works, are in the hand of God: no man knoweth either love or hatred by all that is before them.

[a] Mal. 3. 15. Psal. 73. 3, 12, 13.

2 [a] All things come alike to all: there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not: as is the good, so is the sinner; and he that sweareth, as he that feareth an oath.

3 This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one event unto all: yea, also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead. Before CHRIST about 977.

4 ¶ For to him that is joined to all the living there is hope: for a living dog is better than a dead lion.

5 For the living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten.

6 Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun.

7 ¶ Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works.

8 Let thy garments be always white; and let thy head lack no ointment.

† Heb. See, or, enjoy life.

9 † Live joyfully with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of the life of thy vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, all the days of thy vanity: [b] for that is thy portion in this life, and in thy labour which thou takest under the sun.

[b] Chap. 2. 24. & 3. 13. & 5. 18.

10 Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.

---

17. — that a man cannot find out &c.] For there is little or nothing that any man can know of the secrets of God's counsels, or of any of His works; which are inscrutable to us, whatever pains we take: nay, though the wisest man in the world make it his constant business, he will still be forced to confess his ignorance; and the height of his knowledge will be to know, that God's ways are past finding out. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — no man knoweth either love or hatred] No man knows or can know the love or hatred of God towards particular individuals, "by all that is before them;" that is, by all that befalls them visibly. Dr. Wells.

2. All things come alike to all:] There is no certain and constant distinction made between one man and another, in the distribution of things in this world; but they all fare alike in publick calamities especially. Bp. Patrick.

—— and he that sweareth,] The character of "him that sweareth" is here mentioned as blameable; but Solomon does not mean to disapprove the taking of an oath on any occasion whatever; but only to commend the fearing or avoiding of any oath, whenever it can be avoided, consistently with other obligations. Abp. Seeker.

3. This is an evil &c.] There is this evil in all which is done under the sun, that "there is one event" unto all men; whence arise errours in their notions concerning the living, and with respect to the dead hereafter. Dr. Hodgson.

4. For to him that is joined &c.] If we compare the state of the living and the dead, with respect to the present world, that of the living is the best; for, while we here live, we may still be in hope, either of amending or of receiving further graces and blessings, both of which are cut off from the dead: and, according to a common proverb, the most vile and contemptible animal, as a dog, that is alive, is better than the most generous of all beasts, the lion, when dead. Bp. Hall.

5. — but the dead know not any thing,] When men are gone from this world, they become perfect strangers to all things here, and can no longer enjoy any benefit of their labour, the fruit of which falls into the hands of other men, who think not what is become of them. Bp. Patrick.

—— neither have they any more a reward;] It is not meant that there is no reward after death for the righteous in heaven; but that, after death, there will be no enjoyment of any worldly felicity, as he himself explains in the next verse. Collyer.

7. Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy,] Therefore, shaking off all anxious cares and perplexing thoughts about God's providence, excite thyself, by the remembrance of death, to a cheerful enjoyment of those good things present which thou possessest; believing, that if thou hast approved thyself to God in the rest of thy works, it is acceptable to Him that thou shouldest thus rejoice in those gifts which His benevolence has afforded thee. Bp. Patrick. Solomon's design is, that we should improve the advantages of life, and make a wise use of what we have in possession; but we must beware of abusing this notion, and imagining ourselves to be at full liberty to indulge in worldly joys and pleasures, and to say with the ungodly, "Let us eat and drink, for to morrow we die." Ostervald.

8. Let thy garments be always white;] In opposition to the habit of mourners. The meaning is, Live not sordidly and sadly, but entertain thyself at all seasonable times. Bp. Patrick.

10. Whatsoever thy hand &c.] That is, the work that is before thee, which is most proper for thee to propose to thyself, as the great end and design of thy life, the province and charge appointed to thee. "Do it with thy might;" that is, set about it with great care, use all possible diligence and industry for effecting and accomplishing it. He enforces his precept by the consideration that this life is the proper season of activity and industry, of designing and doing those things which tend to our future happiness; and, when this life is ended, there will be no further opportunity of working, and nothing will remain but to receive the recompense of that which we have before done. Abp. Tillotson.

Before CHRIST about 977.

11 ¶ I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all.

12 For man also knoweth not his time: as the fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare; so are the sons of men [c] snared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them.

[c] Proverbs 29. 6.

13 ¶ This wisdom have I seen also under the sun, and it seemed great unto me:

14 There was a little city, and few men within it; and there came a great king against it, and besieged it, and built great bulwarks against it:

15 Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man.

[d] Proverbs 21. 22. ch. 7. 19.

16 [d] Then said I, Wisdom is better than strength: nevertheless the poor man's wisdom is despised, and his words are not heard.

17 The words of wise men are heard in quiet more than the cry of him that ruleth among fools.

18 Wisdom is better than weapons of war: but one sinner destroyeth much good. Before CHRIST about 977.

CHAP. X.

1 Observations of wisdom and folly: 16 of riot, 18 slothfulness, 19 and money. 20 Men's thoughts of kings ought to be reverent.

DEAD †flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savour: so doth a little folly him that is in reputation for wisdom and honour.

†Heb. Flies of death.

2 A wise man's heart is at his right hand; but a fool's heart at his left.

3 Yea also, when he that is a fool walketh by the way, †his wisdom faileth him, and he saith to every one that he is a fool.

†Heb. his heart.

4 If the spirit of the ruler rise up against thee, leave not thy place; for yielding pacifieth great offences.

5 There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, as an error which proceedeth †from the ruler:

†Heb. from before.

6 Folly is set †in great dignity, and the rich sit in low place.

†Heb. in great heights.

7 I have seen servants [a] upon horses, and princes walking as servants upon the earth.

[a] Proverbs 30. 22.

8 [b] He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it; and whoso breaketh an hedge, a serpent shall bite him.

[b] Ps. 7. 15. Prov. 26. 27.

---

11. I returned, and saw under the sun, &c.] I saw and observed that here on earth all things do not fall out according to the probability of second causes, but by the appointments of an overruling Providence: the swiftest does not always win the race, nor the strong prevail in battle, &c. but every one in his time hath a several issue, according to the determination of the Almighty, beyond or contrary to his own hopes. Bp. Hall.

—— neither yet bread to the wise,] Meaning, that the most learned and able men are not always secured against poverty and want. Abp. Tillotson.

—— but time and chance happeneth to them all.] That is, There is a secret providence of God, which sometimes presents men with unexpected opportunities, and interposes accidents which no human wisdom can foresee; which grants success to very improbable means; and defeats the swift, the strong, the learned, the industrious, and those who are best versed in men and business, of their several ends and designs. Abp. Tillotson.

15. — yet no man remembered that same poor man.] This little parable sets forth the depraved and malignant nature of mankind, who in extremities and straits commonly fly to men of wisdom and courage, whom they before slighted; but, as soon as the storm is over, they become unthankful wretches to their preservers. Lord Bacon.

17. The words of wise men &c.] The words of a wise poor man, though spoken softly, out of a fearful and lowly kind of bashfulness, are worthy of more respect than the imperious loud clamours of him that ruleth among fools. Bp. Hall.

Chap. X. ver. 1. Dead flies cause &c.] This is a well known fact, especially in hot climates, that dead insects cause syrups, and other such preparations, to ferment and putrefy, which makes it necessary to be careful in preventing flies from coming to them. Scheuchzer.

—— so doth a little folly] In the same manner, in however good reputation a man may be for wisdom and honour, yet some one foolish humour and weak miscarriage of his will mar and stain his reputation. Bp. Hall. A little folly in a very wise man, a small sin in an honest man, and a slight indecency of manners in a man of courtly behaviour, often greatly derogate from their fame and reputation. Lord Bacon.

2. A wise man's heart is at his right hand;] That is, ready to be employed with dexterity and effect. Parkhurst. Herein a truly wise man's worth is discovered, that his judgment never fails him in the greatest difficulties, in which he not only resolves right, but takes things by the right handle; whereas a fool mistakes in his aim, and stumbles so much in the easiest business, that he commonly miscarries. Bp. Patrick.

3. Yea also, when he that is a fool &c.] Yea, let a fool but walk by the way, and his very motion and gesture shew what he is, and proclaim his want of sense; much more do his words and actions betray him. Bp. Hall.

4. If the spirit of the ruler &c.] If thy prince be angry with thee, quit not the duty of a subject. Bp. Patrick.

5. — an error which proceedeth from the ruler:] An errour which proceeds from princes in the ill choice which they make of those whom they promote; for (ver. 6.) "folly is set in great dignity, and the rich sit in low place;" that is, those who are truly able, both for their parts and their estates, and are well worthy of eminent places, are neglected and disregarded. Bp. Hall.

7. — servants upon horses,] In the East, to ride on a horse is deemed an honourable circumstance, and ideas of stateliness are always attached to it. The Turks at this day, when they ride on horseback, proceed in a very stately manner: it is contrary to their dignity to advance beyond a footpace, and they are attended by a number of servants. Harmer.

8. — whoso breaketh an hedge, a serpent shall bite him.] By this men are warned, that the overthrowing of an established government and settled laws is often fatal to those that attempt it. Other proverbs to the same effect are given at ver. 9. Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST about 977.

9 Whoso removeth stones shall be hurt therewith; and he that cleaveth wood shall be endangered thereby.

10 If the iron be blunt, and he do not whet the edge, then must he put to more strength: but wisdom is profitable to direct.

11 Surely the serpent will bite without enchantment; and a † babbler is no better.

† Heb. the master of the tongue.

12 [c] The words of a wise man's mouth are † gracious; but the lips of a fool will swallow up himself.

[c] Prov. 10. 32. & 12. 13.

† Heb. grace.

13 The beginning of the words of his mouth is foolishness: and the end of † his talk is mischievous madness.

† Heb. his mouth.

14 [d] A fool also † is full of words: a man cannot tell what shall be; and [e] what shall be after him, who can tell him?

[d] Prov. 15. 2.

† Heb. multiplieth words.

[e] Chap. 3. 22. & 6. 12.

15 The labour of the foolish wearieth every one of them, because he knoweth not how to go to the city.

[f] Isai. 3. 4, 5.

16 ¶ [f] Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes eat in the morning!

17 Blessed art thou, O land, when thy king is the son of nobles, and thy princes eat in due season, for strength, and not for drunkenness!

18 ¶ By much slothfulness the building decayeth; and through idleness of the hands the house droppeth through.

[g] Psal. 104. 15.

† Heb. maketh glad the life.

19 ¶ A feast is made for laughter, and [g] wine † maketh merry: but money answereth all things.

[h] Exod. 22. 28.

‖ Or, conscience.

20 ¶ [h] Curse not the king, no not in thy ‖ thought; and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber: for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter.

Before CHRIST about 977.

CHAP. XI.

1 Directions for charity. 7 Death in life, 9 and the day of judgment in the days of youth, are to be thought on.

CAST thy bread † upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after [a] many days.

† Heb. upon the face of the waters.

[a] Deut. 15. 10. Matt. 10. 42. Prov. 19. 17.

2 Give a portion to seven, and also to eight; for thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth.

3 If the clouds be full of rain, they empty themselves upon the earth: and if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be.

4 He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap.

5 As thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, nor how the bones do grow in the womb of her that is with child: even so thou knowest not the works of God who maketh all.

6 In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether † shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.

† Heb. shall be right.

7 ¶ Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun:

8 But if a man live many years, and rejoice in them all; yet let him remember the days of darkness; for they shall be many. All that cometh is vanity.

9 ¶ Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth;

---

10. — but wisdom is profitable to direct.] Wisdom will still find out how to make it execute its office. Dr. Hodgson. Wisdom does, as it were, whet the edge of the ax, and direct men to do that with ease, which otherwise cannot be achieved without much labour. Bp. Hall.

11. Surely the serpent &c.] Surely the serpent will bite, if it be not hindered by enchantments: and a babbler, or one that secretly traduces his governours, and irritates the people against them, is no better; for he injures thereby his governours as much as the serpent does one whom he bites. Dr. Wells.

12. — the lips of a fool will swallow up himself.] The words of a fool will be the occasion of his own undoing. Bp. Hall.

15. — because he knoweth not how to go to the city.] Because out of simplicity he wanders about over untracked ways, and does not so much as know the beaten road to the city. Bp. Hall.

16. — thy princes eat in the morning!] That is, spend in riot and revelling that portion of their time which ought to be set apart for the administration of justice. Bp. Hall.

18. By much slothfulness the building decayeth;] In like manner a whole kingdom is ruined by the sloth and inattention of those who have the government of it. Dr. Wells.

19. A feast is made &c.] There are proper times for the feasting and mirth of kings, and those who have the care of the government; but then care must be taken that too much money be not spent on such occasions, so as not to leave enough for the publick supplies of the kingdom. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. Cast thy bread &c.] Bestow thy beneficence on those from whom there is no probability of a return of kindness; for He that seeth in secret will, when thou hast forgotten it, restore it unto thee with a happy increase. Bp. Hall.

2. Give a portion to seven, &c.] Be not narrow and confined in thine alms, but bestow them liberally on all that have need. Bp. Hall. See the note on Job v. 19.

3. If the clouds be full of rain, &c.] In this verse, Solomon illustrates the duty of charity, and the reason for the timely exercise of it: the former by the clouds, which are a fit emblem of charity, in pouring down general plenty on the earth; the latter by the trees, which can bring forth fruit no longer than they continue joined to the earth by their roots, as man can no more be fruitful in good works, when he has ceased to live. Bp. Patrick.

4. He that observeth the wind shall not sow;] Let not every circumstance of vain fear discourage thee from doing good and distributing; he, that is too curious in observing every wind that blows, will never find an opportunity of sowing. Bp. Hall.

6. In the morning sow thy seed, &c.] That is, take all proper occasions of exercising thy charity, as long as thou livest; for thou knowest not what occasion may suit to do the greatest good to others, and to bring the greatest blessing on thyself; and whether all occasions may prove equally beneficial. Dr. Wells.

9. Rejoice, O young man, &c.] When thou art inclined, O young man, to rejoice in thy youth, &c. know, that is, remember, that for every sin committed "God will bring thee into judgment."

Before CHRIST about 977. and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment.

‖ Or, anger. 10 Therefore remove ‖ sorrow from thy heart, and put away evil from thy flesh: for childhood and youth are vanity.

CHAP. XII.

1 The Creator is to be remembered in due time. 8 The preacher's care to edify. 13 The fear of God is the chief antidote of vanity.

[a] Proverbs 22. 6. REMEMBER [a] now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them;

2 While the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain:

3 In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and ‖ the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened,

‖ Or, the grinders fail, because they grind little.

4 And the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low, and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of musick shall be brought low;

Before CHRIST about 977.

5 Also when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way, and the almond tree shall flourish, and the grashopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail: because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets:

6 Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.

7 [b] Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it.

[b] Gen. 3. 19.

8 ¶ [c] Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher; all is vanity.

[c] Chap. 1. 2.

9 And ‖ moreover, because the preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yea, he gave good heed, and sought out, and [d] set in order many proverbs.

‖ Or, the more wise the preacher was, &c.

[d] 1 Kings 4. 32.

10 The preacher sought to find out † acceptable words: and that which was written was upright, even words of truth.

† Heb. words of delight.

11 The words of the wise are as goads,

---

10. Therefore remove sorrow from thy heart,] Sorrow is here put for the cause of sorrow. Live not so in youth as to bring sorrow in old age.

Chap. XII. Solomon, to prove that a future state of retribution was the object which he held out through the whole of his exhortation, as the only adequate sanction of virtue, the only sure prop of religion, closes this admirable work with the solemn admonition, "Remember now thy Creator," &c. Then, after describing, with singular beauty and philosophick precision, the symptoms of decay preceding that awful hour, when "the dust shall return to the earth as it was," &c. he imprints upon the heart, in the two last verses, that great truth which it was his chief object to promulgate and enforce. Dr. Graves.

Ver. 1. Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth,] "Remember thy Creator;" that is, honour, fear, love, obey, and serve Him; in a word, act as becomes one who is mindful of God, and bears Him continually in his thoughts. Abp. Tillotson.

—— thy Creator] The Hebrew is, "thy Creators," in the plural. The plural is employed to shew the plurality of Persons in the unity of essence, namely, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. For these three Divine Persons consulted together concerning the creation of man, Gen. i. 26. Jones of Nayland, Parkhurst.

2—7. While the sun, &c.] The striking description of old age which here follows may thus be paraphrased. Before thine eyes grow dim with age, so that thou dost not clearly discern the sun, moon, and stars; and before the evils and miseries of age succeed one another in a woful vicissitude: before the time that thine arms, which are the guard of this thy house of clay, shall tremble with palsies; and thy legs, which are thy strong supporters, shall bow themselves; and thy teeth grind slowly and with difficulty, because they are few; and thine eyes, which are as glasses in the windows of the head, are dusky and darkened: when the street doors shall be shut upon thee, as now retired to thine own home, without care of others' visits or business; when thy slow feeding shall make thee unfit for other men's tables: when every little noise, even that of a bird, shall wake thee out of thy sleep; and when thy spirits shall be so dull and dejected, that thou shalt take no pleasure in hearing the most melodious musick: when thy decrepid age shall make thee so unfit to move, that thou shalt be afraid of every rub or clod that lies in thy way; when the white blossoms of age shall cover thy head, and every light thing (though it be but the weight of a grashopper) shall seem burdensome to thee; and all those lusts and desires, which haunted thy stronger times, are now gone and past; for there is no way but this one; man goeth to his long home the grave, and the mourners in hired formality go about the streets: before all thy natural and vital spirits be utterly exhausted, and all the functions and offices of life be quite discharged, which shall be in the last act of death; for, as when the cord is loosed and the bucket broken, and the pitcher broken at the well, or the wheel at the cistern, no water can any more be drawn; so, when these vital parts fail, there can be no further prolongation of life: when this frame of man's body shall thus be dissolved; then shall the dust, of which it was formed, return to the earth, and the soul or spirit shall return to the God who gave it. Bp. Hall.

Hence let us learn to bestow on each part of our composition that portion of our time and attention, which, on a just consideration of their relative value, they may be found to deserve. Bp. Horne.

6. Or ever the silver cord &c.] The expressions of this verse are by many understood (in a sense differing from that of Bp. Hall, just given) to bear allusion to different parts of the human body. The "silver cord" is thought to mean the thread of life, the spinal marrow; "the golden bowl" to express the heart; and "the wheel at the cistern" the tubes and arteries about it. Bp. Horne, Dr. Hodgson.

11. The words of the wise &c.] The words of the wise, and so these instructions, are intended, and ought to excite men to virtue, as goads excite the ox to go forward: and, as nails fastened in a board stick fast, so should these instructions stick fast in the minds of men; which they will the less fail to do, if duly inculcated by "the masters of assemblies," or those who rule and go-

Before CHRIST about 977. and as nails fastened by the masters of assemblies, which are given from one shepherd.

12 And further, by these, my son, be admonished: of making many books there is no end; and much ‖ study is a weariness of the flesh.

‖ Or, reading.

13 ¶ ‖ Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.

‖ Or, The end of the matter, even all that hath been heard, is.

14 For [e] God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

[e] Rom. 2. 16. & 14. 10. 2 Cor. 5. 10.

vern in the sacred assemblies; which masters or teachers are appointed and directed by "one Shepherd" or Supreme Governour, namely, God. Dr. Wells.

12. And further, by these, my son, be admonished: &c.] Therefore be advised, my son, (or whoever thou art that shalt read these things, whose happiness I wish as my own,) be advised by me, and not only believe these things, but rest contented with such useful knowledge, and do not trouble thyself with composing or reading many books; for all that is needful to instruct men how to be happy may be comprised in a few wise precepts; and, if thou extendest thy desires beyond this, thou mayest turn over infinite volumes, which are continually increasing, and serve only to distract thy mind and tire thy spirits, and impair thy health, but yield little profit after the expense of much time and labour. Bp. Patrick.

13. Let us hear the conclusion &c.] Solomon, to whom God gave a wise and understanding heart, so that before him there was none like him, neither shall any like him arise after him, who had carefully considered, and thoroughly examined, all things under the sun, and was therefore most likely to give a true judgment, gives his clear opinion in this affectionate conclusion of his book, "Fear God, and keep His commandments; for this is the whole," the whole duty and happiness, "of man;" this is that alone which will carry him securely through the world, and lead him without errour to his final happiness. Dr. S. Clarke.

The following Chapters from Ecclesiastes are appointed for proper Lessons on Holydays.

CHAP. IV.	St. Stephen,	Evening.
—— V.	St. John the Evangelist,	Morning.
—— VI.	Ditto,	Evening.

THE

SONG OF SOLOMON.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Book was written by Solomon, to whom it is expressly ascribed by the Hebrew title. It is almost universally allowed to have been a marriage song of that monarch, composed on the celebration of his nuptials with a very beautiful woman, called "the Shulamite," the daughter, as has been supposed, of Pharaoh, and the favourite and distinguished wife of Solomon.

Solomon was eminently skilled in the composition of songs, and he is related to have produced above one thousand, 1 Kings iv. 32; out of which number, probably, this alone was attributed to the suggestion of the Holy Spirit; for this alone has escaped the waste of time, by being preserved in the Sacred Volume, into which it was received as unquestionably authentick; and it has uniformly been considered as canonical by the Christian Church.

The royal author appears, in the typical spirit of his time, to have designed to render a ceremonial appointment descriptive of a spiritual concern; and this song is accordingly considered by judicious writers to be a mystical allegory of that sort which induces a more sublime sense on historical truths, and which, by the description of human events, shadows out Divine circumstances. The sacred writers were, by God's condescension, authorized to illustrate His strict and intimate relation to the Church by the figure of a marriage; and the emblem must have been strikingly becoming and expressive to the conceptions of the Jews, since they annexed ideas of peculiar mystery to this appointment, and imagined that the marriage union was a counterpart representation of some original pattern in heaven. Hence it was performed among them with very peculiar ceremonies and solemnity, with every thing that could give dignity and importance to its rites. Solomon therefore, in celebrating the circumstances of his marriage, was naturally led, by a train of correspondent reflexions, to consider that spiritual connexion which it was often employed to symbolize; and the idea must have been the more forcibly suggested to him, as he was at this period preparing to build a temple to God, and thereby to furnish a visible representation of the Hebrew Church. The spiritual allegory, thus worked up by Solomon to its highest perfection, was very consistent with the prophetick style, which was accustomed to predict evangelical blessings by such parabolical figures: and Solomon was more immediately furnished with a pattern for this representation by the author of the forty-fifth Psalm, who describes, in a compendious allegory, the same future connexion between Christ and His Church.

But though the work be certainly an allegorical representation, many learned men, in an unrestrained eagerness to explain the Song, even in its minutest and most obscure particulars, have too far indulged their imaginations; and, by endeavouring too nicely to reconcile the literal with the spiritual sense, have been led beyond the boundaries which a reverence for the sacred writings should ever prescribe. The ideas which the sacred writers furnish concerning the mystical relation between Christ and His Church, though well accommodated to our apprehensions by the allusion of a marriage union, are too general to illustrate every particular contained in this poem; which may be supposed to have been intentionally decorated with some ornaments appropriate to the literal construction. When the general analogy is obvious, we are not always to expect minute resemblance, and should not be too curious in seeking for obscure and recondite allusions. Solomon, in the glow of an inspired fancy, and unsuspicious of misconception or deliberate perversion, describes God and His Church, with their respective attributes and graces, under colourings familiar and agreeable to mankind, and exhibits their ardent affection under the authorized figures of earthly love. No similitude could indeed be chosen so elegant and apposite for the illustration of this intimate and spiritual alliance, as the marriage union; if considered in the chaste simplicity of its first institution, or under the interesting circumstances with which it was established among the Jews.

This poem may be considered, as to its form, as a dramatical poem of the pastoral kind. There is a succession of time; and a change of place, to different parts of the palace and royal gardens. The persons introduced as speakers, are the bridegroom and bride, and their respective attendants. The interchange of dialogue is carried on in a wild and digressive manner, but the speeches are adapted to the persons with appropriate elegance. The companions of the bride compose a kind of chorus, which seems to bear some resemblance to that afterwards adopted in the Grecian tragedy. Solomon and his queen assume the pastoral simplicity of style which is favourable to the communication of their sentiments. The poem abounds throughout with beauties, and presents every where a delightful and romantick display of nature, painted at its most interesting season, and described with every ornament that an inventive fancy could furnish. It is justly entitled A Song of Songs, or most excellent song, as being superiour to any that an uninspired writer could have produced, and tending, if properly understood, to purify the mind, and to elevate the affections from earthly to heavenly things. Dr. Gray.

It was the practice of the Jews to forbid their children the reading of this Book till their judgment was sufficiently matured; lest, in the fervour of youth, they should give too wide a scope to fancy, and interpret to a bad sense the spiritual ideas of Solomon. This was a very prudent and judicious precaution; and may well serve to restrain the practice, which has unfortunately prevailed among some Christians of modern times, of applying in an indecorous manner the strong figurative expressions which occur throughout this poem. Dr. Gray, Edit.

Before CHRIST written about 1014.

CHAP. I.

1 The church's love unto Christ. 5 She confesseth her deformity, 7 and prayeth to be directed to his flock. 8 Christ directeth her to the shepherds' tents: 9 and shewing his love to her, 11 giveth her gracious promises. 12 The church and Christ congratulate one another.

THE song of songs, which is Solomon's.

2 Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth: [a] for † thy love is better than wine.

[a] Chap. 4. 10. † Heb. thy loves.

3 Because of the savour of thy good ointments thy name is as ointment poured forth, therefore do the virgins love thee.

[b] John 6. 44.

4 [b] Draw me, we will run after thee: the king hath brought me into his chambers: we will be glad and rejoice in thee, we will remember thy love more than wine: ‖ the upright love thee.

‖ Or, they love thee uprightly.

5 I am black, but comely, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, as the tents of Kedar, as the curtains of Solomon.

6 Look not upon me, because I am black, because the sun hath looked upon me: my mother's children were angry with me; they made me keeper of the vineyards; but mine own vineyard have I not kept.

7 Tell me, O thou whom my soul loveth, where thou feedest, where thou makest thy flock to rest at noon: for why should I be ‖ as one that turneth aside by the flocks of thy companions?

Before CHRIST about 1014.

‖ Or, as one that is veiled.

8 ¶ If thou know not, O thou fairest among women, go thy way forth by the footsteps of the flock, and feed thy kids beside the shepherds' tents.

9 I have compared thee, O my love, to a company of horses in Pharaoh's chariots.

10 Thy cheeks are comely with rows of jewels, thy neck with chains of gold.

11 We will make thee borders of gold with studs of silver.

12 ¶ While the king sitteth at his table, my spikenard sendeth forth the smell thereof.

13 A bundle of myrrh is my wellbeloved unto me; he shall lie all night betwixt my breasts.

14 My beloved is unto me as a cluster of ‖ camphire in the vineyards of En-gedi.

‖ Or, cypress.

[c] Chap. 4. 1. & 5. 12.

15 [c] Behold, thou art fair, ‖ my love; behold, thou art fair; thou hast doves' eyes.

‖ Or, my companion.

Chap. I. ver. 1. The song of songs,] This title denotes the excellence of the song, not only in its structure and composition, but more particularly in regard to the subject of which it treats, as representing the earnest desire of the Church of God, which is the spouse or bride of Christ, to enjoy the great blessing of Christ's coming, as being her bridegroom; or He, by whose merits all the faithful are blessed or made happy. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

For a general notion of the allegorical sense conveyed by the different parts of this Book, the reader is referred to the heads of the several chapters.

2. Let him &c.] The bride here breaks out into expressions of tenderness, and addresses him when absent, as if he were present; being interrupted at times by the bridemaids who attend her, ver. 4, 8. Bp. Percy.

3. — the savour of thy good ointments] Fragrant ointments were especially used at nuptials, and on other festival occasions; see Ps. xlv. 8. Prov. vii. 17. Amos vi. 6: hence the odour of sweet ointments became a common metaphor to express the extensive acceptableness of a good name. Bp. Percy.

5. — as the tents of Kedar,] Volney says, the tents of the Bedoween Arabs, woven of goats' or camels' hair, are black or brown. Parkhurst. The tents of the wild Arabs are to this day of a very dark or black colour, being made of the shaggy hair of their black goats. D'Arvieux.

—— as the curtains of Solomon.] Rather, "as the tapestry of Solomon:" perhaps comparing her to one of the beautiful figures on fine tapestry. Dr. Hodgson.

"I am black but comely," &c. The expressions are to be divided as is sometimes the case in Hebrew diction, "I am black as the tents of Kedar, but comely as the curtains of Solomon." Bp. Lowth.

6. Look not upon me, &c.] Do not despise me, by considering my outward hue, for my brothers and sisters have done me injury by making me a slave to the meanest employments, in which I was exposed to the rays of the sun, and could not preserve my beauty. Bp. Patrick.

7. — where thou makest thy flock to rest at noon:] In hot countries, the shepherds and their flocks are always forced to retire for shelter during the burning heats of noon.

9. I have compared thee, &c.] The bridegroom, seeing perhaps, at some little distance, the bride anxiously seeking for him, here commends her conjugal affection by various compliments to her charms, and the dialogue is thus carried on to chap. ii. 8. in a very poetical, but unconnected, manner. Bp. Percy.

—— to a company of horses] This comparison will not be deemed coarse or vulgar, when it is considered what beautiful and delicate creatures the Eastern horses are, and how highly they are valued. It is very remarkable that a Greek poet, Theocritus, has made use of a similar comparison to a Thessalian steed, to express the beauty of Helen. Bp. Percy.

10. — comely with rows of jewels, &c.] Olearius supposes the headdress of the bride here referred to, to be the same with that which is now frequently used in the East. He says that all the headdress of the Persian ladies consists in two or three rows of pearls, which are not there worn about the neck, but round the head, beginning at the forehead, and descending down the cheeks, and under the chin, so that their faces seem to be set in pearls. Harmer.

12. — my spikenard] Spikenard, or nard, is a plant growing in the East, whose root is very small and slender; it puts forth a long small stalk, and has several ears or spikes even with the ground; whence it has the name of spike-nard. Calmet.

14. — as a cluster of camphire] Interpreters have been much puzzled by these words which we translate "cluster of camphire." That which we call camphire was then unknown; and therefore the word is better translated in the margin by "cypress;" not meaning the tree known by that name, but an aromatick plant, (properly called cyprus,) known in the East, which produced a sweet-scented bush of flowers, and also berries, not much differing from the fragrancy of spikenard. These shrubs seem to have been cultivated at En-gedi near Jericho, after the manner of vines; and hence probably the nurseries of them are here called vineyards. Bp. Patrick.

15. — thou hast doves' eyes.] To understand the force of this expression, we must not refer it to our common doves or pigeons, but to the doves of Syria, which have large and beautiful eyes. Those, who have seen the fine Eastern bird, the carrier pigeon, will require no further commentary on this verse. Sir T. Brown. Or perhaps, as the dove is always considered as emblematick of

Before CHRIST about 1014.

16 Behold, thou art fair, my beloved, yea, pleasant: also our bed is green.

17 The beams of our house are cedar, and our ‖ rafters of fir.

‖ Or, galleries.

CHAP. II.

1 The mutual love of Christ and his church. 8 The hope, 10 and calling of the church. 14 Christ's care of the church. 16 The profession of the church, her faith and hope.

I AM the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valleys.

2 As the lily among thorns, so is my love among the daughters.

3 As the apple tree among the trees of the wood, so is my beloved among the sons. † I sat down under his shadow with great delight, and his fruit was sweet to my † taste.

† Heb. I delighted and sat down, &c.

† Heb. palate.

4 He brought me to the † banqueting house, and his banner over me was love.

† Heb. house of wine.

5 Stay me with flagons, † comfort me with apples: for I am sick of love.

† Heb. straw me with apples.

6 [a] His left hand is under my head, and his right hand doth embrace me.

[a] Chap. 8. 3.

7 † [b] I charge you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and by the hinds of the field, that ye stir not up, nor awake my love, till he please.

† Heb. I adjure you.

[b] Chap. 3. 5. & 8. 4.

8 ¶ The voice of my beloved! behold, he cometh leaping upon the mountains, skipping upon the hills.

Before CHRIST about 1014.

9 [c] My beloved is like a roe or a young hart: behold, he standeth behind our wall, he looketh forth at the windows, † shewing himself through the lattice.

[c] Verse 17.

† Heb. flourishing.

10 My beloved spake, and said unto me, Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away.

11 For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;

12 The flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land;

13 The fig tree putteth forth her green figs, and the vines with the tender grape give a good smell. Arise, my love, my fair one, and come away.

14 ¶ O my dove, that art in the clefts of the rock, in the secret places of the stairs, let me see thy countenance, let me hear thy voice; for sweet is thy voice, and thy countenance is comely.

15 Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines: for our vines have tender grapes.

---

conjugal tenderness and affection, the comparison to "doves' eyes" may bear reference to the soft qualities which the eyes of the bride expressed. Harmer. But see note at chap. v. 12.

17. The beams of our house are cedar,] Perhaps the translation should be, "The beams of our house are cedar, and fir our roof;" and the expression, concurring with that of the last verse, may shew, that they were not in a house, but in a grove, where the heads of the firs and the cedars are poetically called the beams and roof of their chamber. Dr. Hodgson.

Chap. II. ver. 1. — rose of Sharon,] Sharon, or Saron, was a town which gave name to a spacious and fruitful valley, reaching from Cesarea to Joppa. Dr. Wells. It is meant, "I am a mere rose of the field." The bride now speaks, and seems with becoming modesty to represent her beauty as nothing extraordinary, as a mere common wild flower: this the bridegroom in the next verse denies, insisting that she as much surpasses the generality of maidens, as the flower of the lily does that of the bramble. Bp. Percy.

—— lily of the valleys.] Not the beautiful flowers known among us by the name of "lily of the valley," but probably a Syrian plant of the lily kind, wont to grow in low lands. Harmer.

3. As the apple tree among the trees] Perhaps rather, according to the Chaldee paraphrase, "as the citron tree." Parkhurst.

5. Stay me with flagons,] This verse is a description of one falling into a swoon; in which it is usual to call for strong reviving smells. Bp. Patrick.

7. I charge you, — by the roes, &c.] This is a rural form of adjuring. The bride entreats her virgin companions by those delicate and sprightly creatures, which add so much to the beauty of the sylvan scenes, and in pursuit of which, as nymphs fond of rural sports, they may be supposed to have taken frequent pleasure. It is natural to conjure a person by whatever is most affecting, dear, or valued. Bp. Percy.

"By the roes." The animal designed seems rather the gazelle or antelope. Parkhurst.

8. The voice &c.] The bride here takes up the discourse to chap. iii. 6. Bp. Percy.

The voice of my beloved!] This would be more intelligible, if we were to supply, as in the old version, "It is the voice." Dr. Durell.

—— he cometh leaping &c.] Allusion is here still made to the roes, ver. 7.

9. — behold, he standeth behind our wall, &c.] The Eastern buildings generally surrounded a square inner court. The bridegroom seems here to be described as entering the outward apartments, and gradually seen, as he made his approach; first behind the wall, then looking through the window, and lastly putting his head through the lattice. Bp. Percy.

12. — the turtle] This bird is in some sense, and sometimes, if not always, a bird of passage, as appears from Jer. viii. 7, where it is said to "know its time." Aristotle, Varro, and Cicero say the same. Script. illust. Expos. Ind.

13. — the vines with the tender grape] In many versions these words are rendered, "the vines in blossom." That the blossom of the vine may give a fragrant smell in hot countries, is shewn by the practice of the ancients, who used to put the dried flowers of the vine into their new wine, in order to give it fragrancy and a pure or flosculous spirit. Bp. Percy.

14. — in the clefts &c.] Solomon having in the language of affection called her his dove, nothing was more natural, in an oriental imagination, than the immediate comparing of the then residence of the Jewish queen to the rocky clefts in which their doves were wont to build. It appears that doves in those countries usually take up their abode in the hollow places of rocks and cliffs. The word, which we translate "stairs," occurs but once more; namely in Ezek. xxxviii. 20. and there is translated "steep places." It might be better perhaps here to translate the word, "steep places or lofty cliffs." Harmer.

15. — foxes, that spoil the vines:] As foxes in England do not destroy vines, this passage has sometimes been objected to; but we learn from Dr. Shaw, that "jackalls of the lesser kind eat roots and fruits, and frequent the gardens every night." So

Before CHRIST about 1014.

16 ¶ [d] My beloved is mine, and I am his: he feedeth among the lilies.

17 [e] Until the day break, and the shadows flee away, turn, my beloved, and be thou [f] like a roe or a young hart upon the mountains ‖ of Bether.

[d] Chap. 6. 3. & 7. 10.
[e] Chap. 4. 6.
[f] Chap. 8. 14.
‖ Or, of division.

CHAP. III.

1 The church's fight and victory in temptation. 6 The church glorieth in Christ.

BY night on my bed I sought him whom my soul loveth: I sought him, but I found him not.

2 I will rise now, and go about the city in the streets, and in the broad ways I will seek him whom my soul loveth: I sought him, but I found him not.

3 The watchmen that go about the city found me: to whom I said, Saw ye him whom my soul loveth?

4 It was but a little that I passed from them, but I found him whom my soul loveth: I held him, and would not let him go, until I had brought him into my mother's house, and into the chamber of her that conceived me.

[a] Chap. 2. 7. & 8. 4.

5 [a] I charge you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and by the hinds of the field, that ye stir not up, nor awake my love, till he please.

[b] Chap. 8. 5.

6 ¶ [b] Who is this that cometh out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke, perfumed with myrrh and frankincense, with all powders of the merchant?

Before CHRIST about 1014.

7 Behold his bed, which is Solomon's; threescore valiant men are about it, of the valiant of Israel.

8 They all hold swords, being expert in war: every man hath his sword upon his thigh because of fear in the night.

9 King Solomon made himself ‖ a chariot of the wood of Lebanon.

‖ Or, a bed.

10 He made the pillars thereof of silver, the bottom thereof of gold, the covering of it of purple, the midst thereof being paved with love, for the daughters of Jerusalem.

11 Go forth, O ye daughters of Zion, and behold king Solomon with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him in the day of his espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart.

CHAP. IV.

1 Christ setteth forth the graces of the church. 8 He sheweth his love to her. 16 The church prayeth to be made fit for his presence.

[a] BEHOLD, thou art fair, my love; behold, thou art fair; thou hast doves' eyes within thy locks: thy hair is as a [b] flock of goats, ‖ that appear from mount Gilead.

[a] Chap. 1. 15. & 5. 12.
[b] Chap. 6. 5, 6.
‖ Or, that eat of, &c.

2 Thy teeth are like a flock of sheep that are even shorn, which came up from the washing; whereof every one bear twins, and none is barren among them.

Hasselquist says, "There is plenty of these animals near the convent of St. John, in the desert, about vintage time; insomuch that the owners are obliged to set guards over the vines, to prevent these creatures from destroying them." These then are clearly the animals, which are here meant. Fragments to Calmet.

17. Until the day break,] "Until the day breathe," literally; or, "till the day blow fresh." There is peculiar beauty in this expression: in those warm climates the dawn of day is attended with a fine refreshing breeze, of the most delightful kind. Bp. Percy.

—— turn, — and be thou like a roe] That is, come to me with the swiftness of a roe or antelope, from thy lurking places. Dr. Durell.

—— upon the mountains of Bether.] In the margin, "mountains of division," "craggy, intersected mountains;" which is preferable perhaps to considering Bether as a proper name. Parkhurst.

Chap. III. ver. 6. Who is this &c.] The dialogue seems to be taken up by the companions of the bride; afterwards (ver. 11.) by the bride, and (chap. iv. 1.) by the bridegroom. Bp. Percy.

—— like pillars of smoke,] It is customary at Eastern marriages for virgins to lead the procession with silver-gilt pots of perfumes. In the present instance, so liberally were these rich perfumes burnt, that, at a distance, a pillar or pillars of smoke arose from them; and the perfume was so rich, as to exceed in value and fragrancy all the powders of the merchant. Burder.

10. — the midst thereof &c.] The words may be rendered, "the middle of it" (that is, the couch of the palanquin or litter) "spread with love by the daughters of Jerusalem;" that is, with needlework or loom-work, wrought by the daughters of Jerusalem in token of their love and regard to Solomon. The Jewish women were famous for these curious works. See Judg. v. 30. Prov. xxxi. 22, 24. Parkhurst.

11. — the crown wherewith his mother crowned him] It was usual with many nations to put crowns or garlands on the heads of new-married people. It seems from this passage, that among the Jews this ceremony was performed by one of the parents. Among the Greeks, the bride was crowned by her mother. With the Greeks and Romans, the nuptial crowns were only chaplets of leaves and flowers. With the Hebrews they were sometimes also of richer materials, as gold, silver, &c. according to the rank of the persons. Bp. Percy.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. — thy hair is as a flock of goats,] Thy hair is as fine as that of a flock of goats: it seems to be a comparison with the hair of the eastern goats, which is of a delicate silky softness, and bears a great resemblance to the fine curls of a woman's hair. Bochart. Some of them had a fleece so fine, that it was almost as soft as silk; such as was that spun by the women for the use of the tabernacle, Exod. xxxv. 26. To this hair allusion seems here to be made in respect to its softness, as well as length and thickness. Bp. Patrick.

—— that appear from mount Gilead.] The sense of the whole may be, "Thy hair is like a flock of ascending goats, which is seen from mount Gilead;" and the point of comparison may chiefly turn on the head being covered with fine flowing locks, as mount Gilead was with the shaggy herd, reaching in an extended line from its foot to its summit. Michaelis.

2. Thy teeth are like a flock of sheep] By this comparison are admirably expressed the evenness, whiteness, just proportions, and unbroken series of the set of teeth. Bp. Lowth.

Before CHRIST about 1014.

3 Thy lips are like a thread of scarlet, and thy speech is comely: thy temples are like a piece of a pomegranate within thy locks.

4 Thy neck is like the tower of David builded for an armoury, whereon there hang a thousand bucklers, all shields of mighty men.

[c] Chap. 7. 3.

5 [c] Thy two breasts are like two young roes that are twins, which feed among the lilies.

[d] Chap. 2. 17. † Heb. breathe.

6 [d] Until the day † break, and the shadows flee away, I will get me to the mountain of myrrh, and to the hill of frankincense.

[e] Ephes. 5. 27.

7 [e] Thou art all fair, my love; there is no spot in thee.

8 ¶ Come with me from Lebanon, my spouse, with me from Lebanon: look from the top of Amana, from the top of Shenir

[f] Deut. 3. 9.

[f] and Hermon, from the lions' dens, from the mountains of the leopards.

‖ Or, taken away my heart.

9 Thou hast ‖ ravished my heart, my sister, my spouse; thou hast ravished my heart with one of thine eyes, with one chain of thy neck.

[g] Chap. 1. 2.

10 How fair is thy love, my sister, my spouse! [g] how much better is thy love than wine! and the smell of thine ointments than all spices!

Before CHRIST about 1014.

11 Thy lips, O my spouse, drop as the honeycomb: honey and milk are under thy tongue; and the smell of thy garments is like the smell of Lebanon.

† Heb. barred.

12 A garden † inclosed is my sister, my spouse; a spring shut up, a fountain sealed.

‖ Or, cypress.

13 Thy plants are an orchard of pomegranates, with pleasant fruits; ‖ camphire, with spikenard,

14 Spikenard and saffron; calamus and cinnamon, with all trees of frankincense; myrrh and aloes, with all the chief spices:

15 A fountain of gardens, a well of living waters, and streams from Lebanon.

16 ¶ Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat his pleasant fruits.

CHAP. V.

1 Christ awaketh the church with his calling. 2 The church having a taste of Christ's love is sick of love. 9 A description of Christ by his graces.

I AM come into my garden, my sister, my spouse: I have gathered my myrrh with my spice; I have eaten my honeycomb with

---

3. Thy lips are like a thread of scarlet,] That is, thin and slender, and of a bright red colour, giving sweetness and grace to the discourse. Bp. Lowth.

—— thy temples are like a piece of a pomegranate] Rather, Thy cheeks are like a piece of pomegranate within thy locks: expressing that her cheeks, partially shaded by her hair, looked more beautiful, like the seeds of the pomegranate (whose colour is white mixed with red) in the midst of the divided rind. Bp. Lowth.

4. Thy neck is like the tower of David] Her neck, tall and slender, erect, and moulded according to the most elegant proportions, and adorned with gold and jewels, is happily compared with a tower of well-known elegance and distinction in the citadel of Zion, adorned with every variety of splendid armoury. Bp. Lowth.

6. — to the mountain of myrrh, &c.] Myrrh and frankincense were among the most valued perfumes of the East. The bridegroom therefore concludes his compliments on the bride's person, by comparing her to an entire heap of those precious essences. Bp. Percy.

8. Come with me — my spouse,] Here begins a new representation, the style of the bridegroom being altered towards the bride, whom he had before called by the name of "love," but now for the first time addresses under that of "spouse." Bp. Patrick.

—— from the top of Amana,] Amana was a part of mount Libanus; Shenir and Hermon were parts of the same ridge of mountains. Bp. Patrick. This invitation of the bridegroom is not to be taken literally, but the words are to be understood in a figurative sense. He invites the bride to his arms, as to a place of safety, and encourages her to look down in security amidst any dangers with which she was threatened. Lebanon, Amana, Shenir, and Hermon, were all places where some dangers were to be apprehended; and it is an usual beauty in poetry, to represent a general idea by particulars that largely partake of it. Bp. Percy.

9. — my sister, my spouse;] Or, perhaps, more literally, "my sister spouse." "Sister" seems here used as a term of endearment. Bp. Percy.

—— with one of thine eyes,] The words may be translated, "with one glance of thine eyes." Bp. Percy.

—— with one chain of thy neck.] The Latin translation is not inelegant, "with one curl or ringlet of thy neck." Bp. Percy.

11. Thy lips, — drop as the honeycomb:] Expressing her sweet and melting words; a metaphor common to Greek and Oriental writers. Bp. Percy.

—— like the smell of Lebanon.] The trees which grew upon mount Lebanon produced many aromatick gums and spices, and frankincense among others. Bp. Patrick.

12. — a fountain sealed.] This alludes no doubt to what was sometimes practised in the East, in order to secure the water of fountains to the proper owners. Parkhurst.

13. Thy plants are &c.] The bridegroom, having in the foregoing sentence called the bride an "inclosed garden," here carries on the metaphor, and compares her virtues and accomplishments to all the choicest productions of an Eastern orchard. Bp. Percy.

14. — calamus] Sweetscented cane. Parkhurst.

—— and aloes,] By "aloes" here seems plainly meant the lign-aloes or wood-aloes, the finest sort of which is the most resinous of all the woods with which we are acquainted. Its scent, while in the mass, is very fragrant and agreeable. The smell of the common aloe wood is also pleasant, but not so strongly perfumed as the former. Parkhurst.

Chap. V. ver. 1. I am come into my garden, &c.] The bridegroom here returns an answer to the invitation of the bride in the latter part of the foregoing chapter; and testifies his acceptance by coming to taste and feast upon the fruit of his garden; and, after the manner of those countries, he calls his friends and companions to be partakers of it with him. His receiving fruit from the garden is expressed by these words, "I have gathered my myrrh," &c. Then follows the feast, (which they always made my honey; I have drunk my wine with my milk: eat, O friends; drink, yea, ‖ drink abundantly, O beloved.

Before CHRIST about 1014.

‖ Or, and be drunken with loves.

2 ¶ I sleep, but my heart waketh: it is the voice of my beloved that knocketh, saying, Open to me, my sister, my love, my dove, my undefiled: for my head is filled with dew, and my locks with the drops of the night.

3 I have put off my coat; how shall I put it on? I have washed my feet; how shall I defile them?

4 My beloved put in his hand by the hole of the door, and my bowels were moved ‖ for him.

‖ Or, (as some read) in me.

5 I rose up to open to my beloved; and my hands dropped with myrrh, and my fingers with † sweet smelling myrrh, upon the handles of the lock.

† Heb. passing, or, running about.

6 I opened to my beloved; but my beloved had withdrawn himself, and was gone: my soul failed when he spake: I sought him, but I could not find him; I called him, but he gave me no answer.

7 The watchmen that went about the city found me, they smote me, they wounded me; the keepers of the walls took away my veil from me.

8 I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, if ye find my beloved, † that ye tell him, that I am sick of love.

† Heb. what.

9 ¶ What is thy beloved more than another beloved, O thou fairest among women? what is thy beloved more than another beloved, that thou dost so charge us?

Before CHRIST about 1014.

10 My beloved is white and ruddy, † the chiefest among ten thousand.

† Heb. a standard-bearer.

11 His head is as the most fine gold, his locks are ‖ bushy, and black as a raven.

‖ Or, curled.

12 [a] His eyes are as the eyes of doves by the rivers of waters, washed with milk, and † fitly set.

[a] Chap. 1. 15. & 4. 1.

† Heb. sitting in fulness, that is, fitly placed, and set as a precious stone in the foil of a ring.

13 His cheeks are as a bed of spices, as ‖ sweet flowers: his lips like lilies, dropping sweet smelling myrrh.

‖ Or, towers of perfumes.

14 His hands are as gold rings set with the beryl: his belly is as bright ivory overlaid with sapphires.

15 His legs are as pillars of marble, set upon sockets of fine gold: his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the cedars.

16 † His mouth is most sweet: yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem.

† Heb. His palate.

CHAP. VI.

1 The church professeth her faith in Christ. 4 Christ sheweth the graces of the church, 10 and his love towards her.

when they gathered the fruits of the earth,) in these words; "I have eaten my honeycomb with my honey," &c. Honey is mentioned in preference to other things, because in Eastern countries it was a principal and favourite food, as appears from its having been among the presents sent to Joseph, when governour of Egypt, Gen. xliii. 11, and among those brought to David by the great men of his country, 2 Sam. xvii. 29. As honey comprehends all the royal dainties which were to be eaten, so the wine and milk mentioned comprehend all the liquors given at the feast. Bp. Patrick.

2. — my undefiled:] Rather, "my perfect one;" so the Hebrew word properly signifies, one possessed of all accomplishments, both of mind and body. Bp. Percy.

11. His head is as the most fine gold,] Though the ancients prized golden or flaxen locks, yet this cannot be the sense here, as his hair is said to be black. The expression probably alludes to the custom which then prevailed of using a powder of a golden colour, as also golden ornaments in the hair. Dr. Durell. Allusion may perhaps be made to the Eastern custom of tinging the hair and face with a vegetable substance called henna, which gives them a yellowish or golden tincture. Michaelis. Or it is only a metaphorical expression to denote consummate excellence and beauty. Sanctius.

12. His eyes are as the eyes of doves &c.] In the original, "His eyes are like doves." The most common pigeon in the East is of a deep blue colour; and the meaning here seems to be, "His eyes are like blue pigeons by the foam of waters," by which the blue iris of the eye, surrounded by the white, is compared to a pigeon amidst the white foam of waters. But, as if the foam of water was not sufficient to satisfy the poet, it is added, "washed in milk," "dipping themselves in milk," thus further contrasting the blue centre of the eye with the surrounding white. Fragments to Calmet.

13. His cheeks are as a bed of spices,] The word translated "spices," sometimes signifies odoriferous plants and flowers of the garden. Perhaps then it may here mean, "roses;" and the words may convey a comparison of the pleasing ruddiness which health diffused over his cheeks to the colour of a bed of roses. Harmer.

—— his lips like lilies,] According to some, this comparison is made from the fineness and delicate softness of his lips; but Pliny mentions lilies of a deep red colour, which, he says, were much esteemed in Syria; and to this perhaps allusion is made: or perhaps the comparison may be not to the colour, but to the odoriferous sweetness of the lily. "Dropping sweet smelling myrrh;" that is, from which words flow, more precious and more pleasant than the richest and most fragrant myrrh. Bp. Patrick, Parkhurst. Allusion seems to be made to honeydrops, observable in inverted-flowered lilies, similar to the standing sweet dew on the crown imperial, now common among us. Sir T. Brown.

14. His hands are as gold rings] His hands are as gold finely turned, beset with a chrysolite. Bp. Percy. Or the meaning may be, that "he had on his fingers golden rings, set with a chrysolite." Bp. Patrick.

—— bright ivory overlaid with sapphires.] Perhaps, "is as an ivory plate, enclosed with sapphire," meaning to express the white skin covered with a purple robe. Michaelis.

15. His legs are as pillars of marble,] Alluding perhaps to the strength and firmness of his stature; or else to the colour of the garments. Bp. Patrick.

——his countenance is as Lebanon,] Of the two celebrated mountains in Judea, Lebanon and Carmel, the former was celebrated for its height, ruggedness, and the abundance of its vast and towering cedars; the latter for its richness and fertility, abounding with vineyards, olive grounds, and corn fields. Hence the former is here employed to express masculine dignity, as the latter is (chap. vii. 5.) to convey an idea of female beauty. Bp. Lowth.

Before CHRIST about 1014. WHITHER is thy beloved gone, O thou fairest among women? whither is thy beloved turned aside? that we may seek him with thee.

2 My beloved is gone down into his garden, to the beds of spices, to feed in the gardens, and to gather lilies.

[a] Chap. 2. 16. & 7. 10. 3 [a] I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine: he feedeth among the lilies.

4 ¶ Thou art beautiful, O my love, as Tirzah, comely as Jerusalem, terrible as an army with banners.

5 Turn away thine eyes from me, for ‖ they have overcome me: thy hair is [b] as a flock of goats that appear from Gilead.

‖ Or, they have puffed me up.

[b] Chap. 4. 1, 2. 6 Thy teeth are as a flock of sheep which go up from the washing, whereof every one beareth twins, and there is not one barren among them.

7 As a piece of a pomegranate are thy temples within thy locks.

8 There are threescore queens, and fourscore concubines, and virgins without number.

9 My dove, my undefiled is but one; she is the only one of her mother, she is the choice one of her that bare her. The daughters saw her, and blessed her; yea, the queens and the concubines, and they praised her.

10 ¶ Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners?

Before CHRIST about 1014.

11 I went down into the garden of nuts to see the fruits of the valley, and to see whether the vine flourished, and the pomegranates budded.

12 † Or ever I was aware, my soul ‖ made me like the chariots of Ammi-nadib.

† Heb. I knew not.

‖ Or, set me on the chariots of my willing people.

13 Return, return, O Shulamite; return, return, that we may look upon thee. What will ye see in the Shulamite? As it were the company ‖ of two armies.

‖ Or, of Mahanaim.

CHAP. VII.

1 A further description of the church's graces. 10 The church professeth her faith and desire.

HOW beautiful are thy feet with shoes, O prince's daughter! the joints of thy thighs are like jewels, the work of the hands of a cunning workman.

2 Thy navel is like a round goblet, which wanteth not † liquor: thy belly is like an heap of wheat set about with lilies.

† Heb. mixture.

[a] Chap. 4. 5. 3 [a] Thy two breasts are like two young roes that are twins.

4 Thy neck is as a tower of ivory; thine eyes like the fishpools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim: thy nose is as the tower of Lebanon which looketh toward Damascus.

Chap. VI. ver. 4. — beautiful — as Tirzah,] Tirzah was a beautiful situation in the tribe of Judah, chosen by Jeroboam for the seat of his kingdom. The name implies "a delightful city." Bp. Patrick.

—— comely as Jerusalem,] Jerusalem was esteemed the most charming place in all Palestine, and is called by Jeremiah, "the perfection of beauty," Lam. ii. 15. Bp. Percy.

—— terrible as an army with banners.] These words may be rendered, "dazzling as bannered hosts." The word translated "terrible," properly signifies "amazing," exciting awe and consternation. Bp. Percy. Some refer the expression to the gravity, or rather severity, of her countenance, which forbade all near approaches to so great a beauty. Bp. Patrick.

8. There are threescore queens, &c.] It is the common opinion that Solomon here alludes to the number of his own wives, and that he composed this song before he multiplied his wives to the prodigious extent related at 1 Kings xi. 1, &c. But it is more probable that he alludes generally to the custom of other princes in the East, who, besides their principal wives that were solemnly espoused and endowed, had also others who were called concubines. The terms "threescore" and "fourscore" are probably used for an uncertain number. Bp. Patrick.

12. — ever I was aware,] The meaning of this verse seems to be, that the spouse, hearing such high commendations of herself, both from the bridegroom, and from the persons mentioned at ver. 10, says with great humility, that she was not conscious to herself of such perfections, (for so the first words appear to signify in the Hebrew, "I did not know it," or "I did not think so,") but is incited thereby to make the greatest speed, so as to preserve the character which he had given her; and to go along with him into his garden, (which she had neglected before, ver. 2,) there to give a good account of her proficiency. For which purpose she seems on a sudden to take leave of her friends, (who had charitably accompanied her to seek him,) that she might for some time enjoy his society alone; which is the ground of their calling upon her to return, in the next verse. This is the best account I can give of these two last verses. It is supposed that Ammi-nadib was some great captain, who industriously pursued his victories or advantages with very swift chariots. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. — thy feet with shoes,] Rather perhaps, "thy feet within thy sandals." The Hebrew women were remarkably nice in adorning their sandals, aud in having them fit so neatly as to display the fine shape of the foot. Thus Judith's sandals are mentioned, together with the bracelets and other ornaments of jewels, with which she set off her beauty when she went to captivate the heart of Holofernes, (Judith x. 4.) and it is expressly said, that "her sandals ravished his eyes," chap. xvi. 9. Bp. Percy.

—— the joints &c.] The Greek translators render this word, "the whole proportion," or "model." The expression here seems to refer to the clothing which the bride wore; which agrees with the words which follow, "the work of the hands of a cunning workman." Bp. Patrick.

2. — an heap of wheat set about with lilies.] It was usual with the Jews, when their wheat had been threshed out and fanned, to lay it in heaps, (Ruth iii. 7. Hagg. ii. 16.) and, as their threshing floors were in the open air, in order to keep off the cattle, they stuck them round with thorns, (Hos. ii. 5, 6.) These, in compliment to the spouse, are here converted into a fence of lilies. Or we may suppose that Solomon here alludes to a custom, which they might have in Palestine, of strewing flowers round the heaps of corn after it was winnowed. Bp. Percy.

4. — thine eyes like the fishpools] "Thine eyes are clear and serene as the pools in Heshbon by the gate of Bath-rabbim," (which was one of the gates of Heshbon:) "thy nose is finely formed as the tower of Lebanon which looketh toward Damascus." Bp. Percy.

Before CHRIST about 1014.

5 Thine head upon thee is like ‖ Carmel, and the hair of thine head like purple; the king is † held in the galleries.

‖ Or, crimson. † Heb. bound.

6 How fair and how pleasant art thou, O love, for delights!

7 This thy stature is like to a palm tree, and thy breasts to clusters of grapes.

8 I said, I will go up to the palm tree, I will take hold of the boughs thereof: now also thy breasts shall be as clusters of the vine, and the smell of thy nose like apples;

9 And the roof of thy mouth like the best wine for my beloved, that goeth down † sweetly, causing the lips ‖ of those that are asleep to speak.

† Heb. straightly. ‖ Or, of the ancient.

10 ¶ [b] I am my beloved's, and his desire is toward me.

[b] Chap. 2. 16. & 6. 3.

11 Come, my beloved, let us go forth into the field; let us lodge in the villages.

12 Let us get up early to the vineyards; let us see if the vine flourish, whether the tender grape † appear, and the pomegranates bud forth: there will I give thee my loves.

† Heb. open.

[c] Gen. 30. 14.

13 The [c] mandrakes give a smell, and at our gates are all manner of pleasant fruits, new and old, which I have laid up for thee, O my beloved.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The love of the church to Christ. 6 The vehemency of love. 8 The calling of the Gentiles. 14 The church prayeth for Christ's coming.

Before CHRIST about 1014.

O THAT thou wert as my brother, that sucked the breasts of my mother! when I should find thee without, I would kiss thee; yea, † I should not be despised.

† Heb. they should not despise me.

2 I would lead thee, and bring thee into my mother's house, who would instruct me: I would cause thee to drink of [a] spiced wine of the juice of my pomegranate.

[a] Prov. 9. 2.

3 [b] His left hand should be under my head, and his right hand should embrace me.

[b] Chap. 2. 6.

4 [c] I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, † that ye stir not up, nor awake my love, until he please.

[c] Chap. 2. 7. & 3. 5. † Heb. why should ye stir up, or, why, &c.

5 [d] Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her beloved? I raised thee up under the apple tree: there thy mother brought thee forth: there she brought thee forth that bare thee.

[d] Chap. 3. 6.

6 ¶ Set me as a seal upon thine heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is † cruel as the grave: the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame.

† Heb. hard.

7 Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it: if a man would give all the substance of his house for love, it would utterly be contemned.

8 ¶ We have a little sister, and she hath no breasts: what shall we do for our sister in the day when she shall be spoken for?

9 If she be a wall, we will build upon her a palace of silver: and if she be a door, we will inclose her with boards of cedar.

10 I am a wall, and my breasts like tow-

---

5. — the hair of thine head like purple;] Meaning perhaps the colour which we call auburn. Dr. Hodgson. The meaning of the word translated "hair" is not certain: it may admit the sense "hair lace," "a fillet or bandage." Bp. Patrick, Dr. Durell.

7. — thy stature is like to a palm tree,] The palm tree is remarkable for its slenderness and height. At present there are but few palms to be seen in Judea; but formerly, it is probable, they were very abundant, as they are stamped on the Roman coins which belonged to this country, and are much spoken of by Roman writers, when they treat of this country. Harmer.

8. I said, I will go up to the palm tree,] The comparison is made to the palm tree, because that tree rises straight as well as high, and therefore sets forth that part of comeliness which consists in stature. Sir T. Brown has ingeniously observed, that the expression "I will go up, and take hold of the boughs," is peculiarly appropriate, since the palm tree bears its boughs only at the upper part. Some understand by the words which we translate "clusters of grapes," dates, which are the fruit of the palm. Bp. Patrick. The word for "boughs" is rendered in the Latin translation "fruits," and, in the Greek, to the same sense, "tops," since the clusters or fruit in the palm tree really grow on the top of the stalk. Parkhurst.

9. — the roof of thy mouth &c.] The word literally signifies, "thy palate," which is here figuratively put for "thy speech," which issues thence. Bp. Percy.

13. The mandrakes give a smell,] The Hebrew word, translated "mandrakes," occurs only here and at Gen. xxx. 14. Conjectures about its meaning have been most various.

—— at our gates] It has been supposed that this passage relates to the custom of decking the gates of new-married persons with festoons of fruits and flowers. Or perhaps the meaning may be, "in our hoards." As the gates in Judea were usually large buildings, it is not improbable that the repositories for fruit were either over them, or near them. Bp. Percy.

Chap. VIII. ver. 2. — to drink of spiced wine] This is thought to allude to a custom of the parties drinking wine from the same cup in one part of the marriage ceremony. We know that spiced wine was a great delicacy in the East. It was not peculiar to the Jews; the Romans lined their vessels with odoriferous gums, to give the wine a warm bitter flavour; and it is said, that the Poles and Spaniards have a similar method of giving their wines a favourite relish. The word rendered "juice" by our translators, is properly new wine or must; and "the juice of the pomegranate" is either new wine made acid with the juice of pomegranates, which the Turks about Aleppo still mix with their dishes for this purpose; or rather wine made of the juice of pomegranates, of which, Sir J. Chardin says, they still make considerable quantities in the East. Harmer.

6. Set me as a seal &c.] These are the words of the bride, beseeching her beloved to keep her always in mind: for that was the purpose of having the name or picture of a beloved person engraven on a seal or jewel, and wearing it near the heart, to testify great esteem, and a constancy of affection. Bp. Patrick. O set me as a seal, &c.; that is, place me so that I may never slip out of thy memory or affection: this request I make out of fervent love, which is strong and irresistible as death, especially when heightened by jealousy, or a fear of losing the beloved object. Bp. Percy.

Before CHRIST about 1014.

ers: then was I in his eyes as one that found † favour.

† Heb. peace.

11 Solomon had a vineyard at Baal-hamon; he let out the vineyard unto keepers; every one for the fruit thereof was to bring a thousand pieces of silver.

12 My vineyard, which is mine, is before me: thou, O Solomon, must have a thousand, and those that keep the fruit thereof two hundred.

Before CHRIST about 1014.

13 Thou that dwellest in the gardens, the companions hearken to thy voice: cause me to hear it.

14 ¶ † Make haste, my beloved, and be thou like to a roe or to a young hart upon the mountains of spices.

† Heb. Flee away.

---

11. Solomon had a vineyard &c.] The bride now promises her diligence, in this and the next verse, to do him the best service, and to make the greatest improvement she could, of the talents committed to her. For whereas Solomon, as she here says, let out his vineyard, which he had in Baal-hamon, a place near Jerusalem, (where abundance of people had vineyards, and he a very large one,) "unto keepers," each for a thousand pieces of silver, or shekels, and every one of whom made two hundred pieces for his own profit, she implies that much greater would be the increase which she was likely to make by her own care and diligence. Bp. Patrick.

14. — upon the mountains of spices.] Upon the mountains where spices grow: what particular mountains are meant, cannot be ascertained. Bp. Patrick.

Thus, the nuptial ceremony being finished, the poem concludes with a few pastoral expressions of mutual tenderness and affection. Bp. Percy.

The opinion that the whole of this poem is allegorical, is confirmed by the consent and authority both of the Jewish and Christian churches, and by the analogy which it bears to other parts of Scripture, confessedly allegorical. But in tracing the allegorical sense through the several parts, great caution is required; and it is especially necessary that we should be extremely careful how we pursue the allegory too far into every particular expression. If this caution be not well observed, there is considerable risk of impairing the dignity of Holy Writ. Bp. Lowth.

END OF THE FIRST VOLUME.